OTTAWA, May 8. — The tripleplated champions of the Canadian League will open training camp next week with practically no infield. Cosy Dolan is the only man on the inner defence sure to report. Frank Smykal, who accepted terms some time ago, has not been heard from when queried about transportation, and if he does not show up, second base will be open. Jack Mitchell is with Indianapolis, and it's a question whether he will be sent back to the Senators or not. Dusty Bullock has balked on terms, though he has been ordered to report. When the question was put to Manager Shaughnessy this morning what he intended doing to mould out his infield, he replied;

"I'll get a new one, and have 'em working by Wednesday next. I am going to Detroit Saturday night, and might say I already have three new infielders who are going to reporlt to me on Tuesday at Chatham. Any of last year's men who don't report, are not compelled to. I can easfly fill their places. I am determined to recognize the salary limit, the same as the other clubs."

Outfielder for Brants.

BRANTFORD, May 8. — Bobbie Green, the former crack outfielder of the Battle Creek (South Michigan League) club, was yesterday signed by Manager Rube Deneau, and will report to Brantford at the end of the week. Green batted .331 and fielded .983 in the South Michigan League last season with South Bend and Battle Creek, but took sick at the latter end of the season. He is one of the best-known players in the South Michigan League, and will strengthen the local club in the outfield.

A general meeting of the reorganized Brantford Baseball Club was held in the Y. M. C. A. last night, when officers were elected.

PHILADELPHIA FANS GIVE LAJOIE COLD SHOULDER

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—Pitchforked into as tough an assignment as ever was drawn by a mortal ball player, Larry Jajoie is patiently enduring an experience without a pararrel in all the years he has been playing major league baseball.

For the first time in almost twenty years he has spent under the big tent, Jajoie finds his home fans almost entirely out of sympathy with him and all his works, more reluctant to grant him the recognition he deserves than if he had done each of them a personal wrong.

Philadelphia is visiting upon Lajoie the resentment it feels towards Connie Mack for disposing of Eddie Collins last winter. If an opponent's hit finds its way through the infield at any point within thirty yards of Lajoie's station, many of the fans take a peculiar pleasure in speculating as to what Eddie Collins would have done with the play, and almost invariably they agree that with Collins at second the thing would have been an easy out.

Off for Life.

When Larry does field a batted ball the fan makes a point of de- [illegible] infinitely smoother skill Collins [illegible] it.

Because Larry did not annihilate seven Boston pitchers and eight or ten Boston infielders while the Red Sox were here, these fans decided that Larry had seen his day; that never again would he be in the larruping marvel of old, and that in foisting him upon them after Collins had been sold—sold for mere money—Connie Mack had done the glorious fandom an irreparable wrong. And so most of Philadelphia is "off" Lajcie.

But not all the Quaker City. There are a few fans in town who have been able to see that Larry has "come up" with every batted ball he has been able to reach—and that he has reached more than the average infielder tries for; that he has yet to make a poor throw; that he alone of the entire Athletic team has been untouched by the epidemic of duck-flutters that has made the outfit the despair of the dopesters who expected it to be a strong contender despite the things that happened to it last winter.

MR. BAILEY AS A LEGAL LIGHT

which said he (Stratton) was not the representative of the Paul Lambert Co. This the witness explained might accrue from the fact that the office was closed for several months. It was closed from July 29th till recently. Mr. Bailey wanted to know why Mr. Stratton kept the board with chalk on it. The reply was "For my clients."

"Who are your clients?"

"Anyone who has the price."

The evidence offered by the witness in regard to the transaction was as stated above. Orders were produced to show that Mr. Bailey had bought and sold C.P.R. stock. One order called for the purchase of Bailey-Cobalt to the extent of 1000 shares. The order was cancelled a few hours after it was written out. Witness stated he had cancelled the order because he had not been paid for the shares and he operates his business on cash principles.

Mr. Bailey denied that he had signed the order and after carefully scrutinizing it, he claimed it to be a forgery.

The efforts of Mr. Bailey to bring out the questions and his occasional comment upon the answer drew many smiles from the legal lights.

Mr. John Crane, manager of the Dominion Bank, gave evidence as the receiving of the draft from Wills of Toronto. The draft was not sent by messenger to Mr. Bailey but sent through the post office. Mr. Crane remarked that Mr. Bailey was outside the city limits. This aroused the ire of the plaintiff and he commented upon the "carelessness." Mr. Crane explained that he was out of the city in regard to "delivering drafts." Postmaster Edgar and Mr. Peter Campbell testified as to Mr. Bailey paying the $155 to A. H. Stratton and Co.

Mr. Bailey addressed the bench for over an hour. In his remarks he loudly protested against the swindles in the bucket shops. He quoted various authorities for his statement including the financial editor of the Toronto Saturday Night. He also had numerous clippings from other papers, all of which were anti-stock exchanges. He wound up his attack by remarking that he didn't care which way the verdict went as he wouldn't take any of Mr. Stratton's money anyway.

Mr. Hall's remarks were very brief but Mr. Bailey arose in the middle of them to criticize and then headed another attack upon Mr. Hall's reputation. Judge Huycke informed him that if he acted as a counsel he should act as all other lawyers.

TWO TORPEDOES

cal, believing it was impossible for German submarines to catch the big liner unawares. The Admiralty has been at special pains to guard the Lusitania and other big liners in the belief that their services might be needed later. Not only were warships sent out to guard the Lusitania upon her arrivel, but special precautions were exercised to protect the liner.

Anonymous Warning

New York, May 8—Before the steamer Lusitania sailed last Saturday, 50 anonymous telegrams addressed to prominent persons who had taken passage on the ship, warned them that the vessel would be torpedoed and sunk before it reached Liverpool. Following the telegrams there came a number of mysterious men who passed among the passengers and their friends on the Cunard pier to whom they whispered in foreign accents that death would accompany the Lusitania on her voyage and telling them not to go in her. Among the recipients of the telegraphic warnings was Alfred G. W. Vanderbilt. His telegram read "Cancel passage at once. Have learned on best authority that the Lusitania is to be torpedoed (Sgd.) Morte." Capt. Turner and other officers of the great liner did not fear any trouble from submarines upon the Lusitania's present trip.

Matrimonially speaking, a baseball catcher isn't always a catch.

CRANFIELD—DOCKRILL.

Peterborough friends will be interested in the announcement of the wedding of Miss Myrtle Dockrill and Mr. John Roy Cranfield, both formerly of this city. The happy event was solemnized at Assinaboia on Wednesday, April 21st, and Mr. and Mrs. Cranfield are residing at Limerick, Sask.

Both the bride and groom have [illegible] this city who will extend best wishes for a happy and prosperous future. The groom left Peterborough six years ago to take up a homestead, and he now has 320 acres of land. He is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cranfield, 48 Aylmer street.

CORY—PETERS.

At St. James' Church parsonage last evening, Miss Pearl May Peters and Mr. Wm. J. J. Cory, both of this city, were united in marriage by Rev. J. N. Clarry.

Mr. and Mrs. Cory will reside on Parnell Street.

Lieut. H. F. Hill is home for the week-end.

Mr. Fred. Moran, of Prescott, is home for the opening of the City League.

Rev. George Brown of Millbrook has accepted a call to Hampton circuit.

Mrs. Pearl Austin of Fenelon Falls is among the Canadian nurses who are leaving for France.

Rev. Robt. Pogue, of St. Paul's Church, has returned to the city and will occupy the pulpit tomorrow.

The Mothers' Club of the King George school will hold a meeting Monday afternoon at the school from two to six o'clock.

Solicitor W. A. Hollinrake, who was present at the Division Court yesterday in connection with the case of Kemp vs. C. O. F., returned to Brantford this morning.

Mrs. H. Dodds and children, of 227 Engleburn avenue, have gone to Belleville for a week-end visit to her husband, Battalion Sergeant-Major H. Dodds.

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

SATISFACTORY REPORTS ON Y.W.C.A. ACTIVITIES

Decided Advancement Has Been Made in the Various Departments of the Work

An extremely satisfactory condition of affairs at the Young Women's Christian Association was revealed last night at the annual meeting which in spite of inclement weather was liberally attended. Highly gratifying reports were submitted by the General Secretary, Miss Peacock, and by Miss Maud E. Stevenson, secretary of the Board.

The Board of Directors for 1915-16 were appointed as follows:—Mrs. Cressman, Miss Morrow, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. Roger, Miss Dickson, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. M. A. Morrison, Miss Wood, Mrs. Nugent, Miss Jennie Hall, Mrs. Kendry, Mrs. Middleton, Mrs. Chisholm, Mrs. Gardiner, Miss Ferguson, Miss Rush, Mrs. Scott, Miss Aldridge, Mrs. Robt. Neill, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. Denham, Miss Florence Cameron, Mrs. T. F. Matthews, Mrs. Switzer and Miss Williams.

The financial statement showed that a very small deficit of $196.73 existed, which was considered satisfactory. It was as follows:

Receipts.

Balance, 1914	$187.84
House Department	8977.95
Public Department	876.11
Interest	33.86
	$10,075.76

Expenditures.

Outstanding cheque 1914	$ 10.00
House Department	7954.54
Public Department	1336.78
South House	371.17
Bank of Montreal	200.00
	$9,872.49
Balance	$203.27
	$10,075.76
Note at Bank of Montreal	$400.00
Less balance	203.27
Total deficit	$196.73

Miss Franklin Johnston of the Dominion Council of the Y.W.C.A. gave a very interesting talk on Y.W.C.A. work, dealing with the opportunities yet to be grasped, and the need of the Association for earnest, devoted workers.

Rev. J. P. Wilson conducted devotional exercises and Mr. T. Weller contributed a solo.

Secretary's Report.

Miss Peacock, the general secretary, presented her report as follows:—

It is not easy to give a report of a work that stands for the building of character, and has for its aim the presenting of Jesus Christ to young women for much of that which is most interesting cannot be written. A report may be given in five minutes, it is only the written symbol of 365 days of work and much prayer.

It is indeed gratifying to know that the year now closed has been one well spent, not that we are in any degree satisfied with the progress made or the work accomplished but we are grateful that we have not lost ground but have made decided advancement.

To tell you of the different departments are but fleeting glimpses into a year crowded with thought and effort.

Religious—Recognizing that the spiritual needs of the young women of today have never been exceeded the Religious Department is one of vital importance in Association work. A vesper service has been arranged for each Sunday afternoon after which the girls have been asked to remain for tea.

There has been one Bible Study class taking the book "The Will of God."

Educational—During the winter Mr. Morris of the Collegiate Institute took the leadership of a class studying Browning's Poems. The evenings spent were a rare treat to all those who attended.

St. John Ambulance—Thirty-three took the lectures in First Aid and Home Nursing, conducted by Dr. Sutton. Ten took the examination for First Aid and received diplomas and 8 took examination on Home Nursing.

Library—There are at present 364 books in our library, 433 books have been in circulation during the year. The "Library Tea" given by the Girls' Auxiliary added about one hundred books.

One class in dressmaking was held before Christmas, but owing to classes at the technical school and business college evening classes no others were attempted.

Gymnasium — There have been three gymnasium classes, with an enrollment of 37. About one hundred were present at the closing. A number of outings have been taken by the girls. Miss Phyllis Denne has done splendid work in this department, which promises to be greatly increased n numbers next year.

Employment Bureau—During the year there have been 155 applications for work, and 122 ladies have applied for maids.

Membership—The membership of the Association has not increased as we would wish during the year. We have had 117 new renewals and removals with 102 new members added. The total paid up membership being 229.

Junior Work—The work in the Junior Department has been a decided success. The work has been well organized and well carried out under the excellent management of Mrs. Middleton and her staff of workers from the Girls' Auxiliary and volunteer workers.

237 children have been enrolled, with an average attendance of 1463. One cent each Saturday was given by the children which amounted to $13.88.

Some one has said "The girls and boys of today are the men and women of tomorrow. We feel this junior work means a great deal to the "women of tomorrow."

Clubs—The Loyalty Club which meets on Thursday nights has a membership of 35. The evenings spent have been largely social, and have had a good attendance.

Good Comrade—The Good Comrade Club is is a new club with 15 members at present. It meets on Wednesday evenings for gymnasium and social evenings.

Social Work—A number of small socials have been held among the clubs and classes during the year. At the opening of the fall work the rally was well attended and brought a number in touch with the work.

The Hallowe'en Masquerade party in the gymnasium brought together over one hundred girls in costume.

A Christmas party was given for the children of the junior class. 140 were present. In January a reception was given for Miss Saunders, by the Girls' Auxiliary.

Music Committee — In February the girls of the clubs and classes had a Valentine party.

Feb. 12.—Y. W. C. A. entertained the Y. M. C. A.

A number of organizations and clubs have made use of the rooms during the year.

The Red Cross, Kitchener Red Cross Auxiliary, Business Girls' Club, the Bible Class and Collegiate girls have used the gymnasium for basket ball.

We are now ready for a new year. We have only touched the fringe of the work for young women in the city. One night as a little girl was praying she uttered these words, "Oh God, I saw a little girl this morning and her dress was ragged, and her feet were bare, and she was cold and hungry but it isn't any of our business is it God?"

We cannot say "It isn't any of our business is it God." We know the work for young women in our city IS our business.

Clear thinking with humility of spirit will lead us to new paths of service. Let us go into the new year in the spirit of the letter poem:

"To dare to stand for what we know is true—
E'en when our knowledge baulks the common view,
And few may comprehend the thing
we do—
'Tis this is faithfulness, and they who keep Sustained such Faith, with destiny shall surely reap
A promise oft forgot.
I slumber not nor sleep."

Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of Hosts.

Local News in General

Kept It In Mind.

The Canadian Kitchener League promises a splendid program for Friday, May 14, at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. Come and help to obtain comforts for our boys at the front.

St. John's Services.

Canon Davidson's subject for the evening service in St. John's Church will be the Religion of Russia and its Results in the War. The morning subject will be God's Care of the Body. Reference will be made during the day to the loss of the Lusitania.

At Murray Street.

Tomorrow morning and evening the pastor of Murray Street Church will speak on themes suitable to Mothers' Day. The evening sermon will be specially addressed to young men and women on the subject, "A Disappointed Mother."

The men of the church who have auto cars are arranging to bring to the morning service mothers who find it difficult to attend because of distance, age, or infirmity.

Supplies Were Received.

Mrs. Duncan Walker has received a letter from Miss Plummer, Canadian Field Comfort Commission, Ashford, Kent, acknowledging the receipts of comforts from the Women's War Fund and the ladies in Bridgenorth and saying that the supplies were sent on to Major Bennett. The letter was dated April 23, the day of Major Bennett's death. Another communication from Major Grey, No. 3 Company, 21st Battalion, Kingston, expressed thanks for comforts sent by the committee.

The Board of Works is endeavoring to destroy the caterpillars on trees on the streets, and all property owners and occupants of property are urgently requested to cooperate in ridding the city of this pest by destroying immediately all caterpillars and caterpillar nests on property owned or occupied by them. A united effort now will free the city from the pest and save the trees and shrubs.

By order,
S. R. ARMSTRONG,
City Clerk.

I. O. F. SMOKER.

PARENTS ON LUSITANIA

Reginald Lockhart, of the test department of the Canadian General Electric works, is alarmed about his father, R. R. Lockhart, at 36 Dale Avenue, Toronto, who was among the passengers, his name appearing on the list. Mr. Lockhart had a brother who was wounded in France and his father was en route to England to visit him and be with him.

Doubt About Lt. Watson.

A passenger from Peterborough who may have been on the Lusitania when she sank was J. T. Watson, formerly accountant of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. Watson left here intending to join the Clyde division of the Royal Naval Reserves in which he held the rank of lieutenant. He was to have sailed on one of the Anchor Line boats likely the "Cameronian," but as this vessel was commandeered by the British Government, it became necessary to transfer a portion of her passengers to the Lusitania. Lieut. Watson may have been among these, or he might have sailed on any of the other vessels leaving New York.

Mr. Dunsford, manager of the Bank of Commerce, stated that he hardly thought Mr. Watson would be on the Lusitania, as he would take a boat leaving for Glasgow, nearer to her destination.

Explained.

"Why are the meek and lowly counted blessed?"
"They don't carry any big stick."
"Well?"
"Therefore are not tempted to lay about them."
"So?"
"And so never get into trouble."

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT ST ANDREWS

Special Preacher Will be Rev. W. J. Clark D.D. of Westmount

The founding of St. Andrew's Church in the year 1834 will be suitably observed at the services tomorrow. The special preacher for the day will be Rev. W. J. Clark, D.D., of St. Andrew's Church, Westmount. Rev. Dr. Clark is [illegible] the best preach[illegible]ian Church in Canada. His messages are, like himself, strong and winsome. Dr. Clark is a man of rare personal charm, and has been a commanding figure in the General Assembly for several years. He is convenor of the union committee of the Assembly, having succeeded to that important position after the death of Principal Patrick. There will no doubt be many who will avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing Dr. Clark on the occasion of his first visit to Peterborough. The choir and Mr. Treneer, organist, will render music as follows:

Morning

Prelude — Spring Song — Mendelssohn.

Anthem — I Am Alpha and Omega —Stainer.

Offertory Organ Solo — Cradle Song — Lohr.

Solo—Hark, Hark, My Soul (Newton) — Miss Helen McLaren.

Postlude — Gloria in Excelsis, from the 12th Mass — Mozart.

Evening

Prelude — In the Twilight.

Anthem — Zion — Rodney.

Offertory, in E Flat—Batiste.

Solo — Arm, Arm, Ye Brave (Handel) — Mr. Thomas Warde.

Duet—My Faith Looks Up to Thee (Laschner) — Miss Helen McLaren and Mrs. James Scruton. (nee Howell).

Postlude—Fanfare—Jade.

EIGHT DIED IN ACTION

Peterborough Homes Called Upon to Suffer Heavily for Gallant Work of Canadians at Langemarck

OFFICIALLY REPORTED KILLED.

Sergeant Fred Howarth, 518 Albert Street.

Private Odely David Taylor, 96 Douro Street.

Private Reginald Douglas Leal, 247 Aylmer Street.

Private William Falconer Gibson, 304 Brock Street.

Private Fred Stevens, 515 Cross Street.

Private George Minorgan, 383 Park Street.

Private E. B. Boswell.

Pte. Thomas Henry Griffiths, 182 Lock Street.

At last the blow has fallen. The agony of suspence with which citizens who had sons and husbands and brothers in the big battle of Langemarck was turned into bitter grief this morning when the names of the above Peterborough boys were flashed across the wire from Ottawa. No particulars were furnished, just the meagre words, "Deeply regret to inform you that —— is officially reported killed in action," signed by the Adjutant General.

The news spread swiftly and sorrow and grief for the fallen boys was expressed on every side. Although only six names came through, it was sufficient to convince all that the toll exacted in the Peterborough section of the 2nd Battalion was likely to be severe.

PRIVATE ODELY TAYLOR.

It was terrible news for W. L. Taylor, 390 Water Street, when a messenger boy handed him the curt message as he reached his office this morning.

Mr. Taylor could scarcely grasp the import of the message. Finally friends who rallied to extend their sympathy forced home the dreadful realization of his loss, and he broke down completely.

"He was the third or fourth boy to enlist," said Mr. Taylor to a reporter, "and he passed the examination easily. He never missed a parade or march all the time and he passed his twentieth birthday in the trenches."

Odely Taylor's death causes a pang to his scores of friends in Peterborough. He grew up here, attended the public and high schools and was a warm favorite among his boy friends. About two and a half years ago the newspaper profession attracted him and he became a reporter on The Daily Review and in this capacity was thrown in daily contact with citizens of all classes, his earnestness, energy and invariable cheerfulness making him generally popular. He quickly earned the appellation "Scoop" and the name was aptly earned for Odely Taylor was alert and industrious and and undoubtedly would have risen in his profession. But the call came and "Scoop" though only nineteen, felt it was his opportunity. He was among the very first to apply and be accepted. Now he is dead, but his memory will live and be preserved by his comrades who are left behind. There is one brother, Kerwood, besides his grief stricken parents.

SERGT. MAJOR HOWARTH.

The name of Sergt. Fred Howarth has often appeared in letters from the Peterborough soldiers, with whom he was very popular. The excellent service he rendered had also been referred to by the late Major Bennett, who on one occasion spoke of him as his right-hand man. He was color sergeant of No. 3 Company of the 57th Regiment.

The late Sergt. Major Howarth served in the South African war, and he was ready to make the sacrifice when the call was heard in this city last August. His widow resides at 518 Aylmer street.

PTE. GEORGE MINORGAN.

The news that Private George Minorgan had fallen along with his life long pal "Billie" Gibson came to the city this morning in the form of a telephone message from his father, Mr. George Minorgan of Beaverton. Pte. George Minorgan was a Peterborough boy, attending the public schools and later the P.C.I. At the Collegiate he was always one of the most energetic promoters of athletics and he assisted greatly in placing the old garnet and grey well to the fore. After leaving the P.C.I. he was located at Belleville and played short stop for the Belleville G. T. R. He returned to Peterborough and was connected with the Bank of Toronto. Again he took an active part in sports, playing for the bankers' team in the Mercantile League. When the call for volunteers came he was among the first to offer his services. He and Pte. Gibson had been pals from boyhood and evidently they fell side by side.

While in Peterborough George Minorgan resided with his parents at 383 Park Street. About a year ago his mother died and his father moved to Beaverton. His father and one sister, Miss Lillian, survive.

PTE. WM. F. GIBSON.

Keen indeed was the grief and distress in the home of Private William F. Gibson, when the news of his death arrived. It seems hard to think of "Billy" Gibson as being dead. He was just 24, with a bright and cheerful disposition and one who made friends easily. He was a Peterborough boy in every sense of the the word. He attended the public schools here, and later went to the Collegiate. He was a good athlete, a baseball player of ability, and a rugbyist of considerale skill. He left Peterborough for a couple of years, living in Winnipeg and Fort Francis. Upon his return he took a position at the local postoffice. He was regarded as a capable employe and all who enjoyed his acquaintanceship will mourn with his parents at his death. His father is Charles Gibson, 304 Brock street. There are three brothers left, James, of Kingston; John and George, at home, and one sister, Margaret, at home.

PTE. E. B. BOSWELL.

Pte. E. B. Boswell is the latest to be numbered with those killed in action. Confirmatoin of the report that he had fallen came in a telephone message this morning from his wife in Toronto to Mrs. Dr. E. V. Frederick, Charlotte street.

Pte. Boswell enlisted in Peterborough, relinquishing the agency for the Travellers' Insurance Company when the war came. He was one of the city's younger business men, and was well thought of by all who had business dealings with him. He was also popular socially, and his friends will deplore his untimely loss. A pathetic circumstance which makes his death the more sad was that he was married but a short time before leaving here. His bereaved bride is living in Toronto.

Mr. Boswell held the agency of the Travellers' for about three years, his office being located on Water street.

PTE. DOUGLAS LEAL.

Pte. Douglas Leal resided at 247 Aylmer Street. He was born in Madoc, Ont., and had lived in Peterborough some four years. He was

PTE. ODELY TAYLOR.

The news that came to Peterborough this morning struck the hearts of all citizens. All mourn the death of the gallant lads and sympathize with the widow, fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters. To the members of the Review editorial staff the announcement that Pte. Odely Taylor is no more, is a matter of deepest regret. It is hard to realize that his bright young life has been closed.

Some of his acquaintances were inclined to smile when Odely Taylor said he was going up to the Armouries to enlist. Yet he was bigger than they. He did enlist. He was passed by the examiners, and he went to France and gave his life. Now his body lies in a soldier's grave in a far-away land. He proved equal to the test.

FOE'S AIRSHIPS DROP BOMBS

GERMANY'S ACT DENOUNCED BY UNITED STATES PRESS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, May 10. — With prompt and thunderous unanimity, newspapers of the United States join in denouncing the destruction of the Lusitania as an unspeakable atrocity. Col. Henry Watterson, in the Louisville Courier-Journal, heads his editorial, "The Heart of Christ, the Sword of the Lord and of Gideon," and says: "Are we at the mercy of the insane Hohenzollern, bringing his war of conquest and murder across the line of our transit and travel over the high seas, which are ours to sail as we list, without let or hindrance from man or monarch, from him or from anyone on land or water? Must we, as people, sit down like dogs, must we as a nation emulate the docility and the impotence of China?"

The Philadelphia Public Ledger says: "The horror is almost inconceivable; there has been nothing like it before."

The Chicago Tribune says: "This last massacre violates all previous law of the seas."

The Providence Journal refers to the Lusitania's passengers as victims of the same savagery "which slew innocent women and children in Belgium and which recognizes no law of God or code of honor, and knows only how to slay," and says, "If the right of American people to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness is anything more than a cheap claptrap phrase, we must protect our self-respect and national dignity before all the world."

The Brooklyn Eagle says: "The Von Tirpitz regime has drawn up its own indictment, and the finger prints are in crimson, and they are there to blast a name as long as anything keeps a place on the tables of memory."

HOUSES STRUCK NO FATALITIES

Several Machines Took Part in Raid on English Towns Early This Morning

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 10. — Two Zeppelin airships are reported to have dropped bombs at West Cliff-on-the-Sea, near Southend, but no fatalities have been reported. Warning of the approach of hostile aircraft was given Southend at three o'clock this morning. Several machines took part in the raid, but whether they were Zeppelins or aeroplanes, residents are unable to state, as the weather was cloudy. Bombs struck houses in various parts of the town, but no deaths have been reported. One man and his wife were badly burned in a fire started by an incendiary bomb. One resident told of three bombs dropping near his home, none of which caused damage. It is reported that several shops were burned at Leigh, near Southend, four Zeppelins being said to have dropped forty or fifty bombs there.

LONDON, May 10. — Sixty bombs were dropped by aircraft at Southend, but most of them fell on the beach or in other places where they exploded harmlessly. One bomb dropped near a ship on which were twelve hundred civilians who had been interned. A British aeroplane went in pursuit and drove the hostile aircraft out to sea.

A report was received from Romford that a Zeppelin had been seen in that neighborhood, apparently in difficulties, but whether in consequence of an unfavorable wind or of having been hit was unknown.

THREE RIVERS THREATENED

Fire Broke Out in Heart of Commercial District

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Quebec, May 10.—Three Rivers was threatened yesterday with a repetition of the disastrous conflagration that in 1908 wiped out almost half of the city, when fire broke out in the hardware store of Cyrille Labelle and Co., Des Forges St., shortly before noon. The blaze raged in the heart of the commercial district and fanned by a strong wind, threatened a whole block. The loss is $50,000. Insurance covers the loss.

ATTACKS OF ENEMY REPULSED

Important Gains North of Arras Have Been Maintained

DUNKIRK BOMBARDED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, May 10.—(This afternoon's official statement): — Three new German attacks to the north of Lombaertzde were repulsed yesterday. To the east of St. George's our marine fusiliers took possession of Union farm, very strongly fortified by the Germans and also a position further to the east. They made about thirty prisoners.

Dunkirk was again bombarded this morning about six o'clock, two shells being thrown. In the region to the north of Arras, we have maintained all the important gains reported in the communication of yesterday evening. Along the rest of the front particularly in Argonne and in Alsace at Sillakerwasen there was a continuation of the artillery fighting.

ALLIES ARE SUCCEEDING

Meeting With Success Say Joffre and French

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 10. — Since the battle of Neuve Chapelle and the German reply to it on the Ypres canal, there has been no such important movement by the British and French armies in the western arena of the war [illegible] according to the official communication of both Gen. Joffre and Field Marshal Sir John French the Allies are meeting with success.

Obviously the British have been able to throw great reinforcements into the field since, with the use of asphyxiating gas, the Germans forced them to recoil a fortnight ago. The substantial advance already made by the British is taken by military experts here as promising that the present operations will be pushed home. The British and French are attacking along a front of twenty-six miles, and the fighting, which commenced Sunday morning, continues, according to today's official communication issued in Paris, in favor of the Allies.

REPORT NOT TRUE.

There is no truth in the report that President Wilson had been assassinated.

FOUND DEAD IN BATH TUB

Untimely Death of Mrs. Joseph Lavasseur, at Jubilee Point

HAD WEAK SPELL

Mrs. Joseph Levasseur, proprietor of the Jubilee House at Jubilee Point, was drowned early Saturday morning in the bath tub at her home. Mrs. Levasseur had been in ill health for many months, and Friday evening complained of pains around the heart and informed her husband that she would not retire immediately, but would sit up for a while and read. Near twelve o'clock he left her reading in her room, and went to his bedroom and retired. Next morning he arose about six o'clock, and as usual went to the bathroom. On entering he was horrified to find the body of his wife in the bathtub. He left the body as he found it, and went out to call some neighbors. Dr. Greer was notified, but he could not act. Dr. Lapp of Cobourg was then summoned, and he arrived, accompanied by Chief of Police Ruse. The usual investigation was made, and they found an inquest unnecessary. After examining the body Dr. Lapp stated that death was the result of heart trouble. It is thought that she left her room to go to the bathroom, and, becoming weak, she sat on the side of the tub. The fact that the muscles were relaxed showed that she fainted before falling.

To the Review this morning Mr. Levasseur said he was sleeping in a room directly over the bathroom, but he did not hear the slightest sound. In his opinion his wife had ben dead two hours when he found the body.

The body was brought to Peterborough yesterday to Comstock's undertaking parlors. This afternoon the remains were forwarded to Ayr, Ont., where the funeral will take place tomorrow.

Deceased's maiden name was Margaret Waybrant, and she was in her 39th year. Her husband and one sister, Miss Annie Waybrant, survive.

SUDDEN CALL TO WELL KNOWN LADY

Fifteen minutes after being taken ill on the street last night, Mrs. Caroline Selina Edwards, 190 Brock Street, expired from heart failure. She went out for a walk about 8.30 and had not been out long before she became very ill. She was assisted to her home, where every assistance was given her and the best medical attention but she she succumbed inside of a quarter of an hour.

The late Mrs. Edwards was a resident of Peterborough for seven years, coming here from Stourport, Worcestershire, England. She was in her fifty-seventh year.

A family of 3 sons and 6 daughters, besides her husband, survive Leonard and Richard of Peterborough, John of Toronto, Miss Ada at home, Mrs. Woodbridge, Calgary, Mrs. Sancton and Mrs. Leslie, Montreal, Miss Phyllis, of Calgary, and Iris at home.

The funeral is tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. R. B. Grobb, All Saints' Church of which she was a member, conducting the services.

The Charge is Wilful and Wholesale Murder

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

KINSALE, May 10. — The coroner's jury investigating the deaths attendant upon the loss of the Lusitania, returned the following verdict today: "Jury find this appalling crime was contrary to international law and conventions of all civilized nations, and we therefore charge the officers of the submarine and the German emperor and government of Germany, under whose orders they acted, with the crime of wilful and wholesale murder."

VICTIMS ARE BURIED IN THREE HUGE GRAVES

Townspeople Cover Bodies of Many Children With Flowers — Little Ones Will Be Placed in One Grave

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Queenstown, May 10.—A whole company of soldiers today completed the digging of three huge graves each thirty by twenty feet in which over one hundred and forty unidentified dead from the Lusitania will be buried this afternoon. There will be a joint service, clergymen of all denominations joining in saying prayers. Many children and little babies still lie in the morgue like so many dolls. Townspeople covered them with flowers yesterday and it is probable these little ones will be placed in one grave together. The presence of so many children on the Lusitania was due to the fact that Canadian women were going to join relatives while their husbands were at the front. Some on crutches many limping and nearly all bruised, the survivors left their hotels in small groups throughout the afternoon. Not a single body was brought in Sunday and it is not expected many more will be recovered as there was comparatively little time to put on life preservers.

CASE OF JOYFUL PRIDE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, May 10. — The Cologne Volks Zeitung asys that "the sinking of the Lusitania is a success of our submarines which must be placed beside the greatest achievement of this naval war. The sinking of the giant English steamer is a success of moral significance which is still greater than the material success. With joyful pride we contemplate this latest deed of our navy. It will not be the last. The English wish to abandon German people to death by starvation. We are more humane. We simply sank an English ship with passengers who at their own risk and responsibility entered the zone of operations."

REVERSE FOR THE GERMANS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 10. — The Exchange Telegraph Company publishes a despatch from its Copenhagen correspondent declaring the Germans have met a severe check to the westward of Milau, the capital of the Russian province of Courland. Numerous forces of Russians in strong positions compelled them to retreat.

CANNOT PROVIDE ESCORTS FOR MAIL AND PASSENGER SHIPS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, May 10.—Winston Spencer Churchill said in the Commons today that the Board of Trade inquiry will be held to determine the circumstances attending the loss of the Lusitania. "In the meantime it is premature to discuss the matter," he continued, "but I must make it plain that in no circumstances will it be possible to make public the naval dispositions for patrolling our coast. Our resources do not enable us to provide escorts for mail and passenger ships."

LUSITANIA WARNED AND DIRECTED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 10. — The First Lord of the Admiralty stated in the Commons this afternoon that Captain Turner of the Lusitania had acknowledged the receipt of messages from the Admiralty giving him warning and directions for the course he was to take.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, MAY 10, 1915

PRO PATRIA MORI.

THE WAR NEWS this morning again touches Peterborough severely. Six fine young men that marched away to war last summer are now reported killed in action. Their names are: Odely Taylor, T. H. Griffith, D. Leal, W. F. Gibson, Fred Howarth and Fred Stevens. Of these, Private Taylor was a reporter on the Peterborough Daily Review previous to answering the call to the colours. He was only twenty years of age, and was one of the first men in Peterborough to enlist. He was always bright and pleasant in disposition, and well-mannered to all with whom he came in contact. He was deeply interested in his work, and was always trying to get an exclusive "story" for this newspaper, hence the sobriquet "Scoop" by which he was familiarly known to his friends. Since enlisting he sent home some of the best letters that have been written from the front, and these have been published in the Review. Yesterday a memorial service was held for the late Private Heber Rogers; today, on the heels of mourning, comes the announcement of further deaths in action. Such is war—such is the price we pay—yet we believe these men have died gloriously in a righteous cause. The Review joins in the public feeling and extends heartfelt sympathy to the relatives of the late Private Taylor and also to the relatives of the other Peterborough men who fell in the famous battle at Langemarck.

SINCE the above was written the name has been received of a seventh man, George Minorgan, killed in action.

A WAR TO THE DEATH.

THE LOSS of the Lusitania is a distinct gain to the German pirate policy. At the same time it calls for some searching questions into the disposition of British submarines and destroyers. Britain has a large number of these vessels, more than any other nation, yet they are not sinking as many enemy ships as they should. What makes the Lusitania disaster so bad is that the German embassy at Washington should publish an advertisement that the ship would never reach its destination, and that the boast should be fulfilled. Knowing of what took place at the departure of the Lusitania, it seems remarkable that no British submarines or destroyers were commissioned to patrol the course of the Lusitania as it approached the Irish coast. Such a vessel is too large and costly and carries too many people to run alone the gauntlet of German pirates, especially when the United States would not permit it to carry ammunition.

The disaster emphasizes the character of the war in which we are engaged, and of the enemy whom we are fighting. It means a war to the death, in which one side must be completely defeated. There is also this possibility, that Britain may confiscate the large number of German vessels that are peacefully resting as interned ships in neutral ports. If this is done, it will be to replace vessels sunk by Germany in contravention of international law which she had pledged herself to uphold. In the meantime, it will be interesting to know what action the United States will take in the affair.

SIR WILFRID'S FRIENDLY ATTITUDE TO GERMANY.

LEST our Liberal friends, particularly our evening contemporary, the Examiner, have forgotten what the leader of Liberalism in Canada said in the House of Commons no longer ago than last year, we reprint the following from Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech:

"They introduced it upon the shallow pretence of emergency. Emergency? Who speaks today of emergency? Twelve months have passed since my right hon. friend the Prime Minister introduced his measure. Twelve months and more have passed since that time when he saw the German peril. He saw Germany almost ready to jump at [illegible] of Great Britain. He saw clouds on the horizon; he saw these clouds rent by lightning; he heard the murmurs and rumblings of distant thunder. But my right hon. friend today may live in peace. The atmosphere is pure; the sky is clear . . . the German peril has disappeared, if indeed there was ever such a thing. . . . I do not charge any intention of deceit on the part of the Prime Minister in this regard, but I will charge deceit if, in the face of such evidence, we hear again of such a thing as an emergency. . . ."

Read that over again. Let it sink in. Sir Wilfrid declared just a short time before war broke out that there was no German peril, that Canada and the Empire had nothing to fear. How sweetly oblivious was the Liberal leader to the real condition of international affairs — how blissfully ignorant of Germany's real intentions was he if he was sincere. If he was not sincere, how much of an alliance did he have with Germany? Sir Wilfrid has been a German ever since September, 1911, so far as naval policy and aid to the Mother Land is concerned. When anyone talks of Sir Wilfrid's loyalty, it is well to con over Sir Wilfrid's own words.

THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST RUSSIA.

WHILE attention has been concentrated lately on the western battlefront, in view of the desperate fighting in which the Canadian forces distinguished themselves, the developments on the Russian battle front are very important, and will affect the British line according to the measure of their success or failure. A writer in Beck's Weekly, dealing with this phase of the war, points out that the Germans may actually be attempting a serious invasion of the heart of Russia. There is no reason why this should not be attempted, as well as a Russian descent into Hungary. The Russian system of defence, planned to resist invasion from Germany and Austria, consists of the first line of positions along the Narew and the Vistula (Kovas, Grodno, Ossowizt, Olita, Novo Georgevsk, Warsaw and Ivangorod), and a second line, including Vilna and Brest, on the River Bug. Nearly all speculation on the part of military writers has turned upon the question whether these lines would hold or break, as it was generally held that only after breaking it would an invasion of the heart of Russia be possible. "It is true," wrote Block, "that another opinion has been expressed, as to the possibility of outflanking the Vistula-Bug-Narew positions, and also that of Brest; but such undertaking would be attended with such extraordinary and obvious dangers that it is unnecessary to consider it here." And yet, as far as we can see, this outflanking of Kovno is just what has happened, and it happened after the German airships had blown up the railway station at Byalostok, through which troops sent to the rescue must pass. We have no information as to the number or nature of the invading forces, but there they are, seventy-five miles or more beyond the flank, with the Russians retiring and burning their towns as they go. This does not fit in very comfortably with the suggestion made not long ago by General Smith-Dorrien, who is reported to have told the Canadians that while there were great difficulties in the way of turning the enemy's flank in the West, he hoped the Russians would soon be able to do it in their field of fighting. This rush into Lithuania may be attended with all the dangers which Mr. Block thought so obvious. It may, on the other hand, turn out to be of the most decisive influence upon the disposition of the Russian army in the near future. It is as full of the material of excitement, in its way, as the attack on the Dardanelles.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE NEWS that there is not likely to be an election is terribly disappointing to Liberals. While many who only a few months ago were demanding an election lately they have been thundering against it. The Conservatives may take them at their word and not have an election.

IS THERE going to be an election? is a question asked by many who are skeptical of what is reported. Premier Borden is the only one that really knows.

THE RETURN.

(Westminster Gazette.)

Our dead are coming home again:
Softly they come, on silent feet.
Even as with joy we gave our men,
So their return is sweet.
Together they went forth; now one by one
They slip into the ancient place;
And we, that thought ourselves alone,
Glimpse the remembered face—
Meet, in the shattered homestead of the heart,
The old familiar touch, the faithful ways,
The dear known hands that still possess the art
To mend our broken days.

—Evelyn Underhill.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

How the Canadians Fought.

(Montreal Star.)

Ten to one, and not only holding their ground, but pressing forward! Surrounded, cut off, hopeless of reinforcements, but fighting on with the old flag flying until the last bullet is gone. Why, Drake's men never did better than that; nor they who fought at Minden; nor the gallant gallopers at Balaklava; nor Nelson's heroes; nor the thin red line at Waterloo! Never throughout the splendid history of British warfare have sons of Britain fought better or died better.

And these are our own boys. Not trained soldiers; not even bred in a military atmosphere. Just ordinary folk like the rest of us—lads from desk and counter, from farm, and ranch, and lumber camp, brought up far from the sound or rumor of war. Peaceful, kindly fellows, with no love of bloodshed, and no hatred in their hearts; but with the same spirit—thank God—that filled their fathers who in their turn fought and died for their vision of liberty and for Brtain's honour.

Brightening Up the Chairman.

(Orillia Packet.)

Sometimes expediency dictates the choice at public gatherings of a chairman whose brains would be the better of a lubricant. In such cases we commend a device of the good people of Lake St. George, North Orillia, who, at an entertainment there last week, presided over by Mr. M. B. Tudhope, planted the chairman's polished pate directly under the occasional drip of a leaking coal-oil lamp. They say the scheme worked admirably, and that as the evening wore on M. B. grew brighter and brighter, the gathering not breaking up till after midnight.

Our Western German Press.

(Winnipeg Free Press.)

Protestant or Catholic, Liberal or Conservative, it has made very little difference. All the German organs of this western country have been whole-heartedly behind the cause of German militarism and German autocracy. They have supported at heart a Kaiser who boasts of his divine right. They have supported a state wherein the military party dominates the civil power. They have supported a constitution based on enfranchisement of wealth, powerlessness of popular assemblies, and irresponsibility of the ministers. What is the explanation?

Just One Guess.

(Collier's Weekly.)

Suppose that just after the moment the Eitel Friedrich had begun to blow up the William P. Frye but had not finished it, an American warship had appeared on the scene. What would the commander of the American vessel have been likely to do? Please don't trouble to send the answer. We know it.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Moderate to fresh southwesterly winds, fine. Tuesday, fine.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A COMMONER ON THE ELECTION.

The following letter from Mr. Burnham appeared in today's Toronto Globe:—

To the Editor of the Globe: It is impossible to imagine any greater folly than "going to the country" merely as an election expedient—in war time; in fact, I would go so far as to say that a party that would attempt "to realize" on the distress of its country is a traitor to that country. But the country has business of its own, just as Canadians have business of their own—even in war time. It must be attended to. If the Borden Ministry go to the country in the face of the "universal protest" against it which The Globe speaks about, it surely cannot be charged with the crime of expediency, Sir Robert Borden would then be appealing to the country as a matter of necessity. Is the complete reversal of the Laurier policy re N. T. R., etc., not a "necessary" matter? The country in 1904 and 1908 approved Sir Wilfrid Laurier's N. T. R. and G. T. R. scheme and condemned the Borden contention. Now Sir Robert finds it absolutely necessary to adopt his own policy. Does the country want this? Will it endorse him or will it demand that he make way for someone who will carry out the Laurier policy? This is a $250,000,000 matter—a most serious affair. In my very humble opinion the people should be asked about this matter. It is far more serious than any mere disturbance that may arise by holding an election here in war time. At first I was strongly against an election, but frankly and honestly I cannot see how asking the opinion of the people on the huge liabilities facing Canada of a new and wholly unusual character can be avoided. Let us agree to leave the war out of the question if it is fair to the people to do so. Let us limit the "fighting" in an election to business pure and simple. This will remove the last vestige of taint from it. Could an election be fairly objected to under all the circumstances in that event? Hardly.

STREET PAVING.

Sir,—The council is going to advertise for tenders for the pavement of certain sections of certain streets this year. Part of the scheme is all right, but some of it could not have received their mature consideration. I would therefore ask them respectfully to reconsider the sections to be covered, so as to serve the best purposes for which it is intended. The object should be to serve the central or business portion first, and then the main arteries of traffic leading to the country.

What folly it would be, if, as proposed, they should pave Scott Street that runs across one block only and has not a single house on it and is away from the centre of the city, and to pass over lengthy central streets studded with houses and over which there is much traffic.

Still worse is it to go outside the original town limits that formed part of Monaghan, but of recent years included within the city limits and pave Belmont Avenue, another short street with only two or three houses on it, and the extreme western limit of Hunter Street extended in that vicinity but only a few houses on it, leaving untouched scores of centrally located streets with thousands of houses on them.

Why should Hunter Street be paved further westward than Simcoe Street should, which are of the same character and running parallel and next to each other, or, for that matter, why should either of them receive preferential treatment, as they are not highways leading to any place outside of the city? However, they, as well as other cross streets, that are paved, should be paved as far westward as the G.T.R. in order that tourists and others passing to and from the Kawartha Lakes might be favorably impressed with the appearance of the city, and because their importance demand an extension that far, which is only an extra block.

The great thoroughfares that need special attention are George Street, north and south, Charlotte Street, McDonnel Street west, and Hunter Street eastward.

The pavement on George Street should be extended southward, at least as far as the wharf, if not to Lake Street. On Charlotte Street it should be extended as far as the Monaghan Road. On McDonnel St. it should be extended as far west as Reid Street, and on Hunter, at least, as far as the Otonabee bridge.

Hoping these few suggestions may receive attention, I am

Yours truly,

CITIZEN.

MR. BAILEY WRITES.

Editir Review,

Sir,—Your report of Bailey vs. A. H. Stratton & Co. interests but misleads, and if the judge got no better understanding than your readers, it is no wonder the legal profession was interested in the efforts of an ignorant suitor. As regards R. R. Hall who had been annoying plaintiff all morning and cross-examining him, and pretending to want to postpone the case in order to induce plaintiff to go on without material witnesses, perhaps the legal profession knew the difficulties of an ignorant suitor, and no doubt were glad to be out of the case. The manner of R. R. Hall's interferences with plaintiff, who had never seen him before, was calculated to bring about just that incident incompletely and somewhat unfairly mentioned at the end of your report. What was the essential meaning of R. R. Hall? That plaintiff had "delusions." He did not plot to swindle his neighbors.

Yours,

W. A. BAILEY.

Boats Badly Handled

Dublin, May 10 — Others could not be released and were dragged down. It has been established that one or two subordinate officers told a group of passengers who had climbed into a boat that there was no immediate danger and advised them to remain on deck. This report spread among other passengers and had the effect of re-assuring many who had started in search of lifebelts and in the rush for lifeboats.

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1,500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policyholders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is today saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment, but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.

Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.

Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.

The need of LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in

BRITISH MAKE DRIVE ON LILLE

Important Offensive Begins—Enemy Repulsed in all Attacks.

London, May 10—Field Marshal Sir John French reported yesterday: "Last night the enemy continued his attacks to the east of Ypres and made further attacks to-day, all of which were repulsed with heavy loss. This morning our first army attacked the enemy's line between the village of Grenier and Festubert and gained some ground to the southeast. Towards Fromelles the fighting continues. Our airmen successfully attacked the Standre railway junction north of Lille and the canal bridge at Dok." The War Office announces: "This morning the enemy started a violent attack on our trenches on the front between the Ypres-Poelicapelle and the Ypres-Menin road. The fighting continues and counter-attacks are in progress."

Paris announced last night: "Between Nieuport and the sea the Germans attacked but were repulsed and suffered important losses. The British troops have gained some ground in the region of Fromelles. We have made marked progress to the north of Arras, having taken on a front of seven kilometres, two and in places three lines of German trenches very strongly fortified. At Bagatelle we have been able to ascertain the importance of the losses suffered by the enemy. In their attacks yesterday the Germans used without any success gas bombs and liquid fire.

EVIDENCE IN ALLEGED THEFTS OF TIMBER

Peterborough Lumber Co. Missed Valuable Timber From Their Limits

Robert Peters of Chandos and Gordon Reynolds of Anstruther were committed for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction by Magistrates C. R. D. Booth and O. A. Langley on a charge of theft of timber from the limits of the Peterborough Lumber Company, Limited, in Cardiff township. The evidence was heard at Apsley on Friday.

The court room was crowded to the doors when court opened at 1:30 p.m., the case being of such importance to the residents of that community. Mr. D. O'Connell, in the absence of Crown Attorney Hatton, conducted the case for the prosecution, while Mr. C. R. Widdifield, of Messrs. Gordon & Widdifield, appeared for the defendants, in whose behalf he declined to elect or plead.

The first witness called was Mr. Alfred Dane, woods superintendent for the Peterborough Lumber Company, in that vicinity, who stated that on March 27 last he saw both Reynolds and Peters at a point indicated on the map, on Eel's Lake; also saw 45 logs and 15 pieces of square timber. He said he was told by Reynolds that part of these logs were for the bridge at Danes, and that he was taking the rest along as they might come in handy.

Traced Sleigh Tracks.

The witness found out afterwards where the timber was cut and traced the sleigh tracks from the place where he found it, to the stumps.

The next time Mr. Dane saw Reynolds was on the Cardiff road, and told him on this occasion that he had received instructions from the Peterborough Lumber Company that the logs were not to be cut and they were to be left at the lake. Mr. Reynolds said he had received instructions from Reeve Bullied to drive it. Witness took two men and marked the timber with the mark "P. L." of the Peterborough Lumber Company. On his return to Cardiff

ANCIENT WAR METHODS.

Did Hannibal Use Dynamite In His Passage of the Alps?

Every one knows the story of how Hannibal crossed the Alps. It is usually asserted that he demolished the rocks that opposed his progress with the aid of fire and vinegar. The word used by the Latin historians and which is ordinarily called in English translation "vinegar" is acetum.

The question has been raised by a European officer whether this is the true meaning of the original. He thinks that by acetum the historians intended to describe a substance resembling dynamite in its properties, and he invites chemists to consider the question whether the ancients may not have possessed a formula for making a powerful explosive of this kind.

He calls attention to the fact that two ancient historians, Marcus Graecus and Albert of Aix, speak of the existence of two kinds of acetum, one of which possessed greater energy than the other. A clew to the composition of this explosive may be found, he believes, in the fact that to acetum was ascribed the property of extinguishing the dreaded "Greek fire." He thinks the substance may have been strongly oxygenated.

Although to discover how Hannibal's "dynamite" was made would be to add nothing, perhaps, to our sense of the greatness of his achievements, yet such a discovery would certainly throw new light on some interesting events in the wars of antiquity.—Washington Star.

Gen. Joffre's New Chauffeur.

L'Intransigeant of Paris says that Gen. Joffre recently selected a new chauffeur, a reservist named Edmond Theodore from Niort, who passed his conscript service as a naval mechanic. His former driver was Boillot, the famous racing autoist, whose eagerness to gratify the general's fondness for speed caused him to take unnecessary risks. After one particularly hairs-breath escape Gen. Joffre, without reproaching Boillot, quietly announced his intention of making a change, not owing to the danger, but because Boillot's daring swerves kept him awake. He now sleeps peacefully through his hundred-mile rushes along the battle-front.

[illegible]

Describing the capture of a line of trenches in the north, a British non-commissioned officer writes home of an unusual piece of strategy:

"The evening before there had been a heavy fall of snow," he said, "and the bright moonlight showed up every object with extraordinary clearness against the white background. The 126th infantry which had planned a raid on the enemy's trenches, only 20 yards away, found its project compromised, but a corporal was struck by a brilliant idea; every man pulled his shirt on over jacket and vest; thus they crept through the snow up to the edge of the German trenches without being seen and carried the entire line."

THE REASON MAN IS UNABLE TO RISE IN THE AIR LIKE A BIRD

He Lacks the Breastbone — In the Bird it is Very Massive and Developed Like the Keel of a Yacht, and Therein Lies the Secret of Its Enormous Wing Power

Man has always longed to fly like a bird, and all the ancient attempts at flight were based upon the flapping of wings attached to human arms.

These efforts were given up long ago when it was realized that man was not and could not be strong enough to sustain himself in the air by the use of his arms. A man can only just lift himself with his arms—chinning the bar, for example—but he finds himself pretty heavy after he has done it a few times.

The reason why no man will ever be able to fly with self moved wings is that his breastbone is not big enough. A bird's breastbone has along its middle a deep keel, from which spring the enormous muscles that draw down the wings when flapping or hold them level when soaring, the muscles, in other words, that support the entire weight of the bird.

The most powerful fliers have the deepest breastbones. Look at the skeleton of an albatross, a condor or a humming bird in a museum and you will notice that the keel of its breastbone projects like the keel of a racing yacht.

You can see this keel, only much smaller in proportion to the size of the bird, on the carcass of any chicken or turkey after the meat has been removed, and the tender white flesh from the breast is nothing but the muscles with which the bird flew when alive.

You notice that even on a chicken, which is one of the weakest of fliers, this flesh forms the greater part of the body. On a humming bird there is little else but this mass of flying muscle. In other words, the humming bird is nothing but a tiny flying machine.

An albatross has a vast spread of wings, and its small body is little else but a pair of powerful pectoral muscles. These are attached by tendons to the bone called the humerus, which is the counterpart of the upper arm bone of a man. They spread out like a solid fan and are fastened to the breastbone with its deep keel, to the clavicles, or "wishbone," and to the ribs.

A man's breastbone has no keel. His humerus, or upper arm bone, is hinged to the clavicle, or collarbone, and shoulder blade. His pectoral muscles, which move the arm forward, and deltoid muscles, which lift it, are attached to it by strong tendons and spread fanlike over his upper chest, being inserted in the ribs and collarbone.

These are the muscles that do the same work for man as the pectoral muscles do for a bird. These are the muscles on which he would have to rely if he were to fasten wings to his arms and try to fly.

Compare these muscles with those of an albatross and you will see how inadequate they are. Though an albatross weighs only a few pounds, it has pectoral muscles that are actually larger than those of the most powerful athlete.

In order to have muscles powerful enough to lift his weight in the air by flapping wings a man's breastbone would have to develop a keel like a bird's and his collar bone would have to be changed to a giant "wishbone."

Some writer on aviation has calculated that this keel and "wishbone" would have to project at least six feet in order to furnish attachment for the necessary muscles, for man in proportion to his size is far heavier than an albatross. This bird has small and very light legs, whereas man's legs are solid and heavy. The albatross' long wing bones are hollow tubes.

This makes it plain why experimenters in flying long ago gave up the idea of self moved wings and flight like that of a bird.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Trouble With Golf.

Queen Victoria once induced Count Shuvalov, the Russian ambassador, to try a game of golf at Balmoral. The Russian did try, but after innumerable misses he turned round to one of the bystanders and said:

"Ach, monsieur, it would be a very nice game if the ball was ten times larger. Now let us go home."

But what he said in Russian to himself is not recorded.

IMPRESSIVE MEMORIAL SERVICE AT ST. LUKE'S

Memory of Late Heber Rogers is Honored by Congregation and Friends

St. Luke's Church held a very large congregation yesterday afternoon when a service in memory of the late Heber Rogers was held. The service will long be remembered as one of the most impressive ever held in the church. The Collegiate Cadets marched to the church and took part in the service.

The address of Rev. W. H. White, M.A., was an eloquent tribute to the young man. "We are gathered here," he said in opening, "to remember before God, with love and admiration, Heber Symonds Rogers."

The occasion is not one of mourning, but rather of thanksgiving and prayer. For the past three days the church flag has been at half-mast in token of sorrow because this church family of God has lost one of its sons. Today however the ensign, as you will have noticed, floats at the mast-head, necessarily so, for it is Sunday, the day dedicated to joy, the weekly Easter, the day when the Lord Christ triumphed over death. Our flag is no longer, therefore, the symbol of sorrow, but of that faith which is the mourner's truest consolation—faith that as Jesus died so He also rose again, faith that them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him.

The purpose of our meeting today in God's presence could not be more fully expressed than in the well-known words of the Prayer for the Church Militant, "We bless Thy Holy Name for The Servant departed this life in Thy faith and fear; beseeching Thee to give us grace so to follow His good example, that with him we may be partakers of Thy heavenly kingdom. We would in the first place give hearty thanks to God for the life of him whom we have in memory; we would also pray for grace to profit by that life's example.

It is a matter of regret to the preacher that having come but recently to this city and parish, he cannot speak of Heber Rogers with the advantage of direct acquaintanceship, nor with the warmth of personal intimacy. But what is lacking you can each one of you supply. Most of you have known him from his childhood. You know what he was as son, brother, pupil, friend, associate in work or play. You have observed his manner of life and divined the spirit which was its motive power. You will be able most of you to recall an occasion some ten years ago when within those walls [illegible] made and thanks rendered to God for the unconscious heroism of a boy of ten who had wonderfully saved two companions from a watery grave. You will remember many another instance of self-forgetting bravery. Possibly you will have echoed the verdict pronounced a few years since by a local organ of public opinion, "He seems to have lived to help others and to save life." When the war broke out, those who knew him were not surprised that although still short of nineteen years of age he was one of the very first to enlist for service abroad. That he did not take this step lightly or without counting the cost is evident from the uncomplaining cheerfulness of his letters written from among the discomforts of Salisbury Plain. It was the thought of the oppression of the weak by the brutal tyranny of the strong that made his chivalrous heart burn within him.

But perhaps one of my calling may be pardoned for laying most emphasis upon what one has reason to believe was the inner mainspring of this life of gallantry and self-sacrifice. Not on the surface but deep down was the governing power of a sincere religion. Among his companions he was a loyal, if silent, witness for Christ. At the Sunday morning monthly Communion of the young men of this congregation no one was more regular or devout. We may be sure that he lost none of the rare religious opportunities at the battle front. Last Easter Day, side by side with another young soldier from St. Lukes, he kneeled and received the Blessed Sacrament. May it have been a strength and stay to him in his last supreme hour. May the Body and Blood of our Lord indeed preserve his soul and body unto everlasting life!

It is hard to be patient with unthinking people who at this time speak of "young lives cut short—wasted." Many a long life is wasted and falls short of its end because it fails to accomplish God's purpose, but no life however brief can possibly be cut short, much less wasted, if it has been expended in fulfilling the Divine will. The true standard by which to estimate a life's worth and length is its content of service to men and of character developed in likeness to Christ. The earthy life of the Saviour himself ended in early manhood, but outweight in achievement the careers of all men combined. Our friend's life judged by these standards, though short as men count shortness, was yet a full life: it was given to him to hear the great clarion call, to see the one great obvious duty of this present time, to respond with a whole heart, to gain life by losing it.

Moreover, his life, which survives, is an actual present thing. Not a matter of unsubstantial glory, however long remembered. Nor even is it a thing which lies dormant until the end of the world, when the grave shall give up its dead. True, the full life of soul and body reunited awaits the final resurrection. For that time are reserved the brightest joys and most fruitful activities. Still, even if, when we pass through the gate of Death, we do not pass at once into the great palace of Eternity, we at least enter its vestibule, the place of preparation for and anticipation of its delights. "Today," said the Saviour to the sinner dying beside Him on his cross, "today shalt thou be with Me in Paradise." "To live is Christ," hence life's value; but, to the faithful Christian, "to die is gain," because death brings him nearer to his Master, and that immediately. [illegible] we believe that the life of the waiting soul in Paradise is limited to rest and purification and growth, but includes also active ministry to others. Our blessed Lord employed the three days of His stay in the abode of the departed in proclaiming the glad tidings of redemption. One has heard that our friend, at the time when the immediate and imperative call of King and country was sounded, had thought of entering the sacred ministry. May it not be that this latter summons was only postponed by the former, and that even now, in the bright, free land of spirits, he lives "to help and save the lives of others"?

Meanwhile, we who remember him with admiration and with love are linked with him in the communion of saints. He can do something for us, and we for him. We may profit by his example, and he through our prayers. God's most impressive and compelling messages are not those spoken by His ministers or written in the pages of His Word. Rather they are those delivered silently in the lives of His faithful servants. How rich this life now commemorated in its example to every one of us! But particularly to you boys and young men. However limited may seem your opportunities, however short may be your allotted span of life, you may each one of you make life a great success, may do great things for God and man, if only two simple conditions are observed—conditions always present throughout the life of this young friend of yours. The conditions are, first, warmth of heart, and second, readiness of will. Self-forgetfulness removes the hampering fetters which hinder prompt movement in response to God's call of duty. Sympathy and goodwill supply the motive power driving a man forward to the help of the needy just at the moment and in the way which mark the deed of a hero.

But let not our prayers be selfish! Let us also pray for our benefactor! It will be, please God, one of the redeeming rewards of this dreadful time of war, that Christians will no longer ignore their departed at the time of prayer. The head of our English Church has of late prophesied as much. No longer will the remembered abuse of prayers for those in the spirit world lay a chill and forbidding hand upon one of the best and most natural instincts of the human heart or bind them in chains not forged in the revelation of Scripture. We have for months past been praying in this church, and also privately, for this young brother who has passed from our sight. Our prayers, we believe, have been heard and answered. Shall we not continue to pray for as well as remember him—with humility as knowing our unworthiness — with restraint, as recognizing the limits of what God has been pleased to reveal to us—yet with earnestness and faith, because we wish him well, because he lives near Christ, Who can and will hear our prayers.

"How can I cease to pray for thee? Somewhere
In God's wide universe thou art today.
Can He not reach thee with His tender care?
Can He not hear me when for thee I pray?
Somewhere thou livest and hast need of Him,
Somewhere thy soul sees higher heights to climb,
And somewhere, too, there may be valleys dim
Which thou must pass to reach the heights sublime.

Then all the more because thou canst not hear
Poor human words of blessing, will I pray.
O true, brave heart, God bless thee, wheresoe'er
In God's wide universe thou art today!"

Order of Service.

The decorations included a floral cross placed in the centre of the altar by the ladies of the congregation. The pews occupied by the families and relatives of the late soldier were draped, a band of white being used instead of the customary black. The pulpit was draped with the Union Jack. The various memorial windows in memory of members of the Rogers' families were decorated with flowers.

The service opened with the recessional hymn Stand Up Stand up for Jesus, followed by the reading of Scripture passages as follows: I Thess. 4 ch. verses 13 to end of chapter; St. John 2 ch. verses 23 to 26; St. Luke ch. 23 verses 42 and 43. The hymn, My God My Father While I Stray, was sung and suitable prayers, including the Prayer of Commendation were said. Another symn, Safely, Safely Gathered in, was sung after which the rector, Rev. W. H. White, gave the address. The War Prayer and the Blessing followed at the conclusion of the address. The recessional hymn was The Son of God Goes Forth to War.

NEARLY 90,000 COUPON VOTES CAST IN CONTEST SATURDAY

Remarkable Gains Made in All Districts and Review Contest is Proving a Splendid Success — New Subscribers Being Added to Lists as Fast as Possible

200,000 VOTES FOR EACH DISTRICT

Splendid Special Prize Vote Offer Announced To-day — Candidates Doing Best Work in Each District Will Receive Special Vote Ballot — Vote Schedule Will be Reduced Again After Saturday

The Review's great International Tour Contest goes merrily on. The votes continue to pile up in fine style for the young ladies who are anxious to visit the World's Fair, and The Review is indeed pleased to see the public supporting the candidates in such splendid fashion. The circulation of The Review is going up by leaps and bounds and the contest is proving a big success.

Miss Irene Booth besides being in top place in her district is also the leader in the entire contest. To say that she is doing fine work is but putting it mildly and the way the coupons came in for her on Saturday shows that she has a host of loyal friends. Her coupon vote alone on Saturday was 18,655. Miss Maude Bogue is a close second and the competition between those two young ladies is decidedly keen. Miss Bogue is piling up the votes in royal style and the race for honors in District 1 promises to be the closest and most exciting of the contest.

In District No. 2, Miss Marion Gorman holds the lead. On Saturday her coupon vote was 9,450 and she has a host of friends who will do all in their power to make her the winner of a trip. Coupons to the amount of 6,575 were cast for Miss Mable Young on Saturday and she also received a splendid vote from subscriptions turned in to her credit. Mrs. C. J. Hicks also fared well on Saturday and made a big gain.

Miss Olga Johnston is leader in district 3, and on Saturday she received more coupons than any of the candidates. 21,050 was the splendid total of coupons cast for her and goes to show that she has a host of friends and is very popular with them. Miss Mildred Newton, of Cavan, was a visitor at the contest office on Saturday and the way this popular lady is securing votes is very gratifying to The Review. Miss Newton is a close contender for top honors in her district and has done remarkable work up to the present. Miss Teanie Boate of Omemee is piling up the votes and the race between these three ladies is indeed close.

The contest in District 4 is proving very interesting. Miss Miller is still in the lead but Miss Faux of Westwood has made splendid gains during the last week. Miss Faux secured more new subscriptions during the last week than any of the candidates in the contest. Mrs. Kidd of Indian River is right up among the leaders as is also Miss Kempt of Keene, so the race in this district promises to be a most exciting one. Miss Lajoie of Hastings has done excellent work in the way of getting subscriptions and is close up with the leaders.

The contest has but four weeks to run. On Saturday, June 5th, it will be all over and the fortunate ladies can then prepare packing their trunks to go to the World's Fair. A most elaborate tour has been arranged and the candidates who go will enjoy a tour that will remain in their memory as long as they live. But in the meantime the main point is to be getting votes. There are thousands of votes in your district waiting to be garnered in and you can get them just as well as any of your competitors. The public is getting enthusiastic about your success and the harder you work the more they will do for you. Don't let a single minutes pass you by without making good use of it. "The saddest words of tongue and pen are those, "It might have been." Might have been that had you worked a little harder you would be the winner in your district. Get busy candidates and make hay while the sun shines.

The votes schedule for this week is lower than that of last week and after Saturday it will again be reduced. Candidates should turn in their subscriptions every day as subscribers are anxious to receive their paper. There is no advantage in holding back subscriptions so report as often as you can.

Prize Votes For You.

As an incentive for better work it has been decided to give some prize votes for the candidates who do the best work during the next two weeks. This will also be an incentive to the subscriber to help you NOW so do not fail to get busy right away. Here it is:—

The candidate who turns in the most money on subscriptions, in her district, between today and Saturday, May 22, will receive a special ballot good for 200,000 votes.

This means that four young ladies will win special ballots good for 200,000 votes. All you have to do is to turn in more subscription business than your competitor and the prize ballot is yours. All money turned in for you at the office will also be counted on this special prize and the candidate getting the highest total in each district will win the special prize ballot.

There is still opportunity for new candidates to enter the contest. Any young lady who has been thinking of entering and hesitating should not hesitate a minute longer. This is an opportunity of a lifetime and you may be the very one to win the free trip, yet you are hesitating to enter. The contest has four more weeks to run so make up your mind this minute to enter and win a free trip.

In tomorrow's issue of the paper a full detailed itinerary of The Review's great trip will be published.

Let your motto be "HUSTLE, HUSTLE AND KEEP ON HUSTLING."

PREMIER HEARST

Bulletin Issued This Afternoon Says He is Some Better

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, May 10. — A bulletin issued this afternoon by Premier Hearst's physicians says his condition is much improved. An early recovery is expected. Dr. Elliot, who is associated with Dr. Adam Wright in the case, said the Premier's condition was very serious Saturday and Sunday, and the crisis arrived last night. Since then the patient has been better, but will not be out of danger for two or three days.

DERNBURG IS IMPUDENT WILL ISOLATE ENGLAND

Berlin Exults---Wilson Says Nothing and Roosevelt Demands Action.

New York, May 10—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, the Kaiser's spokesman, said last night that the sinking of the Lusitania would be followed by the destruction of other British ships whethere or not there are Americans aboard. The American flag would afford not the slightest protection for vessels which carried cargo that the Germans regarded contraband. Dr. Dernburg said in part: "Any ship carrying goods to Great Britain is to be sunk. England has cut off Germany from the outside world and we intend to isolate her so that all communication with other parts of the earth will be impossible. There were 5,000 cases of war material for the allies on the Lusitania. If these had reached the allies many more than 150 of our people might have been killed. The Americans have always been friendly to Germany and we want to maintain their friendship, gut a submarine is only 150 feet long and is unable to take off passengers. A submarine can be rammed at any moment and if the Lusitania had been warned she could have run away. We will stop our submarine warfare providing England stops her policy of starvation. Germany is willing to maintain the Hague convention rules. We want cotton and all foodstuffs. Give us an open sea and no such thing as happened to the Lusitania will happen again."

"Deserved"

London, May 10—The Exchange Telegraph Company hears that Berlin newspapers print the news of the sinking of the Lusitania in colossal type and hail the successful torpedoing of the ship as a new triumph for Germany's naval policy, the general impression being that Britain has got what she deserves.

Tempting to War

Washington, May 10—President Wilson passed Sunday in gloomy solitude, revolving in his mind what action to take against Germany for the destruction of the steamship Lusitania and a long list of American lives. He recognizes that the responsibility is his alone. He will decide and later consult his cabinet. All officials believe that the President is preparing to tell Germany in phrases which will become historic that she must abandon her attacks or bt denounced as an outlaw. The breaking off of diplomatic relations with Germany is regarded as the most likely course if the President decides drastic measures are necessary. This would not necessarily mean war.

Official Washington has taken note of the communication issued by the German foreign office affirming that the Lusitania was armed and that the owners "alone must bear all the responsibility." Both propositions are categorically denied gy officials of this government. Officials think Germany reasoned that this country could not prosecute a campaign successfully in Europe and therefore the only effect of a declaration of war would be to give Germany entire freedom to attack all ships going from the United States laden with supplies for the allies.

T. R.'s Strong Words

Syracuse, N.Y., May 10—Col. Roosevelt said last night: "When the disaster occurred I said that this was merely the application on the high seas, and at our expense of the principles which had produced the innumerable hideous tragedies in Belgium and in Northern France, that not only our duty to humanity at large but to our own national self-respect demanded instant action and forbade all delay. I can do little more than reiterate what I then said."

Tire Protection

Let the Fortified Tire Span Your Way Over Trouble

The Long, Hard Way

Years ago we started building a super-tire at Bowmanville. It is now called the Goodyear Fortified Tire.

Those early years were hard. Some men doubted our ability to build the best in tires. But the top place, as you know, is never easy.

We made mistakes—what successful men don't? We knew our ideas on tire building were right. We forged ahead in spite of keenest competition. Our sales and prestige grew as men learned of greater tire mileage.

To-day Goodyears hold the throne in Tiredom. From small beginnings we have grown to big production—the largest in Canada. Men bought last year, in numbers, more than one Goodyear tire for every car in Canada. Think what a tire must do to dominate like that.

Not Trouble-Proof

We don't claim the impossible—a trouble-proof tire. Mishap and misuse come to every tire some time. But Goodyears average best. They never would hold the lead unless they were true, as you know.

These are super-quality tires. Not in materials alone, but in features. We protect you in five exclusive ways. One of them costs thousands extra yearly.

Tests which can't be disputed prove that these features save tire users tens of thousands.

Fortified Tires in Five Exclusive Ways

Goodyear Fortified Tires protect you in five exclusive ways.

One combats rim cutting, the most efficient way that's known.

One means safety. These tires are held on by an unstretchable tire base, in which we vulcanize four flat bands of 126 braided wires.

One saves needless blow-outs. Our "On-Air" cure prevents the countless blowouts due to wrinkled fabrics.

One—a patent method—reduces by 60 per cent. the risk of tread separation.

And one combats punctures and skidding. That's our All-Weather tread — tough and extra thick, sharp-edged and resistless.

All these features are in Goodyear Fortified Tires. Not one of them is found in any other.

Third Price Reduction Yours

For the third time in two years the price of Goodyears is lowered. These have saved tire users an average of 37%. Yet this third reduction comes during war times.

But we determined to keep our factory wheels moving. In spite of the new war tax we have just doubled the capacity of our plant.

And now comes this third price reduction. You can see what faith we have in the Fortified Tire.

How Can You Hesitate?

Note the place which Goodyear holds here—the highest place in Tiredom.

Note its users and endorsers—more than any other tire ever had.

Note its growing prestige. The sales last year were 29 per cent. larger than the year before.

Note how they averaged best. They mean less trouble, less cost per mile. The place they hold would be impossible without that. Our extra features would be folly.

Are you fair to yourself when you fail to prove out what is known to so many as the super-quality tire.

They will mean to you tire content. If you want these new prices and these better tires, any dealer can get them for you.

THREE PRESENTATIONS ARE MADE TO DR. McPHERSON

Silver Tea Service From Civic Bodies, Purse From 57th Officers Mess and Watch From No. 8 Company

Among the Peterborough officers who have answered the call of King and country is Dr. A. W. McPherson, Medical Officer of Health, who leaves shortly for overseas service with the Army Medical Corps. Besides being regarded as a valuable military man, Dr. McPherson was unaware until Saturday evening just how much his services as health officer were valued by the city officials or how well he stood in their estimation. He was, therefore, a much surprised man when he was presented with a handsome silver tea set accompanied by address at a gathering of nineteeen city officers in the committee room of the City Hall. It all came as a surprise to the genial M. H. O., who was clad in khaki, as he entered the room and took a chair amid the gathering. No time was permitted him to recover from his surprise, as Ald. F. H. Dobbin rose forthwith and read the following address, which so aptly voiced the sentiments of all present:

Peterborough, May 8, 1915.

To Dr. A. W. McPherson,
Medical Officer of Health,
City of Peterborough:

Dear Sir, — Learning of your early departure from the city to take up active service overseas in the Army Medical Corps, for which service you have volunteered, a few friends have gathered to bid you God-speed and to place in your hands a small token of appreciation: not in any sense as adequate recognition, but as a friendly token of regret at the severance of relations that have ever been most cordial and good.

Coming as you did to the city in connection with important duties at the Collegiate Institute, you entered into the work with such zeal and efficiency to at once gain the approval and hearty respect of our citizens, who are interested in the success and progress of our educational affairs. Your association with athletics placed you as a leader in all forms of many sports, and assisted in winning to you the confidence of your pupils and you were enabled, by example and personal supervision, to inculcate in our boys and young men a larger sense of many personal responsibilities for their share in the activities of life and a fine sense of personal honor as well. In a public way your assistance was ever at hand to help on and keep in good lines local sporting institutions. These things, aside from your professional duties, have been valued and appreciated.

A most worthy sense of personal ambition prompted you to enter a wider field of usefulness, and you are at once qualified for entering the medical profession. In this you have succeeded, as your many friends knew you would. Your practice has been one that has made large demands on your time and energy, and its limitations have been most cheerfully and successfully met.

In selecting you for the important civic position of City Medical Officer of Health a wise choice was made. The duties call for a rare combination of skill, tact, and untiring patience. You have measured up to the mark in every way and justified the selection from the day it was made. Your successor will find it a difficult thing to discharge the duties, and additionally so, to do as well as his predecessor has done. That is the penalty you leave to the one who follows.

In your new field of work you will be equally indefatigable, and, we know, valued. Thoroughness will mark your work. You will be equal to the severest emergency, and will ever be at the call where the moments are the most strenuous, and no danger, however imminent, will cause you to hesitate in your duty.

With heartiest wishes for your safety, health and safe return, we ask your acceptance of a small service of plate. It is not heavy in weight, but, dear sir, loaded with good wishes for you and yours.

Signed on behalf of the subscribers:

WM. BULLER,
Mayor.

When a mysterious box upon the table was uncovered, a beautiful silver tea set was revealed, and at the same time His Worship Mayor Buller conveyed to Dr. McPherson in a nice little speech how highly the City Council and the city officials generally regarded him for his faithful service and for his many estimable traits of character. They were proud [illegible] cient and valued official. He sincerely hoped he would be spared to return and resume once again the office he was compelled to vacate.

Dr. C. H. Amys, who is to fill the M. H. O.'s shoes officially while he is absent, recalled memories of when he saw Dr. McPherson lead an attack on Armour's Hill. He was honored to think that the doctor was taking such a step, requiring as it did his severance of home ties and all that it meant. He was proud to think he was man enough to do it, and trusted that they all would see him come back at a very early date.

Mr. T. F. Matthews.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, assured the departing officer that he was voicing the sentiments of the Commission when he referred to Dr. McPherson as a highly capable and valued city official. He was responsible for keeping the city water as clear as it was, and for checking its contamination. Men of his calibre were bound to be needed at the front, and were bound to prove of immense assistance. He hoped that Dr. McPherson would meet his own boy at the front. It was a source of relief to know that men of Dr. McPherson's stamp would be there, bringing as it did comfort and relief to the parents of boys who were now there.

Dr. McPherson, after listening to all this eulogy, could have been excused if he had been stricken dumb. Bue he replied most appropriately, thanking them all for their mark of appreciation of his services. It caused him an intense feeling of satisfaction to know that his efforts had been appreciated and to hear remarks that rang so sincere. He regretted that he must go, but he must go wherever sent. While there was a sacrifice attached to the step, there was also considerable recompense. He was going to see some of the boys, he hoped, whom he had taught at school, with whom he had played football, and whom he had coached. He would be glad to see them all, and he would be glad to return to Peterborough when all was over.

"God Save the King" then boomed out from nineteen manly throats, led by Alderman Green, the only soloist in the gathering.

The officials present were: Mayor Buller, Aldermen Duffus; Weir, Green, Stratton, Dobbin, McIntyre; Mr. T. F. Matthews, J. Anderson, W. Henry, assessor; Robert Hicks, Chief of Police Thompson, Sanitary Inspector Spence, J. Murty, Dr. Amys, Fire Chief Howard, G. H. Duncan and S. R. Armstrong.

At the Armouries.

Two other presentations were made to Dr. McPherson Saturday night, one being a very handsome wrist watch from No. 8 Company of the 57th, which he has commanded for many years. Capt. McPherson was universally liked by the men of his company as well as the wohle regiment.

The officers' mess of the 57th presented the departing officer with a substantial purse of gold, Major Vincent Eastwood making the presentation. Both little affairs were very informal, but opportunity was given for those present at each function to tell Dr. McPherson how much they respected him and how sorely he would be missed.

SINKING CAUGHT MANY IN A HORRIBLE TRAP

Launching of Lusitania's Boats Prevented—Facts of Dastardly Attack Established—Survivor's Stories.

Queenstown, May 10—Passengers rescued from the Lusitania are agreed on the following cardinal facts of the disaster. The Lusitania was struck by two torpedoes. She was struck at exactly 2.15 o'clock and sank at 2.30. They show five watches that stopped exactly at 2.30 when their owners struck the water. It is now possible by piecing one narrative with another to recall the principal features of the torpedoing and its horrible sequel. About ten minutes past two when land was within sight, everyone on board was feeling naturally elated at the rapidly approaching conclusion of the extraordinarily nervous voyage and at a time when many of the saloon passengers were at lunch and most of the others, having lunched were enjoying the brilliant sunshine. There were a few who heard the detonation of a torpedo being released. There were more who heard the sinister swish of the oncoming agent of death. In the twinkling of an eye, before even those of active hearing could apprehend what was happening there was a tremendous crash, a shudder that was almost human shock the giant frame of the ship and instantly she listed heavily to starboard. It was hard to climb across the inclined decks. Above the rising noise orders rung out as to measures of life saving but it was not possible to lower all the boats. There was not time and the angle the deck had taken made the task almost impossible. The list became suddenly so great that many of those who were on the lower decks never had the slightest chance to reach a level from which they could either get in a boat or plunge into the water. Many of those who came on the upper decks were pitched precipitately into the sea by the ship's motion. Some of those who came nearest to the boats and apparent safety were crushed and maimed as the lifeboats swung in against the side of the vessel.

Those who survived strive to blot from their minds the cruel picture of the sinking itself. They tell you that there was no panic; that there was absolute calm; that the conduct of the women was splendid and of the men all that became men. The cries of the women as the ship went down seemed to be the thing that held the foremost place in the minds of the survivors. There was no screaming; it was just a long wailing, cry of despair. Everywhere terrified men, women and children were clinging with death grips to mere splinters of floating wreckage. Those who were in the boats rowed about while they could, rescuing those in the water. Their task became more and more hopeles Many of those pulled into the boats were thinly clad; those with thicker clothing in most cases had been dragged down. When it was no longer possible to lend assistance the boats simply drifted for an hour or two. Many of those who were in the boats died from the shock, exhaustion or cold, and some succumbed to injuries sustained when the torpedoes exploded. It was to Queenstown that most of the passengers were taken later by the rescue vessels and the good folk of the town made ready to receive them. They offered them every comfort and cheer. The hotels and large houses by the wharves were speedily turned into hospitals and no one lacked help or friendship.

Many pitiful stories are told of the hours following the rescue. One vessel picked up a boy about 10 years old whose leg was splintered and who when revived asked :"Is there a funny paper on board I can look at?" The courage of that little boy is matched by the innocent trust of little Helen Smith whose father, mother and brother were drowned but who herself was saved by a Canadian journalist to whose arms she clung as he swam for safety. Yesterday she had been provided with warm clothes and a flower-decked hat and was happy as any six-year-old child with a new doll.

Saw it Come, Then—

Alfred Vanderbilt, Charles Frohmann and Charles Klein and Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Hubbard are dead. Robert Wright, Cleveland, said "Elbert hubbard was a conspicuous person on account of his long hair." I sam him and his wife start below apparently for life belts."

Mr. Geo. A. Kessler, of New York, who identified Charles Frohmann's body said: "I was standing on the "A" deck smoking when all at once I distinctly saw the wake of a torpedo rushing at us. After we were struck I felt no alarm nor did any of the saloon passengers. We lived in a fool's Paradise of disbelief that anything in the line of torpedoes possibly could badly injure the Lusitania. We calmly put the women into the boats but at first did it simply in a spirit of convention.'

J. H. Ennecticut said: "I was on the wireless deck near the Marconi room when I saw the torpedo coming. I was thrown to the deck. A cloud of steam enveloped the entire forward part of the ship, making it impossible to see. The ship began to settle at once, and immediately it took a sharp course towards Kinsale Head, traveling apparently at about 17 knots. The vessel took such a sharp list to starboard that the boats on the port side were of absolutely no use. There was no excitement or hysterics."

According to Other Survivors

Scores of the passengers—many of them women and children—after being placed safely in lifeboats were dragged down with the ship, because the boats could not be lowered. Survivors attribute this fault to inefficiency among the crew. Ropes fouled, some of the boats were chopped away, overturning when they struck the sea and hurling the occupants into the water.

building is at present under repair and will entail a considerable expenditure.

During the winter the Board had occasion to especially commend the excellent management of the house department.

They would also specially recognize the valuable work of the Girls' Auxiliary who have not only contributed largely to the funds of the public department, but have done invaluable work in the library and junior departments.

A few months ago we lost one of our most able and efficient workers in the person of Miss Weir who has left Peterborough. As convener of our educational committee Miss Weir was able to procure for us lecturers, teachers and class leaders of the best ability. This board is very grateful to Dr. Sutton and Mr. Morris, P.C.I., for their assistance in this department and to Miss Powel who has played for the gymnasium exercises.

The Board wishes to thank the many friends of the association who from time to time have contrib[illegible] to the work particularly the press for their ever generous support and goodwill. The officers of the association are:

General Secretary—Miss Peacock.
Assistant Secretary—Miss Betts.
Superintendent of boarding home—Mrs. Barnes.

EVIDENCE IN

on April 12th the timber had been partly driven down to the bridge. Witness saw the two defendants cutting up the boom sticks that were used at the dam.

The witness had no doubt that the timber in question had been cut off Lot 7, Concession 3, and Lot 7, Concession 5.

About Ten Loads.

Mr. Wm. Kidd swore that he drew logs from the vicinity of Lot 7, Concession 3, in March last on instructions from his father, Mr. W. R. Kidd. He drew about ten loads. He had not been paid yet for drawing these logs.

Mr. W. R. Kidd, father of the previous witness, stated that Reynolds instructed him to draw logs, and he had sent his son to do the work.

In cross-examining the witness Mr. Widdifield endeavored to show that it was customary for settlers to take trees and timber from the limits.

Mr. A. Stevenson, [illegible] sworn, declared that no person could cut timber on crown lands without first having obtained the written consent of the department of lands and forests. He also declared that the Rathburn Company had not abandoned their holdings in that township.

Had no Permission.

Mr. Dickson Davidson, president of the Peterborough Lumber Company, swore that no permission had been given to either Mr. Reynolds or Mr. Peters to cut timber on this limit at any time. The limit was the property of the company he represented.

After the timber had been marked by Mr. Dane and seized by the company, Reeve Bullied telephoned the office of the company and offered to buy it. No arrangement was made then, but when Mr. Bullied came to Peterborough with Mr. Reynolds and arranged for the purchase part of the timber which was used for the construction of the bridge in order that the work would not be delayed.

Witness told both Reynolds and Bullied in the office in Peterborough that no matter what arrangements were made with the county for the purchase of this timber, it was most certainly the intention of the company to prosecute. This practice had been going on so long that it had to be stopped, and the only way to do it was to go to court. It was not a monetary consideration—the practice must stop, and the company found that criminal prosecution was the only way to do it.

Gordon Reynolds, called by Mr. Widdifield, acknowledged that he had cut the timber in Cardiff. He [illegible] was on [illegible] and that it would be easier to settle a trespass with the Rathburn Company than with the Peterborough Lumber Company. The reason he thought he was on the Rathburn limit was that he had worked there thirty years ago and that his brothers had taken timber out from there years ago. Witness acknowledged cutting 45 logs. Mr. Dane told him he was on the Peterborough Lumber Company's limit. "Dane forbade me to take logs out of the water at the bridge. I told him I didn't think they belong to the company," said witness.

To Mr. O'Connell witness stated he had to go around the lake six miles from where he lived to cut this timber. Peters was cutting with him in both places.

Mr. Widdifield, in summing up the case for the defence, argued that the crown had failed to show that wrong intent had been committed, and that the benefit of the doubt should be given the accused.

Mr. O'Connell, for the crown, stated that this was a case of brazen theft, almost highway robbery. The accused men should be sent up for trial.

LITTLE HOPE LEFT FOR THE MISSING

Canada Has Many Unknown Dead—Lusitania Horror Grows With Survivors' Tales.

New York, May 10—The Cunard Steamship Company to-night received the following cablegram from Liverpool: "Up to midnight Queenstown advises total number of survivors 764, including 462 passengers and 302 crew. One hundred and forty-four bodies recovered, of which 87 identified and 57 unidentified. Identified bodies comprise 65 passengers and 22 crew. Number of persons injured, 80 passengers and 17 crew. The search for bodies was continued throughout Sunday but none was found. The list of survivors is believed complete. The list of dead still stands at 1,256 and includes 91 Americans."

Toronto, May 10—Toronto to-day is a city enshrouded in sorrow. There was a greater number of Torontonians on board the Lusitania than passengers from any other city in the Dominion. It is now estimated that between 60 and 90 Toronto people were lost. Exactly 96 out of 162 Toronto passengers were still missing last night.

Canadian bodies so far identified are: [illegible] G. W. Stephens, Montreal; [illegible], Montreal, and Rev. Canon [illegible] are still on the "probably lost" list.

London, May 10—Percy Rogers, assistant manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, says he undoubtedly owes his life to being a good swimmer. "The scene was soon terrible," said he. "Particularly do I remember a young child, a lifebelt around her, calling 'Mama.' She was not saved or I could not reach her an old cupboard supported me old cupboard which supported her until a boat came."

W. G. Ellison Meyers, a lad of sixteen, from Straford, Ont., said: "There was an awful explosion. A huge quantity of wooden splinters and a deuge of water flew all about us A second torpedo struck us about four minutes after the first.

"I went below to get a lifebelt. Then I saw a boat which was nearly swamped and got into it, other men coming with me. We bailed it and then a crowd clambered in, nearly swamping us."

Lady Allan of Montreal was one of 38 survivors who were buffeted about for two hours on a life raft before being picked up by the freighter Katrina. The story was told by Mr. N. Alles of New York who said: "I had struggled aboard a life raft and about five minutes later we picked up Lady Allan who had been battling bravely to keep afloat and was now ready to give [illegible] centre of the raft where she remained semi-conscious until we were picked up. What became of her two daughters I do not know. During those two hours of drifting we were surrounded by bodies of the dead and always we could hear the dying shrieks of men and women in the water. We passed the bodies of several babies. Those on board the raft joined in 'Tipperary' and other songs to keep up heart."

Mrs. C. Stewart, who was traveling from Toronto, to Glasgow, said: "I was in my cabin with my eight months' old babf who was sleeping in the berth when I heard the crash. I snatched my baby up and went on deck. A man yelled 'Come on mith the baby.' handed him the infant and he said 'Now save yourself.' We were two and one half hours in the boat."

The Captain's Story

London, May 10—The official press bureau announces that the board of trade with the concurrence of Admiralty has ordered an inquiry into the circumstances connected with the loss of the Lusitania. Lord Mersey will conduct the inquiry. A despatch from Lloyds states that the U-39 sank the Lusitania. The despatch came from Munich by way of Geneva.

This feeling was not shared by Captain Turner. After being rescued in conversation with R. K. Timmis the captain said bitterly: "We didn't have a chance. I knew that when I felt the torpedo's impact." The captain added that he then told the helmsman and staff captain on the bridge to save themselves.

Other Liners Safe

New York, May 10—The American liner New York which sailed May 1 for Liverpool, arrived at that port yesterday [illegible] received by the American Line. The officials of the line had received numberless inquiries from friends of passengers [illegible] received by the French Line concerning the safe arrival at Bordeaux of the steamer La Touraine.

The Chief Justice.

"There are very few people who know the proper designation of the man who presides over the supreme court," said the secretary of the senate.

"Generally he is referred to as the chief justice of the United States supreme court. In fact, he is the chief justice. That's his official title. Most of our presidents in nominating men for this office have fallen into the error of giving him the long title. When George Washington nominated Oliver Ellsworth of Connecticut for this post he described it as chief justice of the supreme court of the United States. Andrew Jackson made the same error in nominating Roger B. Taney. So did Abraham Lincoln when he appointed Salmon P. Chase. Grover Cleveland was the first president to give the correct designation. When he appointed Melville W. Fuller he nominated him to be chief justice and nothing else."—Washington Star.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

CLASSY BASEBALL IN LEAGUE OPENER

Classics Defeated East City by 3 to 1 and Empires Shatout the Thistles --- Wade Pitched No Hit Game

They're off. King Baseball re-ascended to his throne on Saturday and the four City League teams began their three months' race for the championship of this city. Never before was amateur baseball greeted with such a large and enthusiastic gathering of fans and never before were fans greeted with such amateur baseball. Drop that mallet and get in there and boost. Judging from the class of ball the home brews presented the league is in for a great season. Before the curtain is dropped the fans and fanettes will forget there ever was a professional aggregation performing in Peterborough uniforms. The first game was won by the Classics by 3-1 after a sensational pitching duel between Gus Rose and Howard Kirn. The second went to the Empire Club by 2-1 as a result of Allan Wade hurling a no-hit game. Nothing much the matter with that brand of ball.

The opening ceremonies demand special mention. The auto parade from the Y.M.C.A. headed by the 57th Regimental Band made a "big league" impression on the main street pedestrians and merchants. On arriving at the grounds the players lined up along the home plate with their backs to the stand. His Worship Mayor Buller, Mr. W. H. Denham, and Mr. C. G. Graham, president of the league, stood near the pitcher's slab and for a few moments His Worship batted over .400 in the oratorical league. He commented upon that fact that all the boys were "homers" and with the hearty support of the fans the League should have a successful year and the professional pastime would not be missed. He also informed the spectators that he was manager of the Empire A.C. and he was in the game to cop the silverware. He called upon the players and fans, the latter numbered between four and five hundred, to stand with bared heads while the band rendered the national anthem. It was a beautiful tribute to the Peterborough ball players who have enlisted, many of whom are now fighting in the trenches. At the conclusion of "God Save the King" the field was cleared and the old ball game was on.

The opener between the Classics and Thistles found Gus Rose and Howard Kirn coming out of seclusion and mounting the rubber in opposition. The old West End pair did themselves credit for they had a merry old pitchers' battle from the first batter till the last man was out. Rose had a trifle the better of the argument, his assistants gave him excellent support, and this enabled him to carry off the honors by 3-1. Kirn broke in with a hair raising start, fanning seven men in the first two frames and permitting no bingles till the third. Hagerman secured the first safe one off Rose when two men were down in the second. When the Classics came up in the third Condon died on a grounder to Kirn. Lornie Rose was hit and Callaghan singled. Gus Rose walked, filling the sacks. Neary hit along the first base line to Guerin who threw low to Swanston trying to get the runner at the plate. Rose and Callaghan scored. With two on Kirn tightened and Connors and Hatrick tapped to the infield.

East City threatened in the last of the fourth. Lowes skied to Lornie Rose, Swanston missed three but Guerin walked. He took second on a wild peg by the pitcher and pushed on to third on a passed ball. Hagerman came through with a timely rap and Guerin scored. Miller went safe on Kirn's error but Barrie's best was a pop to second. The Classics secured their other counter in the first of the seventh. Anderson went safe when Barrie missed his grounder. Condon hit to Butcher who threw to Barrie and got Anderson at second. Rose hit to Kirn and he threw Condon out at the keystone bag. Rose went to second when Barrie dropped Swanston's peg. Callaghan produced a two bagger and Rose crossed the pan. Callaghan was left stranded when Gus Rose cut the air thrice.

East City seemed weak on the attack, their batting being a trifle below par. Hagerman perhaps was most prominent with the willow, securing two bingles. Swanston held Kirn up well but had no occasion to show his ability to whip them down to second. Neither outfields had anything to do but the Classics' infield showed rare class. Neary, Callaghan, Anderson and Lornie Rose make up a speedy quartette and all were as steady as veterans. Leo Kennealley executed the receiving for Vic Fowler's outfit and the boy is a coming star. He held Rose well and his throwing to the bases was perfect.

Eight innings and a half were played when the clock tolled four and in accordance with the rules of the league the game was called and the score reverted to even innings.

Empires by 3 to 1.

The dope went astray in the second attraction when the Empire Athletic Club handed a 3-1 defeat to the Thistles. The team which Bennie Wilson has been gathering together was more or less of a mystery to the dopesters as the censor kept the lid on all news. No one knew who would don the khaki uniforms and when the list appeared in Friday's issue the aggregation did not look as though it warranted serious consideration. It was a different story on the diamond however. The players worked together and hit when hits meant runs. Allan Wade the husky red thatched hurler made his debut by pitching a no-hit game. For seven innings he held the Thistles in the palm of his hand. The one run made by Louie Yeotes' crew came in the sixth. Jackson dropped one in front of the plate and Taylor threw wide to first. The runner stole second and took third on Knapman's infield out. Paton missed three but Smythe hit to short. Evans tried to get Smythe at first but threw wide, Jackson scoring. Smythe stole second and took third on a passed ball. He was left stranded when Wade struck Long out.

The Blue Sox scored two in the fourth. Murphy the first man up went safe on Jackson's bad heave. Corrin walked. Evans came through with a double and both runners scored. Evans was left at second. In the first of the seventh they annexed No. 3 Walker opened up with a double. Matthews pulled the moss covered hidden ball trick and tagged the big fellow out when he stepped off the bag. Heenan met a fast one for two bases. Sherrett hit to Paton who threw to third to get Heenan. The heave went low and the runner scored. Sherrett went to second on the play and pilfered third but died there when Taylor fanned and Wade went out Smith to Long.

Smythe pegged average ball for the Thistles allowing but three hits. He struck out ten. His support was also fair. Fred Craig was out in centre and had a double play unassisted when he pulled down a drive and touched second which a base runner had started from. Knapman drew applause when he gathered in a long lift from Wade's bat in the fifth.

The Empire team played good ball and fielded well. The infield is particularly snappy. Sherrett, the second baseman, is only a kid but he shapes up like an old timer. He had three assists and one put out without a miscue.

Umpire McNish handled both games and the fans seemed satisfied. There is always a certain amount of kicking on close decisions but it was ever thus in the City League.

Three Richest Nations.

According to the best tables and the latest, the three richest nations are: The United States, $130,000,000,000; Great Britain, $80,000,000,000; France, $65,000,000,000. Germany follows hard after France with $60,000,000,000. Russia is put at $40,000,000,000.—New York American.

War, Wheat and Rye.

The four leading continental countries at war have a total wheat area of about 108,000,000 acres and a rye area of 102,000,000 acres. The war means probably a loss of 42,000,000 acres of wheat and rye in France, Germany, Austria-Hungary and Russia.

Boys as They Eat.

Jerome K. Jerome in one of his unconsciously sentimental but consciously clever essays remarks:

It is amusing to see boys eat, when you have not got to pay for it. Their idea of a square meal is a pound and a half of roast beef with five or six good sized potatoes (soapy ones preferred, as being more substantial), plenty of greens, and four thick slices of Yorkshire pudding, followed by a couple of currant dumplings, a few green apples, a pen'orth of nuts, half a dozen jumbles and a bottle of ginger beer. After that they play at horses. How they must despise us men, who require to sit quiet for a couple of hours after dining off a spoonful of clear soup and the wing of a chicken!

OBITUARY

GLENFORD SISSON.

The death occurred early this morning at Cavanville of Mr. Glenford Sisson, of the F. R. J. Mac Pherson Co. The late Mr. Sisson resided on Park Street but was at Cavanville working on a contract for his employers. While at Cavanville he lived with his mother, Mrs. Geo. Sisson. Last Thursday he took ill and his sickness developed into pneumonia. His attendants did not think him to be seriously ill till yesterday when he took a turn for the worse. He sank lower and lower until he passed away about 2 o'clock this morning.

He is survived by a widow, two children, his mother, three brothers, Hanlon, of this city, Fred, of Montreal, and Alexander of Cavanville, also two sisters, Miss Jessie of Montreal and Miss Ersell of Cavanville.

Funeral particulars will be made known later.

PARENTS BEREAVED.

Death claimed the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. William Maher, 130 Robertson street, last evening. The child's age was one year and nine months, and death followed a brief illness. The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning to St. Peter's cemetery.

PATRIOTIC EVENING AT THE EMPIRE

If there is one thing that can contribute to a soldier's pleasure it is the solace of tobacco. It is invariably welcome; in the trenches, in camp, or on the march. Therefore nothing is more acceptable.

Knowing this, Dr. F. L. Robinson proposes on Wednesday night to hold a patriotic evening in the Empire Theatre. Everything about it will be patriotic. No admission will be charged, but a silver collection will be asked to be devoted to the purchase of supplies of tobacco that will be forwarded to the soldiers. Patriotic pictures, live martial airs by the Conservatory orchestra, and songs by local talent should pass a highly entertaining evening and be a great drawing card. A piece of enterprise like this with such a worthy purpose behind it should be largely patronized. It will be a small thing for the public but a great thing for the soldiers.

Y.W.C.A. REPORTS

Girls' Auxiliary.

The Girls' Auxiliary, which has a membership of 45, held eight regular meetings during the past year, with an average attendance of 14. The chief work undertaken by the auxiliary is the Saturday afternoon classes for children. The children are divided into three groups—domestic science, physical culture, and sewing being taught each Saturday. The attendance at the classes has been most gratifying. On Saturday afternoon, Dec. 19, they were given a Christmas treat, which was a huge success. Then, on Saturday, April 17th, the children were entertained and the classes closed. The domestic science prizes were given out, refreshments served, and a jolly time spent.

One of the most important branches of our auxiliary is the work in the factories.

The Good Comrade Club meets every Wednesday evening at the "Y." and there are usually about a dozen present. The first Wednesday is sewing; the second, intellectual; the third, outing, and the fourth, business. This has been under the very able leadership of Miss Denne and Mrs. Denham.

At the beginning of the year it was decided that the different committees would be responsible for a tea each month. There have been three—one of these a library tea in January, at which nearly one hundred books were received. This has been a great addition to the "Y" library, and also the girls have been asked to save their current magazines for the reading room. Instead of another tea in April it was decided to have a garden party in June to obtain funds for sending our delegates to the Muskoka Conference.

During the week beginning November 16th, a mile of pennies campaign was undertaken by the girls. As much of the city as possible was canvassed and in this way $198.51 was raised. Some of the money has been used to make purchases for the "Y."

Two delegates are to be sent from the auxiliary to the Muskoka Conference in June.

On the whole the year's work has been very satisfactory, due in a large degree to our very efficient and energetic president, Miss Jennie Hall.

Respectfully submitted,
FLORENCE L. SCOTT,
Secretary.
JENNIE L. HALL,
President.

Board Secretary's Report.

Miss Stevenson, secretary of the Board, presented her report as follows:

During the year 1914-15 your board of managers has held twelve meetings, with an average attendance of fifteen members. The executive committee of the board has consisted of the officers of the board, the convenor of the finance committeee, Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. James Wood.

The following gentlemen consented to act as an advisory board: Messrs. Matthews, Hill, Morrow, J. J. Turner, Jr., Cressman, Mowat, and Drs. Cameron, McCulloch, Middleton and Morrison.

In the early part of the year it was decided to install a swimming pool in the building, but as this would necessitate a considerable outlay of money, which would necessitate an appeal to the public, the matter was dropped for the present.

The boarding house in the south end of the city was closed in June, 1914, owing to the general financial depression.

The books of the public and house departments are kept separately but administered under one head.

Miss Edna Ferguson was appointed to represent the board at the annual convention in Muskoka.

Mrs. Barnes' summer vacation was extended to admit of her taking a special course in Y. W. C. A. work in New York.

The annual prospectus was issued in September.

Thursday evening has been set apart as an open night at the "Y.," when entertainment will be provided for those visiting the building.

The week of prayer was observed by the Board, November 8 to 16.

Miss Saunders, national secretary, visited Peterborough in January, when she held a short course of meetings, which were of a devotional and instructive character. The board is indebted to Miss Saunders for this work, the results of which [illegible] beneficial. [illegible] mittee, with Mrs. Denham as convenor, was added to the committees.

The gymnasium has been rented during the winter to the P.C.I. girls' basket ball team and Mrs. Rogers' Bible Class, and the green room has been loaned for the uses of the Kitchener Club and the Local Council of Women.

On the invitation of your board, Mrs. Have, Travellers' Aid Society, came to Peterborough in February last and held several meetings. It was hoped by acquainting people with the importance and scope of this work a keener interest would be manifested not only by association members but also by the general public. The roof of the association

ST. ANDREW'S ANNIVERSARY

Bright and interesting anniversary services were held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday, with Rev. J. W. Clark, D.D., of Westmount, as the special preacher. The pastor, Rev. Jas. Rollins, assisted. Good-sized congregations were present. The special effort made by the organist and choir, in the musical part of the services, helped to a very large extent in the enjoyment of the services. The anthems were splendidly sung. The soloists were Miss McLaren and Mr. T. Ward, and Miss MacLaren and Mrs. James Scruton were heard in a duet at the evening service.

The visiting preacher delivered two excellent discourses. At the evening service, his text was taken from the sixth chapter of St. John and his sermon dealt with the action of the disciples in remaining with their Master when the multitude had turned away. Three reasons were given for the disciples' action. They were sincere and earnest men; they had a clear conception of what it meant to turn away and they had love and affection for the Master.

EMPLOYMENT FOR MEN WHEN PEACE IS RESTORED

Colonel Hammond Discusses Salvation Army's Part in the Proposed Imperial Scheme

Colonel Hammond, who is at present on a visit to Canada connected with the Salvation Army's part in the proposed Imperial scheme for ensuring the men who have been fighting the Empire's battles on land and sea against unemployment on their return from the war, was in Peterborough yesterday. He has travelled in many countries in the interest of the great spiritual, moral and social work for which the Army has justly gained so much renown. In regard to the present object of his mission to Canada, the Colonel informed a reported who called to see him that he was following up inquiries essential to these "after-the-war" proposals instituted by Commissioner Lamb in January last, when he visited Canada and consulted with many of the leading statesmen and commercial and industrial authorities on the subject.

A Citizen of the World.

The Colonel, by the way, was born in England, but his experiences all over the globe in the pursuit of his calling entitle him to be called a citizen of the world. The Colonel visited Canada previously in charge of an immigration party, but apart from business matters, he has a deep interest in the Dominion, having a son in the government service, and a daughter who has also made her home in the Land of the Maple.

"My last tour — the itinerary of which included Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, Japan, Korea and China, and back from Pekin over the trans-Siberian railroad through Europe to London — extended over 42,000 miles," the Colonel informed the reporter. He explained that his present visit to Canada was connected with the work of the Army's immigration department, in regard to which he said:

"Since the late General Booth first entrusted Commissioner Lamb with the organizing of this form of service as a branch of the Army's work, we have sent nearly 100,000 good class British people to the Dominions through our emigration department, by far the greater number of them to Canada, and the most gratifying feature of the whole business is that the vast majority of these people have done well by themselves and for their new country. We reckon our percentage of failures at less than one per cent. This in itself is evidence of the efficiency of our selection system on the other side, and the absorbing capacity of your country. We are also glad to know that amongst those Canadians who, with splendid Imperial patriotism, rallied to the assistance of the Old Country, there are many who crossed the Atlantic first under the guidance of our emigration department."

Proposals He Advocates.

"And what are the proposals advocated by the Salvation Army to deal with this unemployment after the war?" queried the newspaperman.

"As urged by General Booth in an interview recently given to a representative of one of the great London dailies, the Army is of the opinion that there is a great need of immediate action on the part of the Imperial Government in a preventative direction," Colonel Hammond replied.

Proceeding, Colonel Hammond said: "It is General Booth's opinion that it should be clearly recognized that every man who has served with the colors would have a claim on the State for provision of some kind of employment should he be unable to resume his old occupation or find [illegible] met by the operation of the normal influence of supply and demand.

"Every man who was not disqualified by misconduct of some kind,—drunkenness or vice,— should have a free passage to any part of the Empire where he could be profitable employed, or where there was work available. Further, the Army would send the man's family, if he had one, after him, also free of charge, as soon as he had found his feet and had a home."

Would Not Handicap Canadians.

In regard to a suggestion that this might handicap the chances of the returned Canadians, for whom the Canadian Government was morally bound to make provision, the Colonel replied:

"You can rest assured that any scheme that may be devised will take the local circumstances fully into consideration, and that nothing will be done by those responsible on the other side to put competition in the way of the Canadian boys who have done their part in the struggle. Indeed, I am in a position to state that emigration in furtherance of the proposals indicated would not begin until the Dominions had completely absorbed their own returned soldiers and were ready to receive additional settlers."

"What about the war, Colonel; how is it affecting the old land?"

"In the main, things are little different from normal. Business-as-usual is the national slogan, but there are signs on every hand of the great struggle in which the Empire is engaged. The cost of living has gone up. The cities are darkened at night and in every district you can see large bodies of fine men drilling in preparation for the supreme effort to clear the enemy out of France and Belgium."

Asked regarding the impression the Canadian troops had created in England, Colonel Hammond said the [illegible] belief in [illegible] the Canadian soldiers, and reports that were coming from the front of their gallant deeds served to increase this admiration.

While in the city yesterday Colonel Hammond was the guest of Fire Chief W. A. Howard.

MILITARY NEWS

(Ottawa Citizen.)

The 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles carried out sham battles across the fields at the Hunt Club amid the showers of rain which fell lavishly during almost all the operations. It did not interfere with the troopers, however, and a very beneficial work was carried out.

The men got up at reveille which was sounded at 5.30 and were ready to move off at 8.10 o'clock. The regiment marched along the Canal to the Manotick road and up this road to the Hunt Club and also marched all the way back. They arrived at the Hunt Club at 9.30 and began an engagement at once, getting the start of the rain by about half an hour.

One squadron under Major S. T. Medd took up a position on a ridge near the Hunt club and two other squadrons under Major Honeywell assisted by the machine gun detachment attacked the position. The attack lasted about half an hour. On the portion of the defenders' line south of the Manotick road, the attack was successful, but between the road and the river the defenders held their position.

Then one squadron and the machine gun detachment under Major Honeywell held a position and was attacked by the other two squadrons under Major Medd. The object was for Major Honeywell's squadron to delay the advance of the other two squadrons which it did, holding one ridge for a time and then retreating to a second line.

All this was done in a heavy rain but the soldiers paid no attention to it, and carried out the operations in a most satisfactory manner. Lt.-Col. J. R. Munro was umpire, assisted by Major McLaughlin, Capt. Blue and Sergt.-Major Godfrey.

The troopers had lunch in one of the barns at the Hunt Club, the lunches being brought out with transports. The officers had lunch at the Hunt Club. The regiment marched back to Lansdowne Park in the afternoon.

Manvers township is represented at the war by a number of brave soldiers including two veterans. Pte. Driver, who saw service in South Africa, is a member of the Princess Pats, his son being in the infantry.

Pte. James Dixon, of Toronto, was employed as a farm laborer at Lifford for some time previous to the outbreak of war, and is now in France. He was one of the first to report for service, being on the reserve list.

Pte. Hector Hamilton, is a brother of Dr. Hamilton, of Bethany, and is thought to be among the missing, as he has not been heard from for several weeks.

Pte. Percy Chambers is a Pontypool boy and word was received that he had been seriously wounded in the fight at Langemarck.

The late letter received by Mrs. Wm. Quinn, Douro Street, from her son, Pte. Thos. Quinn, was dated April 12. He wrote that he was in good health and also mentioned Pte. Odely Taylor and Lieut. Matthews. Pte. Quinn told his parents that they might expect him home by next Christmas as he believed the war would be over by that time.

Pte. Taylor and Pte. Rogers were chums of the writer and were always together when circumstances at the front would permit.

Another Peterborough man reported wounded is Sergt. Ernest Nicholls, who was sergeant of No. 3 Company, 57th Regiment. He boarded at 183 Reid street.

Matron Appointed.

[illegible] May 10.—Lieut.-Col. F. Etherington announces that Mrs. Kate Douglas, Peterborough, has been appointed acting matron of No. 5 Stationary Hospital (Queen's.)

Sergt. G. W. Allen, who resided at 555 Chamberlain street, has been reported wounded. He enlisted with the 24th Battery. His wife and three children are residing on Chamberlain street.

MR. AND MRS. COPPING ARE BELIEVED LOST

Mr. Russell Copping received a message from Toronto this afternoon to the effect that it was useless to hold out hope for the safety of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Copping, of Toronto, who sailed on the Lusitania.

Mr. and Mrs. Copping visited their son before their departure for England.

Mr. R. R. Lockhart, father of Mr. Reginald Lockhart, has been reported safe.

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

engaged as a painter with A. Kingdon but when the call for men came he immediately offered his services. His young wife, two small children, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Leal, one sister, Miss Alice Leal, at home, four brothetrs, Mr. Fred Leal of Smith's Falls, Ernest of Oswego, and Privates Harold and Frank Leal with the 21st Battalion of the Second Battalion, survive.

Pte. Leal came from fighting stock. His grandfather, the late Sergt. Holly fought as a member of the 64th Regiment, Second Staffordshires, through the Indian Mutiny and the Persia wars.

PTE. FRED. STEVENS.

Mr. Bert Stevens, one of the local mail carriers, received the telegram which notified him that his brother, Pte. Fred Stevens, had been killed in action. Pte. Stevens was one of the five men who answered the call from 183 Reid street, and is the only one reported killed. He was a member of No. 3 Company, 57th Regiment, and worked at the C. G. E., being a machinist. His father and two other brothers are in England.

PTE. THOMAS H. GRIFFITHS.

Pte. Thomas Henry Griffiths resided at 182 Lock Street previous to enlisting. The message this morning came addressed to his brother, Albert Griffiths. The brother is now with the 8th C.M.R. at Ottawa and the message was sent to him.

German Airman Compelled to Descend When Pursued by French Aviator --- British Soldiers Bring Two German Machines to Earth

TWELVE PERSONS KILLED BY SHELLS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 11. — (This afternoon's official statement.)—"In Belgium, near St. Georges, the enemy endeavored by a night attack to recapture positions taken by us the day before yesterday. They were repulsed. To the north of Arras our progress has continued.

"Monday evening we took possession of a cemetery and then of the eastern part of the village of Carency and also of the road from Carency to Sauchez.

"Carency, where we took 230 more prisoners, including three officers, and captured several machine guns, is now invested by our troops on three sides, and is reduced to precarious communication with the German lines.

"Forces brought by the enemy from Lens and from Douai, in automobiles, were not successful any place in getting an advantage.

"Four strong counter attacks broke down under our fire during the afternoon of Monday, at the same time suffering heavy losses.

"These attacks took place in front of Loos, at Notre Dame de Lorette, at Sauchez, and at Neuville Saint Vaast. At this last-mentioned place we gained territory, at the same time taking about one hundred prisoners. The number of officers taken by us up to yesterday evening is more than fifty.

"Monday night the enemy suffered a further check. Counter attacks to the north of Neuville, Saint Vaast, preceded by a violent bombardment, were completely repulsed, and we retained all the ground gained by us, at the same time inflicting very heavy losses on the enemy.

"On the remainder of the front, from Loos to Arras, there was no counter attack yesterday.

"Following the bombardment of Dunkirk, reported yesterday, during which three shells fell, but without hurting anybody or inflicting any damage, the Germans threw eleven shells on the town of Bergues, five miles southeast of Dunkirk. Twelve persons were killed and eleven wounded. Our batteries at once opened fire and put a stop to the shelling by the enemy, which was not resumed during the day. On the rest of the front there has been nothing to report.

"One of our aviators yesterday bombarded a hangar for dirigible balloons at Maubeuge, and started a fire. An aviator of the enemy threw bombs on the railroad station at Doullens, 20 miles north of Amiens, but without doing any damage. Another aviator of the enemy, pursued between the Argonne and the Meuse by a French airman, was compelled to come down within German lines, where his machine took fire. On the other hand, Germans brought down yesterday a British aviator, and British soldiers were successful in bringing down two German airmen.

FAIRY TALES

Germans Have British Ships Sunk or Damaged

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 11.—According to the official press bureau Germans are circulating through their wireless the statement that about a month ago British ships were badly damaged in the North Sea and one or more even sunk by firing upon one another in the darkness. This statement which the British Admiralty characterizes as baseless fabrication sets forth that the reports of a night engagement first came from Norway and was supposed to be between British and German squadrons but no German ships were engaged in any fighting at that time.

Alleging various authorities, the statement goes on to say that the battleship Superb is said to have been sunk and the cruiser Warrior was seen in a sinking condition, that [illegible] arrived in various British [illegible] Tyne, in a seriously damaged condition and that the battle cruiser Lion was among the worst sufferers.

A battleship was also towed into Forth with a funnel missing and badly listed. The British Admiralty says nothing about all this, continues the wireless communication, obviously because of the way the injuries were received. The statement is an illustration of the extreme lengths to which Germans are just now going to influence neutrals.

ACTION BY ITALY ONLY QUESTION OF HOURS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

On Italian Frontier, May 11.—The opinion prevails in Rome that Italy's participation in the war is only a question of days. Along the Austrian frontier, where the Associated Press correspondent has been from one end of the line to the other, it is universally felt that war is a question only of hours.

ENTRANCE OF ITALY INTO WAR IS NOW REGARDED AS ALMOST UNAVOIDABLE

Political Opposition to War Apparently Has Largely Died Away

TURKISH LOSSES OF 45,000 REPORTED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 11. — War between Italy and Central European empires is now regarded in Rome as almost unavoidable. There is said to be only a slender chance that an agreement will be reached. Military preparations are being pushed vigorously, and politcal opposition to war, apparently, has largely died away.

In Paris it is rumored that Germany and Austria have declared war upon Italy, but as far as is known, there is no basis for such reports. A Milan despatch gives what purports to be an offer of territorial concessions from Austria, described as unacceptable to Italy, inasmuch as it excludes Trieste and Istria.

Heavy fighting has been in progress on the Gallipoli Peninsula during the last few days, although accounts of the results are incomplete and contradictory. An official statement issued at Constantinople says that French and British troops made four attacks near Aviburnu on Sunday, but were driven back with heavy losses.

A press despatch from Athens to London says the Allies made important advances on Friday and Saturday, and that the Turkish losses in the fighting were estimated at 45,000 men.

Victory in several engagements along the Carpathian front is reported in an official Russian statement. Despatches to Switzerland say the Russians have begun a strong offensive at Tarnownow, reported to have been captured last week by Austrians, as well as in the Baltic provinces to the north.

SIX MORE ON HONOR ROLL

Former Accountant at the Bank of Montreal Among the Killed --- Gunner Jos. O'Toole Succumbed to Wounds

Casualty lists and private messages given out since the bulletin boards and newspapers told their story, yesterday, have added more Peterborough men to the list of dead and wounded. Gunner Joseph O'Toole who enlisted with the 24th Battery, C.F.A., is officially reported to have succumbed to wounds. Sergt. A. F. Field, who was accountant at the Bank of Montreal; Lance Corp. E. E. Hayden, Privates J. G. Newell, and Edgar Brown are officially reported as having been killed in action and Pte. Boyce has been wounded.

SERGT. A. F. FIELD.

Sergt. Arthur Fred Field, was accountant at the Bank of Montreal, having succeeded T. E. Butler Yates. He was thirty years old. He had not been identified with the 57th Regiment but joined the contingent as a private, being promoted during his service. He came to Peterborough in October, 1912. So far as is known [illegible] are dead and two sisters [illegible]. The family came from the Barbadoes.

Although of a retiring disposition, the late Sergt. Field had numerous local friends. He roomed at the residence of Mrs. S. McPherson, 287 Stewart Street.

LANCE CORP. E. E. HAYDEN.

Lance Corporal Ernest Edwin Hayden came to Peterborough three years ago from London, England, and at the time of his enlistment was boarding with Mrs. Parrish, 466½ Gilmour Street. He was about twenty-five years of age and was full of the military spirit, according to Mrs. Parrish, who stated to a reporter that he was among the first to enlist. He was a member of the 57th Regiment and was employed at the Peterborough Lock Works. He had been boarding at 466½ Gilmour Street for about eight months and was a happy, care free young man, and made many friends. He was a private when he left here but at Salisbury was promoted to Lance Corporal.

The last word received from him by any one here was at Christmas time when he informed Mrs. Parrish of his promotion.

He was a member of St. John's Church. No relatives reside in Peterborough, but his parents, two sisters and three brothers reside at Monmouth Road, Lower Edmonton, London, England.

Lance Corp. Hayden was a fine strapping soldier, standing about 5 feet ten inches.

PTE. J. G. NEWELL.

Pte. James Gordon Newell had boarded with Mrs. Edith Campbell, 501 Sherbrooke Street, who were

THIS STORY IS NOT BELIEVED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Ottawa, May 11.—Horace Dube, an Ottawa man, found securely bound and gagged in Rockliffe Park this forenoon, told the police he had frustrated an attempt early this morning to dynamite Government House. According to his story he went to the park about three a.m. and was about to enter a small building near the edge of the Ottawa River when he found three men sitting on the steps with battery, roll of wire and three leather bags on the ground beside them. He says he was immediately overpowered by the trio who demanded that he show them the way to Government House, at the same time exhibiting several sticks of dynamite and offering him money as a reward. When he refused he says they bound and gagged him and left. The man's story is not believed.

Advance Continued at Gallipoli Peninsula

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 11. — The Allied troops on Gallipoli Peninsula continued their advance Friday and Saturday, according to an Athens despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. They are reported to have occupied important positions, in spite of desperate resistance offered by the Turks, whose total losses are estimated at forty-five thousand men. The hospitals in Constantinople are said to be so crowded that wounded are being sent to Konieh in Asia Minor.

ITALIAN OFFICERS AND MEN ORDERED TO REJOIN REGIMENTS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

GENEVA, May 11. — All Italian officers and men in Switzerland up to the age of thirty-four were ordered yesterday to rejoin their regiments immediately. Austrian and Bavarian forces are concentrating in the Tyrol.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MAY 11, 1915

A COMMON-SENSE VIEW OF AN ELECTION.

THE LETTER from Mr. Burnham, which appeared in yesterday's Review, puts one strong reason for an election very clearly and fairly. In 1904, and again in 1908, Sir Robert Borden proposed a Government-owned transcontinental. Sir Wilfrid Laurier proposed to aid a private company, and twice the people voted for the latter policy. Now the Grand Trunk Pacific Company refuses to take over the N. T. R., and the Government finds itself with a railway, on which it spent $173,000,000, on its hands. If the G. T. P. will not take it over, the Government has a choice between letting the railway rot and become overgrown with weeds, or operating it. The latter has been decided on, so that the country now finds itself obliged to accept by force what Sir Robert Borden proposed in the beginning. This is contrary to the will of the people, as expressed in two previous elections, hence the Government is quite justified in calling an election for approval of its policy. The Government has no intention, as the Review has affirmed ever since an election was mooted, of calling an election as a party expedient to secure a snap verdict. It has some of the heaviest problems on its hands with which any Canadian Government has ever had to deal. Sir Robert Borden would be thus quite justified in asking public sanction for his policy in regard to them. An election now would mean a verdict on several very big problems; it would mean a decision on the business of the nation, and could not be reasonably objected to as a war election.

AN EXPLANATION WANTED.

THE FOLLOWING editorial paragraph appears in today's Toronto Globe:

"J. H. Burnham, M.P., suggests an election with the issue confined to the N. T. R. and G. T. P. questions. These questions could be decided by a plebiscite, and it could be extended to more than two suggested policies."

In reply to the above, the local Federal member sent the following despatch to the Globe today:

"Read with pleasure your suggestion of plebiscite in reply to my letter. Will you be kind enough to develop your suggestion in detail. It may solve the difficulty and provide a solution for those who dread an election in war time.

(Sgd.) J. H. BURNHAM."

It will be very interesting if the Globe develops the idea with details. The public awaits them.

AN OMINOUS TONE.

FEW WILL dispute the contention that the publicity given to the sinking of the United States battleship Maine greatly inflamed the American people and hastened the conflict with Spain. The character of the present crisis will be determined largely by the publicity given to the sinking of the Lusitania and by the feeling aroused thereby. Already there are ominous signs that President Wilson will have much difficulty in preserving a pacific attitude. The following from two leading New York newspapers is of such a threatening tone that it appears that the United States will be stirred as it has never been stirred for many years.

The Tribune says:

"If Germany murders Americans, turns her artillery against neutral Americans, sparing neither age nor sex, what worse treatment can she reserve for an American nation resolved to defend its honour, its citizens, its women and its children? What can there be left for men or for nations to do but to resort to that method which in all ages has been the last resort against tyranny and anarchy? The nation which remembered the sailors of the Maine will not forget the civilians of the Lusitania."

The Evening Post says:

"Germany ought not to be left in a moment's doubt how the civilized world regards her latest play of 'frightfulness.' It is a deed for which a Hun would blush, a Turk be ashamed, and a Barbary pirate apologize. To speak of technicalities and the rules of war in the face of such wholesale murder on the high seas is a waste of time. The law of nations and the law of God have been alike trampled upon. There is, indeed, puerile talk of 'warning' having been given before the Lusitania sailed. But so does the Black Hand send its warnings. So does Jack the Ripper write his defiant letters to the police. Nothing of this prevents us from regarding such miscreants as wild beasts, against whom society has to defend itself at all hazards."

IF THE PREMIER decides to hold an election, the Governor-General could not prevent it. He might refuse to dissolve Parliament, whereupon the Government would resign, and an election could not then be averted under present conditions.

THE NEED OF MEN.

THERE IS a growing discontent in Canada over the disposition of men with more brains than money or common honesty to get to the windward of the common, ordinary, every-day, hard-working citizen. Laws cannot stop it, but laws are often made to help it, and there is a fast-growing determination to keep people out of Parliament who are not above suspicion in this respect. It is surely high time. A little capital has been made to go a long way in many nefarious so-called enterprises. It is true that some people who have been caught "went in" to share in the spoils, but that does not make it any less desirable that the public should be protected. It is very easy to give the "right" turn to a measure going through Parliament, without anybody being one bit the wiser. Detection often follows the actual working out, only. It is, therefore, most necessary that well-disposed and competent men should be sent to Parliament to protect the mass of the people and the public interest. Hydro is a case in point. Under any other circumstances, Ontario would have been without Hydro, and, indeed, without its great water-powers, but for the honest efforts of those who thought only of the public interest. The whole force of finance was arrayed against the project, but the genius of Sir Adam Beck and the iron honesty of the late Sir J. P. Whitney saved the day, and the people. Sir Robert Borden has stated that next session he will make it impossible for the controlling power of a company to sit in Parliament and get contracts, etc., for that company. Men who were nothing more than agents of themselves have, under the name of a company, legislated all sorts of advantages for themselves. This will be stopped.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

IT IS REPORTED that the total British sailings are about eight thousand a month since the submarine warfare began. Of these, the two most important ships sunk are the Falaba and the Lusitania. They are big bags for submarines, but, omitting the Lusitania, it is evident the Germans have been waging a futile warfare. The loss of the big liner may have been due to over-confidence.

HALL CAINE the well-known novelist, has been writing long letters of advice to President Wilson and Pope Benedict. President Wilson may need some advice before long.

"CITIZEN" should read the Review on the paving proposals. The ratepayers on Hunter street petitioned the Council for pavements west of Aylmer street.

REMEMBER, this war is on the part of Germany an ignominious one.

WHY NOT draw Hall Caine's attention to the Toronto Globe?

Not One Saved by Germans.

(London Times.)

The Admiralty have reminded Germany that since August we have saved the lives of more than a thousand German officers and men of the German navy. We have rescued them, often in circumstances of difficulty and danger, and often when the rescue was to the prejudice of our military operations. They have at no time shown treatment of the kind to our sailors in similar distress. Not one officer or man of our navy has been rescued by Germans. We have made no difference in this respect between honourable and dishonourable opponents. The officers and men of these very submarines would now be at the bottom of the sea had not our sailors rescued them.

The Army Biscuit.

(London Chronicle.)

That recruit who, on being rejected on account of his teeth, said he did not know he had to bite the Germans, had evidently not realized the possibilities of an army biscuit. Its ingredients are meal, salt and water, kneaded by machinery into a thick paste and baked—hard. But though it requires "some" teeth to tackle it, yet it has good points. It is highly nutritious; a pound of bread is equal to but three-quarters of biscuit. It does not easily turn bad or get stale. And it can be packed into the knapsack, mixing on equal terms with the heterogeneous collection of articles that that always contains, and it emerges triumphantly as a biscuit, and not a heap of crumbs.

Uncle Sam's Customers.

(Montreal Journal of Commerce.)

The British Empire purchases over one-half of the United States' exports. Last year for the eight months ended February, Great Britain and her overseas dominions purchased forty-five per cent. of the total American exports; today they are purchasing over fifty per cent. France comes second as a purchaser of American goods, Italy third; Holland fourth, Denmark fifth, and Cuba sixth. Then comes Spain, Germany, Japan, and Norway. Last year Germany was second to Great Britain as a purchaser of American goods; now she is far down in the list, and for the past two months has been out of the market altogether.

Where Pride Is Misplaced.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

It is good to be a Canadian today, but the Canadian does not deserve that feeling of pride who is not moved with a wish that he himself might do a fraction of what his countrymen have already done. The feeling of pride that we have would be a poor imitation of what it should be if we ourselves have no desire to emulate those brave deeds.

Appropriate.

(New York Sun.)

Dr. Bernard Dernburg says the ungrateful Berlin newspapers which have been calling his recent utterances "political foolery" and urging him "to issue a correction," have no very large following in Germany. This seems to accord with the eternal fitness of things. Dr. Dernburg certainly has no very large following here.

BRITISH LINE IS RESTORED

Five Assaults at Ypres Are Repulsed

London, May 11—Sir John French reported last night: "There is no change in the general situation. To day our line at Ypres, in spite of repeated attacks by the enemy during the last week is substantially the same as that from which we withdrew on the night of May 3-4. During the fighting in this quarter yesterday the enemy made five unsuccessful attacks. His losses from these failures have been very heavy. The fighting to-day has been confined to artillery action."

Last night's Paris official follows: "North of Arras, in spite of several German counter-attacks, we have maintained and increased yesterday's gain. Notably between Carency and Souchez, our success has developed. At 3 o'clock this afternoon the total number of prisoners exceed 3,000. During yesterday and to-day we captured more than ten cannon and some fifty machine guns. A German attack was repulsed at Berry-au-Bac and likewise in Le Pretre woods."

UNITED NEUTRAL PROTEST

Many Interesting Possibilities of American Decision After Cabinet

Washington, May 11—President Wilson's views as to what position this government should take on the sinking of the Lusitania, formulated after two days' consideration, will be placed before the cabinet to-day. Suggestions as to the proper course of action have been pouring in on the President by mail and telegraph from all parts of the Union. Half the writers declared against war, but assured the President they would back him up in any stand he might take. There is no doubt that the President will condemn the sinking of the Lusitania in the strongest possible terms. The crucial point in the statement of the United States will be that no warning was or could be a justification that did not afford passengers and crew an opportunity to escape. There will probably be severe denunciation of the submarine warfare and its "new principles" and a formal demand that it shall cease immediately. There is the possibility that the United States will take concerted action with the other neutral powers as this has been under consideration for some time.

Wilson Talked Peace

Significant Speech to Newly Naturalized is Cheered

Philadelphia, May 11—President Wilson talked "peace" last night in an address which was clearly designed to test out the sentiment of the United States regarding the action to be taken on the Lusitania trgaedy. His address before 4,000 newly naturalized citizens contained no reference to the tide of anger which has stirred the nation through the loss of American lives. "There is such a thing as being too proud to fight," said the President. "A nation may be so right that it does not need to convince others by force that it is right. Peace is the healing and elevating influence of the world." Despite the general expectation the President did not grasp the occasion to define the policy he would pursue regarding the Lusitania disaster. The President excoriated hyphenated Americans and those who were attempting to stir up racial and sectional antagonism in the United States. His remarks were roundly cheered.

Good Roads.

The campaign for good roads being carried on throughout Canada is only part of the general awakening of the people to the causes which have led to the enormous increase in the prices of the necessaries of life. That the transportation problem is all-important for the farmer-producer is without question. That he may at all seasons reach his markets at a minimum of time and expense is a necessary factor in the making of reasonable prices for his products. For the consumer, good roads have an advantage in the fact that by enabling the farmers to reach the markets in greater numbers, the supplies of produce will be larger, and competition will be keener. A further consequence of this larger attendance will be that more attention will be paid to the condition of the produce offered by those displaying it for sale.

In the present campaign for increased production, good roads will play an important part. Motor transportation is being rapidly developed and utilized by the farmers. By this means greater distances can be covered and farmers at a considerable distance from markets, with the advent of better roads, will be able to bring their produce to the consumer in larger quantities and at less expense.

The Trouble.

INCOGNITA

By F. A. MITCHEL.

It so happened that King Caspar of Walkaria and Queen Bertha of Zingerland inherited their kingdoms when very young. Their domains joined but they had never met, for during their childhood their fathers had been at continual warfare. When these two kings died—about the same time—the cabinets of both countries decided to make a match between the young king and the young queen.

Queen Bertha would not consent to the match without some acquaintance with the man she was to marry. She therefore insisted on their meeting in one of her palaces near the border line between the two kingdoms, the king to be attended by three men and the queen by three women. To this the king gladly assented.

Before leaving for the rendezvous the queen said to a maid of honor, who was also her bosom friend: "I wish you to exchange places with me at this meeting, you to personate me, I to personate you. This will be easy, for I have purposely limited the number of my attendants so that there are only two besides ourselves to be in the secret."

When the king met the substitute queen, whose name was Catherine, he was well pleased with her, for not only the queen herself, but her attendants, were beautiful women. Bertha had charged Catherine to treat her with some severity lest by her accustomed deference she betray the secret. During the first interview Catherine spoke to Bertha somewhat sharply, and the king's notice was turned from the spurious to the real queen, who bore the reproof with becoming meekness. Indeed, King Caspar was charmed that the maid showed no temper whatever, while the reproof, which seemed to be uncalled for, prejudiced him against her supposed mistress.

Queen Bertha had gone to the meeting with no other object than to overlook her future husband incognita. But from the moment she saw him she was much smitten with him and resolved to win him if possible. She directed Catherine to lose no opportunity to show her severity while in the king's presence. Catherine, who was an excellent actress, played her part remarkably well. Did she order the queen to do her any service, no matter how speedily the duty was performed, the spurious queen would reprimand her. At such times the real queen would cast down her eyes, bearing the injustice with angelic sweetness.

One morning Catherine sent Bertha to the royal garden for some flowers and when she returned scolded her for not getting the kind she wished. Nevertheless she handed several of the choicest to King Caspar, whose brows were knit at the harsh treatment of the maid of honor. Taking the gift, he selected the most beautiful flower, a rose, and handed it to Bertha.

As might have been expected had the play been a reality, Catherine after this, with the queen's concurrence, redoubled her harshness to Bertha, who availed herself of the opportunity to show herself an angel of patience. This excited the king's sympathy and admiration for the poor maid to such an extent that he resolved to break off the negotiations.

When Bertha considered the fruit ripe for plucking she contrived to meet the king in a corridor in the palace as if by chance. He stopped her and, despite her pretended efforts to get by him, forced her to chat with him. This she did with her eyes bent upon the floor in well affected modesty. While they were together a door opened and Catherine came out into the corridor. With fire in her eye she ordered Bertha to her room, then said to the king:

"If this is a sample of your majesty's constancy I think we had better go no further in this matter."

"As your majesty pleases," replied the king with a formal bow.

Thus was the king turned from one woman to another. Queen Bertha and her maids of honor returned to Zingerland and King Caspar to Walkaria. But the king did not remain there long before he took a step which he must take with great care, since his failure to marry the queen of Zingerland had made him unpopular in both kingdoms. He sent a confidential friend to Zingerland to learn if he could marry one whom he supposed to be the queen's maid of honor.

King Caspar had no hope that he would be permitted the woman of his choice. The queen had shown herself insanely jealous of her maid of honor and would doubtless refuse his request with some harsh accompanying message. During his messenger's absence he walked the floor impatiently and with anxiety, waiting for his answer.

His emissary returned with a surprise, announcing that the maid was the queen and the queen was the maid. Without losing a moment the king mounted his horse and, summoning his escort, rode night and day to the capital of Zingerland and, appearing before Queen Bertha bespattered with mud from his quick ride, knelt before her and kissed her hand. When he looked up he saw her face bent down upon him filled with merriment.

Turning his eyes to a maid of honor standing by the queen, she saw Catherine looking at him with the same amused expression.

And so it was that the two kingdoms were united and there were no more wars.

An Old Ash Wednesday Custom.

At one time it was on Ash Wednesday the custom to appoint an official of the English palaces to crow the hours of the day, like a cock, as a reminder of the denial of St. Peter. This practice excited the furious indignation of George II. His ignorance of English made it very difficult for the courtiers to explain that the royal cock crower was not making fun of him. The cock crower was a salaried officer at the English court as late as 1823.

FASHION HINTS

Full Skirts Much Beruffled Are Among the Season's Innovations.

Whether we like them or not and whether they suit our style or no, we must prepare to accept frills and flounces, for those who make styles are determined that we must wear them. Some of the ruffled gowns by smart modistes suggest the styles of Empress Eugenie's period. The costume shown here is the type one may expect to see at many a garden party next summer. The gown is of white net, the very full skirt two-thirds covered by frills of net edged with narrow black velvet ribbon. The bodice has a ruffled neckband and short puffed sleeves edged with the velvet ribbon. A lace bolero falls over a wide girdle of black velvet.

WHITE NET GOWN.

IF YOU WOULD LOOK ATTRACTIVE.

Don't wear thin shoes and gossamer stockings in cold weather, or you will have that unbecoming pinched, chilled look.

Don't give up taking exercise even if the weather is bad. A brisk walk on a cold day is a splendid complexion beautifier.

Don't forget to dry your hands thoroughly after washing if you wish to prevent them from getting chapped.

Don't forget to wear a veil if your skin is susceptible to cold winds.

Don't wear heavy headgear, which is very bad for the hair.

Don't let your rooms get hot and stuffy. Always leave the window slightly open at the top.

Don't wear white or very light colors in winter. They are unbecoming as a rule.

THE BED VALANCE.

Convenient Is This In Hiding Stored Bandboxes and Suit Cases.

In a small room the valance affords opportunity to tuck away a suit case or bandbox under the bed, a commendable custom in the interest of neatness. The valance should be of washable material. White dotted swiss or figured madras will be fresh and dainty if an ordinary white spread is used on the bed.

It is something of a problem, before one has learned the trick, to attach the valance to an iron bedpost. If tied to the bed with tapes the valance will be sure to sag after a day or two, and in any case it must be so put on that it may be removed once a month at least for laundering.

The best way is to cut an old sheet exactly the size of the spring and attach the valance to this. Throw the sheet over the spring and attach it with snap button fasteners to four tapes sewed around the four bedposts.

The valance cannot be a continuous ruffle, but must be slit up at the corners of the sheet, the ruffle falling at the sides and foot of the bed. If it is sufficiently full it will hide the legs of the bed, and a snap button fastener will help to hold the edges of the ruffle together.

An inquest is to be held into the death of Mrs. Anna Wendell, Christian Scientist, who died at Yonkers, N.Y., after lengthy treatment by a "healer."

FIXED IT IN THE DEED.

A Real Estate Agent's Kindness to One of His Customers.

J. Cooper Props, formerly a real estate agent in Eaton, Ind., a few years ago had practically concluded a sale of a residence in that town to a farmer who desired to retire, when the customer suddenly discovered that there was no cellar beneath the dwelling. The house suited him perfectly, and his wife also was highly pleased with it, but both of them demanded a cellar before taking it, even though they previously had gone as far as to tell Mr. Props to draw up the deed.

"Well, I'll tell you what I'll do," said Props. "Of course there's no cellar under there now, but I'll fix it in the deed—write it all out and everything, so there can't be any mistake—so that you have the privilege of excavating for the cellar at any time you please and without interference from any source."

Mr. and Mrs. Farmer said they "guessed" that would be all right, so after their right to construct their own cellar had been carefully safeguarded in the deed by elaborate phrases they paid over their money and took possession. But to this day, Props says, they look at him in a dazed and puzzled way every time they meet him.—Indianapolis News.

OLD TIME HARVARD LAWS.

When Students Had to Get the President's Permission to Smoke.

Imagine a twentieth century Harvard undergraduate asking the president of the university for permission to smoke or buy a drink. Yet permission was necessary in the eighteenth century, according to the history of Harvard before 1750. One college rule read:

"No scholar shall take tobacco unless permitted by ye president with ye consent of his parents or guardian and on good reason first given by a physician and then in a sober and private manner."

Further, "No scholar shall unnecessarily frequent any tavern or victualing house in Cambridge to eat or drink there without leave from ye president or one of ye tutors."

Another regulation read:

"If any scholar be guilty of drunkenness he shall be fined 5 shillings and make a public confession. No undergraduate shall keep by him distilled spirituous liquors, nor shall he use any such drinks as punch or flip."

Saturday evenings all students were required to retire to their chambers at sunset and not unnecessarily leave them.—New York World.

War's Deaths Merely a Trifle.

The total population of the earth is about 1,800,000,000. Annually there are added to it 14,000,000 souls. Every year at least 80,000,000 are born and 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 die. This means a daily birth rate of about 220,000, a death rate of 180,000. The daily increase in population is 40,000. In comparison with this irresistible swelling tide what are the greatest battles, wars or earthquakes but almost microscopic ripples? If we imagine that the power were given to some despot to order a wholesale slaughter and that guillotines were kept busy beheading one man every minute night and day this would add only three-quarters of 1 per cent to the existing death rate!—Scientific American.

Ceremony and Cannon Balls.

There is a tale told about an officer who was conversing with Marlborough during a hot engagement and insisted on taking off his hat and bowing profoundly every time he spoke to the duke. That great man suggested that at such a time they might very well waive all ceremony. But the officer bowed deeply to his commander's suggestion, and just as he was bending down a cannon ball cleared him and took off the head of a comrade. The officer on coming up again and seeing what had happened remarked calmly, "Your grace perceives that one loses nothing by politeness."—London News.

Luring the Bees.

The Arabs and Bedouins of Tripolitania profit by the industry of bees wherever vegetation abounds. At the swarming season empty hives are placed close to the old ones, and a trail of honey laid at each entrance. If a queen is disposed to fly away with her subjects lemon rind is rubbed on a wall near the hive; the quickly diffused, pungent odor attracts the bees, arrests their flight, and the lure of the honey at the portal completes their capture.

COLUMN FOR THE CHILDREN

Quite an odd playmate for a little boy is a big rooster, but a lad in Indiana has made a chum of the head of his father's flock of Cochin Chinas. They have been friends since the bird was a downy chicken, just out of the shell and they get along in a most amiable manner. Chickens, as a rule, are not given to such friendship, but in this instance the two youngsters practically grew up together. The rooster is perfectly tame and fearless with his little master, but is not friendly with other folks. It is well known that children have a faculty of making friends with birds and beasts that run away from grown folks. It is pretty safe to believe that the big bird will never lose his head and be sent to pot so long as he has his boy friend to guard him.

BOY AND HIS FEATHERED FRIEND.

Nail Driving Contest.

For each contestant provide a hammer, a block of wood and a supply of eightpenny or tenpenny nails. When all contestants are ready give the signal for the nail driving to begin. The object is to drive in the nails in the shortest possible time, and the first one to drive home ten nails is the winner. The head of the nail must be flush with the surface of the wood before it is considered in. This contest may be for either men or women, or for both. Any number may enter, but too many contestants scatter the attention. Usually most fun results with three contestants from each side. For those who are not expert soft wood may be provided, while hard, seasoned wood and long nails will tax the skill of the most experienced. This game, by the way, will almost certainly dispel the superstition that women cannot drive nails straight. Variation may be secured by having contests for boys, girls, married women, and so on. —Country Gentleman.

Advice For Boy Scouts.

Dan Beard in a recent letter to boy scouts published in Boy Life gives advice that appeals to all boys. He says that in the wilderness the word "carry" is out of date. You are asked to "pack a pail of water up from the spring," or to "pack a letter" to a settlement, and when you are said to be "fighting your pack" it means that you are fighting your load—that is, you are whining and complaining about your tasks. That is a performance for which Mr. Beard has nothing but contempt. He says, "Don't fight your pack, don't give in and fall down under your load and whimper like a 'sissy,' but straighten up, look the world straight in the eye and hit the trail like a man."

Minerals Show Decrease.

That every mineral mined in Ontario has shown a decided decrease in output in 1914 with the exception of gold, was the statement of T. W. Gibson, Deputy Minister of Mines for Ontario, before the Canadian Mining Institute recently.

DOCTORS ADVISE OPERATIONS

Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn. — "For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles."—Mrs. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Canadian Woman's Experience:

Fort William, Ont. — "I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was weak and tired and I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your Compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it."—Mrs. WM. A. BUFFY, 631 South Vickar Street, Fort Williams, Ontario.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Your Coat or Pants

or both may need a little sprucing up after a hard week's wear. Don't trifle with them yourself. You will only lose time and you might spoil them. Send them here and you will have the satisfaction of knowing they will be cleaned and pressed to perfection. We take the greatest possible pains with our work, which is why we now enjoy such a large trade. It may be our low prices account for it, too.

200,000 FREE VOTES FOR BEST WORK IN DISTRICTS

Many Candidates Have Already Made up Their Minds to be the Winner of the Special Prize Votes — Start Right in Now—Every Day Counts

The announcement of the special prize vote period was received with interest and enthusiasm by the candidates yesterday and several of the contestants have started in already in an effort to be the winner of the special 200,000 vote ballot. The candidates in each district doing the best work will win this special prize ballot and it will go a long way towards making you the winner of the Free Tour. Don't rest up candidates, makes this week and next week the busiest and best of all. The vote schedule will again be lowered after Saturday so work hard while you can get the best votes.

The contest has but four weeks to run. On Saturday, June 5th, it will be all over and the fortunate ladies can then prepare packing their trunks to go to the World's Fair. A most elaborate tour has been arranged and the candidates who go will enjoy a tour that will remain in their memory as long as they live. But in the meantime the main point is to be getting votes. There are thousands of votes in your district waiting to be garnered in and you can get them just as well as any of your competitors. The public is getting enthusiastic about your success and the harder you work the more they will do for you. Don't let a single minutes pass you by without making good use of it. "The saddest words of tongue and pen are those "It might have been." Might have been that had you worked a little harder you would be the winner in your district. Get busy candidates and make hay while the sun shines.

The votes schedule for this week is lower than that of last week and after Saturday it will again be reduced. Candidates should turn in their subscriptions every day as subscribers are anxious to receive their paper. There is no advantage in holding back subscriptions so report as often as you can.

Prize Votes For You.

The candidate who turns in the most money on subscriptions, in her district, between today and Saturday, May 22, will receive a special ballot good for 200,000 votes.

This means that four young ladies will win special ballots good for 200,000 votes. All you have to do is to turn in more subscription business than your competitor and the prize ballot is yours. All money turned in for you at the office will also be counted on this special prize and the candidate getting the highest total in each district will win the special prize ballot.

There is still opportunity for new candidates to enter the contest. Any young lady who has been thinking of entering and hesitating should not hesitate a minute longer. This is an opportunity of a lifetime and you may be the very one to win the free trip, yet you are hesitating to enter. The contest has four more weeks to run so make up your mind this minute to enter and win a free trip.

It was expected that the detailed itinerary would be published today, but owing to a few proposed changes it will be delayed for a day or so.

Votes for Soldiers on Active Service

The official Canada Gazette contains the following proclamation by the King relative to the bill granting the franchise to the Canadian soldiers:—

Whereas an Act has been passed by the Parliament of Canada entitled "An Act to enable Canadian Soldiers on active military service during the present war to exercise their electoral franchise";

And whereas by sections II and III of the said Act provision is made for the supply and distribution of ballot papers to persons serving in the military Forces of Canada in the present war and for the making thereof by such persons, and the return thereof by officers serving in the said Forces to the Returning Officer of the electoral district in Canada wherein an election is to be held, and for counting and recording such ballot papers and otherwise dealing with them in the same manner as other ballot papers used at such election, and generally for the duties to be performed by officers of the military Forces of Canada in connection with such distribution, marking and return of ballot papers as aforesaid;

And whereas, by section IV of the said Act, it is provided that sections II and III of the Act shall not come into force until a Proclamation by His Majesty The King in Council declaring them to be in force, shall be published in the Canada Gazette;

And whereas it is expedient to make such Proclamation as aforesaid,—

Now, therefore, we are pleased, by and with the advice of our Privy Council, to proclaim, and do hereby proclaim, that sections II and III of the above recited Act are in force.

Given at Our Court at Buckingham Palace, this fifth day of May, in the year of Our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, and in the f th year of Our Reign.

God Save the King.

Quite Reasonable.

Grubbs—Do you find motoring very expensive?"

Stubbs—Not particularly. Since we sold the house, drew the savings bank balance and took the children out of school, I find we get along very well.

PURCHASE HOSE FOR FIRE STATION

The Fire, Water and Light Committee was stormed last evening by the oratory of many representatives of companies representing hose. The committee was billed to take up the matter of purchasing hose for the fire station, hence the presence of the representatives. The result was that the committee decided to purchase 300 feet at $1.00 per foot from the Gutta Percha Rubber Co. and 300 feet at $1.05 from the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co.

TOUR THE CITY SOME DARK NIGHT

To Ascertain Where Street Lighting Needs Improvement

To ascertain which sections of the city requires more street lighting the Fire, Water and Light Committee will make a tour of the city some dark night. This was decided at the meeting last evening when the question of better street lighting came up for discussion. Ald. Green expressed himself as being of the opinion that the Fire, Water and Light Committee should recommend to the Utilities Commission the installation of more street lights. The rest of the members acquiesced.

It was unanimously decided that leave of absence be granted E. Soulsby, M. Clancy and E. Munden who have enlisted for active service, and in event of their return they will be re-instated.

Tenders for Coal.

The calling for tenders for the city's supply of coal was left in the hands of Ald. Duffus and McIntyre.

Fire Protection in West Ward.

Ald. Duffus reported that he and the Fire Chief went into the fire protection afforded the Bonner-Worth Co. and took the matter up with the Utilities Commission. At the last meeting of the Commission a resolution was passed authorizing the construction of main extensions which will alleviate the trouble. It was decided, however, to recommend to the Commission the placing of a hydrant between the Bonner-Worth Co. and Cross Street.

Cable Work.

Chief Howard reported that satisfactory progress is being made on the underground cable work.

Small Fire Loss.

The report of the Chief for the first four months of the year showed that 49 calls have been answered and the total damage was but $4155. Members expressed themselves as feeling this was very creditable.

Lights on George St.

The matter of ascertaining how much more it would cost to have all the magnetite lights on George St. utilized instead of half of them was left with Chairman Ald. Duffus for a report.

New Horse for Brigade.

Ald. Duffus reported that he had purchased a suitable horse for the fire brigade for $200. He was authorized to purchase another one.

The chestnut horse has been "loaded onto" the Board of Works.

ALGONQUIN PARK

The Highland Inn, Algonquin Park, has been advertised to open May 15th, but owing to the early season and the good fishing which can now be enjoyed, the Grand Trunk have arranged to accommodate any guests desiring to visit the Park before that date. For further particulars apply C. E. Horning, Union Station Toronto.

TEUTONS ARE DESPERATE TO RELIEVE THE WEST

Need Early Win in Galicia — Turkish Losses Heavy — Heavy Fighting in Three Theatres

London, May 11—Interest in the maritime war brought to a climax by the sinking of the Lusitania was diverted yesterday to important developments in three theatres of action and in Italy's impending entry into the conflict. Despite reinforcements hurriedly brought up to protect the rear of the Russian columns being driven out of the Carpathians by Gen. von Mackensen's army, the latter continued its drive, forcing position after position and capturing 15,000 prisoners, according to the Berlin statement. The Teuton allies are pressing their advance in an effort to force the Russians from Galicia. With this section clear they would be able to release a large force which would be available for added strength on the western front. Unofficial reports from Petrograd state that Russians coming from Mitau in the fighting in the Baltic provinces on Friday defeated the main German invading force which was divided and driven from its line of advance.

Athens reports that Kalid Bahr fortress in the Dardanelles is under continuous bombardment and that its fall is imminent. The town of Dardanelles is reported afire. From Milan it is reported that the town of Enos has been abandoned by the Turks and that 15,000 wounded Turks have arrived at Constantinople causing great depression. The Sultan, the court and the government are reported to be ready to abandon the capital, according to Athens.

Rome despatches tell of an increasingly insistent war spirit among the people but indecision in the cabinet. Austria's final reply is still awaited in Rome. Meanwhile the supremely important decrees signed by the ministers at the recent cabinet meetings are being held for immediate publication following receipt of the Austrian reply.

Ypres Strain Relieved

Northern France, May 11—Sunday and yesterday fierce fighting took place between the sea and the Scarpe. It opened yesterday with a furious German bombardment of the British liens to the eastward of Ypres followed by German infantry attacks which lasted throughout the day and led to several hand-to-hand encounters. Owing to the superiority of German numbers and guns on this part of the field, the British had a difficult task, but held. As a return blow the British and the French on the line from Lavante to the Scarpe gave the experiences. They subjected this line experiences. They subjected this line to a bombardment under which the earth shook. Bursting shells wrought havoc in the German lines for forty minutes. The British infantry carried the front lines of the German trenches over a front a mile in width on the road from Lavante towards Aubers. The British troops were subjected to the flanking fire of many concealed guns but in spite of this fire and the German counter-attacks still retain the trenches they won. Further to the south the English artillery did much damage, but the infantry attack which was begun at this point was not pressed owing to the unmasking of many German batteries. These attacks have held many German army corps on this part of the line, causing the Germans heavy losses and reducing the strain on Ypres.

Important Changes in Grand Trunk Train Service

New train No. 55 will leave Toronto 10.15 a.m. daily except Sunday, for Barrie, Orillia, Severn, Muskoka Wharf, Huntsville, Algonquin Park and North Bay, making connections at Muskoka Wharf for Muskoka Lakes and at Huntsville for Lake of Bays points. This train will carry the highest class of equipment, including Parlor-Buffet Car to Algonquin Park and Parlor-Cafe car and first-class coaches to North Bay.

Train No. 43 now leaving Toronto 1.30 p.m., arriving North Bay 9.55 p.m. daily except Sunday, will be cancelled north of Gravenhurst.

Full particulars on application to agents.

She—Did you attend Mrs. Climber's last reception?

He—No. Was it as entertaining as the first?

She—No, by any means. You see, some of the guests had managed somehow to become acquainted with some of the others, and the charm of novelty was quite destroyed.

LOST WIFE AND HIS TWIN SONS

Toronto Contractor's Experience in Sinking of Lusitania

Holyhead, May 11—No more pathetic loss on the Lusitania's sinking has been recorded than that of W. G. Webster, a Toronto contractor, who was travelling with his wife, their six-year-old son and year old twin sons. They reached the deck when the torpedo struck. Webster took his son by the hand and darted away to bring life belts. When he returned his wife and babies were not to be seen, nor have they been seen since.

A Saskatoon clergyman is alive after a most spectacular and horrifying experience. She was on deck when the water covered the Lusitania's deck. She struck out as soon as she touched water, but a moment later was caught by the inrush of water into the top of one of the fallen funnels, and into the funnel she went head first. The occupants of a boat that was nearly hit by the funnel were horrified by the strange fate of the woman. But in another instant they were amazed to see her shoot from the top of the funnel just before it went under. She was picked up and on shore restored to her husband who had been saved by another boat.

Amsterdam, May 11—The German government has notified the Dutch government that after inquiry it is satisfied that the steamer Katwyk was torpedoed by a German submarine, and that Germany stands ready to pay damages.

DEFY GERMANS

Many Canadians Sail on Liners Condemned by Dernburg

New York, May 11—The cargo lists of the Cunarder Transylvania which left last Friday for Liberpool, and the American liner Philadelphia which sailed for Liverpool on Saturday indicate that they have sufficient contraband aboard to bear out Dr. Dernburg's statement that they would be torpedoed. Many Canadians embarked on both liners. The Cunard Line last night announced that its steamer Orduna would sail as advertised on Tuesday next. An official declared that the sailings would continue as scheduled until further notice.

Langemarck Dead Honored

Were Soldiers' Babies

Queenstown, May 11—The presence of so many babies on board the Lusitania was due to the influx from Canada to England of the English-born wives of Canadians at the battle front.

ONTARIO BONDS SELLING HIGH

Seven Million Dollars of Provincial Securities in New York

Toronto, May 11—Although the recent happenings in connection with the war have caused some dislocation of financial and economic conditions the strong position of the credit of the Province of Ontario is shown by a sale just announced by Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, of $7,000,000 of bonds at prices that compare more than favorably with those of France and Russia in the New York market. Mr. McGarry has just concluded a transaction with a New York syndicate under which $4,000,000 of 5 per cent. bonds have been sold at 96.58 and accrued interest, which is considerably below 5 per cent.

PRISONERS WERE BURNED ALIVE

Sir Edward Grey Has Sworn Statements

London, May 11—The Foreign Office has sworn statements from two Dutch newspaper men in which the charge is made that British prisoners of war were shot by German troops. The documents comprise statements taken from two German deserters to the effect that the Bavarian regiments were ordered by Prince Rupprecht to take no British prisoners under pain of severe punishment. One case is instanced in which 40 British prisoners were burned alive in a hangar, the Germans concerned receiving a medal. Another instance deals with 24 British prisoners shot against a wall at Warvick.

Berlin cables that a government white paper was issued last night containing reports by American officials dealing with the treatment of British prisoners and interned civilians in Germany. Ambassador Gerard says there has been a general improvement in the condition of prisoners' camps.

His people live in London, England. He was the only child.

GUNNER JOSEPH O'TOOLE.

William O'Toole, 97 Hunter St., Peterborough, Ont.

Deeply regret to inform you that No. 42561, Gunner Joseph O'Toole, first artillery brigade, officially reported died at No. 11 Stationary Hospital, May 8th, from wounds in right arm and both legs.—Adjutant General.

The above message received by Mr. William O'Toole, 97 Hunter St., this morning, announced the fact that Gunner Joseph O'Toole, better known as "Happy" O'Toole had given his life for his country. It came as a severe shock not only to his family but to his host of friends who knew him as a happy and jovial boy with a heart as big as a mountain. He was Irish and had characteristics of the Irish. When he could do anything for another, he did it no matter what risk he had to take. Many will remember when the Turnbull building fell, how the agile "Happy" O'Tolle forgot danger and climbed up on a tottering wall to place a rope which could be used in rescuing some of the victims. That day with hundreds turning away lest perhaps the wall give way and carry him to destruction, Joe O'Toole made it known that he was really a man. When the call for volunteers was heard no one wondered if Joe would offer his services. Everyone knew he could not be kept away from it. He enlisted with the 24th Battery quota. The story of "Happy" O'Toole's death would undoubtedly be touching. Big, generous and jovial "Happy" undoubtedly passed from the blood stained battlefields to the land of peace with a prayer on his lips and his thoughts wandering back to Peterborough, to his mother and dad.

Those surviving are his parents, brothers William, Michael, Patrick, Vincent and one sister, Miss Mary. He was twenty-five years of age.

The family was preparing a parcel of comforts to send to him, when the news of his death arrived.

PTE. G. A. BOYCE.

Pte. George Arthur Boyce whose name appeared in the casualty list of last night as being wounded has no relatives here. He lived in North Monaghan and was a "pal" of Private Arthur Phipps who a few days ago was reported wounded. The extent of Pte. Boyce's injuries is not known.

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

HAPPILY FOOLED

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS.

"My dear," said Mr. Phillips to his wife, "don't you think that Lucy should be thinking about providing for herself by marrying?"

"Lucy marry! Why, my goodness gracious, the child isn't four months past fifteen. She won't be thinking about matrimony for three or four years yet at least, and if she goes to college it's more likely to be six or seven. What put that into your head?"

"Why, I was thinking—you know how much money I have lost lately—this Tommy Harding who came home with her from school the other day will come into quite a fortune when he is twenty-one. If the kids could be united I wouldn't worry about Lucy. As it is I'm constantly wondering what you and she would do in case I should be cut off."

"You're not going to be cut off. At any rate, nothing can be done about marrying Lucy till she has got out of childhood. Why, she's scarcely left off playing with her doll."

"Well, I suppose you're right about it. Lucy is only a child, and she's got her education before her."

Nevertheless the husband's suggestion effected a lodgment in his wife's [illegible] dren were too young to be brought together. Tommy was a nice boy, and it was known that he would come into a substantial fortune. Mrs. Phillips would have liked to bridge over three or four years for her daughter, though, since Tommy was but a year older than Lucy, he would need even more time than this to develop into full manhood.

However, the matter of uniting the children when they should become older had got into Mrs. Phillips' head, and she couldn't let the matter alone. One day Mr. Phillips said to her:

"What's become of Tommy? I have not seen him around here for a long while."

"He's not coming so much now as he did."

"What's the trouble?"

"Well, it's your fault. You seemed to be so anxious that Lucy should secure his fortune that in order to help the matter out I sort of teased Lucy about him"—

"You mean in order to gratify your curiosity."

"Anyway, what I said proved that my claim that she was too young to think about such things is correct. A childish friendship has been broken by suggesting love."

"I see."

"If you hadn't got it into your head that a marriage could be arranged between two children it all might have come about in time of [illegible] stuck to your own opinion and [illegible] matter alone Lucy might have in the end been provided for."

A month or two later another dialogue took place between Mr. and Mrs. Phillips about what the former called "scaring the children off."

"Pa," said the lady, "I think whatever damage I did when I spoke to Lucy about Tommy may have passed. I met them coming home from school the other day, and they were walking together. Tommy was carrying Lucy's books. She looked put out when she saw me. And Tommy handed her her books and went off in another direction. I'm sorry I said anything to make them feel embarrassment. Such things should never be suggested between children. It takes away the freedom, the sweet innocence of childhood."

"I expressed a wish, and you acted upon it, which was the worst thing you could have done. Don't think any more about it. By the time the kids get old enough to marry they'll both have changed and each will marry some one else."

The last conversation between these fond parents was in this wise. Mr. Phillips had arisen and was standing before the glass shaving. His wife had gone forth in a wrapper and curl papers to waken Lucy:

"Oh, my goodness gracious, pa!"

"What is it?" turning sharply with a razor in his hand and one-half his face lathered, the other side smooth. His wife staggered to a chair.

"Lucy is not in her room."

"Where is she?"

"She isn't in the house."

"Not in the house!"

"No" — pathetically — "she's run away."

"How do you know?"

The lady extended a bit of paper from which she read:

Dear Mamma and Papa—Forgive us. We know we're doing very wrong, but we can't help it. We love each other just too dearly for anything.

"What does it mean?"

"I don't know. If Lucy wasn't so very young I would think she had eloped."

"She has eloped; of course she has! Don't you see she says 'We love each other' and all that?"

A maid entered with a telegram. Mr. Phillips, laying down his razor tore off the corner and read:

We are married. Are we forgiven?
THOMAS HARDING.

Mr. Phillips as he looked up from the message was a model for a comic artist. His suspenders were down behind, half his face was covered with lather, and on it was the smile of one who had been sold, but to his especial satisfaction.

"Ma," he said, "I thought you said they were kids. But Lucy's got a for[illegible]

Old Time Sea Food.

A glance at the fish shops today arouses the reflection that one could have fasted with far more variety in the middle ages. Where is now the whale of yesteryear that was roasted and served on the spit or boiled with peas, the tongue and tail being the choicest parts? The porpoise, too, was a royal dish, roasted whole and eaten with mustard, when Henry VII. was king, and so was the grampus or sea wolf. The lamprey, after its one dramatic and regicidal performance, seems to have lost its popularity, and nobody nowadays is anxious to eat the limpet. Many fish, however, seem to have endured throughout the ages, such as the sprat and herring, eaten especially in Lent; the oyster (officially a fish) and the anchovy, sternly anathematized by old Tobias Venner in 1620 as "food for drunkards."—London Standard.

Mrs. Henry Rushfelt, of Kansas City, seeks divorce from her husband, a Latter Day Saint, who says he married her by Heaven's advice.

In the Trench.

We live in trenches, and so few of us realize it. Life is a trench. Beside us are the jesters and the heroes, the living and the dead. In the intervals of our own escapements we make mud pies and gaze at the stars, or the sun's rays warm us and stir our loves and sentiments and cosmic cravings. We do not fight always in life's trench. Sometimes we lie asleep and dream, while others guard our sense of glory.

And we helped to dig it.—Life.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

ATTENDANCE GRATIFYING

Executive of City League is More Than Pleased

The executive of the City Baseball League meets this evening in the Y. M.C.A. at seven-thirty. The report of the gate receipts will be received from the treasurer and an equal division made after all expenses are paid.

The attendance on Saturday was most gratifying to the executive and the members feel that similar patronage will be given all season. The ball presented was all that could be desired and the fact that all the players are home brews makes the interest more keen. The games next Saturday will be:—

2 o'clock, Classics vs. Empire A.C.
4 o'clock, Thistles vs. East City.

"NO-HIT" WADE HAS ENLISTED

Empire A.C. Pitcher Joins the 39th Battalion To-day

The first break occurred in the ranks of the City League baseball players today when Allan Wade left for Belleville to join the 39th Battalion. A week ago who knew of the sorrel capped boy as a heaver but on Saturday he stepped into an Empire A.C. uniform and pegged a no-hit game against the Thistles. Innings after Innings he mowed them down and hung up a record which will likely stand unequalled for the rest of the season. His work Saturday warranted him being considered one of the best twirlers in the city but he has passed up the possible ball honors for a military uniform. Kitchener has drafted a good one.

RESULTS IN THE SCHOOL LEAGUE

In a scheduled game of baseball played yesterday afternoon at the King Edward School grounds, the King Edward team defeated the Central School team by the score of 9-4.

The batteries were:— King Edward: Fred Blonden, Phil Taylor and Jack [illegible] Central: Bobs [illegible]

The South Central defeated Queen Mary on the grounds of the latter by a score of 15 to 4 on Monday evening. Batteries for South Central: Bailey, Fuller, Montgomery. Queen Mary: Dunnett, Patterson, Pogue. Umpire, Lloyd Stewart.

FREE BASEBALL FOR YOUNGSTERS

But They Would be Kept in West Grand Stand by a "Cop"

A suggestion of a fan will come up at the meeting of the City League executive tonight. Mr. Fan felt like many others that the "kids" were a big nuisance in and around the park, yet it is only right for them to see the games. He suggests that the City League admit the little boys free and a policeman be secured to make them stay in the west stand. The penalty for leaving the stand would be expulsion from the grounds. If it could be worked it certainly would be of great help to the game.

MEETING OF CITY LEAGUE EXECUTIVE

A meeting of the executive of the City Baseball League will be held in the Y.M.C.A. this evening at seven-thirty. Each team will kindly have a representative present.

BASEBALL

The results of Monday's games were:

National: Brooklyn 5, Philadelphia 0; Boston 14, New York 9; Pittsburg 10, Chicago 7.

American: Boston 3, New York 1

Federal: Kansas City 4, Brooklyn 3; Pittsburg 10, Baltimore 4; St. Louis 5, Buffalo 7; Chicago 10, Newark 5.

International: Providence 6, Toronto 4; Montreal 9, Jersey City 1; Rochester 10, Newark 3; Richmond 1, Buffalo 8.

A Devotee.

She had a vast amount of money, but it had come to her quite recently. One day an acquaintance asked her if she were fond of art.

"Fond of art!" she exclaimed. "Well, I should say I was. If I am ever in a city where there's an artery I never fail to visit it."—Lippincott's.

Inevitable Displeasure.

"There is no use of trying to please everybody," said the ready made philosopher.

"But you don't make an effort of any kind."

"There you [illegible] being absolutely harmless!"—Washington Star.

One Brand.

"Mary," queried the teacher, "can you tell me what human nature is?"

"Yes, ma'am," was the reply. "It's people before they get into society."—Chicago News.

Obeying Orders.

"'See America first!'" didactically quoted the professor.

"I have already done so," replied J. Fuller Gloom. "I was born here."—Judge.

Different Opinions.

"I don't think a college education amounts to a great deal."

"Don't you? Well, you ought to foot my boy's bills and see."—Boston Record.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH BOYS WIN BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

The Intermediate Sunday School basket ball league was brought to a successful finish last night when George St. and Knox who were tied for first place met to decide the league, but the South Enders proved easy prey for the North End quintet, who piled up a score of 20 points to the Knox team's 7. The game was clean and fast all the way through. The George St. boys have put up the best brand of basket ball right through the league so that their victory last night was no surprise to their large group of followers. The league has been a very successful one as it has brought ou a number of boys who have found their ability in the game. A baseball league is to be formed for this same group of boys. Watch for the announcement of meeting.

REIGN OF ATTILA

Atilla was a barbarous king of the Huns who reigned from the year 434 to 453 of the Christian era, but he had no religion except that of brutality, conquest and loot. He ruled with all the weapons known in that day, and his hordes were compelled to follow him by the same means, as he had no mercy on any who showed the least lack of fealty to him or mercy to the conquered. For a considerable part of his reign it is said that his individual word was law over a vast territory extending from the Caspian sea to the river Rhine. As a leader he was fearless and masterful and savage. He called himself "the Scourge of God."

He ruled jointly with his brother for several years, but wanted no division of the spoils, and his royal brother was disposed of as others of the royalties of that region have been disposed of.

He founded the city of Buda, made it his capital and from it directed the slaying and looting wherever there was anything to get that was worth having. He laid waste in the most ruthless manner some of the finest and richest cities of what are now Greece, Italy, Spain, France and all the territory north of that, levying heavy tribute everywhere and burning and killing where tribute was not promptly paid.

He conquered the powerful Byzantine emperor, Theodosius, in 448, destroying hundreds of gems of architecture and art, and compelled the emperor to pay to him the last money possible. He again laid waste all the eastern empires in 450 and then gave his attention to Gaul in the west with an army said to have been 700,000 strong, but this is thought by some historians to be an exaggeration. However, that army was strong enough to do its will in all that region. He then made an attempt by force and cunning to detach Theodoric, king of West Goths, from his alliance with the Romans under their general, Aetius; but, failing in that he gave battle to the [illegible] and there [illegible] reverse.

The allies failed to follow up their victory, and the following year Attila and his savage hordes laid waste all northern Italy and had arranged for an assault on Rome, but he had just had an example of the prowess of the Roman soldiers and when he heard that they had concentrated there in great numbers he desisted.

Arduous campaigns and intemperate living had sapped his strength, and in 453, on the very night when he married Ildiko, a Burgundian princess, "the Scourge of God" was himself scourged into another world.

The "Fireship."

Over the water of the bay of Chaleur, in Eastern Canada, a mysterious phenomenon known as the "fireship" is sometimes seen by night. It is roughly hemispherical mass of luminosity, with its flat side to the water, but sometimes it rises in slender moving columns that resemble the flaming rigging of a ship. It is supposed to foretell a storm. No satisfactory explanation of this phenomenon has ever been given.

THEY LIKE PRISON LIFE.

A Class of Persons In Japan Who Try to Break Into Jail.

In Japan there are people who make sham confessions in order to obtain a period of the comparative warmth and comfort of a Japanese prison. The Japan Mail says: "The police slang of the capital has words to describe and distinguish these persons. 'Meshikui,' or the rice criminal, will steal some small article from a shop front in such a way as to be seen doing it. He then makes a bolt of it, pursued by the master of the shop, or some faithful kozo, but presently allows himself to be caught and handed to the police. He has to 'do time' for his pretended theft, but his rice is secured for a period, and when that period has elapsed he will allow himself to be caught again.

"The 'unandon,' or 'eelbowl' criminal, is wilier than the one just mentioned. He does not actually commit a crime, such as will put him into the convict side of the prison, but allows himself to be found looking in suspicious places, underneath the broad verandas of a temple, or in the garden of a private house. He gets into prison all right, but he secures the more generous treatment of the house of detention, which is to the fare of the convict jail what a dish of eels is to a bowl of plain rice.

"The 'kuruma' is a criminal who makes a sham confession in order to get a free railway ride. Recently a man gave himself up to the police in Sendai as the perpetrator of the crime. He was brought to Tokyo and his story investigated. It was found to be a pure fabrication."

TWO VIEWS OF A DANDY.

In Which Carlyle and Dr. Holmes Took Opposite Sides.

When your gaze runs afoul of a male adorned with a wrist watch and pink socks and a purple necktie, think kindly or unkindly of him—it all depends upon whether you swear by Thomas Carlyle or Oliver Wendell Holmes, both of whom have furnished [illegible] descriptions of the "dandy." Says the former in "Sartor Resartus:"

"A dandy is a clothes wearing man—a man whose trade, office and existence is the wearing of clothes. Every faculty of his soul, spirit, purse and person is heroically consecrated to this one object, the wearing of clothes wisely and well, so that, as others dress to live, he lives to dress."

And now look on the other side of the picture furnished by Holmes:

"There was Alcibiades, the 'curled son of Clinias,' an accomplished young man, but what would be called a 'swell' in these days. There was Aristotle, a distinguished writer of whom you have heard—a regular dandy he was. So was Marcus Antoninus, so was Sir Humphry Davy, so was Lord Palmerston, if I am not forgetful. Dandies such as I was speaking of have rocked this planet like a cradle—aye, and left it swinging to this day."—Philadelphia Ledger.

An ex-convict sued Bella Galloway at Chicago, for public abuse when he tried to live a straight life.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVAL EXPERT

One Who Does Nothing But Play With Toy Battleships

In a long, low building down near the river in Washington there is a man who plays with toy ships on a toy ocean. And as a result of his play he can foretell exactly how the big battleships of the United States navy will behave in a storm at sea, and he can predict to a nicety how much horsepower will be needed to drive the great transatlantic liners laden with their passengers and freight. He does this before even the keels of the ships have been laid down.

He is a naval constructor in the United States navy, and the toy ocean on which he works is the United States experimental model basin. The sheet of water in the basin is 500 feet long and fifty feet wide, with a maximum depth of fourteen feet.

But in this limited space the naval expert, working with a wave maker, a dynamometer, a towing bridge and other apparatus, can solve all the mechanical problems connected with the construction of a ship, its probable roll when struck by giant waves and the horsepower needed in its tremendous engines to drive it through the water. He works with wooden models twenty feet long. Some of them weigh 1,000 pounds, none of them more than 2,000. The other countries of the world use paraffine models, but he works entirely with the miniature ships of wood.

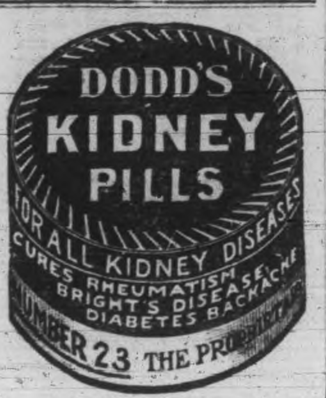
The drawings and plans of the battleships to be built by Uncle Sam are turned over to the constructor by the navy department's bureau of construction and repair. In a little shop adjoining the building which covers the model basin the models are made and painted. Bags of shot, each weighing twenty-five pounds, are kept on hand to bring the model up to the corresponding weight of the big ship. The final tests are made in the "toy ocean" near by.—Popular Magazine.

Sheepmen Expect Good Prices.

Sheepmen in southern Alberta are looking for 25 cents for their wool clip this year, according to a statement made the other day by Neil M Etalker, the Grassy Lake sheepman. The heavy demand for woolen goods, brought about by the war, is what the wool growers are banking on. The crop this year is of excellent quality, owing to the uninterrupted cold weather. The sheep on the ranges are in fine condition. Feeding is quite general, though many ranchers are plowing the snow off the prairie in order to allow the sheep to subsist on the natural herbage without the necessity for artificial feeding. The highest price paid for wool last year was 17 1-2c. a pound.

In Four Months.

The terminal safety committee of the Intercolonial Railway at Halifax, in their report of four months' operation, show that they have corrected 207 unsafe physical conditions and have warned against or corrected 73 unsafe practices. Safety work on the Government railway is making rapid headway under an energetic safety engineer.



Nelson and Villeneuve.

When Nelson fell at Trafalgar he was only forty-seven years old, and the French commander, Admiral de Villeneuve, was only forty-two. The latter was a brilliant sailor, who had already fought against Nelson, and he thoroughly realized what the English tactics were going to be on this occasion. Indeed, he held a meeting of the captains of the allied fleet and lucidly explained them. Nelson would not, he said, form line of battle parallel with the allied line. "He will seek to pierce our line, surround our rear and overpower with groups of his vessels as many of ours as he can cut off." Still, although prepared for this form of attack, Villeneuve failed to resist it, and he was taken prisoner, bitterly regretting that no shot had dealt him the same fate as Nelson.—London Chronicle.

BUCKSHOT JOHN

"Buckshot John" is the expressive title of an exciting motion picture now being shown at the Empire. It is the story of a reformed criminal who "gets religion" and seeks to atone for his misdeeds. There is a pretty love story running through it, and a newspaper man who figures largely. It won't do to tell the story here. The best way is to see it yourself, tonight or tomorrow.

To-night at the Tiz-It Theatre

Pictures of our brave Peterborough heroes who fell fighting for the honor of the Empire. It is characteristic of our soldiers to face danger smilingly. They knew they fought for a cause and rarely thought of the sacrifice they made. It costs Great Britain millions daily to carry on this war but only the mothers of Canadians know what it costs Canada. These pictures will be shown tonight and tomorrow at the Tiz-It Theatre. H. Clayton, manager.

WELL KNOWN WARSAW RESIDENT SUCCUMBED TO SEVERE INJURIES

From injuries received when he was trampled by a horse, Mr. William Deen, a well-known resident of Warsaw, passed away on Tuesday, May 4th. Deceased had gone about two miles from his home to repair a fence on some land where he kept his cattle. When tieing his horse, the animal, which is a spirited one, knocked him down. His shoulder was broken and he was otherwise severely injured. The horse went home, and Mr. Deen's son, alarmed at the incident, hurried to the aid of his father, whom he found recovered sufficiently to be taken home. Dr. Morrow was called, and for three days hopes were held out for the patient's recovery. The fourth day he took a turn for the worse, and Dr. Fraser was called for consultation. The patient, however, failed to rally, and he died at one o'clock on Tuesday.

The late Mr. Deen was widely known and highly respected. He was always frank, and a pleasant man to meet. He was a successful farmer.

Mr. Deen was born 65 years ago near Montreal, and moved to Warsaw with his family forty years ago.

To mourn his loss he leaves a widow and one son, John, who reside on the farm, and one brother, Rev. Clark, of Dummer. One sister, Mrs. Henry Smith, resides at Lakefield.

The service at the home was conducted by Rev. Mr. Brown of the Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hinton, of the Methodist church, Warsaw. A very large number of friends followed the remains to Warsaw cemetery.

1ST FIELD ARTILLERY BRIGADE

Wounded

Lieut. Whitley, Ottawa.

Killed in Action

Mrs. A. Rowe a resident of Lakefield has three brothers at the front. One of them went through the South African war. Her youngest brother has been wounded during an engagement at Ypres. One of the brothers enlisted with the Lindsay detachment and is with the 11th Battalion. The names of the three brothers are Arthur, Herbert and William Conlon.

Mrs. Rowe said she had a cousin who was employed on the Lusitania, as far as she knew. The last she heard of him was three months ago, and she is naturally anxious.

Lance Corporal John Mason, Brockville, who left with the 21st Battalion, has a unique record as a soldier, having served in three branches of the service:—the infantry, artillery and cavalry. He has served in India and South Africa. Mason has four sons in the army, one reported killed in action at the second battle of Ypres; another "somewhere in France" and two wearing the King's uniform in England, at Woolwich.

A cable from France received this afternoon by Mr. B. F. Ackerman said that Lieut. C. Ackerman, Sergt. A. Ackerman, Dr. G. Greer, Major Mills and Pte. Bruce Mills were well. The message was sent by Miss Houedry, formerly of this city and now residing in France.

Relatives of Ross Binkley, former captain of the Toronto Argonauts Big Four team, have received official notification that he had been killed in action. News of Binkley's death first came in a story cabled from London.

The 39th Battalion of Belleville has not been included in the units which will go to Barriefield camp this month, as was originally intended, and the Battalion will no doubt be sent direct to England in a few days.

Pte. Chas. Crozier, of Lindsay, who enlisted with the 14th Battalion, Montreal, is officially reported among the missing. Miss Helen Crozier, a sister, is a nurse in training at the Belleville General Hospital.

"The Arrival of Kitty"

When this well known laughing comedy comes to the Grand Opera House on Saturday, May 15th, for matinee and night, theatre goers will have an opportunity of seeing one of the best plays of the kind they would care to see. From the first act to the last it is full of amusing situations and surprises, there not being a dull line or moment throughout the action of the play. The company presenting the comedy is composed largely of the original cast of players when the play was first produced and their acting has proved that they have not lost their grip on the fine points of the play. There is a laugh for every moment the participants are in action and as a means of driving care away it is a call on anything that has ever been produced. During the action of the comedy a number of high grade numbers and specialties are introduced.

MAJOR BENNETT WROTE TO LITTLE GIRL FRIEND

Letter Was Written the Evening of Day Preceding His Death

On the eve before his death Major G. W. Bennett wrote an affectionate letter to little Ella Staples, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Staples, R.R. No. 5, North Monaghan. The boyishness of the great soldier is clearly shown in the simple remarks to his little girl friend. He assures her he will have many stories to tell her on his return but those stories will remain untold. The letter, which is appended, was written on April 22nd. Major Bennett fell on April 23rd.

Belgium, April 22, 1915.

My dear Ella:—

I was very much delighted to get your splendid letter tonight. I have been thinking of you all and home for several days. We have been having a rest up and general clean up for a couple of weeks after our hard services in the trenches and are now moving up to the front where severe fighting is going on again. I was so glad to hear that you all were well. So Mary has got going to school. I guess she has outgrown you, but you are able to wallop her yet, no doubt.

I won't know the horses when I see them. You ought to see the farms in this country. I'll have some great stories to tell, when I see you, about them. You know we soldiers are "billeted" (you will have to look that word up in the dictionary) with farmers. There is a farm house here on every five or ten acres and they all keep cows and hens and pigs and everything lives in the same building which is built in the form of a square around a manure pile in the centre. The people here never set a table for meals—just cut a piece of rye bread and drink coffee, sitting around the room. There are no dishes to wash nor much cooking to do.

I watched a great battle in the sky today, nearly over my head. It lasted for about two hours. A great many shells fell on a town about a mile away yesterday, last night and today. About 200 were put out of business. The canons are booming now while I am writing. I have just made my rounds to see that all my lads are "in" and lights out. It's just 8.30 p.m. and has been dark a few minutes. If our lights are not put out we are likely to have "hot shells" for bed fellows as the Germans fire at any lights they may see in the evenings.

I have lost about 25 men by sickness since coming into this country but have had them replaced lately by others from England and my company is now up to full strength — 231. I am going to sleep in a bed tonight for the first time since I was in London about Christmas. I am sitting on it now—it's a dandy—soft as dough.

The spring work is about completed here and crops look fine. Every farmer grows hops here and drinks beer and they keep cows as the principal crop. Making butter and beer is the chief work. They all churn with a dog and a great many do their driving to market with dogs. Every farmer has a horse or a donkey. The horse is nearly as [illegible] and he hauls the farm wagons [illegible] a team at home.

Now Ella be sure and write me again and tell Mary to write too. I want to answer many letters as we are going up to the firing line tomorrow and do not know when we will get back so I cannot tell you any more. Give my kind regards to your mother and father and keep lots for the "kiddies."

Yours affectionately,
G. W. BENNETT.

T. L. ANDERSON GETS FIREMEN'S UNIFORMS

Tenders were received by the Fire, Water and Light Committee last evening for the firemen's uniforms. Those tendering were T. L. Anderson $549, and George Ball $575. The tender of the former was accepted. Last year the price was $548. This year the specification called for one coat less.

LETTERS TELL OF CHARGE BY 57th MEN

BOMBARDMENT AND POISONOUS GASES

Lieut. H. S. Matthews Passed Through Some Exciting Experiences Around St. Julien

Under date of April 30th, Lieut. H. S. Matthews writes to his father as follows:—

April 30th, 1915.

My dear Father;—

As Mr. Mills has probably wired you, by this time, you are assured that I am O. K.

At present I am having a delightful time at the base hospital, or rather at one of the hospitals here, recovering from the effects of German poisonous fumes. The hospital is a very fine hotel, taken over, and I am in the 6th floor with a very nice bed, and wonderful nurses.

A week ago Wednesday night orders came in for one section to move up in front of Ypres, and take over from one section of the 5th Battery Major Hanson's Battery. Accordingly we left our billet about four o'clock in the afternoon, and marched to St. Julian in front of Ypres. I don't think it matters whether I tell you the exact location or not because the Germans hold the ground we were on then at this present moment. However, we moved on from St. Julian a short distance to the right front and soon had our two guns in position while the other two guns had gone back.

The country about St. Julian is sandy and rather a light soil, and the billets few and far between. Most of the farm houses there had been blown down. Accordingly we found only one farm house for the officers to sleep in, and the junior officers slept out. I slept under a gun with some of the men.

You have probably seen maps of the position at Ypres, and you have noticed the prominent horse shoe shape. Into this horse shoe the Germans poured more shell in a day than into any other position in two weeks. All night the firing continued.

Next day we improved the dugouts, and registered the trenches we were supporting, that is—got the exact range to the enemy's trenches there.

ASPHYXIATING BOMBS GOT IN THEIR WORK.

About 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon a very heavy bombardment commenced on our left, and almost as suddenly our throats got dry, and our eyes began to water. We were all crying so hard that we could not look through our binoculars to see what was going on, but nevertheless soon guessed as very shortly French Zouaves began to run through our lines apparently in a very dazed condition. But we didn't know what had happened, and there were a good many conflicting rumours.

There was very heavy firing all along the line by this time, and we were doing considerable ourselves. However, the great surprise came when we were ordered to retire at ten o'clock that night, and our route of retirement was along the St. Julian road.

That was some retreat. The Germans were not 300 yards away from the road, but luckily were down in a hollow, and were firing up towards our trenches. Just in the rear of our trenches and lower down was the road. So the Germans did not see us, and in firing at our trenches their bullets went high over us as a rule.

We started down this road "Hell for leather," the bullets whistling overhead, and the guns bumping over dead men and horses. The Germans got a good few of us, and a good many horses as well. My own horse was hit in the rump.

When we had gone back as far as St. Jean, we took a new position, and were just getting our guns in position when the order came to go back as the Canadians were holding on. This we did, but we went up not as a long column but making a dash for it with one or two vehicles at a time. We got back and got our guns in position, and next day the firing was fairly heavy, but nothing like an attack developed. During the day we got what sleep we could. As you can well imagine no rations arrived the previous night, so horses and men went hungry.

IN THE FACE OF GAS FUMES AND BOMBARDMENT.

Friday night Helmer and I went down as Forward Observing Officers, and slept or rather pretended to in the ruins of an old house just behind the trenches held by the 8th Battalion. About four o'clock in the morning the "S. O. S." came up to our Battery, and they immediately commenced to fire on the enemy's trenches. Shortly after we had transmitted the "S. O. S." signal we commenced to cough, and soon found ourselves enveloped by a thick yellow fume or smoke. Then we could hardly get our wind, and I looked over at Helmer and he was frothing at the mouth. In the meantime the Germans commenced the most terrible bombardment I have ever heard. A shell struck our house, and we were all nearly stunned with bricks, but managed to get out into an old trench and lie there. Then the shells commenced to come not in ones but in fours now just beyond us, and now just short. One shell lighting on a parapet buried us in 6 inches of mud, and a splinter passed through Helmer's hat. It was awful.

Well I must close this letter here. Am up and around now.

Hoping you are all well, I remain,

Yours affectionately,

HAROLD.

GEN. FRENCH SAID THANK GOD FOR THE CANADIANS

Lieut. Dick Jones' Regiment About One Company Strong

The following is an extract from a letter received by Mr. W. J. Jones, of Bowmanville, from his son Lieut. R. W. F. Jones who is with the Second Battalion, First Brigade, in France. Lt. Jones left here with the Lt.-Col. Rogers and the contingent of Dragoons and Battery men.

LIEUT. "DICK" JONES

The letter is dated April 25.

Dear Father,—

I am snatching a few minutes. Can hardly do so as I am almost unstrung after being on the go for 72 hours with two hours' sleep all told. The Canadian First Contingent, I might almost say is wiped out, repelling almost over ten times their number of Germans.

My regiment is about one company strong. All my best friends are dead. Garnet Greer is almost a nervous wreck attending the wounded for 72 hours without ceasing.

I am able through Providence to get them their ammunition and food through a hell of shot and shell. We were hurried into a portion of the line that the French fled from and saved the situation, otherwise a wedge would have been driven through the lines.

General French said, Thank God for the Canadians.

Every man we lost is a hero and what we went through no one can realize.

The dead are piled in heaps and the groans of the wounded will never leave me. Every night we have to clear the roads of dead men to get the wagons through and on the way back, always pick up loads of wounded to bring back to the dressing stations.

We are still holding them but are thankful to say, heavy reinforcements are arriving every hour and what is left of us will be soon given a rest.

The country all around is in flames and the continued roar of cannon is deafening. The Germans are merciless and drive their men on in masses, that wither away like grain being reaped. They bayonet or deliberately shoot all our wounded not brought in, yet we bring their's in and tend them like our own. We have got to conquer them and bring them to their knees and it will take thousands more good men to do it. This is war, the worst the world has ever seen. Ken Martin is dead, shot through the head.

Am well, save for being a bit on edge. Had to move my transports [illegible] times yesterday.

Your loving son,

DICK.

UNITED STATES NOTE PREPARED

President Wilson Has Decided on Course to be Taken

ASKS GERMANY FOR ACCOUNTING

And Guarantee That Unlawful Practices of Submarines Will not be Repeated

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, May 12. — The following statement in connection with the Lusitania was made public at the White House today by Secretary Tumulty after a conference with the President:

"The course of the President has been determined. It will be announced just as soon as it is proper to publish the note now in preparation."

It is understood the note asks Germany for an accounting for a series of violations of Amercan rights in the war zone and the guarantee that there will be no repetition of unlawful practices of German submarines. Late today or early tomorrow it will be sent to Berlin.

In official quarters the eventual severance of diplomatic relations was declared not to be impossible if there was no abatement of the German practices.

TWO MORE ARE GONE

Keith Cumberland and Stuart Hayes Are Reported Killed

Two more of Peterborough's sons have fallen, according to a cable from London, England, sent to a Toronto newspaper. They are Stuart Hayes, son of Judge L. M. Hayes, formerly of Peterborough, and now of Guelph, and Keith Cumberland, who enlisted here and whose aunt, Miss Roberts, and two sons, Elbert and David, who live at Fleming Terrace

If the report is true, all who enjoyed the acquaintanceship of the young men will join in extending sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Stuart Hayes was a boy of nineteen when he gave up a position as surveyor on the C.P.R. to fight for the Empire. He attended the Separate schools of Peterborough and later the Collegiate Institute. From there he went to St. Jerome's College, Berlin, and upon returning to Peterborough was attached to the local branch of the Bank of Montreal. He soon accepted a position with the surveying department of the C.P.R. but upon the outbreak of war resigned and went to Valcartier to enlist.

He was a very popular young man and if the report of his death is correct the sympathy of all will be extended to Judge Hayes.

Keith Cumberland.

Keith Cumberland who is the other young man reported killed at Langemarck, was twenty-one years of age [illegible] bert who is employed in the city engineer's office was apprised of his death this afternoon, although he said he had received no official confirmation of it.

Keith Cumberland lived in Peterborough for three years. He was a bright, popular young man and a general favorite. Both Stuart Hayes and Keith Cumberland were members of the 57th Regiment.

BRUCE MILLS IN HOSPITAL

Writes His Mother That He Has a Strained Back

Private Bruce Mills in a short letter to his mother has relieved her fears for his safety, supplementing a cablegram which she received yesterday.

Bruce writes that he is at present confined to a hospital with a strained back, at the British Red Cross Society, Hut No. 3, Netley Hants, England.

"I have a strained back," he writes, "and I wrote father to send my mail on to me. You had better use the old address and I don't know how long I will be here. We lost all our company officers, four killed and two wounded.

"It is a lovely place here and the nurses are fine. We have an English nurse and two Japanese nurses. Our doctor is also a Jap.

Died Like a Hero.

"If you get a chance go over and see Mrs. Taylor on Douro Street. Poor "Scoop" died like a hero. He was shot through the head."

Yours lovingly,

BRUCE.

Mrs. Mills was greatly affected by the letter. She stated that at Salisbury Plain, Heber Rogers, A. F. Field, "Billy" Gibson, George Minorgan, Odely Taylor and Bruce were all in the same tent and were fast friends.

Boys Were in High Spirits.

In another letter written to Mr. Basil D. Hall, Private Mills writes:

Netley, April 28, 1915.

Dear Brother,—

To put it in mild form, it was dreadful. When the heavy firing started, we were in billets about five miles in the rear of the firing line. The fumes from the German shells at that distance made the boys' eyes water. The same evening (Thursday 22) we were told to get ready to move. About eight o'clock we moved off. All the boys were in high spirits. We were marched up to within about a thousand yards of the Germans, where we laid flat, and waited for the dawn. It was here that Mr. Day, our platoon commander, was killed. About 5:30 we started to advance. We went in file until we reached a hedge, and from there we extended along the German front. It was then we learned for the first time that A Company was to charge the trenches.

Moved Up on Stomachs.

We worked ourselves up on our stomachs, a few yards at a time, until the Germans spotted us, and then it was Hell. We kept on and on until we were within sixty yards of the trenches. We were getting it right and left. The Germans behind the trenches must have been six to our one. The order came from the left to retire, but never reached us, so we waited. In a few minutes it was broad daylight. It was then that poor Taylor got his. First, a bullet through his hat and the next through his brain. He was game to the last. What he lacked in size he made up in courage and pluck a thousand times over. No one ever showed more pluck. Poor Boswell; he was killed a few seconds later, shot in the same place. The few of us left managed to dig ourselves in, lying on our stomachs and digging with the small entrenching tool we all carry. After doing this, all we could do was to wait for night. Such a day I never want to put in again. For 16 hours I lay doubled up. A move by any of us meant death. Both the German and our own shells were bursting above us, and a bullet went through my water bottle. Never will I forget the groans of the wounded as they cried for water. One poor fellow got up and gave a comrade a drink, and was shot dead. At 8.30 the few of [illegible] of the battalion had entrenched themselves during the day. I got through it all without a scratch, but my back was so strained that I could hardly walk. Out of our section of 12 men, I only know of four living, two of whom are wounded. Of course, some may have escaped, but I do not know. That is all I know about it, and here I am in England at the Red Cross Society Hut No. 30, Netley, Hants.

BRUCE MILLS.

PTE. BARNEY QUINN SURVIVED BATTLE

Scrap of Tissue Paper Brings Joyful News to His Mother — Pte. Odely Taylor Died Beside Him When Canadians Charged

"Pretty nearly all the Peterborough boys were killed in the fierce battle of Langemarck." The above statement was contained in a pithy letter received today by Mrs. Quinn, 92 Douro Street, mother of Theodore (Barney) Quinn who came through the engagement unscathed. Mrs. Quinn is the first one in the city to get a letter from any one who took part in the terrible fray and it was a delighted and almost hysterically pleased mother who greeted a reporter this morning who called at the house. Her son "Barney" wrote the letter on April 25th.

"Dear Father and Mother," he wrote, "Here I am in one of the worst engagements yet. I have had many narrow escapes. Pretty near all the Peterborough boys are killed. Odely Taylor died beside me when we charged. No doubt by this time you will have heard of what we have done. I am writing this in reserve trenches with Jack Johnsons breaking all around me. If I am hit I die happy."

THEO.

Only a short letter, 'tis true, but it brought tears and joy to Mrs. Quinn. Long enough also to cause many Peterborough anxious ones to steel their hearts and await in agonizing suspense for more news to filter through. "Barney" Quinn wrote his short letter right after the fight, with the scenes he had witnessed still vividly impressed upon his mind. Writing materials were not plentiful either as the few lines were written in pencil upon a scrap of tissue paper, but no paper ever brought such gladsome news to any one as this did to Mrs. Quinn.

The letter was written April 25th, postmarked April 27th, and therefore has just been fifteen days in transit. Mrs. Quinn hopes to receive another letter soon, giving more particulars.

ANTI-GERMAN RIOTS AGAIN LEAK OUT IN LONDON'S EAST END

Establishments Raided and Sacked and Proprietors Are Mauled — Cabinet Meets in Special Session to Discuss the Situation

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 12. — Anti-German riots in the East End of London were renewed this morning with even greater violence than yesterday. Wherever a German showed himself, he was attacked. The police force has been so thined by drafts sent to the army, that it had difficulty in dealing with the angry crowds. Special constables had to be called out.

A number of German establishments were raided and sacked and their contents scattered over the streets. Germans themselves were forced to go into hiding. The police in some cases were defied by the angry crowds, and some officers were injured during their endeavors to protect the Germans. Furniture and fittings of German houses and stores were hurled through windows to the streets. When the proprietors were caught they were severely mauled, in some cases their clothes being torn from their backs. One German was thrown into a horse trough, with a reminder that his compatriots had been spending their time drowning women and children. He was only saved from a similar fate by the intervention of the police. There were several instanees of German butchers trying to escape in their carts. They went racing down the streets at a mad gallop, but in most cases they ultimately were run down and their vehicles smashed. A number of Russian Jewesses were flocking this morning to the police stations in the East End, pleading for protecton, explaining that they were being mistaken for Germans.

HOMES OF THE WEALTHY IN DANGER.

Reports are reaching the police that private houses belonging to wealthy Germans in the fashionable West End are liable to be burned. Troops are in readiness to assist the police if necessary. Large placards in the windows of almost all business houses and markets bear the words: "No business transacted with Germans."

The Cabinet was in special conference today to review the alien situation as altered by recent happenings, and the country is eagerly expecting decisive action.

TROOPS ARE CALLED OUT AT ROME.

ROME, May 12. — Troops had to be called out last night to disperse war enthusiasts. An attempt was made to storm the residence of former Premier Golitti, who is regarded as a leader of the peace party.

Sympathy From Flowery Kingdom

Newspapers Declare German Menace Must be Removed

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TOKIO, May 12. — The Japanese Government has sent Great Britain and the United States a message of sympathy over the Lusitania tragedy. Newspapers declare the time has come to "remove forever the German menace."

AMERICANS ARE WARNED

Important Zeppelin Raids on England Said to be Planned

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 12. — American residents in Berlin have been warned against visiting England during the coming fortnight, as important Zeppelin raids are planned, compared with which recent expeditions were mere feelers.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, May 12. — A bulletin issued at noon says that Premier Hearst continues to improve.

BODY OF PERCY SECOMBE FOUND

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Queenstown, May 12. — The bodies of nine men and eight women, Lusitania victims, brought here this morning include one first-class passenger, Percy Secombe of Peterborough, Ont., son of the late Captain Secombe, of the Cunard line. His sister Elizabeth is still missing.

No such name appears in the directory, and inquiries failed to find any information regarding the Secombes.

FOUND DEAD

Proprietor of Grist Mill Shot by Some Unknown Person

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Walsingham Centre, Norfolk, Ont., May 12. — Christopher Shoup, proprietor of a grist mill two miles from Walsingham village, has been found dead, shot by some unknown person on his own property. An inquest is being held.

ROBLIN GOVERNMENT RESIGNS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WINNIPEG, May 12. — The Roblin Government has resigned, and Opposition Leader Norris has been called upon to form an administration. Sir Rodmond Roblin has issued a long statement.

It is expected the Norris cabinet will be sworn in this afternoon as follows: Premier, Railway Commissioner and Minister of Provincial Lands, T. C. Norris; Provincial Treasurer, Edward Brown; Attorney-General, A. B. Hudson; Minister of Public Works, T. H. Johnson; Minister of Education, H. R. S. Thornton; Mnister of Agriculture, J. D. McGregor; Provincial Secretary, Valentine Winkler.

LORD MAYOR OF LONDON PROUD

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, May 12. — In a letter received by the Canadian Press today the Lord Mayor of London expresses the pride of his city in the "gallant, heroic and splendid service of the Canadian contingent" during the last week in April.

FRENCH LOSE SOME OF NEWLY WON TERRITORY

North of Arras Their Gains Have Been Maintained

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 12. — (This afternoon's official statement.) — "In the sector to the north of Arras we have maintained our gains, excepting in front of Loos, where a night counter-attack resulted in taking from us a part of the terrain we captured in the daytime.

"On the rest of the front, yesterday saw artillery engagements."

LONDON INTERESTED.

LONDON, May 12. — Interest is unabated in the developments at Washington, and despatches from America are read eagerly in the hope of obtaining a clue to the probable action of President Wilson. The Globe says: "If America is too proud to fight, let us at least be thankful for King Albert's shocking loss of dignity."

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 12, 1915

HAS THE ROBLIN GOV'T. RESIGNED?

AT THIS WRITING it is possible that there will be a change of government in Manitoba today or very soon. Following inquiries into the contracts for new Parliament Buildings, an investigation by a Royal Commission was ordered, and, rather than face this out, the Roblin Government is expected to resign. It is supposed that contractors have been overpaid about one million dollars, and it is evident that the scandals are of a grave character.

True Canadians will not endeavour to shelter any wrong-doing by the Roblin Government. Sir Robert Borden made it clear in Dominion politics that the business of Canada required the highest service, and that the nation must always come before self. Provincial politics must also be clean. Manitoba will be better for any cleaning-up that may be necessary. Western Canada will, our people do not make honesty the first consid- and will demand of its politicians honest and faithful practice of the science of government.

THE UNITED STATES NOT PREPARED.

PRESIDENT WILSON will likely try to maintain a peace attitude for the United States. His latest utterance points that way, and, in spite of the bitter feeling that has been aroused in the United States, it is difficult to see how it can do anything else than forward a "strong protest" to Germany.

While the United States is considered to have a strong navy, recent criticisms appearing in American newspapers are to the effect that the American navy is little better than a scrap heap. An article in the San Francisco Examiner claims the United States has only 23 aeroplanes, whereas a country like France had, at the beginning of war, 1,400. It is said also that there is one single submarine fit for manoeuvering at sea; that many war vessels are equipped with obsolete short range torepdoes, and that the navy is short the enormous amount of ten battleships, according to the programme of 1903, which was designed to make the United States safe against any navy save that of Great Britain. Then, there is this remarkable criticism, that the United States navy yearbook for 1914 shows that the German warship Bluecher, which was sunk in the recent North Sea battle, was five knots an hour slower than any other one of the nine big fighting ships engaged. Yet she was faster than the fastest of the big fighting ships in the whole United States navy.

The impression has been steadily growing, and with good cause, that the United States is much over-rated as an efficient world power. They have a shortage of men in the navy, and a large number of the warships she has are out of date and quite inadequate to meet ships of the Lion and Queen Elizabeth types. If war were entered upon, it is probable the United States might be in much better condition if time were allowed, but it is the precious time at the beginning of a war in these days that makes all the difference between victory and defeat. Very probably the American Government realizes that it is in no condition to enter a war such as is being waged and that at present neutrality is the safest and sanest position. On the other hand, the United States, by displaying its real inability to make an effective protest, will lose prestige and influence in dealing with international problems.

THE UNITED STATES APPRECIATES.

THE UNITED STATES is highly pleased over the exhibit of Canada at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco. Canada has one of the best exhibits at the great fair, and has managed to do this at a time of stress and trial when all her energies are bent towards doing her part in the great war. The following editorial from the Christian Science Monitor expresses the satisfaction of the American people at Canada's participation in the great Exposition:

"It is the commonly expressed opinion of visitors to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco that the display made by the Dominion of Canada in all lines is equal to that of any country other than the United States. No doubt the costly undertaking in which Canada engaged to insure proper representation at this great fair was prompted largely by neighbourly sentiment. This is fully appreciated by American visitors, but a majority of them, judging from accounts published, are unable to see, in justice to itself, how Canada could have done less. No such exhibit could be made by Canada if the country were lacking in the energy, enterprise and culture behind it; having these qualities so bountifully, it would have been a grave error at this time had it for any reason failed to make them known through this legitimate vehicle.

"The times may not be so propitious for Canada as they might be, and the immediate returns on the investment may not be what they would be if the times were better in the United States or in the world at large, but the impression left by the Canadian exhibition at San Francisco will be lasting. Not only this year, but next year, and for many years to come, if we judge by what we read and hear, Canada will receive in proportion to its giving.

"Nothing said here should lessen, nor is there any intention to lessen, the neighbourly obligation involved in Canada's contribution to the success of an enterprise to which the indorsement of the United States has been given. There is no weakness in confession of the fact that sentiment cuts a considerable figure in the relations between two peoples that have dwelt side by side in amity and with growing mutual regard for more than a century. At all events in a period of great stress on its own side of the line, Canada found time to think of its friend on the other side, and to offer generous evidence of its thoughtfulness. Its exhibit at San Francisco is a splendid testimonial of self-denying friendship, and it is needless to say that it will be remembered in the United States long after the beautiful vision by the Golden Gate shall have vanished."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

ONE of the most interesting centres of warlike activity in London just now is the Crystal Palace, where the Royal Naval Division is being trained. Being a naval corps, the men, of course, sleep in hammocks, and each battalion has for this purpose one of the large buildings which were allotted to the Dominions at the Festival of Empire. The Imperial note is heard here, as in all Britain's naval and military efforts against the enemy. Thus, one battalion is spoken of as being housed in "Canada," another in "New Zealand," and so on. It is hoped that the "Dominions" are good places to be in.

IT HAS BEEN vouched for that Germans in Hamilton and Toronto rejoiced at the sinking of the Lusitania. In one case, two of them chuckled over the disaster and said within the hearing of one man: "Aha! That will put the fear of God in them!" How long will Canada permit these enemies of her peace and liberties to walk about free to express their dastardly opinions and to spy and frustrate our warlike measures when opportunity offers?

THE MAIL AND EMPIRE today foreshadows the resignation of the Roblin Governmnet, elected last June. The causes leading up to it—the excessive cost of the new Parliament Buildings—are a dismal commentary on Canadian life. If our people do not make honest the first consideration in a candidate, they cannot expect anything better. The Lieutenant-Governor has, apparently, been the only means of saving the situation.

REGINA has inaugurated a two weeks' cleaning-up campaign, and it has proved quite successful. Extra teams were used, and a considerable amount of work was provided for the unemployed. Some eastern cities like Peterborough could profitably inaugurate a clean-up week?

A BRITISH HYMN.

(Rev. R. P. Downes, Vicar of Selby Abbey, Yorkshire.)

Tune: Melita—"Eternal Father, Strong to Save."

God of our fathers, at whose call
We now before Thy footstool fall;
Whose grace has made our empire strong
Through love of right, and hate of wrong;
In ths dark hour we plead with Thee
For Britain's cause on land and sea.

Not for the lust of war we fight,
But for the triumph of the right;
The strife we hate is on us thrust,
Our aims are pure, our cause is just;
So strong in faith we plead with Thee
For Britain's cause on land and sea.

Asleep beneath Thine ample dome,
With many a tender dream of home;
Or charging in the dust and glare,
With war-bolts hurtling through the air;
In this dark hour we plead with Thee
For Britain's cause on land and sea.

If wounded in the dreadful fray,
Be Thou their comfort and their stay;
If dying, may they in their pain
Behold the Lamb for sinners slain;
In this dark hour we plead with Thee
For Britain's cause on land and sea.

And soon, O Blessed Prince of Peace,
Bring in the days when war shall cease;
And men and brothers shall unite
To fill the world with love and light;
Meanwhile, O Lord, we plead wth Thee
For Britain's cause on land and sea.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

A Graded Animosity.

(Boston Transcript.)

Doubtless the special exception which the British Government has proclaimed its intention to make against the officers and men of the captured German submarines has added fuel to the anti-British flames in Germany to the detriment of the imprisoned British. There seems to have been from the start a degree of German animosity against the British from which the French and the Russians were exempt. German publicists have voiced this spirit and they are usually in close sympathy with the military caste. The Germans do not hate any other of the nations they are fighting.

Those in Glass Houses.

(New York Post.)

If the Wilson Administration had chosen to retort in kind to the German communication about neutral sales of war munitions to belligerents it might have alluded to the fact that Germany built up its wonderful Krupp industry by selling war materials to anybody that wanted to buy, in peace or in war, whenever he was prepared to pay.

THAT "CONSERVATIVE" LETTER

Editor Review,

Sir,—Some odd chappie steals the name "Conservative" and puts it under a letter in The Examiner as if any real Conservative would go to The Examiner to make an attack on his party. Oh! What? These anonymous slurs are cowardly tricks but as he did not give his name I won't give mine. You're a great bunch, Mr. "Conservative." Guess you must have been one of the old lot that couldn't sell themselves to the Liberal candidate unless they called themselves "Conservative." Fine! Sir John would have been proud of them well! What!

BINGO.

Noiseless Norway

The population of Norway is nearly 2,500,000, but if the entire population met in a given area I venture to say that their coming and their going and their meeting would not make as much noise as one may hear every five minutes on dozens of street crossings either in New York or in Chicago.

Norway is the country of quiet voices, gentle manners and no noise. The steamers dock almost without a sound and depart as silently. At Christiansand, where we touched first on Scandinavian soil, people got on and off the steamer, farewells were waved, the crowd on the dock moved about deliberately, but no voice was raised, there was no shouting, no physical unrest expressing itself in squirming bodies or twisted features; they were almost as calm as the stars above them.

All over Sweden and Norway one is attracted by the smooth skins, unwrinkled cheeks and unfurrowed brows of both the men and the women. They have placid faces, as of men and women who have not yet been in contact with our disease of striving to live all of life in a day. The trains slide away from the stations at the sound of a scarcely audible whistle, and there are no bells or shouted warnings; the crowds in the streets or elsewhere seem to pitch their voices out of the range of hearing of ears accustomed to the catarrhal rumble of London, the strident gabble of New York or the sibilant cackle of Paris.—The Late Price Collier in Scribner's.

Keep a Firm Hand on the Tiller.

The sails of boats are our emotions, the rudders are our characters. Our sails are breathed upon by gentle zephyrs of affection and inclination, of hope and love and of hate. They are torn by sudden gusts of passion. We are blown hither and yon by conflict of quarreling winds, driven from our course by angry squalls. The only force by means of which we can counteract the effect of the winds and hold our course is the rudder of character.

We know that we shall be blown upon all our lives by various influences, good and bad; that our emotions—those white sails that respond to every breeze—will be played upon by every human appeal and desire. What will become of the craft that has not a firm hand on the tiller?—Youth's Companion.

Relics of Old Persia.

Shuster, the old capital of Persia, is one of Iran's wonder cities. In the dawn of Persian civilization it took a leading part. On the bank of the only navigable river the country can boast, the city gets its name from the famous ruler, Shapur, who built great irrigating dams and a noble bridge across the Kurun, now wrongly credited to the Emperor Valerian. Sixteen hundred years have left the great bridge, a quarter of a mile in length, with yawning gaps, but the water of the river runs today through the channels and tunnels made to fertilize a land that had not yet been overrun by the Arabic barbarians who destroyed the culture of Persia.—London Mail.

A WIG IN WARTIME

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN.

In the spring of 1914 I joined the European invasion of American tourists and made Germany my stamping ground. Before leaving home I sent to Washington for a passport, for, though at the time there was not much prospect of using one, I preferred to be provided. The document described me as Edward Boyer, aged thirty-one, five feet eight inches high, eyes, hair and complexion dark.

In Berlin I contracted typhoid fever, and when I recovered my hair fell out, leaving my skull as polished as a piece of ivory.

On the 28th of July the bomb of the European war exploded and I was admonished that if I wanted to get out of the war zone and back home I must bestir myself. I had not yet recovered my strength, but I was due in America on the 18th of August and resolved to start at once.

The first thing needed was a wig. I sallied forth to get one, having just an hour before the train on which I was to leave would start. This gave me about twenty minutes to procure a hair head covering. I found a place where such things were sold, but unfortunately the only wig they had that would fit my head was of an auburn hue. There was no other place to procure one within a dozen blocks. I looked at my watch and saw that I had just ten minutes to get the train. I paid for the auburn wig, clapped it on my head and started for the station.

I was on the last passenger train to leave Berlin. The war was brand new to me, but not to the Germans, who were prepared for it. Two things especially I had not considered, for I had not heard of them—the Germans' spy system and their methods of detecting their enemy's spies.

I was brought to my senses by seeing a German officer come through the train examining passports. I had mine in a hand bag, got it out and had it ready when the man reached me. He read the description, looked at me, and, noticing my red wig, his expression changed at once to one of fierceness. He said something to us in German that I did not understand and, calling some soldiers, turned me over to them for safe keeping, then went his way through the train.

An American gentleman who understood German announced to me the unpleasant information that I had been arrested as a French spy. He had heard the officer say that the passport I traveled on belonged to one having a French name and that it described a black headed man, while I was a red headed man. Never had there been a more barefaced attempt to carry information out of Germany for the use of an enemy.

Here was a pretty pass. In my hurry to get away I had forgotten my passport, or, rather, I had thus far not been required to show it, and it had not occurred to me that the document would be now required.

When we reached a city—I didn't know what city—I was taken from the train and conducted to the headquarters of an officer who, I judged by the respect paid him, was of high rank. He received me with a lowering brow, read the description in my passport and, looking at my wig, said what by his expression I judged to mean, "Take him out and shoot him."

The soldiers advanced to take me. In a fit of desperation I seized my red wig and, throwing it on the floor, trampled on it and cried out, "I am not a red headed man; I am an Amer- [illegible]

There must have been something ridiculous in the act, for the officer burst into a laugh. Then an interpreter was called, who translated my story. As soon as it was understood that I was an American and the passport belonged to me I was set at liberty, with an apology. Realizing that my train had gone on, I asked for a permit to travel on a troop train, and one was given me.

I could not endure to travel without my wig, so I retained it. During my journey through Belgium I fell in with a Frenchman with a red head. As soon as we passed into France he gave me his passport, which he no longer needed. Having had so much trouble with my own passport, I decided that possibly I might have use for the other, so I accepted it.

While working my way south toward Paris I was set upon by a party of French spy hunters. Thinking to get rid of them without their noticing the difference in my hair from that laid down in my passport, I used the one given me. Unfortunately a keen eyed fellow noticed how the hair of my wig fell on my neck and, grasping the wig, held it up amid shouts from the others, crying:

"A spy! A spy!"

Again I was taken before an officer—this time a Frenchman, who, on receiving the report of my captors, ordered me out to instant execution. I stood before him with folded arms and uncovered dome and cried in a stentorian voice:

"Je suis Americain!"

I suppose it was the absurdity this time as well as before that saved me. The officer laughed, consented to listen to me, and, since I spoke French tolerably, I told my story, producing my own passport.

And so my life for the second time was saved by mock heroics, and I reached Paris without further trouble.

How Words Change.

A century and a half ago "fun," a word of Irish origin, was considered "shockingly low." "Mob," too, was a word "no self respecting gentleman would use" till Pope boldly wrote "the mob of gentlemen who write with ease." Of "humbug" a writer in 1750 said: "I will venture to affirm that this 'humbug' is neither an English word nor a derivative from any other language. It is, indeed, a blackguard sound. It is a fine makeweight in conversation, and some great men deceive themselves so egregiously as to think they mean something by it."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Mouth Breathing.

Children and grownups, too, should be warned against mouth breathing. Breathe through the nose, as the air is warmed and filtered of dust as it passes through the nose. Keep the nose free of obstructions and avoid the use of soiled handkerchiefs, as they are carriers of disease germs. Physicians should be consulted to promote nose breathing. Poisonous germs may enter, and the irritating dust particles may make openings in the sensitive linings of the nose, throat and lungs and permit germs to get a foothold for producing colds and more serious affections.

TREE A GIGANTIC PUMP.

One Elm Found to Raise 260 Barrels of Water a Day.

Professor Pierce tells of a Washington elm which possesses 7,000,000 leaves exposed, a foliage surface of five acres, which gives off to the air 260 barrels of water every summer's day, and that this tree is located near paved streets and cement sidewalks.

The question arises, Where does this vast amount of water come from? It is assumed that many city trees perish from lack of water owing to water tight pavement and water tight sidewalks.

In answering this [illegible] not be forgotten that the roots of any tree, especially the elm tree, extend a long distance, thus encroaching upon the lawn soils adjacent, the sidewalks and the streets.

It must also be remembered that there are many subterranean springs existing in cities and towns as well as on farms.

Notwithstanding these explanations we wonder at the capacity of this big tree to gather moisture to its roots, partly roofed over by city pavements. It illustrates the fact that there is much yet to be learned about root growth and tree growth generally.

After being told that one tree throws into the air 260 barrels of water every summer's day we may get some idea of the reason for the coolness of the air in the forest or beneath shade trees growing in the field or upon our lawns. Shade trees are indeed more productive of coolness on a summer's day than would be a gigantic fan. — Fruit Grower.

MODERN WARFARE.

Manning the Trenches and Locating the Enemy by Dust Clouds.

A column of infantry, marching four abreast—the regular marching form—will pass a given point at the rate of 175 a minute. At that rate it will take a division, which contains about 10,000 men, about an hour to pass.

A division, which is the largest body known in the organization of the American army, will fully man two miles of trenches. The regulation distance in the manning of a trench is a yard to a man. There are three lines, however, needed to fully man such defenses—the firing line, which is down in the trench, a yard between each man; the support, which is back a short distance, and the reserve, which is behind the support. These three parts of the defense are of equal size.

In locating an enemy dust clouds are often excellent indications. A low, thick cloud indicates infantry, a high and thin cloud indicates cavalry, while a broken cloud indicates artillery or wagon trains. An experienced scout can closely estimate the character and strength of an enemy solely by the dust cloud.

An aeroplane to be perfectly safe must keep at an elevation of at least 4,000 feet above the ground.

Although the telegraph and telephone have become generally used in battle for purposes of communication, for distances under half a mile the old fashioned courier and horse are still exclusively used. These have been found a swifter and surer means of communication for short distances than either telephone or telegraph. — Washington Star.

ORIGIN OF STARS.

It May Be That the Nebular Hypothesus Is All Wrong.

The nebular hypothesis is that the stars were formed by the cooling and cohering of the gaseous nebulae. These "filmy veils of luminous gas," which are visible to the naked eye in the Milky way, are supposed to be star stuff. Many of these clouds have in their centers tiny spots of bright light, the supposed beginnings of new stars and suns.

In 1910 astronomers at Lick observatory discovered that the older a star becomes the faster it travels through space. Then the question arose, Can nebulae be stars in formation when their speed is even greater than the oldest stars?

The astronomers began to doubt the old theory. Some years of hard work at Mount Hamilton and at the University observatory in Chile were required. Now the velocities of forty nebulae are accurately known. The incredible speed of these nebulae suggests that they are older, not younger, than the stars. It is possible that they are disintegrated stars and not stars in the making at all.

The director of the Lick observatory says: "The effect upon our ideas of the connection existing between planetary nebulae and the stars is revolutionary. Apparently the stars have been evolved from planetary nebulae.

"What, then, are the nebulae if they are not star stuff? That is what the astronomers at Lick have set themselves to determine."—Exchange.

Cream Toast.

Toast six slices of bread till crisp and brown, dip in hot, salted water, place in dish and pour over the following gravy: One pint of milk, let come to scalding point; then stir in a large tablespoonful of flour mixed with a little cold water. Stir till thick, and add butter the size of an egg. When making cream toast, for each cupful of milk allow a level tablespoonful of butter and two level tablespoonfuls of flour (bread [illegible] butter, stir [illegible] and add a cupful of milk gradually, stirring all the time. Add a little salt and strain the dip over bread.

Origin of Language.

Language is the vehicle of thought and is not necessarily vocal. It is safe to say that the sign or gesture language preceded the oral or real language and that it was a long time before the latter form of communicating ideas became anything like universal. There are still tribes that have ony the gesture language, supplemented by the merest jargon of words. Beyond a doubt the race began its career dumb, just as the babe does, and acquired its vocabulary very slowly and painfully.

MAYOR BULLER IS PRESIDENT

Trent Valley District Joins Hydro Radial Union

President—Mayor W. H. Buller, Peterborough.
1st Vice-Pres.—C. L. Owen, ex-M. P., Campbellford.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Dr. T. S. Philip, Picton.
Secretary—S. R. Armstrong, Peterborough.
Executive Committee—
Lennox and Addington — R. W. Longmore, Camden East; W. D. Roblin, Adolphustown.
Prince Edward — H. B. Bristol, Picton; W. P. Niles, Wellington.
Hastings — H. F. Ketcheson, and A. M. Chapman, Belleville.
Northumberland — George Greer, Cobourg; Ray Humphries, Campbellford.
Peterborough — G. W. Green, Peterborough; H. G. Fitzgerald, Lakefield.
Frontenac — A. Rankin, Collins Bay; J. L. F. Sproule, Westbrooke.

The above were the officers elected at the meeting of the Trent Valley District of the Ontario Hydro Radial Association, held yesterday afternoon in the City Hall at Belleville. At the meeting held recently in Toronto Mr. T. F. Matthews was appointed chairman of this district, and it was he who made the arrangements for yesterday's meeting. Mr. Matthews was unable to attend the meeting owing to important business engagements in Montreal. In his absence the chair was occupied by Mayor Panter, of Belleville. Mr. S. R. Armstrong of this city was appointed temporary secretary. Representatives from Peterborough were: Mayor Buller, City Clerk Armstrong, B. D. Hall, president of the Board of Trade; Ald. G. W. Green and Ald. A. H. Stratton.

Mr. T. J. Hanigan of Guelph, the secretary of the association, was present and addressed the meeting, after which the scheme was thoroughly discussed.

It was decided that the Trent Valley District consist of the counties of Frontenac, Lenox, Addington, Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Peterborough.

On motion of C. L. Owens of Campbellford and Mayor Buller it was resolved "that this meeting having in view the immense advantages to be derived in this province from the construction of Radial Railways under the Hydro-Electric Commission in order to uphold the hands of the said Commission and place an organization at their disposal does here and now form itself into a union to be known as the Hydro-Electric Radial Union of the Trent Valley District.

"That the members of this Union shall be the municipalities herein now represented together with any other municipalities in the district having similar needs and being in entire sympathy with the projects of this Union.

"That the objects of this Union shall be the dissemination of useful information amongst its members and giving assistance to the Commission in gathering the necessary statistics; an organization for the campaign purposes, acting automatically when the engineers of the Commission are in a position to place in its hands all information as to cost of construction, operation, method of financing and location of line; to educate every citizen in the municipalities covered by said Union in order that when the said municipalities are asked to guarantee the debentures to build such line, the response will be a unanimous one.

And the officers together with such members as can conveniently attend shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of such business as may be necessary during intervals the general meetings of the executive committee.

AN ANCIENT "WIRELESS"

Old Roman Carrier Pigeon Station Still Stands in France

A few miles north of Marseilles and within easy walk of the tram to Aix-en-Provence lies a typical Provencal village that tourists usually miss. It was founded by the Romans during their occupation of the south of France and is built in accordance with the customs of that time. The houses appear to be perched on top of each other, but on closer inspection are found to be built on ledges on a hillside.

This hill is the most interesting feature of the place. What appears as a solitary crag is in reality a castle, the rooms, fortifications, etc., being cut out of the solid rock and forming a fortress practically impregnable in those days. At the side of the castle is a round tower, about forty feet in height and seven feet in diameter.

The interior of this tower acted as the "wireless station" in Roman times. The interior consisted of a series of pigeon lofts, from which the birds, bearing messages, were sent direct to Rome.

The whole of the interior was constructed of a very hard cement, which, with the wear of ages, is now slowly decaying, and only one perfect "loft" now remains. There was accommodation for about 250 pairs of birds, together with an abundant water and grain supply, the attendants being quartered in the castle.—Wide World Magazine.

The Long Bamboo.

An Englishman was once rallying a native of India upon his faculty in lying. The native at once replied: "Why, sahib, we are all more or less liars in my country, and if one tells a story another immediately caps it. There were two young men of my country who had a boasting match, and one said, 'My father is so rich and has so many horses that his stable is of such extent as to take a horse eleven months to go from one end stall to the other.' 'Shabash, brother,' replied the second boaster, 'that is very good. My father has a bamboo so long that he can sweep the clouds away with it when they obscure the sun in harvest time.' 'Hi, hi!' exclaimed the first. 'That is very wonderful, but, pray, brother, where does your father keep such a long bamboo?' 'Why, you stupid,' was the answer, 'in your father's stable, to be sure!'"

FASHION HINTS

Pique Collars.

Rolled pique collars that are attached to vest fronts of the same can be added to any coat front or will go with the one piece dress that is always opened with a deep V at the neck. The pique in all these models is neither stiff nor limp; it has to be wired if it is to stand up about the neck. All the pique models are not plain; some of them are in very fancy weaves or have a little running spray of white mercerized embroidery along the edges.

Some pretty sets for dresses or coats are made of silk in gay bayadere stripes. The deep gauntlet cuffs are held together by cufflike buttons. The collars are of the same sailor shapes as the pique or the lawn; sometimes revers are added.

STYLE NOTES.

Choke collars are here in innumerable styles.

Ashes of roses is an old color come back again.

Simplicity is the keynote of dress goods for the spring.

Quaint little bead tassels appear on some of the new waists.

All of the broad brimmed hats are worn at a pronounced angle.

The narrow lining has not been discarded in frocks for semiformal wear.

Some handsome sports coats are made up in corduroys and velveteens.

If the complexion is colorless avoid wearing delicate grays, greens and blues.

Corduroys will be worn again. Velveteens and velours are elegant and distinctive.

Tulle bands with bows behind are worn for evening and are becoming to the majority of women.

Some of the skirts dip front and back, being raised at the sides, but not showing any petticoat.

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1,500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policyholders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is today saving thousands of men all over the world, not embarrassment, but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.

Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.

Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.

The need of LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in

FRENCH DUPLICATE NEUVE CHAPELLE

German Line Near Arras Crumpled up --- Foe Claims Ypres Gains --- Struggle in Poland

London, May 12—A success which Paris terms the greatest scored by the allies since the battle of the Marne has been attained by the French in the fighting to the north of Arras. Offsetting this victory which is partially corroborated by Berlin, is that of the Austrians in the Carpathians and Russian Poland regions. Here, according to Vienna the Austrians have broken through the Russian line at Debica, east of Tarnow, in the encircling movement east and north of the Carpathian ridge, the object being to entrap the Russian forces that cling to the Carpathian passes. The Russian north wing has been forced to retreat, abandoning the Nida front, in Russian Poland, says Vienna. Advance Austrian columns also are reported to have crossed the San near Dvornik.

The fighting north of Arras, according to the French official last night, was begun with the object of relieving German pressure on Ypres. The French forces engaged are those on the right of the British troops which recently gained a stirring victory at Neuve Chapelle. The action is centered on a front of about ten miles though in the struggle the hostile forces have swayed back and forth on a field about that distance in depth. Important German earthworks and an entire system of trenches constructed across the high road from Loos to Vermelles was captured by the French yesterday. To the south, at Notre Dame de Lorette, two veritable fortresses, the big blockhouse and a chapel were taken by assault and the French pressed on toward Ablain St. Nazare, capturing every German trench in their path. These buildings had been stubbornly defended by the Germans for months. Prisoners state that the order was given to hold this position at any price. The investment of Carency is becoming tighter hourly and the German communications here and at Ablain St. Nazaire are threatened severely. Three lines of German trenches in the Loos-Arras sector already are in French hands and Gen. Joffre's forces are valliantly assailing the fourth. Terrific fighting with heavy loss of life on both sides is reported from this region. Paris unofficial reports state that the German line at this point is crumpled up. The German counter-claim on this front is of further progress in the fighting east of Ypres.

In the Dardanelles the French report of operations states that Franco-British forces on the evening of May 8 delivered a general attack on the southern end of Gallipoli Peninsula. Several lines of trenches on the heights near Krithia were carried in bayonet attacks. These were still held on the ninth when the Turks had not attempted to retake them. The Turkish report, covering action near Avi Burnu states that three battalions of allied troops were annihilated when four desperate attacks were repelled on the night of the ninth.

The Admiralty in a statement said last night: "The Turkish official statement reports that the Australian submarine A-6 was sunk at the entrance of the Sea of Marmora and the crew made prisoners. There is no confirmation of this report."

Sir John French reported last night: "On yesterday afternoon the Germans made another attack east of Ypres, near the Menin road. Although they subjected our trenches to heavy bombardment and made their infantry advance under the cover of clouds of poisonous gas, the attack failed. Our shrapnel inflicted very heavy casualties on the enemy when they advanced in mass formation."

Salonika says the Armenians living in Van, Asia Minor, have revolted, killing many Mohammedans and dynamiting several government buildings.

Troops from Ezerum, sent to restore order, massacred a hundred of the Armenians. Prominent Armenians in Constantinople have been arrested in retaliation and sent to Asia Minor. A serious plot against Enver Pasha has been discovered in Constantinople.

Russ Win and Lose

Petrograd, May 12—Their Nemesis has overtaken the German raiders in Baltic Russia. One body of the enemy's cavalry has been placed in a difficult position by the double advance of the Russians from two directions. A battle has developed into a desperate flight by the Germans. For forty miles Cossacks clung close to the heels of the flying foe, not drawing rein until the division, to all intents and purposes was destroyed. The general situation is now such that the Germans can hope to maintain themselves only in the valley of the Dubisza and under shelter of their naval guns.

In Western Galicia the Russians have been compelled by superior numbers to fall back some distance. They now hold the line of the river Wisloka, a tributary of the San, except near Krosno, where the Austro-Germans have breached their position. It is believed that the Austro-German armies under command of Gen. von Mackensen hope to break through into the heart of Galicia by the Krosno-San river. The Russians still have in their hands the main routes of the Carpathians from Lupkow Pass to Kosiouvka. The circumstances which have caused the Russian offensive to be deferred are not permanent and the situation will bear a totally different appearance after the end of another fortnight.

Philadelphia, May 12—Speaking here last night former President Taft advised moderation and caution and unwavering support of the President.

Germans Hate Americans Second

Blame American Munitions for Absence From Paris

New York, May 12—"If it hadn't been for American made shrapnel we would now be in Dunkirk and Calais, we would have smashed Verdun and we would have captured Paris this spring." This is the cry heard on every hand in Germany, according to James A. Nelson, an ordnance expert of Brooklyn, who returned from Europe to-day. The feeling against Americans in Germany to-day is second only in bitterness to that against the English, Mr. Nelson said.

"MANY THINGS WORSE THAN WAR"

Roosevelt Wants States to End Commerce With Germany at Once

Syracuse, N.Y., May 12—Asserting emphatically that a policy of milk and water cannot effectively combat a policy of blood and iron, and grimly urging that there are some things worse than war, Col. Roosevelt yesterday commented on President Wilson's Philadelphia speech. He announced his belief that as a reprisal for the sinking of the Lusitania all commerce with Germany should be suspended within 48 hours and commerce of every kind encouraged with the rest of the civilized world. "This would not be a declaration of war. It would merely prevent munitions of war being sent to a power which, by its conduct, has shown willingness to use munitions for the slaughter of unoffending women and children," said the Colonel.

The Bull Moose of the fourteenth assembly district of New York City have turned Col. Roosevelt's picture to the wall. The club is mostly composed of Germans.

LATEST CASULTIES

Ottawa, May 12—The midnight list yesterday brought the total received so far among the Canadians, as a result of the Ypres battles, up to 3,100, out of a total of 6,000 who fell in the fighting. Heavy lists are yet to come. Killed in action were: Lieut. Lockhart, Berlin; Lieut. Bastedo, Toronto, both previously reported wounded; died of wounds: Gunner O'Toole, Peterboro; formerly reported killed now wounded, Lieut. Lindsay, Strathroy; severely wounded, Pte. Maxwell, Ottawa, and Corp. Johnston, Craigvale.

FEAR ALIEN OUTRAGES

Riots and Parades and Beresford's Fiery Speech

London, May 12—The anti-German riots which have rapidly spread over England since the Lusitania disaster reached their climax last night when a large number of German pork butchers' shops in Waltham Stowe, London, were attacked and the windows shattered. Meanwhile, in parliament, Lord Charles Beresford said: "Unless something is done there will be terrible happenings in England. If the aliens suddenly fire London the responsibility will rest with the government. Why do not they lock up these enemies of high social position?"

Two hundred prominent members of the stock exchange marched to the House of Commons last night, calling attention to the danger of alien enemies remaining at large. They were received by the attorney-general. Exchange members are determined to exclude permanently all Germans, no matter how long naturalized. Bitter hatred of Germans is growing in all business communities.

Storm Brews in Port

Hoboken, N.J., May 12—Officials in charge of the German ships held here to-day appealed to the police for additional protection. Threatening letters by the hundreds have been received by North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American line officials since the sinking of the Lusitania, and the crews have been in continual trouble with sympathizers of the allies.

Wilson Will Not Fight

London, May 12—Sydney Brooks, the well known British writer cables from America: "One may assume that the loss of American lives as the result of a blow aimed, not at the United States but at Great Britain, is not looked upon by President Wilson as sufficient grounds for a declaration of war."

Paris Chased Zepp.

Paris, May 12—An attempt by a Zeppelin airship to carry out another raid on Paris was defeated last night by the aerial patrol guarding the city. At the first alarm the city was thrown into darkness and the anti-aircraft guns were manned.

London, May 12—Member Houston, of the House of Commons will to-day ask for information regarding the crucifixion of three Canadian soldiers who were recently captured by Germans who nailed them with bayonets to the side of a wooden structure.

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

Cut out the coupon below and bring it along with your donation to Review.

Third year — Hubert Eastwood (honors).

Fourth year — Sarsfield Sheehy, Norman Geale and Angus Richardson.

The Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society will close its hospital because Newcastle County is about bankrupt.

May 24th — Old time celebration in Millbrook under the auspices of the Millbrook Lacrosse Club. There will be an intermediate O. A. L. A. game between Millbrook and Campbellford, game to start at 2:30 sharp. Marathon race; grand concert in the evening.

TERRITORIAL STAFF SONGSTERS, OF TORONTO, who have taken the place of the Territorial Band, the majority of whose members were lost with the "Empress of Ireland." The three survivors are with this organization. The Songsters will visit Peterborough Saturday, Sunday and Monday, May 22nd, 23rd and 24th.

Candidates Should Make The Most of Every Minute

Only 21 Working Days of the Contest Left — Every Day Counts — Vote Schedule Will be Decreased Again After Saturday — Are You Doing the Best You Can

It is not hard to find the reason for the interest taken in The Review's great contest. It is not often that the women of this vicinity get the chance to win a trip of this sort, without one cent of expense to themselves either during the contest or on the trip.

Now is the time to get in all the votes you can. The race will not be decided until the last hour of the contest. A few subscriptions may either make you a winner or a loser, so don't run any risk, but get everyone in your power. Don't overlook promised subscriptions. Be on hand to remind friends who may have promised support with their subscriptions.

One contestant can never tell what another can do, and it is therefore up to the busy candidate to think quickly and get all the ballots that they possibly can. Nothing should be allowed by the contestants to interfere with the continuous capturing of ballots. To neglect getting "another thousand" on any one of the days until the close of the contest might lose the race.

It is not safe to assume that your present store, plus what you have in immediate sight, is secure against the figures that someone way down below your total in the table of vote standings may turn in during the next few days.

A word about supporting [illegible] candidates. [illegible] would not be amiss for the different friends to devote some of their time to assist their candidates to win. It would be appreciated. If each friend of a candidate represented in the contest should turn in his subscription right now that he is intending to make later, it would be doing nothing more than carrying out the doctrine of "fraternity." Get busy. Help some of your friends. Give them a subscription if you really want to help. One subscription will do them more good than hundreds of newspaper ballots.

Your friends need your support.

Now is the time to give them that support.

They want to be winners, but they cannot be unless their friends put their shoulders to the wheel and help them along.

You will never regret it. It will be money well spent, and as you take a daily paper, anyway, it will cost you nothing, and you save trouble and bother by paying for your paper in advance. NOW IS THE TIME TO ACT.

Do not wait until the contest is closed and then say: "I wish I had paid my subscription during the contest when I could have made some contestant the winner of a trip across the continent."

A COMPLETED LIST OF THE LINER'S SURVIVORS

Canadians in Hospitals — More Canadians Identified — People Still Will Cross Ocean

Toronto, May 12—The Cunard Steamship Company last night announced in New York the receipt by cable from Queenstown of the names of additional identified dead and of injured survivors who are confined to hospitals. No Canadians appear in the list of dead. In hospital the following Canadians are mentioned: Mrs. W. Chapman, Toronto; Mrs. Ferrier, Penticton, B.C.; Mrs. F. S. Hammond, Toronto; Duncan A. Hanes, Saskatoon; Mrs. M. S. Morrell, Toronto. The list of Lusitania survivors is practically completed. Two new Toronto names were added to the list of saved yesterday, Mr. F. A. McMurtry, and Mr. W. R. Sherras. At the local office it is announced that the Mauretania, scheduled to sail from New York on June 12, had been requisitioned by the Admiralty. The Cunard officials were also hopeful that the steamer Aquitania, which is at present under service to the British Admiralty, would be available for service out of New York, but so far the Government has declined to release the Aquitania for passenger travel. Many Torontonians are booked on the steamer Orduna, which is scheduled to sail from New York on Tuesday next. The Lusitania disaster has had no material effect upon ocean traffic out of Toronto. It now appears almost certain that George Sidwell of Hamilton whose name is listed among the missing, died the death of a hero. According to latest cables Mr. Sidwell was last seen on the deck of the doomed liner, as she listed badly, fastening his life belt upon a young girl.

Lost and Found

There is no longer doubt but that Mrs. (Dr.) G. Sterling Ryerson was lost. The Cunards announce that the body has been recovered. Of the family of seven Mainmans but three remain. The family was on its way to Chester, England, to take possession of an estate which had been bequeathed to its members. The eight months' old infant of Mrs. H. Booth, Ottawa, who is lost, will be looked after by an aunt, who is in England. Mr. Geo. Hook, a survivor, cables that there are no signs of Fred Snowden, who is given up as lost.

The body of George R. Copping of Toronto has been identified at Queenstown. Mr. Copping was accompanied by Mrs. Copping, of whom nothing has been heard.

Mrs. Chapman, Toronto, with her friend, Mrs. M. S. Morrell, are safe, according to a cable. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marsh and their eighteen-months'-old child were probably lost. Father Maturin, one of the victims in the Lusitania massacre, was to have visited Canada next year in place of the late Monsignor Benson.

Bodies Identified

The bodies of the following Canadians, in addition to those already published, have been identified: Mrs. Mary Barrow (address not given); Mrs. J. H. Bulls, Hamilton; Ferrie (infant child of Mrs. A. H. Ferrie Pentincton, B.C.); John Mainman (probably J. V. of Edmonton, Alta.); Albert Thompson, Toronto; Mrs. W. W. Watson (probably Mrs. Wallace, Montreal).

HILLTOP VILLA FOR H. WATTERS

Chief Cook Registers Again for Six Months

Harry Watters, a regular at Castle Nesbitt, came to police court this morning, applying for another six months at the hilltop villa.

He was accommodated.

Harry is chief cook and bottle-washer and his services are always in demand. He did not need an escort for the return trip.

Watters is a little man well advanced in years. He has served in the British marine service and has circled the globe. To use his own words, he has had his fling, and has now to put up with the consequences which he says are always bound to follow.

Information Laid.

Sanitary Inspector Spence will be the defendant in a case to be heard next Monday. G. H. Howson laid information against the Inspector. It appears that Mr. Spence gave orders that certain work be done, and as Mr. Howson sees it, he erred in [illegible] ing by the law in regard to weights and measures.

Wilson Will Insist That Germany Act Like Civilized Nation

Washington, May 12—President Wilson yesterday decided to make strong demands upon Germany. He will insist upon an explanation of the sinking of the Falaba, the attack on the American steamer Cushing by German airmen, the torpedoing of the Gulflight and the destruction without warning of the Lusitania, with a loss of more than 100 citizens of the United States. He will demand an adherence by Germany to the established rules of maritime warfare. He declares that giving warning before she sailed did not justify the sinking of the Lusitania. He points out that strict accountability did not imply that the United States admitted any right on Germany's part to carry on such methods of warfare.

After the cabinet meeting yesterday it became manifest that the diplomatic tension between the United States and Germany, which had been almost at the snapping point, had been relieved. The gloom which seemed to have enveloped Mr. Bryan previously had completely disappeared. The reason is that Germany's circular received yesterday is a recession from the position which Germany has heretofore taken with [illegible] assurance that, taking a strong but courteous stand, the United States in the future will have no serious cause of complaint because of German treatment of American vessels.

Germany now says that attacks by German war vessels on neutral ships of commerce will not be made, and that even when such ships have contraband of war they will be dealt with by submarines "solely according to the rules of international law applying to prize warfare." Germany also states unequivocally that should any neutral ship come to harm through German craft by mistake, "the German government will unreservedly recognize its responsibility therefore." These statements of the German circular are taken by state department officials as absolute assurance that no American ship entering the war zone, even if laden with contraband, will be in any danger of being sunk without warning. This modified position is thought due to the influence of popular opinion in the United States as conveyed by German officials.

CASUALTIES

The meningitis epidemic at Belleville is not only under control but practically wiped out. Only a very few carriers now remain in the detention camp.

The doctors have been busy for the past few days inocculating the men at Belleville with typhoid vaccine and have now pretty well gone around the regiment.

Acting Q.M.S. H. Ward of D. Company, 39th Battalion at Belleville, is home on furlough. He informed a reporter this morning that Companies C. and D. are encamped at Scwick's Island while Companies A. and B. are at the barracks. Companies C. and D. expect orders to leave for the front will arrive in a few days.

Mayor Buller, Ald Green and City Clerk Armstrong were on hand in Belleville yesterday when the quota of Peterborough men arrived. His Worship felt very proud of the boys.

Mr. Gavin Koyle, of Saskatoon, Sask., formerly of Lindsay, has enlisted for service at Montreal with the McGill signal corps. Mr. Koyle is now stationed with the boys at Niagara camp.

PETITIONS ASK THAT ALL ALIENS BE INTERNED

Premier Asquith May Make Definite Statement To-morrow

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, May 12.—Lord Charles Beresford and Wm. Joynson Hicks presented separate petitions in the House of Commons today asking that the House decree the internment of all male alien enemies of military age and the removal of other alien enemies to places thirty miles or more from the coast. The petitions bore about 500,000 signatures.

Premier Asquith stated in the Commons today that Cabinet was quite alive to the fact that violation of rules of civilized warfare and humanity by the enemy, culminating in the sinking of the Lusitania and feelings thus aroused had made it necessary to look beyond merely military considerations. The Government therefore was carefully considering the segregation and internment of alien enemies on a more comprehensive scale. The Premier added that he hoped to make a more definite statement tomorrow.

WOUNDED IN ARM.

Dr. N. H. Sutton has received a letter from an aunt of Pte. N. H. Clarke who enlisted in Peterborough, saying the young man was in the hospital at London with a bullet wound in the right arm, a souvenir of the fierce fight at Langemarck. Pte. Clarke is an Omemee boy.

Prospectors Join Holland.

Many old-time prospectors and soldiers who had been in the north country have flocked to the Borden Machine Gun Battery, under the command of "Eddie" Holland, V.C., and prospector. The soldiers are the very pick of the country as to physique and experience and they are being put through a thorough training in Montreal and will be a mighty fit aggregation when they move to the fighting line.

Their equipment is said to be one of the very best ever produced in America. The armored cars are the very latest model and protected thoroughly with steel and are said to be bullet proof as far as small arms are concerned. The cars are the product of one of the foremost automobile concerns on this continent. They can deevlop a speed of 60 miles an hour and are noted for their phenomenal "get away" abilities as well as their great power.

The outfit is as complete as money, brains and experience can devise and all those who have inspected it expect that the Borden Battery wil give a splendid account of itself on the fighting line.

At Anthony, Kan., expressman delivered a gallon of whiskey to a church aid society instead of their flower supply.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Thursday afternoon the boys will visit the Bonner-Worth Co. The boys are requested to meet at the factory instead of the building at four o'clock sharp. The factory closes at five o'clock so the boys will have to make every minute count and be sharp on time.

Friday night the older boys will meet to complete the organization of their bicycle club. The Intermediate will meet at 7.30, and the senior school boys at eight o'clock.

The first hike of the season will be held Saturday morning at 9.30. The junior boys will leave the building at 9.30, and proceed up the canal where they will entrench themselves and wait the coming of the enemy, the older school boys who will try to locate them and if they do there will surely be a battle for possession of the trench. The boys will bring their lunch with them also their baseball gloves.

The war canoe will be put into shape right away and the boys will have their usual good time down the river this summer.

Important Changes in Grand Trunk Train Service

New train No. 55 will leave Toronto 10.15 a.m. daily except Sunday, for Barrie, Orillia, Severn, Muskoka Wharf, Huntsville, Algonquin Park and North Bay, making connections at Muskoka Wharf for Muskoka Lakes and at Huntsville for Lake of Bays points. This train will carry the highest class of equipment, including Parlor-Buffet Car to Algonquin Park and Parlor-Cafe car and first-class coaches to North Bay.

Train No. 43 now leaving Toronto 1.20 p.m., arriving North Bay 9.55 p.m. daily except Sunday, will be cancelled north of Gravenhurst.

LIFE AT THE LIGHT HOUSE

Picture a long, unfinished gawk of a youth of 18 with the bones of a man, the flesh of a boy, and the face of a child. Upon the thin, shabby shoulders of this boy place the responsibility for his father's life—or at least, for his father's means of livelihood, and the support of the family. In other words, his father's job is at stake.

The scene was at the recent session of the Dominion Wreck Commissioners to inquire into the grounding of the C. P. R. steamship Assiniboia on Cove Island, one thick night last July.

In the examination that followed was disclosed a picture of life at a lighthouse station on the upper lakes. An island—a few acres of rock with some scrub bush—a little island in the water and sky, with two or three dots of neighboring islands, and the distant blue of the mainland beyond. A wooden lighthouse tower painted white, and a dwelling house at the foot of it, a wooden platform about the base and around the house, and a board walk leading to the boiler house, where steam was made to operate the compressed air fog horns—the "fog house," as the boy called it. Under the boiler a fire was kept banked in fine weather, with 20 pounds of steam up, as per Government regulation. The compressed air tanks which operated the horn must also maintain 20 pounds pressure. These were all of the works of man within sight or sound.

Picture the boy of a summer night on a lonely island in the midst of the [illegible] all human beings, in the world of darkness, alive and wakeful, watching that the tower light burnt clearly, and the stars shone down from the sky. If the sky grew clouded, then must he keep a watch upon the "Flower Pot Light," and the gas buoy 12 miles out in the channel, for if these lights were shut out it meant fog. And then must the fog horn send its blasts out into the night to warn lake captains off Cove Island Rocks and Bad Neighbor Shoal.

"When did you go on duty?" asked the Wreck Commissioner.

"At seven o'clock," replied the boy.

"In the evening."

"Yes."

"And when were you relieved?"

"My father came on about one o'clock."

"Pretty lonely out there on the island, wasn't it?" suggested the Commissioner.

"There were plenty of us there," replied the boy.

"How many brothers and sisters have you?"

"Eight."

"And what time did they go to bed?"

"About ten o'clock."

"I see; and you had a good time skylarking with your brothers and sisters until ten o'clock?"

"Yes, pretty good."

"I see. And when they all went to bed and left you in charge—pretty lonely wasn't it?"

"Not so very."

"You were the only one up and awake, weren't you?"

"My mother was generally around."

"How late did she stay up?"

"Until twelve o'clock."

"What was she doing — keeping you company?"

"Working," [illegible] the boy.

"I see; and there were eight of you?" [illegible] Wreck Commissioner, thoughtfully.

To a long series of questions seeking discrepancies between his story and that of his father, they boy betrayed a pathetic caution in his answers, sometimes maintaining a silence painfully protracted. Despite the youthful caution of the lighthouse-keeper's son, however, the evidence went to show that the fog-horn at Cove Island was silent the night the Association went up on the shelf of Bad Neighbor Shoal until half an hour after the accident.

Not Unnatural Inquiry.

Dorothy has a baby brother who has recently been ill, cutting his first teeth. The baldness of the baby's head had caused Dorothy great anxiety. She stood at the mother's knee one day gently patting the little head. "Be careful, Dorothy," said the mother. "You know poor little brother is ill. He is cutting his teeth." Dorothy patted the bald head reflectively. "Mamma," she said, "will it make him ill when he cuts his hair?"—Exchange.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

SPORTING NEWS

HAMPTON DAME MAKES RECORD

Covered Plate Distance of 1 1-4 Miles in 2.09 3-5

TORONTO, May 12. — The fastest work by a King's Plate candidate over the full Plate route, 1¼ miles, ever witnessed at the Woodbine was that of Wm. Krausman's Hampton Dame yesterday morning. The 3-year-old daughter of Inferno—Royal Dame went alone and covered the distance in 2.09 3-5. She had fully 120 pounds up, or 12 pounds more than she will be required to shoulder in the big race.

The fastest previous trial by a Plater for the 1¼ miles was that of St. Bass in 1911; in 2.10 2-5, and he won the race easily y a dozen lengths in 2.08 4-5, which now stands as ther ecord for the race.

Hampton Dame was nicely rated yesterday, stepping via ⅝ in 25; ½ in 50 2-5, ⅞ in 1.16, and the mile in 1.43 1-5. She pulled up in good shape, apparently little distressed after her magnificent performance. Providing this filly weets with no mishap to set her back between now and Plate day, a week from Saturday, she will certainly be hard to beat for the coveted trophy.

BASKETBALL

At the King Edward School gorund yesterday afternoon a very interesting game of basketball was played between the girls of King Edward and those of South Central Schools. The King Edward girls were victorious by the score of 28-2.

SCHOOL LEAGUE SENIOR SERIES

Queen Mary Won Opener From Central by 8-6

The first game of the senior series was played on Queen Mary School grounds on Tuesday evening. The opposing teams were Central and Queen Mary. The game was closely contested, the score being 8-6 in favor of Queen Mary. Batteries—Central: Ward and Frose. Queen Mary: Batten and Flowers.

Umpire—Lloyd Stewart.

BASEBALL

The results Tuesday were:

National: Philadelphia 4, Pittsburg 2; Cincinnati 2, New York 1; St Louis 5, Boston 1; Chicago 5, Brooklyn 1.

American: Detroit 5, Boston 1; Washington 2. Chicago 0; Cleveland 3, New York 1; Philadelphia 3, St Louis 0.

Federal: Chicago 6, Brooklyn 4; Pittsgurg 1 Buffalo 0; Kansas City 7, Newark 0; Baltimore 6, St. Louis 5

International: Richmond 11, Buffalo 9.

To Foil the Flying Machine.

"Is this the secretary of war?"

"It is," answered the office boy unblushingly. "What can I do for you?"

The great inventor drew closer and looked mysterious. "You know Japan is about to go to war with us."

"Is that so?" queried the office boy without betraying the least excitement.

'Yes, it is, and I am here with a scheme to circumvent her and her flying machines."

"Spring it."

"It is to dig a tunnel through the earth and come up under her with an army. One million, please."

ROONEY WITH THE SENATORS

Reports to "Shag" at Chatham Training Camps

CHATHAM, May 12. — Manager Frank Shaughnessy, leader of the champion Ottawa club of the Canadian League, arrived in Chatham on Monday afternoon and preparations are being made to start the training season. A number of the players have also arrived, and it is planned to hold the first workout this afternoon on the park. The players who had reported yesterday were Lage and Powers, catchers, Rooney, an outfielder, who formerly played with Peterborough, and Dolan, the hard-hitting first sacker.

RIVERDALES — PETERBORO'

Big Lacrosse Game Here on May 24th

Arrangements have been made to have the Riverdale Lacrosse Club of Toronto play the Peterborough team on Monday, May 24th. It will be the opening game of the season, and the national game should be given a fit and proper reception. The local club is taking a big chance in inviting a team here, because last year the attendance was none too good. This season, however, may be a trifle more encouraging. At any rate, the Riverdale-Peterborough game will make up the May 24th sport entertainment. The Petes had an excellent workout last evening, some twenty-five being on hand.

KING COLE WILL NEVER PITCH BASEBALL AGAIN

Manager Donovan admits that King Cole will never pitch another game for the Yankees, or any other team. Cole put on a uniform last Wednesday in spite of the fact that it was only a month ago that he was operated on for a tumor in the groin. He left the hospital week before last, declaring that he soon would be able to play ball. He refused to obey Donovan's instructions to rest easily and appeared on the field for practice.

Cole finally complained of dizziness and was assisted to the club house. His physician promptply ordered him to leave for his home in Bay City, Mich., telling him he would be able to resume work on the diamond after a rest of several months. But Donovan says that Cole's baseball career is at an end. It is understood that the famous pitcher is suffering from an incurable ailment.

Cole was the mainstay of the Cubs when they won the pennant in 1910. Subsequently he was traded to the Pirates, who let him go to the Columbus club of the American Association. Cole regained his major league form with Columbus, and in the fall of 1913 Chance drafted him for the Yankees. He went to Savannah with Donovan's team in March and quickly showed splendid form. But before the Yankees arrived home Cole was forced to submit to the surgeon's knife.

BIG ATTENDANCE EXPECTED AT CITY LEAGUE GAMES SATURDAY

Classics Will Meet the Empire A.C. at 2 o'Clock and the Thistles and East City Clash at Four

Judging by the amount of praise the fans are giving the City League ball players, the attendance on Saturday next will exceed that of the opening day. Everyone is talking of the fine calibre of ball, and even go so far as to compare it favorably with Canadian League. The boys are working out consistently and can be depended upon to offer the same grade of ball every Saturday. To encourage the home-brews, the fans should give their hearty support, also their attendance. Last Saturday a little discussion arose at the close of the first game, but such wil not be the case again. The first game starts at two o'clock, and if not concluded at four o'clock, the game is called, and the score reverts to seven innings. The second game starts a few minutes after four.

The games on Saturday are:

Classics vs. Empire A. C., at two [illegible]

Thistles vs. East City, four o'clock.

The admission will be the same—15 cents for gents; ladies free, and 10 cents to all for the grandstand.

Barley Water.

Barley water is a safe and cooling drink and is nutritious as well. Put into a pitcher one large tablespoonful of well washed pearl barley, pour over it two quarts of boiling water, cover and let stand until cold. Drain off the liquid, add one-half cupful of sugar and a little nutmeg. If liked the juice of a lemon is a pleasant addition.

Knew the Exact Amount.

De Faque—If I could get some one to invest $1,000 in that scheme of mine I could make some money. Dawson—How much could you make? De Faque—Why, $1,000.—Baltimore Sun.

Perhaps.

"Sir, I came down from a long line of ancestors."

"Indeed! Were many of them hanging on it?"—Exchange.

LACROSSE

Any doubt that may have existed in the minds of those interested in lacrosse as to whether the game could be revived is rapidly being dispelled. Lacrosse is on the come-back. This is not a theory—it is a fact demonstrated by last night's practice, when enough for two teams were out and had a good stiff practice. There are enough players turning out now to assure the lovers of the game that there is material for a good O. A. L. A. team and also a city league. There will be practice tonight at the Y. M. C. A., and the coaches want every man out.

Fair Patient—"Doctor, what shall I do for a poor memory."

Doctor—"First, pay my fee in advance.

THE BAFFLING PURSUIT

What is there I can say or do,
Pull off, put over or push through,
Discover, execute or write,
Attack or vanquish in a fight,
What can I aid or start or stop,
Advance or hinder, lift or drop,
That I may soon be loafing round
On fame's eternal camping ground?

I cannot grab a sword and fight,
Because there are no wars in sight.
Search for the pole I need not press—
That's been discovered more or less.
It useless is to rise and soar,
For that's been done, I find, before.
So how can I get in on the game
And win a small degree of fame?

I can't a comet find or lose—
They're getting common as old shoes.
I can't strike Billy Patterson
Or make the Keeley motor run.
I cannot write Bill Shakespeare's plays
Or even start the blue glass craze
Or sources of the Nile pursue.
What is there left for me to do?

I might be tickled till I choke
By laughing at an English joke.
A senate seat I might obtain
Untarnished by the briber's stain.
The broad Atlantic I might swim
Or tear a lion limb from limb.
What can I do to capture fame?
All things are threadbare, old and tame.

Spoiled His Aim.

Mike was out gunning for ducks with a friend, who noticed that although Milke aimed his gun several times he did not shoot it off. At last he said: "Mike, why didn't you shoot that time? The whole flock was right in front of you."

"Oi know," said Mike, "but every time Oi aimed me gun at a duck another wan came right between us."

Natural Curiosity.

Claribel—You told me you were never going to write to young Hankinson again.

Angie—He's written me a dozen letters I haven't answered, but in his last one he left a page out, and I had to write and ask him what it was about.

Council of Women

Mothers' Day has come and gone, surely the saddest Mothers' Day that ever was. That it was fittingly celebrated in Peterborough was shown by the fact that the local Council of Women could not supply the demand for carnations. Over two thousand five hundred were sold by eleven o'clock (a.m.) and had they been able to secure five thousand they could have been disposed of.

Few people are aware of the good work being done in Peterborough by the mothers' clubs. The first mothers' club was started by the wife of one of the leading physicians in connection with the Y.W.C.A. The local Council of Women took up the good work and now there are mothers' clubs in connection with nearly all the schools in the town.

The object of the clubs is primarily to promote the welfare of the child, and at the same time to educate the mothers and also to encourage a more systematic interest between the teachers and the mothers. At the meetings the mothers and teachers talk over the many difficulties in an informal and friendly way and many of kindness are the outcome. For instance, at one of the schools, over thirty children were supplied with suitable clothing last [illegible] clubs [illegible] connection with the [illegible]

Talks are also given on various subjects. On April 30th Dr. Neal talked to the mothers' club of Queen Mary's School on the care of an infant up to one year old.

The physical instructor of the Y. M. C. A. also spoke to the mothers' clubs on the need from a moral as well as a physical standpoint, of the supervised playground.

We often have it said that when women get the vote it will be the man's hand that will have to rock the cradle. Yet side by side with this movement for the suffrage is marching this still stronger one the movement for the betterment of child life. Never in the history of the world has there been so much study devoted to child welfare in all its phases. All over America mothers' clubs and schools of mothercraft are being established and even Mrs. Pankhurst, that arch suffragette, has announced that she intends to adopt (20) twenty war babies and see that they are properly brought up according to the true Pankhurstian idea, whatever they may be.

JOY IN GRIEF.

London Chronicle.

"Though it is a bitter sorrow, (writes the mother of a soldier killed at Ypres), I am more sorry for those who have no sons to send. I had only two. The younger one went out last week."

For me no tears, no useless grief;
For who could grudge, with power to give,
A little life so small and brief
That Britain still may live?

A son is laid upon the shrine—
Another goes — I murmur not;
And though a mother's pain is mine,
I envy no man's lot.

One sorrow overshadows all
That rends me for the sons I bore—
I now can do no more.

The pity surging in your heart
You will not then to me extend;
She needs it who would do her part,
But has no son to send.

And more the mother who has borne
Fair children but to bring her woe,
And changes mother-love to scorn
For boys who will not go.

C. L. A. SOCIETY HEAR ALDERMAN F. H. DOBBIN

Gave an Address on His Trip to Pacific Coast Through Northern B.C.

Alderman F. H. Dobbin gave a very interesting and instructive address to the C. L. A. Society of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church last night. Mr. Dobbin gave in conversational style an address on his trip to the Pacific Coast and through the northern part of British Columbia.

Alderman Dobbin explained a good many things about the new towns growing up on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. He described the difficulties encountered in constructing the town site of Prince Rupert.

Owing to the fact that it is very rocky, with very deep holes between the pinnacles of rock, a good many millions of dollars will have to be expended efore level streets are obtained in the western terminus of the new railway.

The usual procedure was that a man who had a lot having forty or fifty feet of rock above the street level would make a deal with a man who had a lot in the shape of a hole forty or fifty feet in depth below the street level, and the rock blown off the former would be deposited in the latter. The town site will necessarily be small, but the buildings will likely be very high.

He described the big trees and the Indians, and some of their strange customs. He also described some of the difficulties of travel, as when they met a waggon on a road too narrow to pass on. Then the custom was to give the loaded waggon the right of way, and take the other to pieces, carrying it over the waggon and putting it together again, and continue the journey.

Mr. Dobbin said that he struck Calgary at the height of the oil boom, but explained that he managed to get away without investing heavily in those gilt-edged securities.

Mr. Dobbin has a large number of excellent photographs of many interesting sights along the way, and these were put on exhibition and were examined by persons interested, at the conclusion of the address.

A vote of thanks was moved by [illegible] Miss I. Walsh favored the audience with a very fine piano solo. The attendance was exceptionally good and the address received close attention.

PLAY GROUNDS FUND

The Local Council of Women wish to publish the following statement with regard to the supervised playgrounds fund:

Net receipts from carnation sale	$225.00
Amount left over from better baby contest	28.38

As will be seen, over half the amount required has already been raised, but $246.62 is still required if the playgrounds are to be in readiness by July 1st.

Donations from a few public-spirited citizens will make these grounds an accomplished fact, and the children will not be disappointed. Any person willing to donate any sum please communicate with Mrs. (Dr.) Neal or Mrs. Jas. Kendry.

THE LADIES OF ASHBURNHAM ORGANIZE TO HELP SOLDIERS

A very enthusiastic meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the Ashburnham hall. More than sixty ladies were present, as well as several gentlemen. The meeting was called to discuss the advisability of organizing a circle to help the hospitals with supplies for our wounded. Rev. Dean McColl was asked to preside, which he did after making a few well-chosen remarks. Judge Huycke, Mr. R. B. Rogers and Mr. White spoke a few words in favor of forming a circle.

Miss Peck helped the meeting with suggestions, as she has had considerable experience with the work of the Progressive Club.

The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. R. B. Rogers.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Huycke.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. C. Sullivan.
Rec.-Secretary—Mrs. J. H. Smith.
Corres.-Secretary—Miss Dover.
Treasurer—Miss L. Scott.
Convenor of Bandagings and Dressings Committee—Mrs. G. McCartney.
Convenor of Sewing Committee—Mrs. W. F. Nelson.

Some Donations.

The circle was delighted by donations from the following gentlemen:

Mr. R. B. Rogers	$15.00
Judge Huycke	15.00
Rev. Dean McColl	10.00
Rev. Mr. White	5.00

which gave a total of $45 to start with.

It was decided to hold a concert in the near future. Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie kindly consented to arrange a program. The date will be decided at the next meeting.

The meeting was adjourned as the hour was getting late, until Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, and will be held in the Ashburnham hall.

Will every member please make a special effort to be present, and all the ladies of Ashburnham are cordially invited to attend and join the club.

CHILD WAS NAILED TO BARN DOOR

German Atrocities Confirmed in Finding of Committee Headed by Viscount Bryce

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, May 12.—A report on German atrocities which will shock humanity was issued today by the committee headed by Viscount Bryce, a committee of such calibre that no neutral will doubt the truth of their finding which basis on the examination of twelve hundred witnesses. The committee and report verifies the worst of stories which it was appointed to clarify. Statements considered exaggerated by the British themselves, tales of children with hands cut off and women mutilated in a most terrible way, are found by the commission to be true. One case is cited of a three-year-old child nailed to a farm house door. It is proved: "First, that there were in many parts of Belgium, deliberate and systematically organized massacres of civil people accompanied by many isolated murders and other outrages.

Second: That in the conduct of the war, generally, innocent civilians, and women, were murdered in large numbers, women violated, and children murdered.

Third: That looting, house burning and wanton destruction of property were ordered and countenanced by officers of a German army having nothing to do with military necessity, but being part of a system of general havoc.

Fourth: That the rules and usages or war were frequently broken by using civilians, even women and children as a shield for advancing forces exposed to fire and to a less degree by killing the wounded and prisoners and in frequent abuse of the Red Cross and the white flag. Murder, lust and pillage.

The committee says it prevailed over many parts of Belgium on a scale unparalleled in any war between civilized nations during the last three centuries.

OTTAWA, May 12. — Canada had 108,760 men under arms on May 1st. This includes the troops at the front, those drilling at home preparatory to going there, and the corps or detachments assigned to guard duty in different parts of the country.

The question of raising additional troops is under consideration, but as yet no announcement is made. The expectation, however, is that before long the list will have reached the total of 150,000.

The department has promptly filled up the gaps resulting from the losses at the front.

The plan which has applied heretofore and which still holds is that of keeping 50,000 men under arms at all times in Canada and despatching them in large batches as the necessity of the service calls for. This has worked most satisfactorily, and at the beginning of the month the different units were fully up to establishment.

With additional units in prospect of authorization, the total by midsummer will likely reach the 150,000 mark. Two complete divisions will be constantly maintained in the field and reinforcements at the rate of eight to ten thousand a month provided for.

Since the battle of Langemarck, with the heavy toll of dead and wounded, applications are coming in under the provision of the pension regulations. The amonnt required for this purpose will reach several millions. Two millions have already been provided. The scale is graduated according to the rank of the men, the nature of the disability, and the numer of dependents on the dead or incapacitated soldier. A special staff has been assigned to attend to these cases to the end that they be dealt with promptly.

The total casualties up to yesterday morning are figured at 2,935, comprising 305 officers and 2,650 men.

The Government has started to pay soldiers' pensions under the new Pensions' Act. For the present, pensions to relatives will only be paid in case of men dead. In case of wounded, the government will have to wait to ascertain the extent of the injuries sustained before pensions are granted.

En route to France, a Western contingent of doctors reported to General Hughes yesterday. They were in charge of, Surgeon Major Wheeler, of Moose Jaw, the others in the party being Dr. Charles Sutherland and Dr. White, of Moose Jaw, and Drs. Daken and Field of Regina.

CAPITAL OF GERMAN SOUTHWEST AFRICA TAKEN

FRESH SUCCESSES FOR THE FRENCH

Take Fort of Notre Dame De Lorette aad Chapel and Inflict Heavy Losses on Germans

KILLED FOE AT BAYONET POINT

Their Hold on Neuville Increased and New Line of Enemy's Trenches Occupied

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 13. — Today's official statement says: "The French won brilliant successes Wednesday evening and Wednesday night, capturing the fort of Notre Dame de Lorette as well as Chapel, and, after a furious combat lasting all night, in the trenches south of Chapel, completely defeated and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy.

"During Wednesday night the French also took by storm a strong position comprising the village of Carency and Hill No. 25, killing hundreds of Germans at the bayonet point and taking 1,050 prisoners.

"To the north of Neuville the French took possession of several hundred yards of trenches and increased their hold on the village of Neuville, driving the Germans into the extreme northern part and proceeding to outflank them.

"In the forest of Le Pretre a new line of German trenches was occupied."

COUNCIL WILL SECURE ENGINEER TO ADVISE ACTION

Is Lock Street Site the Proper Place to Collect Sewage?

PROVINCIAL HEALTH BOARD SAYS YES

Ald. McIntyre Opines That the Council Had Made Big Mistake

His Worship Mayor Buller, and Alderman G. W. Green, chairman of the Board of Works, have been appointed to act as a committee to secure an efficient engineer to advise the Council whether or not the spot selected at the foot of Lock street is the proper place to collect the sewage and construct the pumping station. This, in short, was the result of a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council called last evening for the purpose of discussing the situation relative to the sewage disposal plant and outfall sewer. When the meeting opened Mayor Buller read the following copy of the judgment handed out by the Provincial Board of Health after the meeting held on April 30th:

"That the application of the city of Peterborough for the establishment of a sewage disposal plant at the site proposed in the township of Otonabee be not approved. The Board suggests that another site be selected at or near the foot of Park street in the township of Otonabee.

"That the Board re-affirms its opinion that the present proposed site for the pumping station is not a proper one.

"Carried unanimously."

Ald. Green was the first to propose securing the advice of an outside engineer. While he had all confidence in the city engineer and in the opinion of the Provincial Board of Health, he noted that there was diversity of opinion among the memers of the Council, and to clear it up he thought the wisest plan would be to secure the services of a competent disinterested engineer. He felt that he had no right to form an opinion on the site, because he was not an engineer He would, however, agree with the advice of men learned along that line. When the city was spending half a million dollars, it could surely afford to spend a few hundred on expert advice.

A Big Mistake.

Ald. McIntyre remarked that as he had said before, he was confident the city has made a big mistake. He knew that the end of Park street was the place for the pumping station, and exclaimed: "I say it's the natural place, and I don't care what the city engineer and the Provincial Board of Health say. I am satisfied a big mistake has been made."

TWO HUNDRED SHOPS DAMAGED RIOTING CEASES

Million Dollars Damage to Propertv of Germans in Johannesburg

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, May 13. — Anti-German rioting virtually ceased last night in Liverpool and Manchester after two hundred shops in the former place were damaged. In London this morning there is hardly an establishment owned by Germans or where Germans are employed which is not damaged or barricaded. At Johannesburg, South Africa, mobs destroyed a German club and raided or burned property of several prominent Germans, causing losses of over a million dollars.

1ST FIELD ARTILLERY BRIGADE

Killed in Action

Gunner Rivers. Victoria, B. C.

PTE. L. P. SPENCE

Sanitary Inspector Spence was notified this morning that his brother, Pte. L. P. Spence had been wounded. Pte. Spence enlisted at Haileybury and was transferred to the 15th Regiment, Highlanders. He has seen service in the South African War, and is the possessor of a cross and several clasps. He held a position in the Union Bank having also been stationed at Hastings some time ago.

PTE. FRED BRISCOE.

Pte. Fred Briscoe who is reported wounded today, is the second son of Mr. Alfred Briscoe, Chamberlain Street. He was a 57th representative.

PTE. JAMES ENGLISH.

Pte. James English, reported missing, is the elder son of Mr. S. W. English, Margaret Ave. and is 24 years old. He was a member of No. 1 Company, 57th Regiment, and it did not take him long to offer himself, after the call for volunteers, sounded. It is possible that he is among the prisoners. One thing is assured, Jimmie English didn't back up. He would be on the job as long as he was able to be up and doing. This spirit was reflected in his letters and those intimate with him know he would be in the thick of any fighting, in which the Peterborough boys might be called upon to take part.

Corp. Keith Cumberland, unofficially reported among the killed is officially reported missing, in a message to his brother, Mr. Edward Cumberland. Judge Hayes of Guelph sent a cable to secure official information in regard to the fate of his son Pte. Stuart Hayes and Corp. Cumberland.

Pte. Kirk whose name appears in the list of wounded from the Second Battalion, was one of the five men, who enlisted at Norwood last August and went to Valcartier and afterwards to the front at France with the 1st Canadian Contingent. Before enlisting he was employed with Mr. G. A. L. Humphries of Westwood.

Pte. Harold Johnston of Lindsay, reported wounded, is a cousin of Stewart McGill, whose brother, Gunner Mordie McGill, is in the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade.

ANNUAL TOUR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Board of Works Will Have a Look About the City

NO LOCAL LABOR?

After the committee of the whole council adjourned last evening, the Board of Works held a session but nothing of importance was dealt with excepting the fixing of next Wednesday as the date of the Board of Works annual tour.

Ald. Edgar informed the Board that in an investigation he had found that out of 46 men working for the Foley and Gleeson Co. none were residents of Peterborough. The engineer is looking into the matter today.

CHARITY BOARD'S OVERDRAFT OF $2000

The Bank of Montreal notified the meeting of the Finance Committee yesterday afternoon that the Charity Board had an overdraft of $2000. It was decided that a cheque be issued to the Board on account of the appropriations this year and that the Board be requested to notify the Finance Committee before again incurring an overdraft.

The matter of supplying war stamps to Tax Collector Green was referred to the council.

The offer of the City Trust to purchase $12000 water debentures 5 per cent. at par was accepted.

WINDHOEK GIVES WAY TO GEN. BOTHA

Martial Law Proclaimed Throughout Conquered Territory

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 13. — An official statement made public in Capetown, says that Windhoek, the capital of German Southwest Africa, was captured yesterday without resistance, by Gen Botha.

The population of the town consists of 3,000 Europeans and 12,000 natives. Gen. Botha's troops took a considerable quantity of railway rolling stock.

Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the conquered territory.

HEAVY ROLLER PASSED OVER YOUNG FARMER

Mark Fitzgerald Had Miraculous Escape From Fatal Injuries

HORSES RAN AWAY

Mark Fitzgerald, son of Mr. John Fitzgerald of Indian River, had a narrow escape from being crushed to death yesterday when a two-ton roller, drawn by a team of horses passed over him. Mark Fitzgerald and his brother John were riding on the roller, the latter driving the team. The horses were young and spirited and when the roller scraped along a broken stump, they became frightened and made a dash for liberty. John was thrown backwards off the seat while Mark fell ahead and the roller passed over him. The team dashed down the field to the railway track and started up the tracks. Although the tongue of the roller broke in two parts, the horses did not stop till several men from the village caught them.

John was not injured but Mark was thought to be seriously hurt. This morning, however, he had recovered entirely save for a bruised shoulder.

Both horses were injured in the mix-up and required the attention of Dr. Fortune of Peterborough.

NO ACTION AS YET.

The matter of granting the Peterborough Health Association $50 per month came up yesterday at the meeting of the Finance Committee but was left in abeyance as the Mayor is taking it up with the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund Association and Peterborough Relief Association.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF AGE

Joseph Valois a Centenarian Passed Away at the Protestant Home

Joseph Valois, a centenarian, died at noon yesterday in the Protestant Home. Up till two months ago he enjoyed excellent health and the full use of all his faculties. He celebrated his hundredth birthday on December 27th last year. About March however, he began to fail and gradually became weaker and weaker until it was seen he would not improve.

Joseph Valois came from Lower Canada, a boy of eighteen. He had lived in this part of the country ever since, working at various kinds of employment. He was twice married, his first wife predeceasing him forty-two years. His second wife is living, as well as four sons and two daughters, Charles, Auburn Street; Thomas Mitchell, Woodbine Avenue; Albert Valois, Woodbine Avenue; George Valois in the Northwest; Mrs. William Facey of Toronto, and Joseph Losey of this city.

The funeral will be on Friday afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery, service at the house at 1.30, funeral at two o'clock. Adjutant McElhiney of the Salvation Army will conduct the services.

MASONIC LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.

The Masonic Lodge of Instruction was well attended at the evening session last night. All the lodges of the district were represented and much interest was evinced by the brethren present in the degree work. The D.D.G.M. expressed himself as being well satisfied with the work done. An enjoyable hour was spent in the banquet hall after the close of the lodge.

MANY OF CREW LOST WHEN H.M.S.GOLIATH IS SUNK

Twenty Officers and One Hundred aud Sixty Men Were Saved

BRITISH SUBMARINE DESTROYS TWO TURK GUNBOATS AND TROOP SHIP

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 13. — Winston Churchill announced in the Commons today that the British battleship Goliath had been torpedoed in the Dardanelles and fears are entertained that five hundred lives were lost.

Mr. Churchill also announced that the British submarine E-14 had penetrated the Dardanelles into the Sea of Marmora and had sunk two Turkish gunboats and a troopship.

LONDON, May 13.—Twenty officers and one hundred and sixty men of the Goliath's crew were saved.

The battleship was torpedoed last night by destroyers while protecting the French flank just inside the straits.

TURKS STEADILY LOSING GROUND.

PARIS, May 13. — A despatch to the Havas News Agency from Athens says the allied fleet entered the Dardanelles last night and bombarded forts at Kilid Bahr, Chanak, Kalessi and Nagara. Although the Turks have been strongly reinforced, the bombardment from the allied warships is causing them heavy losses and they are steadily losing ground.

Turkish trenches are filled with bodies.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1915

JUMPING TO CONCLUSIONS.

SOME PEOPLE who ought to know better have jumped to conclusions regarding an election. They have merely said an election should not be held in war time, without considering whether there was any provocation for an election or any important questions to place before the people.

In the first place, the attitude of the Liberal press, especially such newspapers as the Toronto Star and Globe, has been unpatriotic, despicable and German. During the last session of Parliament, the Liberals of the Opposition flagrantly broke the party truce and challenged the Conservatives again and again to have an election. Not once did the Toronto Star or Globe or any other Liberal newspaper, so far as we know, rebuke its own party for such tactics. Nay, more, they even encouraged them, and prated about war taxes and army equipment ad nauseam. In view of such great provocation, will any honest, fair-minded man deny that an appeal to the people was not justified?

Besides, note the tactics that followed. When it was surmised that an election would take place, the Liberals' tactics became a few degrees worse. The Globe and the Star devoted leading editorials to the horror of an election in war time. To hold an election in war time was to them a profanation and a sacrilege, but such pronouncements were invariably followed by partizan articles attacking the Government's fiscal policy and blaming them for the sins of individuals not connected with the Government. This policy was not only inconsistent, but grossly unfair and insincere. If we are going to have a party truce, let it be one, but the Conservatives are not going to abide by a truce that is broken every day with impunity by Liberal newspapers and by Liberal members of Parliament.

THE GLOBE'S STRATEGY.

OF COURSE, it was to be expected that the Globe and other partizan Liberal newspapers would try to couple the Borden Government with the disclosures in Manitoba. The Hon. Robert Rogers comes from Manitoba, so they have singled him out and connected his name with the affair without having a single shred of proof or cause for doing so. What is wanted now is not a mean attempt to implicate the innocent, but to insist on bringing the guilty to justice, and also to emphasize the need of honesty, fairness and uprightness in the conduct of public affairs. Sir Robert Borden has set a remarkable example in this regard, which has received very scant support from Liberal newspapers. Sir Robert was backed up by his cabinet, of which Hon. Robert Rogers is a memebr, yet the Liberals try to blame Sir Robert Borden and Hon. Robert Rogers for the sins of the Roblin Government. Their partizanship is amazing.

GERMANS HATE CANADIANS.

WHEN we remember that the Germans have used poisonous gases, boiling pitch and burning oil in this war, the story that a Canadian soldier was crucified, although almost incredible, is very probably true. Canadian wounded say the Germans hate the Canadians because they came to the aid of Great Britain when they were expected to do otherwise. They are, therefore, so far as Germany is concerned, as British as the English, and are due to receive the burden of hate which the Germans hold against England. After the atrocities, proved indisputably to have been committed in Belgium, does it seem unlikely that the Germans would not crucify a Canadian? Surely not!

AMMUNITION RESERVES.

IT WAS ascertained, by examining discarded cartridges, that the Germans used 1912 ammunition at the battle of Neuve Chapelle. This fact reveals how well Germany was prepared for war, when, after eight months of terrific warfare, in which the expenditure of ammunition has been enormous, she is still using 1912 supplies. The Canadians some time ago exhausted their reserve supply back to 1905, and have been using lately 1914 ammunition, which shows that they are already drawing on the munitions made since war began. It is evident that Germany still has immense stocks of ammunition, but how soon they will show alarming depletion remains to be seen.

VACUUM STREET CLEANING.

IN HUDDERSFIELD, England, recently a demonstration was given of a motor-vacuum street cleaner, the invention of an Italian.

The machine is operated upon the principle of a rotary brush and suction, together with a system of pumps and jets for spraying atomized water on the road surface in front of the brush, thus insuring dustless and hygienic sweeping. The tests were made on various conditions of roadways, some being specially prepared to give the machine a stiff test. It is stated that the result was excellent, and apparently it will not be long before a much-needed revolution in street cleaning will be brought about by the motor-vacuum system.

Canadian cities and towns are intensely interested in this question, as, owing to climatic conditions, the vacuum system of street cleaning is particularly adapted to this country.

WILD WOOD SCENERY IN PARKS.

WHEN CONSIDERING the matter of maintaining parks and beautifying a city, artificial improvements should not be the sole policy. In a large park, there should be some attempt made to preserve nature as it exists in the wild-wood. Nicely cropped lawns and well-designed flower beds are a delight to the eye, but some nook where wild flowers struggle forth of their own accord and where birds and squirrels build their nests and homes, just as they would in an uninhabited territory, has also a charm of its own. There are parts of Jackson Park that could be utilized in this way. Unless some policy is adopted along this line, there are many flowers that in time will become extinct.

Parents should also assist by teaching their children to respect birds and other wild life. Some boys want to throw stones at a bird or squirrel every time they see one. That is a German attitude. To have a public really appreciative of the beautiful, the growing generation must be taught at home and in the schools to have a proper attitude to the things in nature. With all the advantages that now exist, such as our school system and public libraries, much progress should result.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WORD has been received at Hamilton that the condition of Lieut. Young was serious. Blood-poisoning has set in. His parents, who were on the way to visit him, were lost on the Lusitania. —News Item. That is the way Germany needlessly intensifies the suffering and waste of war. Canada will remember this in the drives to Berlin.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

The Lusitania.
(La Patrie.)

The whole civilized world shudders with horror at the latest outrage committed by the German nation. One feels, if possible, less moved by the enormity of this disaster than by the cold determination with which it has been executed. Germany manifestly persists in the line of conduct which she has traced for herself, which seeks to vanquish by terror, in default of the power to accomplish a triumph by her arms. Her blindness prevents her from discerning that her contempt for the laws of war will conduct her to destruction rather than to victory. The United States, if they have contented themselves up to the present time, with making representations of a purely prudent kind, have also told Berlin that their patience will not go so far as to stand as indifferent winesses if the lives of their citizens are imperilled. Now it is announced that about two hundred Americans have been assassinated in open day. What impression this event will have on the American people it is easy to imagine. It is doubtful if Washington will be content to make merely polite representations to Berlin this time.

A Strong Nation's War.
(Montreal News.)

The attitude of the British press—that of the British Isles—is moderate and self-contained in the face of the Lusitania disaster. But there should be no misunderstanding of the utterances. In them there lurks the strong determination of a strong nation to punish such devilish violations of international law in applying the strongest forms of punishment to those responsible for the atrocity which consigned helpless women and babes to a terrible death. Every instinct of British feeling is violated by the foul deed; every principle of decency and honour which Englishmen hold dear is shattered. We have seen in the past how the British nation has been able to enforce even-handed justice to delinquent nations. British justice has been challenged; its application has been flouted in the most cynical manner. That challenge will not remain unanswered in the last analysis. Evil days are in store for Germany and that nation's rulers. That is a lesson of the Lusitania's torpedoing that should not be lost sight of.

Immigration Policy.
(Toronto Monetary Times.)

Professor Adam Shortt, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, is correct in his counsel that Canada should begin at once to consider the question of immigration and the best means of turning it to the interests of the Dominion. At the Canadian Club, Montreal, this week, he recalled the exodus from Europe to America that followed the Crimean War, when many thousands of British-born subjects came to Canada. Owing, for the most part, to Canada's lack of preparation to meet their wants, these immigrants became dissatisfied with their lot in Canada, and drifted over to the United States, where they became prosperous and contented. The Canadian immigration authorities have an important task before them. After the war, we want the proper type of immigrant, and, more than that, we want him in theright place, producing wealth on the agricultural lands.

Well Prepared.
(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

When the Germans were swung back to the line of the Aisne River, and settled down to stationary hostilities, they immediately displayed an overwhelming superiority in many branches of the military art. Apparently they had many scientific contrivances for trench-use the Allies had not thought of preparing. Their technical equipment of mineenwerfers, of various ballistic engines for throwing missiles, electric and other light projectors, rockets, flares, incendiary shells pumps for spurting blazing oil and pitch, was surprisingly varied. They had devoted years of study to providing every possible weapon for every possible contingency.

Justifiable Retaliation.
(Montreal Star.)

If the British Government now decides to use asphyxiating gases, it will stand as strongly and as sincerely opposed to their use as ever. When next we meet a civilized foe, we will not think of employing such savage methods. But we are today in the position of a peaceful citizen assailed by a "thug." The law of self-preservation comes uppermost. We must defend our lives, even if that implies a reluctant descent to the methods of "thuggism," in putting an assailant beyond the power to work further mischief.

A New Era.
(Atlantic Journal.)

In the significance lying beneath it, the testimony of racial wounds healed and of the meaning of British freedom, the message from Pietermaritzburg to Canada on the fight at Langemarck is a great thing.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Fresh northerly winds, mostly fair and cooler. Friday, northeast winds fair and cool.

REPLY TO INQUIRY.

Editor Review,

Dear Sir,—Last night's Examiner contained an item which I did not notice in your columns, a copy of which I enclose and I would ask you to publish it as follows:

AN INQUIRY.

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I would like through your valuable paper to have some other person's opinion on this question. Do you not think it would be much more appropriate at this time, when the whole country, both Catholics and Protestants are engaged in this terrible war if the band now practicing in Victoria Hall for the 12th would lay off and take their big drum to the seat of real war? Hoping they do, I remain,

Yours truly,
J. T. COLLINS,
Aylmer Street, City.
Peterborough, May 12.

In regard to above please let me say that apparently it is the music that the above band plays that does not suit Mr. Collins. Further that I appreciate the fact that he considers for the present, or for the duration of the war, that religious differences should be buried. But when Mr. Collins feels that way why should he start knocking a religious society, that has done more for the British Empire, in the present struggle, and in other great struggles, than any other society in our Dominion, excepting, perhaps, the Sons of England. We Orangemen of this city have supplied upwards of 60 men for the different contingents leaving Peterborough thus far, and we have a lot more who will offer themselves if needed. We have done our share, has Mr. Collins done his? Also let me ask, if, on account of the present war, if the Roman Catholic Church cancelled any ceremonies in connection with St. Patrick's Day? If not, why should we be asked to lay down our instruments. We want no favors for ourselves, that we would not grant to others.

Hoping Mr. Collins will practice what he preaches, I am, sir,

Yours truly,
E. F. REID,
County Master West Peterborough,
Loyal Orange Lodge,
City.

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

"TIZ" for tender, puffed-up, burning, calloused feet and corns.

You can be happy-footed just like me. Use "Tiz" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet. "TIZ" and only "TIZ" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a "TIZ" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance with joy. "TIZ" is grand. "TIZ" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty, smelly feet.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

Economy is what makes a man wear his dress shirt down to work next morning. It isn't comfortable, but he hates to send it to the laundry only half soiled.—Montreal Herald.

ANNE'S GREAT DISCOVERY

A Call That Made Her Sure About Her Own Heart

By EMILY HODGES.

"You're very foolish and very headstrong, Maisie, and you're going to be sorry some day," Anne said severely.

She was sitting before the glass, putting cold cream on her face, and Maisie was watching her from the bed.

It was to pretty Maisie a very funny performance—Anne's nightly comforting of her complexion with cold cream. She wondered if she would do the same when she was thirty-six and unmarried. But she would not be unmarried at thirty-six. Of course not. There was Dick, and she was determined to marry Dick, no matter what Anne or Aunt Hannah said. It was about Dick that Anne was talking now.

"You know as well as I do," Anne went on, "that you are too young even to think of marrying, and, anyway, Dick Launt isn't a person you should consider for one moment." Anne closed the cold cream box with a sigh. "When you do marry I want you to have some one who is worthy of you."

"Is that the reason you've never married?" Maisie asked innocently.

Anne flushed under the cold cream.

"That was the reason," she returned steadily.

"Haven't you ever been sorry?" Maisie persisted. She wished Anne had not hidden her face by turning out the gas—the voice, Anne's voice, told so little.

"I—I don't know that I have been. Good night, dear." And Maisie had nothing to do but answer obediently, "Good night, Anne."

But long after Maisie was asleep Anne lay awake thinking.

Sixteen years—what a long time that was! She was twenty that summer, just out of school, and she had a pink dress afloat with ruffles. One day when she had been wearing that dress she had met Dwight Marshall. He was a good deal like Dick Launt—big, clear eyed, ready to laugh. Like Dick, too, he was a plain workingman and had come from a long way off to find work in Hassell. It did not take Dwight long to fall in love with the pink dress and her, and it did not take her long to see it. He was her first beau, and straightway the world was made over for her.

But her mother was watch and ward. She had had to make many sacrifices in order to educate Anne, and she was worthy of the best. Mrs. [illegible] did not by any means consider Dwight Marshall the best, and she was determined that he should not have Anne. She appealed to Anne's pride and reason and after a time had the satisfaction of seeing her arguments prevail. Anne gave up her lover. He was hurt, disappointed, bitterly angry.

"This is your mother's doings," he said.

"No," Anne lied proudly, "it's mine. You aren't good enough for me."

"You'll be sorry for this some day," he returned. And that was his last word to her. She had never seen or heard from him since. She probably never would again. And now here was Maisie in the same boat in which she herself had been. But Maisie's heart would not be broken. Hers had not been. There had been times, indeed, when she was glad that she had not married Dwight. Maisie would come to feel the same way about Dick.

Anne scarcely slept all night.

"That cold cream makes you pale," Maisie said next morning. "What makes you use it, Anne? Are you afraid of wrinkles?" Anne winced, and Maisie went on wickedly. "Mrs. Warne says it doesn't make any difference how a woman looks if she isn't married or doesn't intend to be."

Mrs. Warne was the young matron who lived across the street. Because she and Maisie were very friendly and she was known openly to sympathize with Maisie's love affair Anne and her mother had not called upon her, though she had lived in the town almost a year. Now of a sudden Anne felt almost hatred for the gay little woman who seemed so happy in her married life and obviously had no need of cold cream or any other preparation for her charming face.

Anne was out of sorts all day. Her painting class did badly, her head ached, and she tore her walking skirt by stepping upon it in her hurry to take a car. Tired and utterly forlorn, she was sitting in her room trying to repair the skirt when Maisie came running upstairs and entered panting with her haste.

"Oh, Anne," she gasped, "there's a man in the parlor waiting to see you! I told him you'd be right down."

A man in the parlor to see Anne was almost an unheard of thing. Yet she took three stitches deliberately.

"Aren't you going to fix your hair or—or anything?" Maisie demanded.

"Why should I?" Anne said. "It is only some one to see about lessons probably."

The parlor door was open, and she went in softly. The man was waiting with his expectant face turned toward her. She gave him one glance and turned as white as her linen collar.

"Dwight—Dwight Marshall!" she said. Then she seemed to remember nothing more until she found herself on the sofa, with him close beside her.

"You never expected to see me again, did you?" he demanded. "And I didn't expect you would, but ever since my little cousin, Maud Warne, has lived here she and Dave have been teasing me to come and make them a visit. So I made up my mind I'd come. And here I am. You don't know Maud, do you?"

"No," Anne said feebly, wishing she did.

"Maud told me you hadn't acted very neighborly. You should know Maud. She's one of the best little women that ever lived."

He had been talking rapidly. Now he stopped and drew a long breath.

"Do you remember the last time we saw each other? I was right mad that day. It had never occurred to me that I wasn't the equal of the best girl living—and you were that, too—until you said what you did. So I swore I'd make myself good enough—and make you sorry. But now that I've seen you I only want to make you glad, Anne. You see, I like you just as well as I ever did, though I didn't expect to. And if you like me"—

"Oh, Dwight," Anne sobbed, "It's I who am not good enough! I'm homely and old and soured and—and disagreeable and narrow minded—and you're worthy of some one better."

Maisie had been in bed three hours when Anne came up and woke her with a kiss.

"Why, Anne, you look real pretty," Maisie said, yawning. "But your hair is mussed up awfully."

"Maisie," Anne said solemnly, sitting down upon the edge of the bed and taking hold of Maisie's hand in a most unusual way—"Maisie, I want to tell you something. I've been a fool for years and never found it out until tonight. And I don't mean you shall be the same kind of fool. That man who came tonight was the one I might have married sixteen years ago—and didn't. But I'm going to marry him now.

"And—and, Maisie, I've been talking to mother, and you can have Dick any time you are ready. Dick's all right. He—Dwight knows him; they come from the same place.

"I thought I could forget," Anne went on gently after Maisie's ecstasy of surprise and joy had somewhat subsided, "and I've tried hard for sixteen years, but when you really love there's no forgetting in this world. I've been loving Dwight right straight along, and the minute I saw him tonight I knew it. I've missed a good many years of happiness, and I meant to make you miss a good many years of happiness in the same way. It wasn't because I was wicked, dear, but because I didn't know. I do know now."

Maisie smiled wisely.

"I knew all the while," she said.

FINE OF $10

Thos. Sandercock Charged With Assaulting Harold Gilbert.

Thomas Sandercock, Inverlea St., was arraigned in police court this afternoon charged with criminally assaulting Mrs. Harold Gilbert on Tuesday, May 11th. Sandercock pleaded "Not guilty." Gilbert was a tenant of Sandercock's, and the trouble arose over the sanity of a dog owned by defendant. In a fracas which followed, it is alleged Mrs. Gilbert was bitten on the hand by Sandercock, and she appeared in court with her hand bandaged and supported in a sling. Her thumb was very severely bitten.

It appears that the dog in question showed symptoms of insanity, and Dr. Fortune considered it dangerous with the result that it was taken to the incinerator and tied up. Mr. Sandercock accused Gilbert of letting Sanitary Inspector Spence come on his premises when the house didn't belong to him, and also included Mrs. Gilbert. They denied it, and Mr. Sandercock called them liars, which led to a fight, Gilbert claiming that Sandercock grabbed him by the throat and struck him two blows. A decorated eye testified to this.

Doctor Was Called.

Mrs. Gilbert urged him to cease, whereupon, according to Gilbert, he seized her hand and bit it three times. It was so severe that it necessitated the immediate attention of the doctor. After he bit her the third time, Gilbert saw what had been done, called Sandercock a coward, and asked him if that was the way they taught him to fight in Africa. He then ran out to the next-door neighbor's and phoned for the police. Sandercock is a veteran of the South African war.

Examined by Mr. Dixon, solicitor for Sandercock, the plaintiff suspected the dog had been poisoned, and had stated that if he knew who did it he would take proceedings that would put an end to it.

Gilbert had one dog die five weeks ago, and this dog which is now chained at the incinerator acted sickly, much like the first dog. At first he thought it was poisoned. Dr. Fortune advised him to take it to the incinerator.

Mrs. Gilbert, with her hand swathed in bandages, was the next witness. She said that when Mr. Gilbert came home that day, Sandercock came in to their rooms and started talking about the dog and yelling loud. Mr. Gilbert had said, "Don't yell down my throat." Sandercock had shoved his fist in front of him (Gilbert) and said: "I'll shove this down your throat."

Refused to Shake Hands.

Gilbert asked him to shake hands but Sandercock refused. Sandercock grabbed Gilbert by the throat and started to choke him, and Mrs. Gilbert said her husband made a sound as if he were choking. She then shoved out her hand to separate them, whereupon Sandercock bit her three times. She was holding her 11-months-old baby in her other arm all this time.

At the conclusion of the evidence Sandercock was fined $10 and $7.70 costs.

SEVEN OAKS TO GO.

Seven Oaks, a familiar milestone on the Otonabee, half way between Peterborough and Rice Lake, is about to disappear. Mr. Arthur Thompson has purchased them and intends to cut them down for timber shortly.

The Goats of Asia Minor.

The goat more than any other factor has assisted the rural inhabitants of Asia Minor to destroy the magnificent forests which once extended from Smyrna through to Konia, the ancient capital of Karamania. Not only have the peasants and nomads destroyed the timber for the sake of firewood, but they destroyed it also in order that their goats might obtain suitable pasture. And the goats in their turn prevented the new shoots ever after from replacing the trees which had been cut down.

HIS HEALTH IN A TERRIBLE STATE

"Fruit-a-tives" Healed His Kidneys and Cured Him

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th. 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My Kidneys were not doing their work and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and havingseen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect, I found more than satisfactory.

Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.

My Kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes, and I regained my old-time vitality. Today, I am enjoying the best health I have ever had".

Lesson VII.—Second Quarter, For May 16, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xxvi, 5-16, Memory Verses, 11, 12—Golden Text, Luke vi, 27—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The lesson today is a record of one of the occasions on which David had Saul completely at his mercy, but he refused to lay hands upon him or to listen to the suggestion of Abishai that David would permit him to smite Saul, for he said, "As the Lord liveth, the Lord shall smite him, or his day shall come to die, or he shall descend into battle and perish" (verses 9, 10). Thus David left the matter wholly in the hands of the Lord, illustrating his own words, "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him, and He shall bring it to pass" (Ps. xxxvii, 5). I Sam. xxxi tells how his end came.

On this occasion David took the spear and the cruse of water from Saul's bolster that he might show him how he had him in his power, but did not harm him. David was able to do this without any one knowing it because a deep sleep from the Lord was fallen upon Saul and his men (verses 11, 12). Compare Gen. ii, 21; xv, 12, and consider Peter's release from prison, though he was bound with chains between two soldiers, and there was a guard at the door of the prison (Acts xii, 6-10, 18, 19). Truly the God of Israel is the God that doest wonders (Ps. lxxii, 18; lxxvii, 14). David, with his trophies, stood on the top of a hill afar off and cried to Abner that, though he was a valiant man, he was worthy to die because he had failed to take care of the king, and he told him to look for the king's spear and cruse of water that had been by his bolster (verses 13-16).

Saul knew David's voice and professed to be very grateful to him for sparing his life, asking him to return to him, and saying that he would no more seek to do him harm, but David knew his enemy too well, and after telling him to send for his spear, they again parted, each going his own way (verses 17-25). This was not the first time that David had Saul in his power, but refused to harm him. See in chapter xxiv how he cut off the skirt of Saul's robe and how Saul then professed penitence and good will and spoke of David's being king some day. Thus Saul sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand (xxiii, 14). In the end of chapter xxiii there is the record of an incident that looked like a close call for David, but Saul was suddenly called off and David escaped. All through the story we can hear David saying: "The Lord is the strength of my life. Of whom shall I be afraid?" (Ps. xxvii, 1-3.)

The cave of Adullam story in chapter xxii is full of interest, beginning with his seeking a place of safety for his father and his mother till he could know what God would do for him and ending with his words of comfort to Abiathar: "Abide thou with me. Fear not, for he that seeketh my life seeketh thy life, but with me thou shalt be in safeguard." Chapter xxv tells of the death and burial of Samuel and then the story of drunken Nabal and his beautiful wife Abigail—beautiful in wise counsel to David and in her conduct toward him. Some of her memorable words are ever with me: "Bound in the bundle of life with the Lord thy God" (xxv, 29), a bundle which cannot be broken, for those to whom He gives eternal life can never perish (John x, 28). Chapters xxvii, xxix, xxx, tell the story of Ziklag, which Achish gave to David, but to which David returned on one occasion to find the town in ruins and the wives, sons and daughters of himself and his 600 followers all gone into captivity. That was one of the most trying times in all David's experience, and they all wept until they had no more power to weep. The grief of David, almost beyond endurance, was heaped up by the threat of his 600 followers to stone him, as if he was the cause of all this, so that David seemed, as far as human sympathy was concerned, to be absolutely alone. Then we read the words which have helped so many, "David encouraged himself in the Lord his God" (xxx, 6).

A somewhat similar incident in the life of Paul is recorded in II Tim. iv, 16-18. The way that David found the enemy, the Amalekites, through the guidance of an almost dead Egyptian servant, whom he restored to life, and how he recovered all—wives, sons, daughters, spoil, nothing lacking to any, and much additional spoil—is a very thrilling record and should encourage us all to wait on the Lord and not to think anything too hard for Him. There were 200 of David's men too weak to join in the pursuit of the enemy, but they, too, shared in the spoils of victory, and David made it a law that those who tarry by the stuff shall share equally with those who go forth to battle (xxx, 10, 24). Let all homekeepers be encouraged. The sin of Saul in the matter of familiar spirits and the witch of Endor is recorded in chapter xxviii. This is a prevailing sin of many today. It is wholly of the devil and is strictly forbidden in Deut. xviii, 9-12. It is not all trickery, but ofttimes some real work of the adversary. The living, those who are truly saved, should seek only the living God and His life giving word. All else is from the devil, and it will be a night of awful darkness forever for all who turn away from the Word of God. "No morning for them" (Isa. viii, 19, 20: margin and R. V.).

A RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE

The following resolution was passed by the Women's Missionary Society of George Street Methodist Church:—

Whereas in the providence of God the Women's Missionary Society of the George St. Methodist Church has been called, through the death of Mrs. J. B. Pentland, to part with one of its most faithful and efficient officers, we would like to place on record our high appreciation of the character and work of our dear sister who a few weeks ago was called to higher service. For many years she had been recording secretary of our society and her place at our monthly gatherings was seldom vacant, and no one was more deeply interested in the success of our work than she. We shall miss her at our meetings and another occupying her place will but intensify our loss, but though God buries His workmen, He carries on His work. So we trust the stimulus of her life will remain with us and that its unlooked for termination may awaken in us greater love for the work God has given us to do and greater zeal in trying to accomplish it, so that when we too cross the border land we may individually hear the high CMFWPYS "She hath done what she could."

We would also extend to the stricken family of our dear sister to the husband in his loneliness, to the dear girls with their added responsibilities, and their unspeakable loss of mother's love and counsel. This assistance of our heartfelt sympathy and of our hope and prayer that as one whom his mother comforteth, so they may feel the comforting presence of the Almighty Friend Who never leaves His children to bear their burdens alone.

Signed on behalf of the members of the Society.

FARMER'S WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK

A Weak, Nervous Sufferer Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Kasota, Minn.—"I am glad to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me, than anything else, and I had the best physician here. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and suffered with pains low down in my right side for a year or more. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I feel like a different person. I believe there is nothing like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weak women and young girls, and I would be glad if I could influence anyone to try the medicine, for I know it will do all and much more than it is claimed to do."—Mrs. CLARA FRANKS, R. F. D. No. 1, Maplecrest Farm, Kasota, Minn.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should be convinced of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly publishing in the newspapers.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Clearing For Action.

A graphic description of what clearing for action on a Dreadnought really means is furnished by a letter from a British bluejacket to his mother. Aftr detailing how on Aug. 3 they left a certain harbor with the band playing "Rule, Britannia!" he says that no sooner had they got out to sea than they began clearing for action. "We started throwing all wooden things overboard so as to lessen the danger of fire," he says. "Two pianos just gone over and an organ. Chairs and tables follow suit. It is just like throwing a gentleman's drawing-room into the sea. Sofas, tables, chairs—everything that can be thrown over is going. We have thrown over about $5,000 worth of stuff."

WAR HAS BEEN DECIDED UPON

By Italy—Safe Conduct of Teuton Diplomats Arranged.

London, May 13—Dr. E. J. Dillon cabled from Rome to the Telegraph late last night as follows: "The government has taken a decision to-day in favor of intervention in the war as I anticipated. Already detailed instructions have been issued to the railway and police administrations all along the line from Rome to the fronotier, providing for the safety of the German and Austrian ambassadors on their way home. Roumania is bound by a specific engagement to co-operate with the allies in the second phase of the war which is now impending. Untiring efforts have been put forth by the Teutons in Bucharest where Germans are now plentiful to create an atmosphere unfavorable to the redemption of their plighted word, but I am convinced that the hopes of the Berlin statesmen will be blasted before the end of the month."

Too Late, Says Sonnino

Rome, May 13—A long council was held yesterday. Baron Sonnino, the Italian foreign minister declared that the Austro-German offer had come too late. It was decided to submit to parliament the result of the negotiations. It was announced the note containing Austria's latest concessions was signed by Prince von Buelow and Baron Macchio and was presented to Baron Sonnino. The concessions are, first, the cession of that part of the Trentino inhabited by Italians. The second, the Tisonzo district with Grandischa, the third some form of rule for Trieste with a universally free port. Fourth, a free hand in Southern Albania and the ratification of the occupation of Valona. Fifth, Austria and Germany will further see whether it is possible to concede Italy Gorida.

The final decision as to whether Italy shall declare war or remain neutral rests constitutionally with King Victor Emmanuel. Apparently, however, a majority of the people believe the cabinet must assume the responsibility with the certainty that its decision will be sustained almost unanimously by parliament and the country. The part that parliament is to play remains uncertain.

The national committee of Italian women have expressed "their extreme horror and indignation at the new crime against humanity perpetrated by Germany in torpedoing and sinking the innocuous Lusitania, carrying 2,000 innocent persons. The interventionist women of Italy who are unable to attribute ideals and rights to a nation which by treading under foot the human law sets itself outside the pale of humanity, hereby call for the prompt intervention of Italy and her participation by punitive action in the holy crusade of Europe."

Italians arrived from Germany say that Italians dare not risk speaking the mother tongue in that country. All German hotels have discharged their Italian cooks. There are only about 80 Italians in Berlin, all the others having left Germany.

"Bloodiest in History"

Copenhagen, May 13—A despatch from Dugano, Italy, quotes an Italian official fleeing from Berlin as saying, "German hatred for England is now nothing in comparison to the hate they bear Italy. A German officer of the general staff said: 'As soon as we have crossed the Italian border we shall ruin all cities. Women and children everywhere will suffer as we shall give no pardon to traitorous Italy. It will be the most bloody war in history.'"

BLINDING GASES ARE BEING USED

Latest Hun Trick in Fierce Western Fights.

Northern France, May 13—Along the Aubers line in the Neuve Chapelle district the fighting has been fierce for many hours. Shells of this concoction do not asphyxiate but blind the men who happen to be within range of the fumes when the shells explode.

WILSON'S "ULTIMATUM"

Washington Expects German man Refusal to Quit Submarine Methods.

Washington, May 13—The nature and probable results of the American note now in preparation for Germany were widely discussed here yesterday. The note is not regarded as in the nature of an ultimatum despite efforts made by some close to the President to create the impression that it was of that character. The note will be decisive only as to what has been done. It is not understood to tell Germany with finality what she must do in the future. It is admitted that the effect of the note will be clear to the advantage of Great Britain if the United States either by diplomacy or physical force should stop the submarine warfare. It was denied explicitly at the White House that the delay in making public the note was to give Americans in Germany an opportunity to get out. In the event that President Wilson in the American note takes the position that Germany must alter the character of her submarine warfare the practically unanimous opinion here is that Germany would refuse to comply with the demand.

During yesterday Secretary Bryan had conferences with several of the government's war experts. These gave rise to great comment, but any significance attaching to these events was denied strenuously.

Officials construed the language of the note as it stood last night as placing upon Germany moral, legal and financial obligations to the United States for the incidents of the Falaba, the Cushing, the Gulflight and the crowning tragedy of the Lusitania.

DRIVE TURKS INTO THE SEA

French Authority Expects to Enter Constantinople in Month

London, May 13—Despatches from Mitylene report considerable success for the allies in the operations against the Dardanelles forts. The allied troops from Sedd-el-Bahr, Cape Tepe and the Gulf of Saros are converging on the Turks who are fighting desperately to keep from being driven into the sea between Madytos and the town of Gallipoli. Victory will clear the road to Constantinople. A high French authority considers that in a month's time the Bulair lines will have been forced and Constantinople entered.

BEAN CASE NOT SOLVED

Crown Officials Still Busy After Jury's Open Verdict

Goderich, May 13—That Robert Bean came to his death on April 29 last by a gunsrot fired by a person or persons unknown to the police, was the verdict rendered by the coroner's jury last night at Carlow.

David Bean, the nineteen-year-old son of the victim, who gave important evidence at the last sitting, was excused from attendance because of illness. After the verdict Crown Attorney Seager and Inspector Reburn considered action to be taken by the authorities respecting certain developments, which it is said are sufficiently strong to warrant an arrest in the case.

English Riots General

Damage Heavy and Troops Have to be Called

London, May 12—Anti-German riots were general throughout London last night. In the suburbs the same scenes were enacted as in White Chapel and Limehouse. Wherever a shop was found bearing a German name over its door it was wrecked. In Liverpool the damage done by mobs is estimated at $200,000. Over 200 shops were attacked and for the most part left in ruins. The police are helpless and troops are being called in. At Southend, which had a special grievance because of the recent raid of German airships, the troops had to charge the mob. The Germans are mostly bakers, butchers and restaurant keepers.

Why Italy is Armed

Germany's Nice Plans For Her After Crushing France

Paris, May 13—The Temps' Rome correspondent wires: "It is a well-known fact in well-informed Italian quarters that Germany's intention was to invade Italy last August, after the victories of Charleroi and Mons. At that time German opinion was aroused against Italy and threatening letters were sent to prominent Italians to the effect that Italy would be chastised as soon as France was definitely crushed. The Germans intended to capture Milan and then cross the Alps and attack France from the south. After Joffre's victory at the Marne, German diplomacy assumed a coaxing tone.'"

GERMANS LOST 100,000 MEN IN EIGHT DAYS

Enormous Masses Fail to Score Decision Against Russians---Joffre Still Advances Around Arras.

Petrograd, May 13—Regarding the stupendous battle which for nine days has raged in Galicia an explanatory statement has been issued, as follows: "The big battle between the Vistula and the Carpathians continues to develop. The front during the past few days has been changeable, at times extending over forty miles. The enemy concentrated thirteen divisions, and on the main sector of Velepole Novotanetz, with an extension of about thirteen miles, he assembled seven. The enemy's line gradually assumed a convex form, which enabled us to operate on his flanks. In this work our cavalry especially distinguished itself, fighting chiefly dismounted, but also with horse batteries.

"By the enemy's own admissions no fewer than 100,000 of his men dropped out of action during eight days of the battle. On the general front of 1,000 miles the greatest number of the Austro-German forces is concentrated between the Carpathians and the Vistula from the mouth of the Nida to Gorlitz. Here they have deployed approximately one-fifth of all the forces with which they are operating against Russia. They have in front of them only one of our armies. Thus there are operating against Russia nearly the whole of the Austro-Hungarian army, the entire German cavalry and one-half of the landwehr and landsturm. The enemy nearly always can make use of a network of railways, whereas our troops are for the most part compelled to operate outside the zone of the Russian lines. In view of this the tactics adopted by us between the Carpathians and the Vistula were to occupy successively fortified zones with the object of delaying the enemy till our reserves could be brought together in full concentration."

Costly Western Failures

London, May 13—Field-Marshal French reported last night: "East of Ypres last evening we repulsed another German attack south of the Menin road. This was the third costly failure of the Germans here yesterday. Elsewhere on the front there is no change in the situation."

Last night's official statement from Paris says: "The fighting north of Arras continues with extreme violence. During Tuesday night the enemy, reinforced, delivered several counter-attacks without accomplishing any result. In one attack, delivered against Neuville St. Vaast, the assailants suffered particularly heavy losses. The second attack between Carency and Ablain, was likewise repulsed. A third also failed completely. During Wednesday forenoon and afternoon we progressed in the woods east of Carency, taking 125 prsioners there. We carried three successive lines of trenches bordering the woods north of Carency. Following this we penetrated the woods, menacing at close quarters the last means of communication open to the positions defenders. Finally we carried a further section of the village and captured 400 prisoners there. In the afternoon we attacked that part of Neuville St. Vaast which the enemy still held. Battling in the streets, we gained possession of several groups of houses. Our progress continues. The total number of prisoners since Sunday reached 4,000 this evening."

CANADIAN ENLISTMENTS

More Soldiers and Nurses Wanted—Hughes Favors White Mourning

Ottawa, May 13—A suggestion has been made from Montreal to the Minister of Militia that the mourning emblem worn by relatives of Canadians, who have given up their lives at the front should be white instead of black. General Hughes instead of black. General Hughes is in sympathy with the idea.

It is calculated the number of troops to go into camp at Niagara on May 20, from various points of the 2nd Division, may reach 6,000.

A larger enlistment of Canadian nurses is being urged by the authorities here because of the needs of the summer campaign.

Recruiting Again

Kingston, May 13—An order was issued yesterday by the Officer Commanding the 3rd Division instructing officers commanding units of the division to make special efforts to recruit a large force of men at once, so that they may have the benefit of training at Barriefield Camp, which opens next week.

Answer Beats Protest

Germany Will Reply Suavely But Firmly to Wilson

New York, May 13—The World this morning says: "Germany will defy the United States and refuse to discontinue her present methods of submarine warfare. The answer of the Kaiser's government to the representations formulated by President Wilson was made known last night by an official of the German Embassy. It will be a polite and suave refusal to desist from that policy which resulted in torpedoing the Gulflight and sinking the Lusitania. It is realized in Washington that America must expect to meet every emergency covered by the policy of holding Germany to a "strict accountability."

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

What's In the Cup?

The flavour may be agreeable, but appetite isn't the only thing to be considered.

The average cup of tea or coffee contains from 1½ to 3 grains of caffeine, a powerful drug, which is a frequent cause of indigestion, constipation, nervousness, heart trouble and other ills.

Some persons are strong enough to use tea or coffee for a time without apparent harm, but repeated doses of its subtle, cumulative drug, caffeine, sooner or later affects even the strong man and woman.

Any tea or coffee drinker will benefit from a change to

INSTANT POSTUM

This pure food-drink has a delicious, snappy tang, and it contains no caffeine nor any other harmful ingredient. It is made of selected wheat, a little wholesome molasses and is pure, invigorating and delicious.

And Instant Postum is so easy to make. Put a level teaspoonful in a cup, add hot water, and sugar and cream to taste.

The convenience of Instant Postum is seen at a glance. Sold in 30c and 50c tins. Some prefer Postum Cereal—the original form—which must be well boiled, 15c and 25c pkgs.

Grocers sell both kinds, the flavour is equally delicious, and the cost per cup is about the same.

"Peevie" Reaches Canada.

They call it the "Peevie," "for those who are peeved," the little newspaper evolved from the inner consciousness of the 2nd Field Company, Canadian Engineers at Lark Hill, Salisbury Plain. It's a breezy, bright little paper stylographed on a sheet of large notepaper size. The title, in Old English letters, takes nearly the upper half of the first page, and underneath is a good illustration of a real "peevie," the spiked and hooked pole used by the engineers in removing obstructions —Germans not meant.

The inside of the paper is divided into four columns, and illustrations called "Extracts from Division Orders" portray Sergt Robins and Capt. called "Extracts from Division Orders" portray Sergt. Robins and Capt. Smith at their work, to the ribald delight of all beholders.

The "Births, Deaths and Marriages" column is set forth as follows:

Births.—We have not had any berths since leaving the s. s. Zeeland.

Deaths.—See Sick Horse Times report.

Marriages.—Full particulars after Christmas.

The name of the "Peevie's" editor does not appear, but the announcement is made that the paper is the successor of the Sham News, and that its new title is purely Canadian. The Sham News is said to have been the highest priced newspaper in the world, as two copies sold for $35 each, and twenty copies brought an average price of $20 each.

No Admission Fee for the Small Boy

All boys under the age of twelve years will be admitted to the baseball games of the City League on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park free. All the "kids" will be let in on one condition and that is, that they remain in the west stand. Anyone leaving the stand will be immediately escorted out of the grounds. A special constable has been secured to carry out this idea. The "cop" will also keep all fans off the field. Players taking part in the second game will not be allowed on the field till the first game is over.

If the weather man is in a happy mood a large crowd will likely be on hand. The first game will be at 2 o'clock between the Classics and the Empire A.C. while at 4 o'clock the Thistles meet East City. The name of the umpire will be made known tomorrow.

Seed For Ontario Settlers.

The Ontario Government is preparing to play the part of seed merchant to Northern Ontario settlers. The bill introduced by Hon. W. H. Hearst in the Legislature obtains the sanction of the House for the appropriation of a plan that will provide, at nominal rates, first-class crop seed for newcomers. Experts in the Agriculture Department will soon begin acquiring a supply to be used in the 1915 crops.

The idea is to give the settler a head start on his work by supplying him hay, clover, grain and potato seed without charging him at the time. He will be expected, however, to pay six per cent. interest on this advance, and a lien will be taken on his land as security.

To make sure that the plan will work properly and that only worthy characters will be helped, every applicant for the privilege must show the land he has cleared for cultivation. No chances will be taken on a misuse of the seed or a lack of return on the investment.

This plan is a development of that now being applied to the pulp industry by the T. and N. O. Commission, but will ensure, in addition, the growth of first-class crops.

COUNCIL WILL

Ald. Langford inquired as to whether or not it would make any difference with the work now being done if the pumping station would be erected at the foot of Park street instead of Lock street. The engineer replied that up to the point now arrived at it would make no difference.

Ald. Weir felt that it was late in the day to call in a consulting engineer, and he thought there had been bad management somewhere. He asked if the property known as Crawford's Grove could be drained with the system as proposed by the city engineer.

Mr. Parsons remarked that there was a deep grade from a point about 300 feet north of the river on Park street. The section from that point to the river could not be drained by the proposed system. The system will drain, however, to a point a quarter of a mile west of the Monaghan road.

"It doesn't cover enough," remarked the East City representative.

"Oh, we can't cover the world," remarked His Worship.

Ald. Stratton asked if it is absolutely necessary to cross the river. The engineer explained that the plant could be located on this side, but it would require the sewage being pumped three times instead of once.

Ald. Evans expressed himself as being of the opinion that the city had madw no mistake. The idea of erecting the outfall sewer, at least one of the main reasons, was to provide service for the De Laval Company. The city engineer and the Provincial Board of Health engineer have stated that the proper place to locate the pumping station is at the foot of Lock street, and therefore it must be correct.

Ald. Weir claimed that the evidence of the Provincial Engineer could not be considered because he had only walked over the ground.

It was pointed out that the Provincial engineers had inspected the plans and profiles.

Following his convictions, Ald. Evans moved that the work be gone on with until the De Laval Company is served with sewer facilities, and then the work be stopped until the matter of securing a site for the plant be settled. This was seconded by Ald. Dobbin.

Ald. Duffus felt that the council of the past should not be blamed, because they were acting upon the advice of the engineers of the Provincial Board of Health. He thought the councils could not dictate to engineers who are efficient enough to be connected with the Provincial Board of Health. He felt that any work which has been done so far has been justified, because it provided work for the unemployed.

Ald. Edgar favored Ald. Green's idea of securing an outside engineer, and in accordance with his views he moved that the mayor and Ald. Green compose a committee to secure such a man. The motion was seconded by Ald. Saunders.

Ald. Weir felt that it might be possible to secure a resident engineer. He thought there were men connected with the Trent Valley Canal offices who would do, or it might be possible to secure Mr. R. B. Rogers.

Considerable discussion followed as to whether or not it would be advisable to continue the work. Ald. Green stated that the work has reached a point where it will be necessary to change the grades on future work if the pumping station is to be located at the foot of Park St. He felt that the proper place was Lock street, because it had been recommended, yet he would like to see an outside engineer go over the ground and settle the difference of opinion among the members of the Council.

The matter of whether or not the consulting [illegible] consult with City Engineer [illegible] was discussed, but it was pointed out that the outsider would have to take the grades as taken by the local department, or else it would call for months of work.

The motion to secure the outside engineer then carried, and it was left with Ald. Green and the city engineer to decide whether or not the work should be continued between now and the time his advice is secured.

Burial of Sir John Moore.

The death of Sir John Moore at Coruna is probably the best remembered fact in all the checkered history of the peninsular war, for a good reason. There are poets, like Shenstone, whose fame is secured by a single quatrain. The poetical reputation of the Rev. Charles Wolfe, who eight years after the event wrote "The Burial of Sir John Moore," rests on that one production alone. Ascribed, before its author's name became known, to such well known poets as Campbell and Byron, the poem took firm hold of a nation's heart. Dying of consumption at the early age of thirty-two, Wolfe's memory will ever be kept green by just that one piece, which "Ingoldsby" parodied, which a million schoolboys have recited, which Lord Byron pronounced to be "the most perfect ode in the language."—London Spectator.

HASTINGS HAPPENINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Hastings, May 12.—Master Virgil Oliver, the seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Oliver, who reside about four miles out of town, met with a very serious accident on Sunday which almost cost him his life. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver and two sons (who were sitting on a small seat in front of the buggy) were returning from morning service, and when almost opposite the English Church the horse they were driving suddenly kicked, striking the oldest boy on the head, near the temple, inflicting a very deep gash which bled profusely. The little fellow was taken with all possible speed to Dr. Edmison's surgery where, in an unconscious condition he lay, while the wounds were being dressed. Although the child was very weak from loss of blood, he was conveyed to his home through the kindness of Mr. Alex. Smith who soon had his car on the scene. Latest reports say that the little fellow has regained consciousness, and hopes are entertained for his recovery.

The Sacrament service in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning was conducted by Rev. T. H. P. Anderson and was well attended.

The quarterly official board met on Monday last and reviewed the work of the year which is almost at a close. Business was found in a very satisfactory condition.

The annual Sunday School meeting was held on Wednesday night, when the teachers and officers were duly elected for the ensuing year, and other business in connection with the school discussed and disposed of.

The inspector was here on Tuesday and inspected the local Cadet Corps, assuring them that they were making satisfactory progress, under the able leadership of Mr. Walter Thomson, who takes a great interest in the boys.

The heavy rains of the past week have somewhat delayed seeding operations, although the majority of the farmers have finished their work.

Word has been received here of the serious wounds which Mr. W. Savage has received while on active service at the front. He was well known in Hastings, having spent some time in this vicinity. His many friends are hoping that he may soon be restored to health and service for his country.

Two of our brave boys, Mr. A. Anderson and Mr. Max Richardson, took a final leave of home and friends on Tuesday last, as they expect soon to sail for parts unknown. They were accompanied to the station by the band and a large concourse of the citizens who gave them a right royal send off.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Baskin of Norwood, were in town last week.

Rev. A. K. Edmison, of Keene, visited during the past week, at the home of his brother, Dr. Edmison.

Mrs. J. Ashburn, of Keene, has been visiting friends here.

Mr. Ferguson, of Norwood, gave us a call a few days ago.

Mr. D. Merrill, of Warkworth, spent Friday in Hastings.

Mr. Ben Gibson of Campbellford, has been renewing acquaintance in Hastings.

We are pleased to see Mr. Alex. Smith around after his illness.

Miss Sluggett, of Warkworth, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Patterson.

Mrs. J. W Beavis and Miss Evelyn of Norwood, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Stevenson.

Miss Beatrice Walker is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Preston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Carter and family have moved their household effects into the commodious dwelling recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Beamish

Miss Flossie Carter took a trip to Campbellford on Tuesday.

Mr. Bert Niebel of Norwood spent Tuesday in Hastings.

A cold wave has reached here from the West and ice was reported on Monday morning.

Mr. Fred Stewart, formerly of Hastings, but now of Toronto, is holidaying here, the guest of Rev. and Mrs. D. A. Thomson at the manse.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Huycke were in Campbellford on Monday attending the funeral of a friend.

Miss Belle Thomson is visiting friends in Toronto.

Miss Minnie Pike, of Keene, is visiting with Mrs. Wm. Warner.

League meeting of this week was under the direction of the missionary vice-president, when a good miscellaneous progaam was given by local talent.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

ROSS BINKLEY'S GOOD RECORD IN BIG FOUR

Corporal Ross Binkley, whose death in action during the battle of Langemarck was officially reported yesterday by the militia department, had the distinction of being one of Canada's greatest footballers. General, indeed, was the regret expressed when news arrived that the famous Argonaut man was among the fallen. Binkley's death occurred near Ypres as the result of the explosion of a German shell near the machine gun, of which he was in charge. According to an eye witness Binkley stayed with his gun amidst a hail of shells. Nearly all his companions were disposed of and finally the Dundas boy fell a victim. He was buried, along with other Canadian heroes, a few hundred yards behind the firing line. Lieut. MacDonald, his chum, was killed by the same shell. Binkley's death was instantaneous.

Ross Binkley was a native of Dundas, Ont. He learned his rugby in Dundas with Billy Mallett, Ross Craig and others. He went to Toronto in 1911 and was at once the sensation of the Interprovincial Union as he held down center half and did wonderful work with his booting. Binkley specialized in drop kicking and pulled the Argonauts out of many a tight hole as a result of his ability to drive the ball over the bar from almost any angle or any reasonable distance. In 1912 at Rosedale, Argonauts and Ottawas were playing and the Ottawas looked certain winners as they led by one point. However, a fumble gave the Argonauts possession 40 yards from the Ottawa goal and from the first down. Binkley kicked a beautiful goal from field, putting the Argonauts ahead and giving them the championship. He had not played in Ottawa since that year. In 1913 he broke his right arm and was out of the game for the best part of the season, though he came here with his arm in a sling and offered to go into the game if necessary. Binkley was always fast and clean and took his punishment on the gridiron, probably in the same brave manner as he met his death in France. He was a fine fellow personally in addition to being a great athlete and to his sorrowing relatives will be extended the sympathy of his many friends in Ottawa. Binkley was a curler and a foot runner as well as a football star. —Ottawa Free Press.

LINDSAY HOCKEY PLAYER ENLISTS

Lindsay, May 13. — Roy Sandercock, captain of the Lindsay Midgets hockey team last season, signed up with the overseas 3rd contingent in Lindsay Tuesday. "Sandy" was one of the best junior players in the district and popular with the fans. He was also a favorite on the railroad, having been employed with the Grand Trunk Railway Company.

FIFTH WIN FOR KING EDWARDS

In a junior league game at the King Edward school grounds yesterday evening, the King Edwards defeated the Queen Mary nine by a score of 10 to 1. It was the fifth consecutive win for the King Edwards.

The trouble is that when charity begins at home they seldom let it get much out-door exercise. — Chicago News.

Many a smart kid who has ruled his mother has found it a different proposition to govern a wife.—New York Globe.

Not Her Quarrel.

The fact that corporal punishment is discouraged in public schools is what led Harry's teacher to address this note to the lad's mother:

"I regret very much to have to inform you that your son Harry idles away his time, is disobedient, quarrelsome and disturbs the pupils who are trying to study their lessons. He needs a good whipping, and I strongly recommend that you give him one."

Whereupon Harry's mother responded as follows:

"Dear Miss Jones—Lick him yourself. I ain't mad at him.—Yours truly, Mrs. Smith."

The Gallery's Comment.

All went well with the melodrama until the middle of the thirteenth act, when the hero sought the centre of the stage, and in a flood of pink limelight, asked, pathetically:

"How is it that this man persists in making such foul charges and yet always escapes the just penalty?"

Like lightning there came a reply in a hoarse voice from the gallery:

"P'r'aps 'e's a pal o' the referee's, 'Enery!" it said.—London Mail.

Saluting Getting Bore.

"I walked along the Strand yesterday," a Londoner said, "behind an officer in uniform. Between the top of Arundel street and Charing Cross railway station he was saluted, and had to salute 30 times. This sort of thing is going on all over the town, and I have it on the authority of a colonel that it is considered by the commanding ranks as a beastly bore."

JOE TINKER IS INJURED

Leader of Chifeds Suffering From Rupture

Chicago, May 13. — Joe Tinker, manager of the Chicago team of the Federal League, has suffered a rupture in his right side, and will be out of the game as a player for a month, if not for life.

Before he left Chicago Tinker was warned to rest, owing to pains in his side, and his physician told him the penalty for disobedience would be an operation.

In the course of practice before the game he felt something give in his side. He became nauseated and left the field, but directed the game from the bench. Toward the end of the game he came to bat as a pinch hitter and was struck by a pitched ball. Tuesday night the case was diagnosed as a rupture.

A Great Surprise.

There are lots of haps and mishaps during a play that are not down on the bills. One incident is related by a manager while playing in a small town. Ice cream was supposed to be used in one of the scenes, but not being able to get ice cream cotton was used on dishes as a substitute. The characters were sitting around the table, presumably eating ice cream and cake. In the centre of the table was a candelabrum, and the candles were burning. The leading lady, while talking, got her dish of ice cream too near the candles, and, to the surprise and amusement of the audience, the ice cream caught fire and burned merrily until the curtain was lowered.

328 GEORGE STREET

FITZGERALD—SHEEHAN.

The wedding bells of St. John's Church, Douro, rang out in all their splendour Tuesday, May 4th, when Rev. Father McGuire united in marriage Miss Anna Fitzgerald, lately of St. Paul, to Mr. Richard Sheehan of Douro. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Alice Fitzgerald, while Mr. Dan Sheehan of St. Michael's College, Toronto, acted as groomsman. The bride was charmingly attired in white silk, draped in shadow lace caught with a corsage bouquet of sweet peas with a beautifully plumed hat to match. The bridesmaid was attractively attired in pink voile and wore a corsage bouquet of pink carnations. The marches, solos and other selections very admirably rendered by the organist and choir, all the members of which were present for the ceremony. After the ceremony the bridal party and a few intimate friends partook of a dainty repast at the home of the bride's mother. After spending a few enjoyable hours with their friends from whom many pretty presents were received the happy couple left on the evening train for Toronto where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return they will reside in Douro.

Mrs. I. Richardson left this morning on an extended visit to her daughter, Mrs. S. Westwood, Toronto, who is still very ill.

In the list of successful McGill students in the final examinations in medicine appears the name of Herbert J. Conroy, second youngest son of Mr. David Conroy, East City.

Rev. F. L. Farewell, B.A., for the past six years Field Secretary of the Methodist Sunday School and Epworth League, has been appointed Principal of Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby.

Members of the Business Girls' Club are requested not to forget the meeting called for Friday night, May 14th, in the green parlor of the Y. W. C. A. Important matters are to be considered and the presence of every member is essential.

At a special meeting of the Ladies' Aid of George Street Methodist Church held last evening it was decided to hold an excursion on June 17th via Steamer Stoney Lake to Bewdley. The proceeds will go to the building fund of the new Sunday School.

Mrs. Helen Davies Sherry, formerly soloist of St. Paul's Church, has been singing at a recital held in Neepawa, Man., in aid of the Red Cross work. Her work was exceedingly popular according to the Neepawa press which refers to the recital as follows:—

A very enjoyable recital was given in Knox Church last Thursday evening by Mrs. Helen Davies Sherry and Mr. Booth-Hitchen, assisted by the Woman's Music Club orchestra, and Mr. T. H. Hannay at the piano. The concert was given in aid of the Red Cross work and resulted in the sum of $54 being handed over to the society.

Mrs. Sherry's singing was—as it always is—delightful. She said she was not in good voice owing to her recent severe cold. It would have been very difficult to detect anything amiss with her remarkable voice—remarkable for its extreme compass both up and down, for its great power and richnesses, and above all for the extraordinary control she has over it. A group of four songs, "Your Heart" (Guy D'Hardelot), "Echoes" (Liza Lehmann), "The Water Lily" (Grieg), and "In Harbour" (Montague Phillips) gave ample scope for the expression of the most widely differing sentiment, and each song of the group was splendidly sung, perhaps the most appreciated being "Echoes."

In an excerpt from "The Elijah," the famous scene between Elijah and the widow, both Mrs. Sherry and Mr. Booth-Hitchen were heard to good advantage. Oratorio seems to suit both voices and Mendelssohn's great music never fails to hold an audience. It is so human and so ab- [illegible]

The best likes number of the whole evening perhaps was Liddle's [illegible] sang by request. It is impossible to listen unmoved to this grand song and one could almost the tension of the audience relax as the last notes of it died away.

MEETING OF RED CROSS SOCIETY

Miss Peacock to Address Meeting at Warsaw

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough branch Red Cross Society was held yesterday afternoon. The President, Mrs. J. C. Davidson was in the chair. It was decided to send one of the members, Miss Peacock, to Warsaw, to address a meeting of the Women's Institute on "The Needs of Red Cross." The Secretary, Miss L. Davidson, brought a communication from headquarters regarding the sending of an organizer for Red Cross Tag Day for which this branch is arranging on Saturday, May 22nd, but the members thought, in order to avoid expense, it was better to manage this day themselves, and it is hoped a very large amount may be realized. Committees were arranged for, for the different parts of this undertaking, and it is hoped the branch may have the support of the general public, when collecting funds for this noble work being done by the Canadian Red Cross Society. Mrs. F. L. Roy is treasurer of the local branch.

SHOWER FOR SOLDIERS

Call to Women and Men of Peterborough and Vicinity

Just three days have passed since the Peterborough Daily Review, under the auspices of the Canadian Kitchener League, kindly consented to open a shower, through its valuable columns. To date, donations have been generous.

But, friends, listen:

When you are enjoying your happy home, do you ever think of the hardships and sacrifices of our noble boys who are fighting to maintain that comfort for you? We know you do. You are often heard to exclaim:

"This is a terrible war."

Now, listen, friends: If you repeat that to the end of time and do not resort to some practicable way of assisting in this great struggle, where will be your glory? Will it be in the fact that you can say: "I had lots of sympathy for the dear boys, but not a cent"?

You will rise to the occasion, and through the Review fund, which affords so great an opportunity, you, as a true Briton, will do your part nobly. And now,

What Is Required?

Bandages, bandage cotton for our wounded men, pillow covers, towels games, writing material, gum, chocolates, tobacco and comforts for the men who are fighting for you and your homes.

On Saturday, all donations will be published. Don't let your name be missed. Come and take a part in true and noble patriotism. Cut out the coupon and send what you will Forward to the Review office and we will send to the overseas forces.

Now, I think we should do something
For those who have gone to war
For their King and for their country,
Many have crossed the bar.

Now, there's many a dear one gone there
Who shall never more return
To their dear old homes and friends
Which they have left to mourn.

They shall know the pangs of battle
While alone they wounded lay
In the burning heat, and thirsting
Till the evening of the day.

May the God of Grace be with them,
And soothe their pains away,
Till He calls them home forever
In the evening while 'tis day.

God help our brother soldier,
Who alone shall moaning lay;
And give hm grace to conquer
In the evening while 'tis day.

And when the war is over,
We shall hear the nations say:
'Twas a cruel, bloody battle,
But the British won the day.

OBITUARY

MELVILLE JOHN BROWN.

Death claimed a popular young man of this city at noon today in the person of Melville John Brown at the age of twenty-one years. On Saturday last he was taken ill with pneumonia and died at the residence of his uncle, Thomas Brown, 176 Lock St. He was a valued member of the Peterborough post office staff for three years. He was a member of Court Peterborough Lodge No. 29 Canadian Order of Foresters and also of the Springville Presbyterian Church. His mother, one sister and one brother are left to mourn his loss. The funeral will take place from the residence of his mother, Springville, to Little Lake Cemetery on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Service at the house at 1.30 p.m.

HERB RUSH IS WITH TRANSPORTS

Carried Several Refugees in His Lorrie

LIVELY TIMES

Gunner Herb Rush writes to his mother as follows:—

Dearest Mother, —

I wonder if you have heard of the gallant valor of the Canadians. We were billeted just out of Ypres last Thursday. When the Huns made a daring attempt to advance, they broke through the French lines but as the French retreated the Canadians, 5th Highlanders of Montreal, and another battalion, kept them at bay. We also recaptured a battery of guns but great sacrifice was made.

The transport was forced to follow in the retreat. It was a most pitiful sight to see the refugees in hundreds running in all directions with what few straps they could gather together in the nick of time. I had a family of four children, also mother and father and a young married couple in my lorrie. The Huns had been using shells charged with poisonous gases and they had vile effect on the French but as they galloped away our artillery passed them going to the front.

A number of us were back Sunday and it was quite lively with shells bursting and artillery passing through.

The traffic here is very congested at times. Lorries, motor cars, ambulances, despatch riders, and all kinds of other war equipments. We are back now to a safer distance.

I saw some of the boys from the old Peterborough battery last Sunday and fortunately there has been no casualties as yet. Saw Dooly just for a minute as he passed. I also saw Harold Matthews, he wished to be remembered to you all. Have also seen Garnet Greer and Charlie Ackerman. We supply the different Canadian brigades with all supplies, rations and forage but thousands of the dear boys have eaten their last.

We have been congratulated by different Imperial officers as to the rapidity in which we moved the lorries, but if we had been commanded to advance to the trenches we would have been right there. The transport must be protected or hundreds go hungry and supplies would be hindered.

There are two Canadians buried a short distance from here. They were from the 2nd Battalion. Hope to know their names when I go up to the hill again. That is the battalion Harold Scollie is with and all the Peterborough boys.

I trust you are well and happy. I am feeling fine. No complaints at all. Nothing is so bad but might be worse. Hope you received the birthday gift I sent you, the newest Parisian design. The weather here is dry and dusty, lots of sunshine.

Your loving son,
HERBERT.

CAPT. FEE WRITES.

Mr. George Gilman, has received the following letter from Capt. C. Fee, who is now stationed at Folkestone, Eng.:—

Folkestone, Apr. 25, 1915.

Dear George,—Your most pleasing letter of the 17th March reached me safely and no doubt 'ere now you have received my card stating that I had received same.

Well our chaps are hard at it here, and we are getting more Canadian troops here almost daily. We see lots of our wounded boys here who are being sent to different hospitals around this district and of course the hospital trains pass through here daily on the way from Dover to London. London is about 70 miles from here.

Aeroplanes, dirigibles, armoured motors, destroyers, etc., are around here daily.

I have had two trips to London town, four days at Easter and three days last week, and on the last trip we took the King's Colour which was presented to the 22nd Battery in Kingston, Ont., by the veterans and citizens there, in Westminster Abbey for safe keeping during the campaign. The ceremony was a very pleasant one, and needless to say we felt highly honoured. The Dean of Westminster is arranging to have the colour hung over Wolfe's tomb. Major Rierdon and myself had the honor of being at luncheon with the Dean and Mrs. Ryle after the ceremony, at the Deanery which is right alongside of the Abbey.

I tried to see as many places of interest while there as possible so took in the following: Houses of Lords and Commons, Tower of London, St. Thomas' Hospital, St. Paul's Cathedral, Toussands' wax works, Hyde Park, Royal Colonial Institute, Royal United Service Institution, Buckingham Palace, Marlborough House, York House, War Office, Admiralty, Horse Guards, Trafalgar Square, (stood on same spot from where I saw Coronation procession, King Edward VII., Aug. 9th, 1902), saw Lord Kitchener, also visited his country home, Broome Park, 9 miles from Shorncliffe, saw Canterbury Catherdal, went to some of theatres and clubs, and stayed at Hotel Cecil.

Reed and Cole are well. I told them you asked about them and they wish to be remembered.

Hoping you are all well ad with my very kind regards,

Yours faithfully,
C. P. FEE.

Address: Reserve B. de Can. F. Arty., Shorncliffe, Kent.

DENNIS DALY DIES AGED SIXTY-FIVE

Dennis Daly is dead. He passed away in St. Joseph's Hospital last night at the age of sixty-five, after being ill about three months. Everyone knew Dennis Daly, and his many friends will regret to learn of his death. He was one of the best-known men in the city and enjoyed considerable popularity. As far as known, he had no relatives living in Peterborough, but a brother lives in Pasadena, Calif. Before being removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, Mr. Daly was cared for at the Grand Hotel. His funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock to St. Peter's Cemetery.

MOTHERS CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Mothers' Club of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Wednesday afternoon. After the regular business meeting Miss Mae Laing gave a vocal solo, which was very much appreciated. Mrs. Knox of the Kitchener League gave a very interesting address on the work of the league and what they were doing for the soldiers at the front. She asked the assistance of the mothers in purchasing and making respirators which are so much in demand at the present time. Ten dollars was donated, $5 by the club and $5 by one of the members to purchase gauze, and the mothers will assist in making them. All members of the mothers' club are asked to help in this work. Dr Cameron will address the Kitchener League on Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. at eight o'clock. All members of the mothers' club are invited to be present.

The members of the Conservatory Children's Orchestra are asked to meet tonight at 6.30 in the Conservatory hall to rehearse the program to be given on Friday night for the benefit of the supervised playgrounds.

MAGANETAWAN RIVER

The Maganetawan River District reached through Burk's Falls, 171 miles north of Toronto on the Northern Division of the Grand Trunk Railway System is recognized as one of the choicest districts in the Highlands of Ontario for the camper, canoeist and fisherman. Maganetawan lake and river scenery has a charm of its own, and each year it is increasing in popularity, not only among the hunters and fishermen who have been going into the region annually for years, but by the summer resorter who desires to get away from the older and more crowded resorts. Good hotel accommodation may be had at many points at moderate rates. Apply to C. E. Horning, Union Station, Toronto, for all particulars.

GOOD PROGRAM FOR FRIDAY EVENING

The Canadian Kitchener League promises a splendid program for Friday evening, May 14th, at the Y.M. C.A. gymnasium. Come and help to buy comforts for our boys in the trenches. The program:—

Quartet—Saxaphone.
Solo—Miss Stevens.
Piano solo—Mr. Treneer.
Solo—Mr. Costello.
Solo—Miss Richardson.
Recitation—Miss Hill.
Solo—Mr. Weller.
Solo—Miss McLaren.

PLAY GROUNDS FUND

The Local Council of Women wish to publish the following statement with regard to the supervised playgrounds fund:

Net receipts from carnation sale	$225.00
Amount left over from better baby contest	28.38
	$253.38

As will be seen, over half the amount required has already been raised, but $246:62 is still required if the playgrounds are to be in readiness by July 1st.

Donations from a few public-spirited citizens will make these grounds an accomplished fact, and the children will not be disappointed. Any person willing to donate any sum please communicate with Mrs. (Dr.) Neal or Mrs. Jas. Kendry.

Mr. Geo. Minorgan, Beaverton, father of the late Pte. Geo. Minorgan who was killed at Langemarck, is in the city.

Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton returned to the city last night. Mr. Stratton is somewhat improved in health.

BERLIN ADMITS FRENCH GAINS

First Time in Six Months Official Statements are in Agreement

LITTLE FURTHER ADVANCE WILL OPEN BIG GAP IN GERMAN LINE

British Holding Their Own and Keeping Great Masses of the Enemy Engaged

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 14. — For the first time in the past six months the authors of German and French official announcements on the progress of hostilities find themselves in agreement. A German communication admits the truth of the more important of the claims made by General Joffre, the French commander in France, as to the great successes won by the French between Labassee and Arras.

If this attack can be pushed home, the consequence will be still more marked, in the opinion of British military commentators, who are claiming today that a little further advance by the French will open a conspicuous gap in the German line, a development which will necessitate the falling back of the Germans on a wide front.

To the north of Labassee the British are doing little more than holding their own, but at the same time they are keeping great masses of Germans engaged, troops who otherwise would be available against the French offensive.

FRENCH KEEP UP THEIR GOOD WORK.

PARIS, May 14. — This afternoon's official statement:—"It has been raining without stop since yesterday morning. Last night, in spite of the handicap of a difficult and slippery terrain, we occupied several German trenches to the southwest of Souchez, and we have maintained on the rest of the front, from Loos to Arras, all gains recently made by us.

"In the valley of the Aisne we yesterday destroyed four German blockhouses and levelled several trenches."

PASSAGE REFUSED ON ITALIAN LINES.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Agents of the Italian steamship lines have received instructions to refuse passage to German, Austrian and Turkish women and children. Men of those nationalities had already been excluded.

MAY HAVE SUNK SUBMARINE

BLYTH, England, May 14. — The captain of the steamer Collairnie, which reached port today, believes he sank a German submarine in the North Sea. His ship struck a submerged object, and later a large quantity of oil came to the surface.

REWARD FOR INFORMATION ON SUBMARINES.

LONDON, May 14. — Reuter's Athens correspondent says: "Owing to the reported presence of German submarines in the Mediterranean, the British Legation has issued notice in the local press offering twenty-five hundred dollars reward to anyone supplying information that will lead to their destruction."

STRIKING STREET CAR MEN AGREE

Plan of Settlement is Accepted by Employes

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Detroit, Mich., May 14.—The Detroit United Railway striking motormen and conductors have voted unanimously, agreeing to the plan for settlement of the trouble and it is expected the service will be resumed today.

KILLED BY TRAIN AGED MAN'S FATE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Chatham, May 14. — An inquest was opened this morning on the body of an unidentified man aged about sixty-five, found on the Grand Trunk tracks near St. Georges Street crossing about midnight. The body is badly mangled, the head and chest being crushed. There was nothing in the pockets to assist in identification, although the man was well dressed.

LETTER FROM MISS BLEWETT

When Looking for Peterboro' Boys She Was Told of Major Bennett's Death

No more interesting letter from the battle front has been received so far, than one which Miss Beatrice Blewett, who is a Red Cross nurse there, has sent to her parents Mr. and Mrs. C. Blewett, Reid Street. Miss Blewett wrote hurriedly when under a severe nervous strain, as her time was fully occupied with her duties but it was amply long enough to describe vividly how the late Major Bennett met his death. From the story which Miss Blewett tells it is apparent that the big genial Major was absolutely sure he would never return and that he had a premonition he was to give up his life. In the letter, Miss Blewett mentions a dinner which Major Bennett gave her at The Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, because she was the only Peterborough girl going to the front. It was then that the large tears welled up in the Major's eyes as he remarked "I am sure I will never return." The Major died a hero's death. He was the first over the German trenches in that glorious Canadian charge and the first to die from a German bullet.

Miss Blewett tells in the following how she heard of the Major's death.

My darling Mother,—

This is going to be but a short letter,—only a few words about Major Bennett. We have had hundreds of patients come in to the hospital during the night and therefore are frightfully busy. Nearly all of the patients are Canadians — poor boys, they have been getting it awfully hard and there is now a large tent almost full of them. We have no beds so they are lying on stretchers.

As I was going through the lines finding their names, ascertaining complaints, etc., I asked them if they knew anything about the Peterborough boys and first asked for Major Bennett.

"Well sister," replied one of the boys, "I am sorry but he is dead." He told me the major was the first over the German trenches and died immediately after being shot. He carried a small cane and the boys said the fighting was so furious that the Major had been lying dead in the field two days with this cane in his hand.

Really mother, I felt so bad, that I could hardly proceed with my duties, but I took time to go back and ask the second time, because I found it so terribly hard to believe. You know Major Bennett gave me a dinner at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec and even then the large tears came to his eyes as he said, "I am sure I will never return." He told me he was writing father about his property that night. Really mother war is different when it comes right down to your countrymen being cut down like wheat.

Charles Ackerman, Billy Gibson, George Minorgan were safe when the boys were wounded but the dressing station where Garnet Greer was, was shelled and I don't know whether he is safe or not, but I'm trying very hard to find out. I did not hear any news about Arthur Ackerman at all.

This is all just now mother as I am extremely busy. I hope you are all well.

Your loving daughter,
BEATRICE.

In the foregoing letter the cane which Miss Blewett says the Major was carrying is one which the captain or leader of a company always carries when leading his men, otherwise an officer is unarmed save perhaps for a revolver.

Near Firing Line.

Miss Blewett is not more than twelve miles from the fighting line and her work as nurse is not only

WILSON'S NOTE COMMENDED BY UNITED STATES JOURNALS

Herald Says if Another American Ship is Torpedoed the Only Thing to be Done is to Send Atlantic Fleet to War Zone

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, May 14. — Leading journals this morning editorially commend President Wilson's note to Germany. The Herald goes beyond the rest in discussing its consequences. "If Germany takes offence at the president," that paper says, "it may declare war upon the States, if it wishes; on the other hand, if the German reply does not fulfil the ideas of right as clearly expressed by President Wilson, then another bridge is to be crossed, because it will have been reached, and if another American ship is torpedoed, the only thing to be done will be to start the Atlantic fleet toward the war zone." The American strikes the only discordant note when it says that the President, in protesting against the use of submarines by Germany in the war that country is waging against British commerce invites the retort from Germany that her method of warfare against England is none of our business.

EXULTATION GIVES WAY TO SORROW WHEN HEAVY CASUALTY LISTS ARRIVE

THE REVIEW DID IT.

Last Saturday Mr. E. A. Hunter, R.R. No. 7, Peterborough, lost a very valuable watch fob that was a present to him. He thought of putting a "lost ad" in The Review and invested the trifling expense for one insertion. The watch fob was found by Miss Ethel Bradley, 33 Lafayette Ave. and returned to The Review office where Mr. Hunter recovered it. Needless to say Mr. Hunter was highly pleased with the results of his ad. in The Review. The Review was able to do this through its improved news service and rapidly growing circulation. Its many readers make gratifying results from its advertising possible.

Lt. Walter Curran's Letter Portrays the Scenes at Shorncliffe

REINFORCEMENTS GO TO FILL THE GAPS

BY LT. WALTER CURRAN.

Shorncliffe, April 28.—Shorncliffe is terribly near the battle line. Two hours by water, a few more by train, and the men are in the hell of shot and shell. It is so close that a man may be back in the hospital here within twenty-four hours after his departure.

The realism of the war to a Canadian in a place like this at a time like this is very keen. First the news of the glorious achievements of our boys in stemming the tide of the oncoming Huns. Then the sudden summons for reinforcements; the marching off of the splendid fellows who have been left at the base; next, the inflow of wounded, and finally, the long casualty lists of wounded, missing and dead.

I will endeavor to describe the events and the effect which they produced at this base.

Saturday afternoon word came through that the Germans, who by means of asphyxiating gases had forced back the French and were threatening to break through the line on the road to Calais, had been held up and beaten back by our Canadian men after a terrific struggle in which our losses had been very heavy. The first feeling among the men was one of exultation. Everyone felt that the first contingent had proven themselves, that the carping critics had been silenced for all time. An opportunity such as may not occur again in this war had come their way, and every man from Canada thrilled with the glory of it. The only complaint heard was the fervent regret which the men here expressed that it had not been their fortune to support their comrades in the thick of the battle.

The deep feeling of pride and satisfaction in the glorious deeds of our men was chastened by suggestions of large casualties, but it was not until the names began to come in that the force of the blow came home. As the list grows, exultation gives way to sorrow, and pride to a desire for repriation. As the significance of what our men went unflinchingly through is more fully grasped the

RUSSIANS' POSITION IS IMPROVED

German Drive in West Galicia Checked Permanently

PRESSURE RELIEVED

Great Importance Attached to Their Recent Successes

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Petrograd, May 14.—The Russians have fallen back upon a strong strategic position along the river San and now regard the German drive through West Galicia as having been checked permanently. The arrival of fresh Russian troops which successfully engaged the German flanks has relieved the pressure upon the Russian centre. These attacks on the German wings in which Russian cavalry had been supported effectively by mountain artillery, has been proceeded with unusual fierceness.

The retreat of the Russian centre from Lupkow is explained as due not to pressure from the Germans but to the exposed situation of Russians at that point, after the right flank had been rolled back. With the checking of the German eastward movement between the Vistuala and the Carpathians, there are already indications of a new Austro-German offensive against the Russian left in the direction of Stry and Uzsok. In view of this new activity, Russians attach great importance to their recent successes. Further east across the Dnieto to the North, the Russians have been able to hold the Germans on a line between Litau and Kelmo and have driven them out of Ragola.

GERMAN FOREMAN GIVEN BLUE TICKET

A German foreman in a local factory, who is said to have laughed in glee when he heard that his countrymen had sunk the Lusitania and hundreds of innocent passengers, got what was coming to him, all right. Someone heard his fiendish remark that it served them right, and it is said to have reached the ears of the management, who, with commendable promptitude, took action. He is now looking for another job.

SECOND REPORT ON GUNNER O'TOOLE

Message Received This Morning Says He Was Wounded

Mr. Wm. O'Toole, Hunter street, informed a reporter this morning that he had received another message from Ottawa stating that his son, Gunner Joseph O'Toole, had been wounded. This message conflicts with a previous one, which reported his son as having died of wounds.

Mr. O'Toole has wired Ottawa in an endeavor to secure a definite statement.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MAY 14, 1915

A TRADITION TO LIVE UP TO.

THERE IS no denying the importance of the stand made by the Canadians at Langemarck. The English newspapers fully recognized the exploit of the Canadian forces, and, by big black type headlines, proclaimed it throughout the British Isles. Letters of survivors of that glorious fight are now arriving in Canada, which give authentic details of the way the Canadians checked and frustrated the German drive. The charge of the Canadians will ever remain one of the outstanding events of the war. In that charge, or rather series of charges, the Second Batallion won lasting fame. The volunteers from Peterborough were in the Second Battalion, and many a local hero laid down his life at Langemarck in order that the battle might go well with the forces of the Empire and its allies. The graves of Major Bennett, Lieut. Day, Odley Taylor, Heber Rogers and other brave men were in the way of the German advance to Ypres and Calais, and over them the far superior forces of Teuton brigands did not and could not go.

Lieut. Matthews' letter is evidence that the Canadians not only surprised the Germans, but the British forces as well. Lieut. Matthews tells of an order to retreat, and then, "as the Canadians were holding on, the order to go back was given the battery to which he belonged. That was when the day was saved—"the Canadians were holding on." The force of the German drive spent itself on the Canadians without effect. Man after man fell, whole ranks of men melted away, but still the Canadians fought on, charged and retook probably two miles of the ground that had been taken by the Germans. The tragic and heroic details of the event are found in such little sketches as these: Taylor was game to the last—no one ever showed more pluck; Heber Rogers died like a man.

The Germans now blame the Canadians for the loss of Calais. Certainly they had the Allies nonplussed with poisonous gases and large numbers of men. But, thanks to the Canadians, the fruits of their drive were rendered of little consequence.

It has cost Peterborough many a brave man. It means bitter tears and a memory of dead heroes, but it means also an example of self-sacrifice and devotion to duty such as this city has never had. Its citizens have been given a tradition to live up to. May they succeed in maintaining it in public and private life.

NO ELECTION IN MANITOBA NEEDED.

A CHANGE of government has taken place in Manitoba. The Liberals have been handed the keys of office, and it is intimated that the former ministers will resign their seats in the Legislature as well as their portfolios; hence it will not be necessary for an election to be held in Manitoba this year during war time. Besides, there is nothing of importance which the new Liberal Government there has to place before the people, save scandals, and these do not need an election for settlement. The case seems to be that the Roblin Government had outlived its usefulness and has given place to new blood. That being the case, it is evident the new government has the support of the Province, and it would only be provoking a useless contest to appeal to the people.

FAILED TO DO ANYTHING.

THE GLOBE has had several days in which to develop its idea of a plebiscite on the issues in Dominion politics, but has failed to do anything. The reason must be that there is really no difference between a plebiscite on the questions at stake and a party election. Yet the Globe regards a plebiscite favourably. Is this another case of evasion, inconsistency, or bluffing?

PRUNING TREES.

A CITIZEN who has the best interests of Peterborough at heart has complained to us of the faulty manner in which trees along the streets are pruned and taken care of. He recalled one case where a tree was pruned only on one side. The matter would be well worthy the consideration of the Council. Shade trees are a great asset to any city, and should be cared for so that they will be healthy, strong and beautiful. If trees are allowed to become defective, serious accidents might be caused, besides preventing the tree from being the beautifier it was intended to be. No man should be allowed to prune the city's shade trees who does not possess proper qualifications. That is what the Council should be sure of before making an appointment.

SPECULATION AND SOIL FERTILITY.

THE FARMER of Western Canada has long been upbraided for his disregard of the principles of scientific agriculture. The gospel of mixed farming, as the safeguard against soil exhaustion, has been constantly dinned into his ears, but, as a rule, the advice has been consistently ignored and the farmer has adhered religiously to his system of soil mining. As a matter of fact, he has seldom denied that his farming methods are unscientific. What, then, is the explanation of the general and firm adherence to a mistaken course? The typical Western farmer is neither lazy, unintelligent, nor particularly shortsighted. Certainly it is not that he is ignorant of the principles and practices of scientific agriculture, for the Canadian West has recruited its pioneers from the best farming communities of the British Isles, Ontario, the Maritime Provinces, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Kansas and Nebraska. His failure to follow proper methods of cultivation is due to none of these causes, except in a minor degree.

The main difficulty today consists in the fact that our Western farmer, like his counterpart of a few decades ago in the Western States, plays a dual role. He is a farmer and a land speculator, and it is often doubtful which characteristic predominates. Many homesteaders, of course, are farmers, purely and simply, but for thousands of others speculation is practically the sole motive. The representative Westerner, however, combines the two occupations — agriculture and speculation — and, needless to say, as a speculator he is an indifferent farmer. The combination is not favourable to good farming and to the conservation of soil fertility. The average farmer, in anticipation of a rapid rise in land values, has burdened himself with as large an acreage as he could acquire. Having assumed heavy obligations, usually with little capital, he has faced high interest rates, a scarcity of labour and high cost of implements. He has been compelled, in order to hold his land for the promised advance in value, to resort to the system of cultivation that produces the maximum gross revenue with the minimum of outlay. The bona fide farmer has farmed with a view to insuring the permanent productivity of his land; the speculator, par excellence, has not farmed at all; the farming speculator or the speculating farmer has operated his agricultural plant at capacity speed with a view to selling it before the output diminishes appreciably. He has not been content to receive a normal profit from his farm. He has robbed the business as a going concern by encroaching on capital. Soil fertility is the capital asset which a wise agriculturist maintains unimpaired.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

PETERBOROUGH is one of the prettiest cities in Canada, but the trouble is that a large number of people living in it fail to realize what this means.

GERMANY lost Calais because of the Canadian rats, a Prussian officer admitted. Well, there are plenty of "rats" in Canada yet.

ALL Canada has to do to defeat the Kaiser's armies is to say "Oh! rats!"

Opinions From Other Newspapers

A Chance for Sir Wilfrid.
(Hamilton Herald, Independent.)

A general election at this time should not be necessary, and is not to be desired. That it should be avoided is undoubtedly the sincere wish of most citizens. Probably it could be avoided if Sir Wilfrid were to speak out earnestly and unequivocally, calling upon his supporters to suspend their partizan attacks on the Government. The Liberal leader has it in his power to do a great service for Canada at this time. If he remains silent, his silence can fairly be construed as a tacit approval of the course pursued by the Liberal press.

But, in all fairness, should the Federal Government, which is bearing the burden of a responsibility greater than that which any other Canadian government has assumed, and which is entitled to know whether it possesses the confidence of the Canadian people, be greatly blamed if it asks for a renewal of public confidence in view of the general and persistent daily attempts of its enemies to make the people believe that it is unworthy of their confidence?

The Unvarnished Truth.
(Pall Mall Gazette.)

A plain, unvarnished tale told to a street meeting in London last Wednesday immediately produced a dozen recruits, men in good employment, whose hearts were touched with the manly impulse to become deliverers of the oppressed. The speaker read a letter from a prisoner in which he described how British soldiers were beaten with sticks and the butt end of rifles, run through with bayonets, tied to the posts of the wire entanglements surrounding the camp, stripped of their clothing, and starved. If there remains one spark of the old British pride of race in the young men of today, such a recital must move them to do their duty, and it does. The knowledge of these things should be spread, by speech and pamphlet, throughout the length and breadth of the land, not in order that a debilitating hatred of the foe may be fostered, but that the flame of righteous rage may be kindled and the spirit of stern resolution to bring nearer the hour of deliverance.

The Limit Passed.
(Montreal Herald.)

There is a limit to humanitarian restrictions. Boiling tar burning oil and poisonous gases cannot be fought with the bayonet and the gun. If Germany breaks the rules, she must abide by the consequences. The Allies, for the sake of humanity itself, must swallow time-honoured scruples, and give these fiends incarnate a taste of their own medicine.

His Bad Break.
(Journal of Commerce.)

One of the delegates at the recent Canadian and International Good Roads Association convention, in rising to address the gathering, began: "Mr. Chairman and fellow-highwaymen," and then paused to wonder why his hearers laughed.

The Financial Barometer.
(Kincardine Review.)

When a German success is reported there is a slump in the New York market. Why? Because the United States knows there can be only one end to this war and that a German success delays that end.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Saturday — Easterly winds, fair until night.

LOCAL LABOR.

Editor Review,

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me to congratulate Ald. Edgar on calling attention to the large number of out of town Italians employed on the paving contract. On behalf of the Trades and Labor Council I registered a strong protest with Mayor Buller on the occasion of the special meeting called to consider the granting of another paving contract. Our very patriotic City Council should be heartily ashamed to walk along Charlotte St. and see good Anglo-Saxons standing on the sidewalks with empty stomachs, watching sons of sunny Italy earning the living our own flesh and blood should be getting. And Mr. Editor not even resident Italians. The trade unionists of the city have no objection to Italians getting a chance to earn a living, but they have a decided objection to any discrimination against their own kith and kin in favor of outside Italians brought in by contractors. The City Council apparently have made no efforts to safeguard the interests of the working class ratepayers of the city in their past contracts, and will not endeavor to do it in the future contracts if the ratepayers do not get after them. They claim that the giving of another paving contract will lessen unemployment amongst the citizens, but it will have to be an entirely different contract to the last one, or the number of out of work citizens it will absorb will not be noticeable.

Thanking you Mr. Editor,

Yours truly,

R. MITCHELL.

Checked Turk Barbarity

London, May 14—The official press bureau last night issued correspondence between the American embassy and the Ottoman war minister in Constantinople. The latter threatened to transport British and French non-combatants now in Constantinople to the war zone in Gallipoli, alleging that the allies had bombarded and killed non-combatants in Gallipoli and other unfortified places on the Peninsula. Sir Edward Grey replied that the English government would hold Enver Pasha and the other Turkish leaders personally responsible.

Serbia Heard From

London, May 14—The Serbian press bureau here last night announced: "Four of the enemy's aeroplanes appeared in the direction of Firae and Palaxa, and dropped bombs without result. Our guns drove them off. On Monday a short artillery battle occurred near Belgrade, the enemy's artillery quickly being reduced to silence."

Almost Comic Opera War

El Paso, Texas, May 14—Gen Francisco Villa has avenged the crushing defeat administered to his troops at Celaya nearly a month ago by the Carranzistas. Wednesday he defeated Gen. Obregon's army of 25,000 men and drove them south ward in great disorder. According to Villa Obregon's army was completely routed, leaving over 3,000 on the field

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

"TIZ" for tender, puffed-up, burning, calloused feet and corns.

You can be happy-footed just like me. Use "Tiz" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet. "TIZ" and only "TIZ" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a "TIZ" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance with joy. "TIZ" is grand. "TIZ" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty, smelly feet.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

THE HELLO BOY

He's just the smallest little tot
  That ever you did see,
That little boy along the street
  That says "Hello!" to me.
You wouldn't think that he could talk,
  He's such a tiny lad,
But, my, he says it out distinct,
  As plainly as his dad!

You really couldn't understand
  Unless that kid you knew
How greatly I appreciate
  His morning "How do do?"
For as I pass in going down
  Or coming back at night
The old street does not seem the same
  If he is not in sight.

That boy is neither kin of mine
  Or of my better half,
But I can tell you for a fact
  He's got me on his staff.
But when he says "Hello!" to me,
  This sturdy little man,
You bet I say "Hello!" right back
  As pleasant as I can.

A weakness for that little boy
  Without a blush I plead,
And he can borrow books from me
  When he has learned to read.
I'll come when he holds out his hands
  As far as I can see,
That little boy along the street
  Who says "Hello!" to me.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

ANGLIN'S PROPOSALS

His Own Love Affair and That of His College Chum

By HENRIETTA G. ROBINSON

Halfway down the steps of the fraternity house Anglin turned and went thoughtfully back to the room that he shared with Beresford.

"You're dead sure you'll not change your mind and come?" queried Anglin.

Beresford, with a volume open on his knee and a pipe gripped between his teeth, nodded emphatically.

"Then I suppose you don't mind if I take your skates. They're sharper than mine."

"Take them, of course."

But when Fred Anglin had slung the skates over his shoulder and buttoned on his thick gloves he still lingered. It seemed as though this were not what he had come back to say after all.

"I ought to tell you, Tom—we've been such pals right along—that I'm going to put my fate to the test tonight. The Tremaine girls will be at the skating party. And tonight I intend to speak to Gerla."

Beresford jumped up and wrung his friend's hand enthusiastically.

"Good for you!" he cried. "Go in and win! As long as it isn't Geraldine I can endure the thought of your happiness if she says yes. I'll be able to listen to your raptures without experiencing a perfectly legitimate desire to sling you through the window."

"Thanks, old man," laughed Anglin, adding: "Lucky we've not set our respective hearts on the same sister. Now, I'm blessed if I understand your infatuation for Geraldine. But as long as you are her captive why do you hold back? You are older than I am, and"—

Beresford shook his head with a grim smile.

"It isn't that. You've a wealthy father and a settled income. I've only enough to pull me through this final year. When I get my diploma—well, I shan't have much more in a material line. I don't dare ask Geraldine to wait until I have attained—achieved—arrived. It wouldn't be fair to her."

"It would—her promise—be a tremendous incentive to you."

"Oh, I know that. But she must be considered first."

There was another handclasp, a firm and silent one. Anglin swung away for the tramp into the country, where the skaters were to assemble at Pilgrim's pond.

The star studded night closed down early. When Anglin reached the appointed place the amusement of the evening was already in full swing. The expanse of ice was clean swept and of an opaque, turquoise tint. Strings of Chinese lanterns dangled in the multi-hued propinquity from bare tree to tree and from pole to pole. In a declivity semi-shaped by a fly tent a royal fire blazed and crackled. In and out, around and about, in dullness under the sullen stars or in red relief where the flambeaux, set at regular intervals, flared fantastically, sped and flashed the dark figures of the skaters.

Fred Anglin got on his skates as quickly as possible and started out across the frozen pond. Many turned to look after the athletic young figure circling through their midst with such [illegible] of motion.

But he noticed neither their presence nor their admiration. He was looking for one particular little figure. She would wear a short skating costume of blue velvet, the Russian blouse, which was girt with heavy cords that swung backward when she raced. The high peaked cap would make a penthouse over a mass of fair curls and mischievous eyes, bluer than any violets that ever mocked the blueness of a June time sky. And—

"There she is!" he said suddenly to himself.

Alone in the shadow of the wigwam shaped refreshment tent, apparently fancying herself unobserved, a slender young form was whirling on heel and toe, cutting a pattern of intricate tracery on the ice.

"Come with me!" he cried as he dashed to her side. He held out his hands, crossed at the wrists in the old approved carry-the-lady-out-of-town style.

Together they swung gracefully down the strip of gleaming ice which was least covered.

But when they were quite away from the merry crowd of skaters, whose voices came to them musically through the frosty night air, Anglin turned their impetuous progress to one very deliberate. And then, as he took a firmer hold of her mittened hands, he began, after the manner of many another lover who has been compelled to force his courage to the sticking point.

"Dear," he said desperately, "I can't keep silent any longer. You know how I've cared for you ever since—well, ever since I entered college. Although I've never been obliged to consider ways and means, still a legacy has made it possible for me to ask you to give me your promise. I know," he added hastily, "you won't care about this sort of thing, but I ought to mention it. There's only one question now—do you think you will ever love me—a little?"

His words, voice, even the tensity with which he retarded her flight, holding her hands tight pressed to his side, did not escape the girl's alert consciousness. But she answered in unsteady accents. There was trepidation in her tone, as well as dread, the dread a sweet girl experiences who hates to give pain.

"I'm sorry—sorry—sorrier than I've ever been about anything in all my life," she began. "I—I did not dream it was I for whom you—cared. Had I done so I never would have permitted you to say—this."

As one stunned he relaxed slightly hs grip on her fingers, while he accelerated their speed.

"Don't worry!" he answered bravely. "I must have been awfully stupid to have fancied—you are sure you're quite warm enough? We are almost at the tent now. I'd better bring you some hot coffee, Gerla."

They were at the tent. Yellow streaks of light from its canvas apertures were glinting out at them. The girl came to a standstill, her hand still on her companion's arm.

"What was that you said?" she asked sharply.

"Gerla. I suppose I should have said Miss Tremaine," and then, as she did not at once reply, he wheeled swiftly and confronted her.

She had dashed back the peaked hood of her skating coat. He saw a little, dark, mignonne face looking up at him in the wavering amber light—a face that looked uncertain as to whether it ought to break into smiles or quiver into tears—the face of Gerla's twin.

"Geraldine!" he exclaimed as he fell back in astonishment.

It was her turn to be amazed. "Why, [illegible] think it was Gerla?" she cried. [illegible] relief. And then when her merry peal of laughter had died away he queried, "But how do you happen to be wearing Gerla's costume?"

She laughed again—a relieved sort of merriment that made Anglin think suddenly of his roommate.

"Oh, that's what—what fooled you, was it? Why, we changed them just for fun. But if Tom"—she flushed furiously at her slip of names—"I mean if Gerla had thought"—

"What!" exclaimed Anglin ambiguously. "Geraldine, do you think"—

"Oh, as to Gerla," she broke in, "she is coming back of you. Ask her yourself." And she skated swiftly away.

The next instant Anglin was facing a girl in a suit of wine colored velvet. The peaked cap was drawn high over tousled golden curls and eyes of deepest blue.

"How you stare!" she laughed. "Am I an uncanny spirit?"

"I've proposed to one girl tonight," he confessed as he whisked away to the waltz the band was playing, "and I don't want to make a similar mistake again, for she was not the girl at all whom I meant to ask to marry me."

"Are you quite sure you're not mistaken now?" she asked quizzically.

"Quite," he assured her. "But I would like positive proof—and corroboration."

And both Fred Anglin succeeded in securing before he strode home to ask Tom for congratulations and to hearten him with the fondest of hopes.

Watch In a Pearl.

The feat of making a watch in a pearl has been accomplished by a watchmaking firm at Chaux de Ponds, Switzerland. This wonderful watch, the only one of its kind in the world, was finished a few days ago. A pearl which weighs forty-five grains and has a diameter of about half an inch contains all the works. It took an employee of the firm fifteen months to hollow out the pearl and fix the wheels. The watch is guaranteed to keep good time and may be worn as a ring on the finger.

Taxes In China.

One dollar to get married, 10 cents to go to college and 50 cents to graduate are some of the items in the new regulation "governing the affixing of stamps on certificates concerning human affairs" which were recently promulgated in China.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Drowsiness.

Drowsiness is sometimes a sign of disease. It is often a symptom of a poisoned system. When therefore a person begins to show unusual and inexplicable drowsiness he ought to find out what the cause is. It may be that malaria or indigestion or some form of kidney disease is poisoning the blood. A diminished blood stream can also produce somnolence, as in the case of the aged, who often fall into a succession of little naps all day long because the amount of blood that circulates through the brain is so small that there is a constant condition of cerebral anaemia. Abnormal drowsiness also results from tumors of the brain or injuries to the skull. Then it is usually caused by the pressure that interferes with the circulation of the blood. In diabetes drowsiness occasionally comes on with great suddenness. It is then generally the precursor of the unconsciousness or coma that accompanies the late stages of that disease. The treatment of drowsiness must be determined by the cause. Old people should be permitted to drowse freely. Young people who are anaemic should try to improve their blood by tonics and diet and cultivate a habit of living and sleeping in the fresh air.

Our Own Point of View.

Why cannot the man see it is green? What a dolt the felow is not to perceive it is yellow! Big headed booby not to admit it is crimson—and so we are all at each other's throats about trifles, unconscious of the fact that we are all more or less wrong ourselves and are merely estimating matters from our own particular standpoint of prejudice. And this it is which prevents this world from ever being a happy one, for we each [illegible] things even as we see them ourselves, and, since it is impossible to do so, we ultimately get wild with the world—Jeringham's Essays.

Riddles.

When is a man more than a man? When he is beside himself.

Why should little birds in a nest agree? Because it is dangerous to fall out.

When is a clock on the stairs dangerous? When it runs down and strikes one.

Why is a dog's tail like the heart of a tree? Because it is farthest from the bark.

Why should postoffice clerks be women? Because they know how to manage the males.

When is your nose not a nose? In winter, when it is a little reddish.

I have beaten up the cake!
I have whipped the eggs and stirred the kegs
And made the pudding quake."

SPRING NOVELTY.
Tan Checked Worsted Used For Useful Garment.

SPORTS COAT.

The up to date girl is quite as much interested in seasonable sports as is her brother, and the clothing she selects to wear upon the occasions when she participates in a game of tennis is quite as smart as is his. The coat shown in the illustration is designed to be worn to and from the tennis court in the motor and is to this end built of heavy tan checked worsted. It is smartly short in front, sloping downward to three-quarter length in the back. The collar is high, and huge patch pockets snugly envelop the hands. The buttons are large and are covered with the material.

THE DETACHABLE LINING.

This Is For Wear Under Handsome Blouses of Silk or Crape.

The careful woman will find it advisable to instruct her seamstress to make a detachable lining of fine net or habutai silk for wear beneath the blouse of georgette crape of radium or of some one of the new striped silks. Such a foundation should have sleeves rather loosely shaped and terminating just above the elbow. In warm weather the perspiration across the back and on the arms is apt to stain or fade the fine material of the outer garment.

The lining should be made separately and then loosely tacked to the inside of the blouse about the neck and shoulders. It will then be easily removed for a visit to the laundry or for other renovation. Two linings for a fine waist are better than one, because this insures a greater preservation of the outer fabric through cleanliness of the inner, and while one lining is being laundered the other may be readily adjusted to the blouse. This same idea applies to the frock of silk or of linen. Of course it is not advisable where the outer fabric is of sheer material like organdie, thin voile or kindred materials.

Allowance should be made for shrinkage when making up a new blouse or dress. A couple of extra blouse inches should be extended beneath the belt, and at the top of the skirt the material may be turned back so that after it comes from its first tubbing it may be let down without serious inconvenience.

Filling For Pincushions.

Coffee grounds rinsed in cold water and spread out to dry thoroughly on a sheet of paper make filling for a cushion which is warranted not to rust needles or pins thrust into it.

FADS AND FANCIES.

Shirring marks many frocks of soft fabrics. The skirts are shirred on cords about the hips, thus disposing of fullness that might otherwise be awkward in a skirt not cut on circular lines.

The fichu has many advocates this spring. There are some pretty frocks of taffeta, with hemstitched fichus of the sheerest muslin. Many lingerie frocks have ruffled fichus draped about the shoulders. And even some evening frocks show this quaint adjunct.

If one may judge by the shops, women are again going to buy separate leather belts, for many and good ones are shown. They are to wear with one piece frocks and with coats of linen and of wool.

There is some difficulty about getting imported laces owing to the war, but there is no difficulty in getting lacy and sheer fabrics. There is lace cloth, for instance, a fabric with all the sheerness and irregularity of surface of all over lace, yet with a good deal of body and strength.

THE INVALUABLE COCOANUT TREE

Supplies Almost all of the Necessities of Life

A traveler was journeying through those countries lying under a burning sun, where the freshness of shade is rare, and the habitations of man are found only at considerable distances from each other. Sinking with fatigue, the exhausted traveler beheld a hut, surrounded by trees with tall, straight stems, surmounted by a bunch of great leaves, some standing upright, others hanging down gracefully, and presenting a beautiful and elegant appearance. Nothing else near this cabin spoke of cultivation.

Encouraged by this sight, the traveler made a last struggle, reached the hut, and was kindly received under the hospitable roof.

First his host offered him a slightly acid drink, which quenched his thirst and refreshed him. When the stranger had rested himself awhile, the Indian invited him to partake of a repast, and served different dishes on a brown platter, shining brightly and highly polished. The Indian offered also a wine possessing an extremely pleasant flavor. Toward the end of the repast, he brought a quantity of excellent comfits, and invited the traveler to try an excellent kind of brandy.

The traveler, in astonishment, asked the Indian how in the midst of this desert he came by all these things.

"I get them from my cocoanut trees," answered the Indian. "The water which I gave you on your arrival was drawn from the fruit before it had become ripe, and sometimes the nut contains three or four pounds of it.

"This palatable nut is the fruit at its maturity; this milk, which you find so pleasant, is drawn from the same ripe fruit. This delicate cabbage is made from the top leaves of the tree, but we do not often indulge in this, as the tree, when its top is thus cut off, dies soon after.

"This wine, which pleases you so much, is also got from the cocoa. We make an incision in the tender flower stalks and a white liquor flows forth, which we gather into vessels and which is known as palm wine. Exposed to the sun it becomes sour and turns into vinegar. When we distill it we obtain this excellent brandy which you have tasted. This same juice has also furnished me with the sugar which I needed for preserving the nut. Finally, all these dishes and utensils which we are using on the table are made from the shells of the cocoanuts.

"This is not all. My house, even I owe to these invaluable trees. Their wood has enabled me to build my cabin, their leaves dried and interwoven make the roof, and these same leaves, made into a parasol protect me from the sun when I walk out. These clothes which I wear are woven with the fiber thread got from the leaves. These sieves were ready made in the part of the tree from which the leaves spring, and these mats come from the same source. These same leaves, woven into a tissue, make sails for our ships. The coarse hair which covers the nut is used for calking ships, as it lasts forever and swells when exposed to the water. Cables, ropes and twine are all made of the same material. Finally the delicate oil with which many of these dishes were seasoned, and which burns in my lamp, is obtained by presssing the freshly gathered fruit.

"From the sawdust of the branches I have made this ink and from the leaves this parchment, which formerly was exclusively used for public documents and records of important events."

To be honest and at the same time truly sympathetic often calls for more ability than we can muster.

Unique Engineering Feat.

When railroad building was undertaken in Alaska following the discovery of gold a unique engineering feat was performed. At a point eighty miles out of Skagway the survey had been made for the road along the shore of a lake, but it was found to be so irregular and broken by so many coves that the plan was adopted of getting a better line by lowering the level of the lake. This was done by cutting an outlet channel, through which fourteen feet of the lake drained off. But presently the new channel, having been cut through a sandy hill, gave way, and the escaping lake water wore an enormous canyon through the country and reduced the lake level again over seventy feet. A fine, level roadbed was secured over what was formerly the bed of the lake.—Argonaut

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Yesterday afternoon the members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. had the pleasure of visiting the Bonner-Worth Co. The boys were received at the factory by Mr. Geo. Worth, who showed the boys through the different departments and explained to them the different processes the yarn goes through before being made into cloth and carpet.

Thursday afternoon, May 20th, the boys will visit the Peterborough Canoe Co. and on May 26th the De Laval.

Saturday morning the members of the boys' department will have their first hike of the season. The junior boys will leave the building at 9.30 and the older boys at 10.00 a.m. Every member is asked to take part in this hike. Bring your lunch and your chum.

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL IN NORTH MONAGHAN

The new Sunday School building under the control of the Salvation Army at Brailey's School Corner, is now being painted and will be opened next Tuesday night with a grand banquet and entertainment. Only a few weeks ago this matter was taken in hand by Mr. Harold Snowden, Fred Campbell and Adjutant McElhiney, and with the assistance of the friends in this part of North Monaghan they expect to open the building clear of debt. The Sunday School attendance has gone as high as 75 and it is expected when the new building is opened it will double.

A letter received by Mrs. William Keithley of Brantford from her husband, at the front, states that Pte. Keithley was killed at Langemarck. This makes seventeen men from Brant County killed in action.

story of their achievement arouses the men here to the determination to live up to the magnificent record which has been established.

"By the end of this week there will not be a medically fit Canadian left at Shorncliffe, excepting staff officers," was a statement made by a staff officer today. This does not, of course, refer to the troops of the Second Contingent, who are arriving this week. It is within the range of possibilities that some of the newly arrived contingent may be moved to France almost immediately, however.

One of the most moving sights that it has been my portion to witness was the departure of several thousand reinforcements on Tuesday. Casualty lists had been made known sufficiently to clear the minds of the men of all illusions. They knew that they were going almost immediately into an action which might be their last. But every man was keen to go. They even seemed impatient at the slight delays which always occur on such occasions. They were like thoroughbreds sniffing the scent of distant battle, eager for the fray. It is useless for me to attempt to describe the thrill, the feeling of infinite sorrow, of joy in their strength, of pride in their bearing, of loyalty to them, of patriotism to our country and Empire, and other undefinable feelings which the sight of these splendid fellows caused to well up through one's whole body, choking the throat and blinding the eye. Almost before one realizes it they were gone, and in a very few hours later were travelling over French rails to the battle front near Ypres.

There was not much life about the Shorncliffe camps after their departure. Everyone seemed a little out of sorts and the casualties, which have been coming in fast, have touched all the men closely and have tended to make gaiety seem out of place. Everyone is very busy, too, preparing to get to the front. There is that feeling that serious business is afoot and everyone is attending strictly to it.

Col. (Dr.) Armour, late of Toronto, is doing splendid work in the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital at Beachborough Park, near here. Some wonderful operations have been successfully performed and many men given a lease of life when their case looked hopeless. Dr. Walace, of Guelph, is the resident physician.

One of the latest patients is Pte. Ernest Edwards, of Brantford. Private Edwards was wounded in the arm in the great charge at Hill 60.

"Our battalion was held in reserve. We were called upon about midnight. In order to approach the Germans we had to cross an open space of almost 800 yards. We would make a dash, then the German machine guns would fire a great volley. We would drop, and ping! the bullets fly over us. When their fire eased a little we would up and run again. You run as fast as your legs will carry you. You forget all about danger, about everything. You just dash at the enemy, dodge the bullets, and at him again. You don't have time to be nervous. You are so excited and keyed up that you don't care whether you are killed or not. I was hit about two hundred yards from the German trenches, so did not take part in the close work. The Germans will not stand up to the bayonet. They absolutely fear cold steel."

Edwards hopes to be in shape soon again to get another dash at the Huns, but though his complete recovery is assured it will take some time for new bone to form so that he can take up arms.

One of the most popular patients is Sgt. Rose, 48th Highlanders, late of the advertising staff of Billy Moore's Canadian Courier and Canadian Farm, Toronto. Sgt. Rose was wounded at Neuve Chapelle, where our fellows were held in reserve. A bullet entered his hip and came out near by his stomach. He is recovering nicely.

"Waiting in reserve during a great battle is trying beyond your keenest conception. Shells of all sorts, sizes shapes burst over, around and about you. I had them bursting within a few feet of me. All one can do is to lie there and pray. You are absolutely helpless. You can't hit back. Shells are bursting about you on every side all the time. The flare of the star lights and the bursting shells is like the fire works at Toronto Exhibition. The flare of the lights, the roar of bursting shells, the groans of wounded men; an unreal scene, but terribly impressed on my memory."

"If we could have charged, done anything, it would not have been so bad," concluded Sergt. Rose.

Pte. Geo. Long, of Ottawa, undergoes a last minor operation for his arm today. Long, who is a son of Capt. Long, was coxswain of the Ottawa Rowing Club and a member of the light four. He was hit in the shoulder and the nerves of his arm are affected. He will likely be fit after this operation.

Captain Darling's death was a tremendous blow to the Forty-Eighth Highlanders. He was probably the most popular officer in the regiment. He was always ready for the most arduous duty with a cheerfulness that won him an enviable reputation. He was killed while taking a short cut out of the trenches. He and Capt. Bob Cory were going back. In order to save a few steps they took a short cut. Capt. Cory, who was in front suddenly called out, "Look out, Cliffe, they're sniping us," and dropped. Capt. Darling replied, "They have sniped me". He was hit in the back and the bullet literally tore a hole through his chest. As the boys were in sweaters only, and had no first aid, the loss of blood was tremendous. The Germans ceased fire for the stretcher bearers, and though Capt. Darling's pluck held him together for some days, he finally succumbed in London. The service in London was largely attended and was most impressive.

The enthusiasm of The Review Transcontinental and Panama-Pacific tour contestants never ceases. None of the fair contestants believes that she has a corner on the votes, but the votes are the things that count. After you get them and they are counted, no one can take them away. The vote is becoming so close that a slight change gives an advantage and instills more ginger into the great rush.

Whatever is done to make is certain that the prizes will be won must be accomplished in the next few days. Now is the time to make the final play. It is the all-absorbing hour, the time to make the supreme effort.

Who will have the most votes?

Don't be disappointed by failing to realize ballots on promised subscriptions—the promiser may overlook the date of the closing of the special period. It is, therefore, up to you to get the ballots and win.

In the bright lexicon of the contestants there is no such word as failure. If you ask one of the hustling candidates to spell failure she would probably tell you that it was more fun to spell success and failure is that word "if."

IF I had done this I might have won.

IF I had not quit working at the time victory was within reach I would surely have won.

IF I had only tried a little harder things would have come my way easily.

All the work that has been done up to the present time reflects credit on your ambition. Credit alone, however, is not what you are working to achieve. You intend to go just the necessary step farther to victory, and, with the proper effort and rightly directed mental and physical force, you can do so.

As soon as possible after reading this notice the contestants will do well to bring in every subscription they have in their possession and every one that they can possible scare up. Do not put off bringing in your subscriptions and your reserve until the last hour, but bring them in early and avoid the rush of the last few moments.

Major Holland's Command.

Major Edward James Holland, of Ottawa, who has been selected to command the Borden Machine Gun Battery of Montreal, has had a notable career in the Canadian militia and is one of the most experienced and capable men that could have been selected for the position.

He won the Victoria Cross for conspicuous bravery during the Boer war in action at Komati river. He went to South Africa as a private with the Canadian Mounted Rifles in 1899 and inside six months was made a sergeant of the machine gun section and was mentioned in the despatches for conspicuous bravery and awarded the Queen's medal with five clasps as well as gaining the much-coveted Victoria Cross.

On his return to Canada he was gazetted a lieutenant of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards in 1901 and was made a major of the Thirteenth Scottish Light Dragoons in 1904 and major of the Reserve Corps in 1906.

Commander Holland is an Ottawa boy. He was born there in 1873, the son of Andrew Holland, the official reporter of the Dominion Senate. He was educated at the Ottawa Collegiate Institute. He has been a member of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards for two years and also was for some time a member of the Forty-third Regiment. He is an expert amateur boxer, a good long distance cyclist and an all-round athlete.

Of the sixty men Maj. Holland has in his battery 22 wear ribbons won in previous campaigns. Capt. McCarthy and Private Currier were both with the commandant when he won his Victorian Cross in South Africa. S. MacIntyre wears three ribbons, including those won in South Africa and Egypt, and Corpl. Bland wears five.

One Montreal man with the battery is the last of seven brothers now enlisted with the allies.

GERMANS NOW CLAIM TO HAVE 140,000 PRISONERS

Rapid Russian Progress in Bukowina—Joffre's Steady Drive For Great Strategic Object.

London, May 14—Sir John French reported under date of yesterday "Fighting east of Ypres still continues. The Germans to-day again subjected our lines north of the Menin road to a violent artillery bombardment which in places destroyed some of our trenches, causing temporary readjustments in our line. This, however, since has been completely re-established. On the remainder of the front there is nothing to report."

The gains made by the French during yesterday mark important strides in their drive on Lens, the centre of the great coal fields of Northern France and a position strongly held by the Germans. In the German drive on Ypres Berlin claims the capture of another point of vantage to the east of the town.

Counter-claims

In the battles of Tarnow and Gorlice, Berlin reports, and in the pursuit following those battles, the Austro-German allies have taken 103,500 Russian prisoners, and in the fighting in the Carpathians and north of the Vistula 40,000 more.

The Russian statement late last night claimed further successes of the Russian offensive on the right bank of the Dneister. The Austrians, it is stated, are retiring in disorder in extreme western Galicia. Austrian counter-attacks, Petrograd says, have been repulsed with heavy losses. Petrograd discredits the German claims to continued successes in western Galicia by stating that the intensity of the fighting has decreased. Unofficial news from the Russian capital states that the Russian counter-offensive against the extreme right flank of the Austro-Germans in Eastern Galicia and Bukowina has made rapid progress. The Germans have been brought to a standstill along the San and Wisloka before impregnable positions.

August Barghardt and Max Frank were arrested in Hamilton on suspicion of being German spies. A large number of documents in German found on them will be examined.

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

DISAVOW AND REPAY ARE THE U.S. DEMANDS

Bryan Compliments High Germanic Principles and Asserts Neutral Rights in Lengthy Note.

Washington, May 14—The American note to Germany in the Lusitania case was transmitted to Ambassador Gerard in Berlin yesterday for delivery to-day. Secretary Bryan's statement is lengthy and abounds in expressions of high regard for the "high principles upon which the imperial German government has always acted." Accordingly it calls upon Germany to disavow the action of its naval commanders in the Falaba, Cushing, Gulflight and Lusitania incidents. All of these are formally complained of as infringements of the "sacred freedom of the seas" and the rights of American citizens to travel freely upon the high seas. The note reasserts that Germany must be held to strict accountability for all these acts, affirms the purpose of the United States government to protect its travelling citizens in indisputable right, rejects the validity of the warning advertisement in American papers and asserts the inevitable inhumanity of Germany's methods of submarine warfare.

Mr. Bryan concludes: "The Imperial German government will not expect the government of the United States to omit any work or any action necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens and of safeguarding their free exercise and enjoyment." This is preceded by the declaration that "The government and people of the United States look to the Imperial German government for just, prompt and enlightened action in this vital matter with the greater confidence because the United States and Germany are bound together not only by special ties of friendship but also by the explicit stipulation of the treaty of 1828 between the United States and the Kingdom of Prussia. Expressions of regret and offers of reparation in case of the destruction of neutral ships sunk by mistake while they may satisfy internationa obligations, if no loss of life resuts cannot justify or excuse a practice the natural and necessary effect of which is to subject neutral nations and neutral persons to new and immeasurable risks."

Inhuman Submarine

The vital matter is argued as follows: "The government of the United States desires to call the attention of the Imperial German government with the utmost earnestness, to the fact that the objection to their present method of attack against the trade of their enemies lies in the practical impossibility of employing submarines in the destruction of commerce without disregarding those rules of fairness, reason, justice and humanity which all modern opinion regards as imperative. It is practically impossible for the officers of a submarine to visit a merchantman at sea and examine her papers and cargo. It is practically impossible for them to make a prize of her; and if they cannot put a prize crew on board of her, they cannot sink her without leaving her crew and all on board of her to the mercy of the sea in her small boats. These facts, it is understood, the Imperial German government frankly admit. We are informed that in the instances in which we have spoken time enough for even that poor measure of safety was not given, and in at least two of the cases cited not so much as a warning was received."

In plain terms the document of "strict accountability" is restated. "This government has already taken occasion to inform the Imperial German government that it cannot admit the adoption of such measures of retaliation by submarines or such a warning of danger to operate as in any degree an abbreviation of the rights of American ship-masters or of American citizens bound on lawful errands as passengers on merchant ships of belligerent nationalities; and that it must hold the Imperial German government to a strict accountability for any infringement of those rights, intentional, or unintentional. It does not understand the Imperial German government to question those rights."

Measureless Injury

The way is now paved for the smoothly-running phrases: "Long acquainted as this government has been with the character the Imperial German government and with the high principles of equity by which they have in the past been actuated and guided, the government of the United Statss cannot believe that the commanders of the vessels which committed these acts of lawlessness did so except under a misapprehension of the orders issued by the Imperial German naval authorities. It confidently expects, therefore, that the Imperial German government will disavow the acts of which the government of the United States complains that they will make reparation so far as reparation is possible for injuries which are without measure, and that they will take immediate steps to prevent the recurrence of anything so obviously subversive of the principles of warfare for which the Imperial German government have in the past so wisely and so firmly contended."

PTE. DAVID CUMMINGS.

Pte. David Cummings is another Peterborough man included in the missing list. He was a resident of the city for twelve months being employed as machinist in the Canadian General Electric works when he enlisted. He was twenty-five years of age and lived at 132 Rubidge Street. Before coming to Peterborough he was employed in the shipbuilding yards at St. Johns, Newfoundland. His home is in Glasgow, Scotland, where his father and several sisters are living. No relatives are in the city. He was a member of the volunteer naval reserve in Scotland.

PTE. FRED LONG.

Pte. Fred Long, reported missing is "Short" Long the well known local young man who enlisted with the Vancouver Highlanders which went to make up the 16th Battalion. He was connected with the C.P.R. telegraph office here for a number of years previous to going west. He was engaged as an operator in Vancouver when he joined the forces. His mother, Mrs. George Long, 502 George Street, received the word of him being missing, this morning.

LANCE CORPORAL HOGAN.

"Jack" Hogan, a former Peterborough man, is numbered among the missing in today's casualty list. Jack Hogan will be well remembered around this city as he lived here for years and was employed in several capacities and with several firms. He is the son of Mr. John Hogan, who was superintendent of the Peterborough Light and Power gas plant, residing on Gilmour Street when he and the family moved to Toronto. He was in the insurance business here, then with the Dominion Express and later was a reporter on the Peterborough Examiner staff. He left Peterborough and worked on the Sudbury Star for some time, later returning to Toronto where he was engaged in newspaper work.

His name in the list of missing appeared as Lance Corporal John Crosby Hogan, 26 Brookmount Road, Toronto. His many friend in the city hope for the best for him.

GUNNER WM. KING.

Gunner Wm. King of the First Artillery Brigade is reported wounded in a private message to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. King, 380 London Street. He was a member of the 24th battery and was employed with the Bell Telephone Company. He is 23 years old.

A suggestion has been made from Montreal to the Minister of Militia that the mourning emblem worn by relatives of Canadians who have given up their lives at the front for the flag and for what the flag stands for, should be white instead of black. General Hughes is in sympathy with the idea. War with its toll of death is sombre enough in any case, and the Minister of Militia agrees with the Montreal suggestion that a white instead of a black crepe band would more appropriately express the feelings of those who mourn for those who died with honor in the defence of all that British citizens hold most dear.

Recruits are coming in every day for enlistment in the 45th regiment. This morning two young men enlisted who had walked all the way from Ragged Rapids, in order to join the regiment for overseas service. It is believed in local military circles that recruiting will be carried on throughout the summer. Lieut.-Col. Fee stated this morning that it was no trouble to secure men. — Lindsay Post.

PROVIDE PLACE TO DETAIN DOGS

If Animals Appear to be Affected by Rabies

At the meeting of the Property Committee yesterday afternoon the matter brought to the attention of the committee at its last meeting of providing a place in which to detain dogs suspected of being affected with rabies, was left with the chairman to deal with when he has received sufficient information.

Must Pay Tax.

A letter was read from Ed. M. Elliott, County Clerk, regarding the removal of garbage from the county buildings. It was resolved that the City Clerk advise the County Clerk that the garbage by-law must be complied with by having the ashes set out in a convenient place for the collectors or else provide for taking it away themselves and that in either cases the garbage tax must be paid.

$43 for Car Tickets.

An account from the Board of Works for $43.00 for street car tickets furnished Peter Thompson during 1914 was received and the committee decided to return it with the information that no action could be taken.

It was decided that the walk on the market square as authorized by the council be built as soon as possible.

A local section of the Hydro Radials Association was formed at Hamilton at which every municipality in Wentworth and Haldimand was represented. The Hydro Commission was asked to report on the cost of constructing a radial from Hamilton to Lake Erie.

A CALL FOR MEMBERSHIP IN THE BOARD OF TRADE

A Patriotic Appeal to the Younger Men of the City to do Their Part

A powerful appeal to citizens is being made in the interests of the Board of Trade and Secretary A. N. Allison this morning started to solicit by letter the earnest support and co-operation of over four hundred of the leading business men of the city. The organization to be successful must get support and its greatest essential is adequate membership. Though the year may be somewhat quiet, the officers feel that now is the opportunity to show their mettle and with the whole-hearted, loyal, and contistent support of the general public, this can be done. In the following appeal now being mailed to a list of over four hundred is set forth the objects of the organization.

Dear Sir,—

Read every word of this letter. It might mean dollars to you.

While you read there is a call going forth to practically every civilized person in the world and that call is "Your King and Country need you." The magnificent way in which that call is being answered especially by those who belong to the British Empire is [illegible] Is it not? [illegible] "God Save the King."

Truly war is hell.

The above particularly refers to a war such as is raging now in Europe. But there are different kinds of war—many different kinds—and we are all more or less engaged in fighting one or other of them. We have battles to fight every day we live. Some we win; some we lose.

One of the greatest wars of this kind is that which is being carried on by municipalities and municipal organizations to bring about a better state of prosperity, a higher standard of civilization, a better feeling of brotherhood and co-operation, and it is news of this war that this letter contains. A call is going forth to you every day and we only wish to emphasize it and if possible receive your favorable response.

"Your city needs you."

To make Peterborough a better place to live in, to do business in, to invite your out-of-town friends to, it is necessary and essentially so that you should do your part in bringing about this betterment.

Peterborough is a magnificent city and a mighty nice place to live in, and to do business in. But it might be better. You would like to see it better wouldn't you? Sure you would. Peterborough has facilities to make it one of the finest cities on the continent. This you will admit. But the great handicap is and it is a great handicap, is the awful derth or lack of interest and co-operation on the part of the general citizenship of the city. There is a great absence of the pull-together spirit

"The fault dear Brutus, is not in our stars but in ourselves that we are underlings."

That's it, isn't it? Peterborough's [illegible] making the most [illegible]

To obtain success in any walk of life one must work diligently, earnestly and systematically. If we, as a city, are not as successful as we ought to be, we have but to look in the looking-lass to find the reason. We are not trying as we should. We are not sufficiently interested. We say "Let George do it," and then we stand back and swear and knock because George didn't do it right, or at least he didn't do it as we thought he should have done it. And we are angry and we keep on knocking George.

If everybody did his share we would be a happy, contented people and we, who have the interests of Peterborough at heart and who have these problems on our hands, wish for, and are working for, the bringing about of a nearer realization of this splendid state.

The Board of Trade is, or should be, a leading factor in this work, and as far as the officers are concerned we want to be. But how can we, if we don't receive the moral, financial and physical support of the citizens. Our hands are tied. Loosen them so that we may better do our work. By becoming a member you will help considerably.

The Board of Trade is in reality a citizen's committee whose sole object as an organization is, or should be, to co-operate in every way possible, within itself, with the City Council and other organizations, to bring about more prosperity, better living conditions and so on, for you.

The Board of Trade is a body before which the citizens get an opportunity to air their troubles and bring forth suggestions for improvement. Come before it with yours.

We have to advertise abroad our advantages in an endeavor to bring to our city manufacturers, desirable citizens, and business men. We have to work to better conditions here, beautify our city, promote a better feeling and engender co-operation amongst ourselves.

"A chain is no stronger than its [illegible] chain. So a weak citizen, or a weak organization spoils a city to a greater or less degree. Let's work together to bring ourselves up to a higher level as a city and as individuals. Remember we are inter-dependent. We are all affected to a greater or less degree by the success or failure of the other fellow or organization.

Now, there is no doubt in our minds about your desire to bring about improvements, and one of the best ways for you to satisfy that desire is to fill out the enclosed application and become a member of the Peterborough Board of Trade for 1915-16. The membership fee is only $2.00 and we must have a large membership to get sufficient money to carry on the work successfully. Many other Boards charge as high as $25.00 for membership. We only ask you for $2.00 and your interest and support.

There are many opportunities open to us for good work right now in the way of securing industries, tourists, etc., and we want to open headquarters, get out good literature, and in every possible way boost our city.

This is an opportunity for you to enlist with the best organization in Peterborough. Let's count on you. Answer the call today.

Fill in the application blank, enclose it in the addressed and stamped envelope along with your cheque or a $2.00 bill and mail it to the Secretary's office at 160 Charlotte Street.

Do it right away.

Yours truly,
Peterborough Board of Trade.
A. N. Allison, Secretary.

IMPROVE COUNCIL CHAMBER.

W. H. Moore, K. C., chairman of the City Trust Commission, was present at the meeting of the Property Committee yesterday afternoon when the matter of installing a ventilation system in the City Hall and thoroughly renovating the building was discussed. Owing to the fact that the ventillation system would cost $1200, the idea was abandoned, but the idea of renovating the Council chamber will be cared for by the City Trust.

FIND OUT

The Kind of Food that will Keep You Well.

The true way is to find out what is best to eat and drink, and then cultivate a taste for those things instead of poisoning ourselves with improper, indigestible food, etc.

A conservative Eastern woman writes:

"I have used Grape-Nuts 5 years for the young and for the aged; in sickness and in health; at first following directions carefully, later in a variety of ways as my taste and judgment suggested.

"But its most special, personal benefit has been as a substitute for meat, and served dry with cream when rheumatic troubles made it important for me to change diet.

"Served in this way with the addition of a cup of hot Postum and a little fruit is has been used at my morning meal for six months, during which time my health has much improved, nerves have grown steadier, and a gradual decrease in my excessive weight adds greatly to my comfort."

GALE ENDS SAD SEARCH

No More Lusitania Bodies Likely to be Recovered

Queenstown, May 14—Two boats chartered by the Cunard Line to search for bodies of Lusitania victims have been forced to put into port owing to the increasing gale. Many of the bodies, it is feared, will be carried out into the Atlantic and never recovered. The ships had searched over a wide area as far west as Glandore and Fastnet without finding any bodies. They both were about to proceed to the spot where fishermen reported seeing more than 100 floating bodies when the gale sprang up.

Philadelphia has $251,892,869 worth of property exempt from taxation.

TRANSYLVANIA IN DANGER

Threatened Liner is Slow Sailer and Reaches "Zone" To-day

New York, May 14—The liner Transylvania which the German government in a semi-official statement yesterday declared was subject to submarine attack reaches the war zone to-day. She is due in Liverpool Sunday. The Transylvania carries 879 passengers, including many Americans, a number of British reservists and Canadian army nurses. Although new, she is not a very fast ship. She averages fifteen knots, but can go up to eighteen if occasion demands.

Bloomington, Ill., is agitatng for a city-wide Saturday half-holiday.

WHERE PEACE IS EASY

British Keeps Promise to Obviate Detention of American Ships

London, May 14—Important communications are still passing between the foreign office and the United States government respecting the British blockade of Germany's ports. The British embassy at Washington and the state department are now working out details of a scheme to obviate as far as possible unnecessary detention of American ships in accordance with the promise of the recent Order-in-Council.

ITALY'S CABINET RESIGNS

Great Excitement Marks Critical Time—Buelow Awaits Decision

London, May 14—The Salandra Cabinet resigned last night, considering that it did not possess the necessary unanimous assent of the constitutional parties regarding its international policy. The King has reserved his decision as to whether the resignation will be accepted. At the last cabinet meeting King Victor Emmanuel expressed the hope that parliament could soon be unanimous in the decisions that are to be taken. The German ambassador Count von Buelow seen last night said: "My mission is finished. All that Germany and Austria expect me to do has been done. It is now up to Italy to decide."

Last night the Giornale D'Italia and the Idea Nazionale both openly charged former foreign minister Giolitti with having sold out to Austria and with having been a traitor by interfering with the work of the Salandra cabinet.

Giolitti replied that his opinion had been asked. This has created a tremendous sensation and feeling against Salandra. Former minister Bertolini and other henchmen of Giolitti were spat upon and maltreated in street cars here last evening. Mobs forbade the publication of neutralist papers. Excitement is increasing. D'Annunzio, the novelist made a fiery interventionist speech to a street crowd and was carried in triumph.

Badly Frost-bitten Feet.

Private C. H. Craig, of Calgary, to whom belongs the distinction of being the first and only Canadian to be received into the newly-equipped Canadian military hospital at Cliveden, was invalided back in consequence of badly frost-bitten feet.

In common with about half his company, he said that he occupied a trenh waist deep in water and slush almost continually from the first week in January, with the result that when severe frost set in, about the middle of January, more than a dozen of them succumbed to the frost. Craig has since been at the hosiptal base in France, where, he says, several of the Princess Pats are still being treated.

Some of the men are rather seriously wounded, but on the other hand, he had learned that in the majority of cases the Patricia's wounded will soon be able to take their places at the front.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

SPORTING NEWS

ANOTHER OF FEW REMAINING PLAYGROUNDS IS PASSING

Sod is Being Turned in Field on Park Street South

An "In Memoriam" over the fact that a few acres of sod is being turned, is not usual, but it would hardly be right to notice that the sod in the large field opposite the Park Street Baptist Church is being turned, without a small note voicing deep regret. 'Tis true the cry is "patriotism and production," the large vacant fields should be made to yield a crop, the axe of advancement should rob all parts of the city of their rural appearances. A few years ago the boys had a ball diamond every two or three blocks. Many a hard battle was fought and won on Boswell's field, on Charlotte Street. Soon the building permits started to increase and soon Boswell's field was a residential section. Extensive building and the fact that the C.G.E. annexed several acres to the north caused the diamond on the south side of Patterson Street to be abandoned. The Colonial Weaving Co. dropped down on the corner of Rink and Rubidge Street and the "muck field" for so long the playgrounds of a contingent of youths, was vacated. Now one of the few surviving diamonds, the one known as the Park Street field, is being turned into a crop producing section. The owners of the field can not be blamed as they were always very considerate when athletic clubs applied for the use of it. While Rev. W. C. Riddiford held the pastoral reigns at the Park Street Baptist Church, he and his first lieutenant "Jack" Pilling organized the P.A.C. and rented the grounds. How much good the field provided for the boys of the south ward that season can never be estimated. For the next couple of years Mercantile League teams rented the grounds but this season no organization has secured it and the result is—the plough was admitted. It was hoped that the citizens agitating playgrounds would take the matter up and secure a lease of the property before the ground would be broken, but such has not been the case. Park Street field is a thing of the past. No longer will one see fifty or sixty coming athletes out there Saturday afternoons and each evening of the week. No longer will the kiddies of the vicinity be able to play there during the day. The boys and young men will be permitted to "fus" up and come up city, the children will be left to play in the dusty streets.

'AB." QUINLAN WILL UMPIRE

Well Known Arbitrator to Handle City League Games To-morrow

The executive of the City Baseball League has been successful in its endeavors to secure "Ab" Quinlan to umpire the two league games at Riverside Park tomorrow. All the teams had voiced their hopes that Quinlan would be available and he has been found willing to assist the league in its efforts to replace amateur baseball on the plane on which it rested a few years ago. His presence on the field will dispense with all dispute over decision as his umpirical ability is known and recognized. He will call the first game sharp at two o'clock and the second at four.

FABRE IN COURT.

Montreal, May 14.—As a result of a dispute between Edouard Fabre, the long distance runner, and Edward Scullion, president of the Richmond Athletic Club, over the former's expenses to Boston, where he won the Marathon there, Fabre has been summoned for assault. Scullion alleges that Fabre gave him a black eye. The case comes up before Judge Lanctot in the police court on May 19.

COMMENT As You Like it

The players for the two teams in the new Toronto professional lacrosse league are as follows:—Rosedales—Holmes, Harshaw, Dandeno, Yeamon, Braden, Bert Green, Harrison, Barber, Warwick, Gordon, Barnett, Joe Green, Brittnell, "Cully" Wilson and Allman. Tecumsehs — Kinsman, Torpey, Whitehead, Graydon, Powers, McKenzie, Rountree, Felker, Querrie, Durkin, Carmichael, Spellen, C. Denneny, Porter and Longfellow.

A whirlwind lecture tour of Toronto to Public Schools has been accomplished by Joseph Lally, who talked to the boys on lacrosse. Mr. Lally was conveyed in an auto to various schools in company with Dr. J. L. Hughes, in accordance with previous arrangements, the object of the lectures being to enthuse school boys with a love for the game of lacrosse.

Hampton Dame, who is entered in the King's Plate, went a mile and a quarter at the Woodbine in 2:09 4-5 seconds, accomplishing his task without distress and in fact easing up in the last part. She was alone and ridden by George Finch, carrying about 118 pounds, ten pounds over the weight allotted her in the big race.

Henri Donihee, the Cornwall lacrosse player, will play the coming season for Con. Jones at Vancouver. Latterly he has been with the Torontos, but was scheduled to play this year for the Tecumsehs. His defection will prove a blow to the Indians.

Fine scoring machine behind Walter Johnson! The Washingtons have made one run for him in his last four games; that is, they've batted so powerfully in those four jousts that they've been shut out in three of them.

Physicians said that Natalis Lafanci, who died during a fight with Edward Kern at New Orleans, met his end as a result of acute heart dilation, superinduced by pleurisy. Kern, who had been arrested, was released.

TRAP SHOOTING

(Belleville Ontario.)

The second of the season's meetings of the Trent Valley League was held yesterday in this city at the traps on Coleman's flats. The competition excited much interest and the day was well suited for shooting, there being but little wind to contend with. Cobourg, the holder of the pennant, carried off the flag again by 199 points out of 250 against Belleville's 187 points. Stirling stood third and Peterborough fourth.

Mr. George M. Dunk of Toronto attended the shoot and broke 46 out of 50 birds.

Mr. Crowthers was high gun for the spoon on account of York's handicap. Mr. McCallum won the watch fob donated by the Dominion Cartridge Company, being second high gun.

Cobourg did the best shooting individually, three men getting forty birds or over. One Belleville man only, Mr. Harry Day, got into this class by breaking 40. The scores:

BALL WILL BE MUCH FASTER

Diamond at Sacred Heart Field Being Skinned

The Athletic Club in connection with the Sacred Heart T.A.S. has already "made a move." A number of men are at work on the field today skinning the diamond. The work will be completed in the course of a few days and the baseball artists given an opportunity to go at top speed. The fact that the diamond is skinned will undoubtedly call for much faster ball. This is but the first of the new plans, Messrs. Will Grady and Fred McGrath have up their sleeves, by which the south end boys will be benefitted.

A Minor Luxury.

Patricia Officers

Private cables received here announce the following casualties among the officers of the Princess Patricia's in their recent fight:

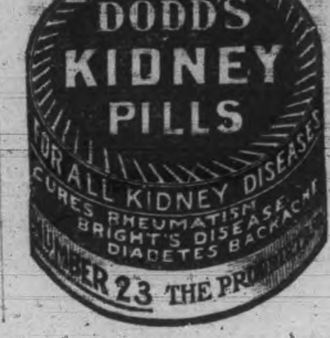
Killed in Action—Lieut. N. A. Edwards and Capt. Allan Richardson, Montreal, formerly reported wounded. Wounded: Major A. Hamilton Gault of Montreal (the second time wounded); Capt. Agar Adamson of Ottawa; Capt. S. F. Hill, Capt. D. F. B. Gray, Lieut. A. G. Martin, Lieut. M. H. Debay. Missing: Lieut. H. S. Dennison, Lieut. G. Triggs.

Conscription Possible

London, May 14—Viscount Haldane, Lord High Chancellor, said in the House of Lords yesterday that the Government might yet deem it advisable to resort to some methods of raising troops other than the enrollment of volunteers.

Irish to the Front

London, May 14—The Tenth Irish division has been completed and has left for the front. This is the fifth Irish division of Kitchener's army.



YEB. FLAHERTY WITH EMPIRES

Some Changes on the Lineup of City Leagurers

The various managers of the City League teams have been "house cleaning" this past week, with the result that several changes will be noticed in the lineups when the teams appear tomorrow. All the pilots figure that the men must play ball to win, and only those that show the necessary class will be held. A couple of releases are already reported.

The batteries for tomorrow's games are:

First Game

Classics — Gus Rose and Kennealley.

Empire A. C. — Flaherty, Mahoney, and Wilson, Taylor.

Second Game

Thistles — Smythe and Cavanah, Jobbitt, Phelan.

East City — Kirn, O'Connell and Swanston.

The first game will be called at 2 o'clock, and the second game at 4. Admission: Gents, 15c; ladies, free. Grand stand, 10c to all. Boys under 12 years, free, on condition that they remain in the west stand.

MANITOBA SITUATION BAD SAYS FEDERAL MEMBER

The Liberal Government Will be Watched Narrowly

LIKE BURLEIGH FALLS

A Review reporter saw the Federal member this morning and asked him for his view of the Manitoba situation. He replied: "It is bad. The case of Manitoba—like that of the Burleigh Falls dam—is enough to make one despair. If the report of the Manitoba case is correct, it is a straight attempt to steal. I trust there will be no saw-off, and the Liberal Government will be watched narrowly. You remember the Burleigh Falls dam. Here was a water power worth at least three-quarters of a million, leased for $1 a year for 60 years by the late government to favorities. If the people will stand for this sort of thing, I do not wonder that they are robbed. Having in mind what human nature is, what else can we expect? The real truth is that about one-quarter of the people in this country are scheming by night and by day to plunder the other three-fourths, and it is not always the first line of plunderers that are most to blame. We have a lot of others who will stand by and see it done because doubtless they will sometime need help in a like enterprise."

No Election Just Now.

"What about an election?"

"I do not think there is to be one just now. The Globe's suggestion that we have a plebiscite instead of an election concerning the tremendous change in policy regarding the N.T.R and G.T.P., is, to my mind, a bad suggestion. With a plebiscite we would have all the turmoil of an election but without governmental responsibility. Anything, even a general election, with all the issues, would be better than that. However, we are not likely to have either just now, but the idea that the difficulties in Canadian politics are to be removed by avoiding them is a wrong one. Because we don't wish an election in war time is no reason for ignoring the fact that the N. T. R. and the G. T. P. have brought this country to the verge of ruin, and I shall be surprised if Sir Robert Borden will accept the responsibility of reversing the Laurier policy, formerly approved by the people in this respect, without an appeal to the people before doing so—war or no war."

The N. T. R. matter referred to above by the member is the refusal of the G. T. R. syndicate, now that the N. T. R. is completed, to carry out its agreement. In this agreement with the late government, no provision was made for compelling the company to carry out its agreement, and as a matter of fact Canada is at the mercy of the G. T. R. syndicate in this respect. It will be remembered that the loosely drawn implementing clause has already cost the Government $10,000,000. This enterprise is the one that "couldn't wait." Another thing that the public will remember is that the present Government had to step in and guarantee G. T. P. bonds to an immense amount. So here we have a line from Moncton in New Brunswick to Quebec that cost $35,000,000, which must be absolutely abandoned, and the Borden plan of linking up the Intercolonial substituted. The Hon. George P. Graham agrees to this himself. People wonder at taxes. How can they be avoided when $35,000,000 can be thrown away without thinking twice about it, and this was the scheme the people approved of in 1904, when they turned the Borden contention down. From Quebec to Fort William is completed, with the approval of the president of the G. T. R. company, and yet that company refuses to take over the N.T.R. part of the enterprise because, of course, it won't pay, and the Laurier agreement provides no way of compelling them. If people will stand for this kind of thing, what wonder is it that bands of plunderers think the country a fair prey. Immense sums have been made by financiers out of this enterprise, and now they are about to step out and let the burden fall on the people.

More Floor Space for Dawson Bros.

Ice Cream Department Newly Remodelled and Enlarged

The general saying now a days is, Have you visited Dawson's newly remodelled ice cream parlor. Starting in a small store at the corner of George and London Sts., it was not long until it doubled its capacity and now almost the entire building os occupied by Dawson Bros. as a modern grocery and ice cream parlor. The above story sure proves that they have dealt fairly by the people and provided them with the goods and prices that give satisfaction. The lines that are handled in the grocery department meet the approval of particular people. Also it is known that in all lines of foodstuffs, The Dawson Bros. Grocery is quite capable of differentiating and even though there is only a slight difference in various lines of goods offered, this firm will choose the lines of the very highest quality.

Imported as well as domestic eatables are dealt in, and this concern handles the numerous sauces and pickled goods that are in demand by discerning people. Vegetables and fruits that are packed by well known canners are displayed on the shelves and it is apparent from the fresh appearance of the stock that there is a constant turn-over of goods and nothing stale is on the shelves or offered to customers.

The grand opening of their new commodious ice cream parlors will be held tomorrow when they will serve Toronto City Dairy Ice Cream free of charge for introductory purposes and this means a hearty invitation to all to be present.

arduous and trying but is carried on at times under most dangerous conditions. On one occasion her room in the hotel where she was staying was only one hundred yards distant from where the Germans were dropping bombs. She is looking well however judging from photographs which her parents have received and intends to stay with her task until the war is over and then six months additional.

Mr. and Mrs. Blewett received this letter Monday but as they motored to Toronto Tuesday night and only returned this afternoon it was impossible to obtain this extremely descriptive and interesting letter earlier.

DAVID HARUM.

The story of David Harum never grows old. As shown in moving pictures it is a delightfully refreshing portrayal of homely life, in which William Crane makes a decided hit as the leading character. It drew appreciative audiences to the Empire last evening and held undivided attention throughout. It will be here today and tomorrow, and if one has never read the book nor heard the story of David, it will pay them to see it before it leaves the city.

City Engineer Parsons Investigates Ald. Edgar's Complaint

Ald. Edgar's complaint that out of forty-six men working on the street paving none were residents of this city which was aired at the Board of Works meeting Wednesday evening has been investigated by City Engineer Parsons. He stated to The Review today that he found no justification for complaint and conditions on the street paving contract are the same as they have been the past month.

A young German named Hofoemaer, employed on a farm near Berlon, appeared on the streets of that city in an outfit closely resembling the uniform of a German soldier. He was counselled by the Chief of Police to wear this garb when plowing and wear civilian clothes in the city.

FRENCH PROGRESS TOWARD SOUCHEZ

Moved Forward Five Hundred Yards --- Violent Artillery Exchanges

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 15. — Today's official statement says: "There have been no changes in the situation since last evening in the sector to the north of Arras. Here, the fighting continues under conditions set forth in our last communication. We have progressed five hundred yards in the direction of Souchez. In this sector there have been violent artillery exchanges."

FAVOR COURT OF ARBITRATION.

LONDON, May 15. — The Exchange Telegraph Company has received the following message from Amsterdam: A telegram from Berlin states that the Vossische Zeitung announces that high government circles in Germany favor the submission of the question of the Lusitania's sinking and the difficulties with America arising therefrom to a court of arbitration.

THE ROLL OF HONOR.

The Review is desirous of publishing the names of all soldiers who are killed c wounded in battle. As private messages are often sent to relatives before the official lists are issued for publication, the Review will be grateful for any information that may be received. Please telephone No. 435. Letters from the men at the front are also desired and will be carefully used and returned promptly.

ALL MALE ALIENS IN SOUTH AFRICA TO BE INTERNED

German Property Suffered at Many Points in Union

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

CAPETOWN, MAY 15. — The government has decided to intern male aliens of the enemy nationality. General Botha has issued from Windhoek, the capital of German Southwest Africa, a message deploring the anti-German riots. Latest reports show that rioting has been of a most serious character. The damage through wholesale sacking and firing of German houses at Durban is estimated at a quarter of a million dollars, and the same tale of destruction on a large scale comes from other towns.

HONOR EX-CADETS.

St. Thomas, May 15. — At the meeting of the management committee of the Board of Education it was decided to erect a memorial in mmory of the ex-cadets of the Collegiate Institute who have fallen in battle in France. Three have already died on the field of honor, namely, Major Norsworthy, Corporal Hugh Somerville, and Captain G. Clarence Glidden.

GOLD MEDALIST IN CHEMISTRY

Mr. E. M. Porter Wins High Honor at Toronto College of Pharmacy

Local friends will congratulate Mr. E. M. Porter who has been successful in carrying off the Chambers gold medal in chemistry at the Ontario College of Pharmacy. He was third in the honor list and Mr. W. J. McDermid under whom he received his training is naturally very much pleased.

Mr. Porter is a son of ex-Reeve W. J. Porter of Otonabee.

Mr. G. E. Kidd of Warsaw is in the pass list. He was employed at Payne's drug store.

Another successful writer was Mr. M. R. icol of Norwood who passed with honors.

The Chambers' medal is also held by Mr. Claude Brady of Lynch's drug store.

DANISH VESSEL IS TORPEDOED

LONDON, May 15. — The Danish steamer Martha was torpedoed by a German submarine and sunk off Aberdeen today. The crew of 18 were saved.

BRITISH PUBLIC LOOK FOR BREAK BY ITALY

Russia's Ability to Deliver Counter Stroke Gives Confidence in Her Strength

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 15. — The British public is coming to the belief that Italy has finally reached a point of momentous decision in the matter of her relations to the Triple Alliance. Early today London was informed officially that Italy a week ago denounced this alliance. When this step failed to produce further concessions from Austria, there occurred the resignation of the Italian cabinet, and London is now awaiting news from Rome of a final break.

RUSSIAN POSITION MUCH BRIGHTER.

Observers here are of the opinion that the Russian situation is perceptibly brighter today. This despite the certainty that the Russians have lost heavily in men and ammunition in West Galicia. Confidence in Russia's strength is maintained because of their ability to deliver a counter stroke, as has been shown by their success in East Galicia and Bukowina.

PTES. McKINLEY AND WHITE ARE REPORTED AS MISSING

Judge L. M. Hayes Notified That His Son is Missing

LISTS FROM OTTAWA

Two more 57th men are reported missing, in private messages received today. They are Private Arthur White, Monaghan Road, and Private Sam. McKinley, whose mother resides on Margaret Avenue. Nearly fifty of the 126 officers and men who left Peterorough last August have been reported as either killed, wounded or missing.

An official report on Pte. Stuart Hayes says he is missing. All doubt as to the fate of Gunner O'Toole was dispelled last night when his father received a third message from Ottawa, confirming the report of his death from wounds.

Mr. R. B. Rogers received official word that Pte. Heber Rogers was missing. This telegram is not considered, however, as Lieut. Col. Rogers, who was on the field of action sent word that Pte. Rogers had been killed in action.

TWO 57TH MEN.

The soldier sitting is Private Arthur White, who is reported missing. His companion is Private S. Bucknell.

PTE. SAM. McKINLEY.

Pte. Samuel McKinley, a 57th man, is reported missing, in a message received today by his mother, who resides at 301 Margaret avenue, the family having moved from Wolfe street. Pte. McKinley was a member of the Salvation Army. He is unmarried. His brother William is with the 26th Battery at Kingston.

PTE. ARTHUR WHITE.

Pte. Arthur White, whose mother lives on Boundary Road, is also reported missing. He was a "pal" of Pte. Stan. Bucknill, of whom no recent word has been received.

PTE. HAYES MISSING.

Judge Hayes of Guelph has received a message from the adjutant general's department, Ottawa, stating that his son Pte. Stuart Hayes is officially reported wounded. This contradicts the report in a recent cable, that Pte. Hayes was among the killed.

Mr. Guy Popham received a telegram this morning from Judge Hayes, giving the contents of the official report.

Pte. E. Dummitt, Bolivar Street, who left with the 57th contingent did not take part in the fighting when so many Canadians fell. He had been assigned to other duty.

GUNNER WHITE.

Miss Ella White of Lakefield has been notified that her brother, Gunner A. White, had been wounded in the battle of Langemarck. Gunner White enlisted in the First Canadian Contingent in the telephone section, but after the contingent had reached France he was attached to the 3rd Field Artillery. Two other brothers are also serving their country in the Canadian contingents, Private Stanley White, who enlisted in the Third Contingent, and was one of those selected to go immediately to the front as reinforcements for the First Contingent, and Pte. Charles White, who enlisted at Calgary, Alta.

INSPECTION OF MILK VENDORS' OUTFITS

One of the results of educating milk dealers to take pride in their occupation was demonstrated this afternoon when 21 milk delivery waggons were lined up and inspected by Dr. Clinton, district health officer. The array was one of the most surprising character and demonstrated that the efforts along educative lines adopted by the board of health and Sanitary Inspector Spence were bearing fruit. Some nifty looking outfits were brought on, and the judging was based upon general cleanliness, efficiency and appearance. The committe, consisting of Dr. Clinton, Dr. C. H. Amys, Harry Winch, Roland Denne, and Mayor Buller, went over the whole 21 vehicles. Of thes, the ones owned by Wm. White, the Peterborough Pure Milk Co., and Wm. Dummitt looked to be in line for first, second and third places, respective-

DERNBERG TO LEAVE STATES

Will Sail for Cuba or South America

IS PERSUADED BY HIS FRIENDS

His Speeches Displease President and Cabinet

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, May 15. — Dr. Bernhard Dernberg, often referred to as the unofficial spokesman of Emperor William in the United States, has made plans to sail for Cuba or South America shortly. Friends have persuaded him to leave in view of intimations that his speeches seeking to justify the sinking of the Lusitania displeased President Wilson and the cabinet.

STORIES BY MEN IN LANGEMARCK FIGHT

WORK AMONG THE ESKIMOS

Rev. T. J. Peck Has Spent Many Years in Ice Plains

Peterborough is to be visited tomorrow by a man of remarkably interesting personality, who has lived a life full of unusual experiences, far from the home of the white man and civilization. The visitor is to be Rev. T. J. Peck, a man who might be called the Saviour of the Eskimos, for the best portion of his seventy years have been spent among the inhabitants of the great ice plains of the north. He went into that country bent upon bettering the life and customs of the Eskimos. How he has succeeded; his adventures in that frozen lonely land and many other exciting stories of his life will be related in the pulpit of St. John's Church tomorrow morning and evening.

Rev. Mr. Peck was a young man when he decided to throw in his lot with the Eskimos and live among them for the purpose of leading them out of their darkened ignorant life. He has emerged from his exile, healthy, virile, and vigorous at the age of seventy, with a repertoire of experiences stranger than fiction, but with the knowledge that the little people of Baffin's Land enjoy now some of the blessings of the white man's civilization and better than all a knowledge of the gospel.

Rev. T. J. Peck will likely remain over in the city on Monday.

THE LABOR TANGLE.

In going over the number of men employed by Foley and Gleeson, City Engineer Parsons has found several men who are hardly residents yet they are entitled to work. They are men who came to the city two years ago when paving operations first commenced and have resided here ever since. They have spent Peterborough money in Peterborough and therefore are entitled to the work.

Word has been received that a former popular young citizen of Cobourg, Alexander Webster Appleby was killed in a motor car accident in New York City.

Canadians Were All That Stood Between Germans and a Hole to Calais

Special Correspondence to The Review by Walter Curran.

Folkestone, April 29.—The wounded from the great battle in which the Canadians unquestionably saved the Allied armies at Ypres are coming to England by boat after boat. Splendidly equipped Red Cross trains meet these boats and the wounded are being sent to hospitals scattered far and wide over the country.

One of the most delightful hospitals in all England is the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital, which lies nestled in the valley of Cheriton, about four miles from here.

I had the privilege of interviewing there today three of the wounded from the great engagement. They were Capt. Hamilton Morden, Lieut. Geo. Smith, of Toronto, and Lieut. S. D. Armour, of Vancouver.

The first Canadians to get into the battle were the Montreal Highlanders. They were stationed near the French line and the sudden withdrawal of the Frenchmen left their flank in the air. They fought gallantly, but, as was inevitable in such a position, they had many men taken prisoners. There could be nothing grander than the way they fought back the Germans, subjected as they were to cross fire and assaulted by absolute hordes. The whole Canadian line had to bend back as the Germans were now on two sides of them.

It seems that the gas simply demoralized the French, and unquestionably they lost little time in making good their escape. They were blinded and choked and utterly muddled by the gas. The Germans took the Canadian 4.7 guns which were supporting the French line.

When evening came, the Canadians were all that stood between the Germans and a hole to Calais. As evening wore into night the Canadians prepared for a counter offensive. The action to recover the guns was commenced about two hours after dark.

The tenth from Calgary led the charge, supported by the Sixteenth Battalion from the Western coast.

FATHER OF LARGE FAMILY IS INSTANTLY KILLED

His Back Broken and Skull Fractured When Chain on Stump Puller Gave Way — Leaves Widow and Seven Children

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

An Englishman, Mann by name, and the father of seven children met a tragic death near Millbrook yesterday afternoon when engaged with another man in pulling stumps.

He was struck on the back of the dead and died almost immediately, his back being broken and his skull fractured.

A chain used on the stump puller gave way when the horses were pulling at their full strength. Mann was in a position that did not permit of his escape and the released part of the machine struck him with such force as to cause the fatal injuries above mentioned. Dr. Turner was called but the victim of the unfortunate accident was then beyond all human power.

He was a man of middle age and had been in this country only two or three years. His widow and large family is left in almost destitute circumstances.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1915

HASTY CRITICISM OF BRITISH NAVY.

SOME American naval officers think Great Britain has been outdone in submarine warfare, and state that Germany has completed over one hundred submarines since war began. It was well known that at the outbreak of war Britain was credited with having 49 submarines against Germany's 18. In destroyers, the figures were 191 against 124; in torpedo boats, 109 against 80. Britain was, thus, much superior, and it is doubtful if Germany could equalize this, even under the pressure of war. It is not known what disposition has been made of the British fleet, and Winston Churchill has intimated that no information will be given which would indicate what it is. The sinking of the Lusitania, which was unconvoyed, has led some to think Britain has been outdone, or otherwise such a vessel as the Lusitania would be guarded. This is only a surmise. No one knows, outside of the Admiralty, exactly what the British fleet is doing, but all the world knows that German commerce has been swept from the seas and that the German navy is afraid to show itself. Those two points demonstrate at once the effectiveness and supremacy of the British fleet and the impotence of the German naval forces. Nevertheless, there is no denying that Germany has made good use of her submarines, and has demonstrated the effectiveness of the under-sea craft, but Germany's success with submarines should be discounted to a certain extent by the greater magnitude of the task placed on the British navy. The public does not know fully what the navy has to do. The loss of even a great ship like the Lusitania does not point to ineffectiveness or its being outclassed so much as to the size of the job the British fleet has on its hands. In addition, the operations in the Dardanelles should be kept in mind, because a large number of British battleships are hammering down the great Turkish forts. Britain will afford all the protection she can to merchant ships, but it would be suicidal to weaken her war operations to protect her commerce. In the meantime, we have to await in patience further developments.

WHITE MOURNING SUGGESTED.

IT HAS BEEN suggested that white be worn instead of black by relatives of those killed in the war, because there is enough depression throughout the country without having a predominance of sombre colours. It has also been suggested that a white bandage worn on the arm would be as a mark of distinction and honour to the fallen. The suggestion has been approved by Major-General Hughes and the headquarters staff.

This matter should be left to the individuals concerned. To some it would appear ostentatious, while to others it would not appear as mourning, in view of the world-wide application of black. Still, the idea has much to commend it. White is used in connection with the obsequies of very young persons. Those killed in the war are, in most cases, young men in the full possession of their faculties and at the heighth of manly vigor, and so, white would be quite appropriate. They have died nobly and in very exceptional circumstances, which would warrant a distinction being made in honour of them by their relatives. White is a very appropriate colour, and would also signify the purity of the British cause for which so many have already died. However, the matter is one to be decided by those concerned, according to their own sincere feelings.

THE UNITED STATES WILL REMEMBER

WHAT SOME American newspapers think of Germany now is neither complimentary nor elevating. The fact that many Americans have been killed by violations of international law will likely cause them to remember German atrocities when Germany would prefer them to be forgotten. The following is an expression of opinion from the Springfield Union that is dignified and severe:

> "'With joyful pride we contemplate this latest deed of our navy,' exults the Cologne Volkszeitung. Any newspaper, published in any country pretending to be civilized, that can contemplate the savage murder of 1,200 innocent persons, many of them women and children, with joyful pride, has sunk to a depth of degradation and inhumanity almost impossible to conceive."

A HARD JOB.

MAJOR DONALD SUTHERLAND, who was wounded in the recent fighting in France, has been nominated as Conservative candidate for the House of Commons by the Conservatives of North Oxford. Major Sutherland is a doctor by profession and practises his profession at Princeton. "Don," as he is known to his friends, was born at Norwich, and educated at the Woodstock Collegiate Institute and the University of Toronto. He has always been an enthusiastic military man, and when war broke out was one of the first to offer his services. It is believed that he has undertaken an almost hopeless task to redeem North Oxford, that constituency having been Liberal from pre-Confederation days. When the Honourable James Sutherland represented the constituency he used to receive a majority of from twenty-two to twenty-four hundred. Major Sutherland will probably find it an easier task to take Berlin than to "tak' Zorra."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

BACK IN 1900, when Admiral Von Tirpitz had the German Navy Bill passed, the following statement appeared in the memorandum, says an exchange: "An unsuccessful naval war of even only a year would destroy Germany's sea trade, and would thereby bring about the most disastrous conditions, first, in her economic, and then, as an immediate consequence of that, in her social life. Quite apart from the consequences of the possible peace conditions, the destruction of our sea trade during the war could not, even at the close of it, be made good within measureable time, and would thus add to the sacrifices of the war a serious economic depression."

DURING the last four years the export of power from Canada to the United States by three of the companies engaged in this business has increased from 318,000,000 to 424,000,000 k.w.h. The amount of power supplied by the same three companies to be used in Canada actually shows a decrease for the same period.

A HAMILTON firm has been fined fifty dollars for omitting to place war stamps on their checks. This should be remembered by local business men. The law now requires a stamp on the check, and an omission of the stamp is an infraction of the law.

A MERCHANT in this city was able to display a basket of mushroms for which he had the boldness to ask three dollars and a quarter. To possess that basket of mushrooms is the highest ambition of a good many getting ten bucks a week.

SPEAKING of big ships going down in recent years, the order has been: Titanic, Volturno, 1912; Empress of Ireland, 1914; Lusitania, 1915. These disasters have occurred since builders began to build "unsinkable boats." It will soon be time to drop that phrase.

THOSE who travelled on the Lusitania and considered the dangers of war-time by taking out life insurance showed wisdom. Six million dollars is the reported amount of claims due because of the disaster, and of these Alfred G. Vanderbilt's claim is said to amount to $100,000.

TWO YEARS AGO the world was dumbfounded at the loss of the great ocean liner, the Titanic. — Orillia Packet. Evidently the editor of the Packet is getting old. It was in the spring of 1912 that the Titanic sank.

WE have just had to look up the difference between stationary and stationery. Words like these should have little headlights on them pointing to the right.

THE KAISER has been found guilty of murder —who will execute him? Possibly posterity will get square with him.

ACTIVITY in Otonabee shipping circles is apparent. We have observed several persons painting their canoes lately.

SONG OF THE SUBMARINE.

(Harry M. Dean, in New York Herald.)

I nose along with decks awash—
All hid by flying spray;
And carefully I search the sea
For ships on which to prey.
For none may know just when I come,
And none know when I go;
As quick as breath, as sure as death,
I send them all below.
Into her side my missile goes,
To wound her sore, and then
Like frightened sheep, into the deep,
Drop cursing, praying men.

Sing ho! for ships I've met and sunk;
Sing ho! my hearties, ho!
A great machine quick turned to junk,
Gone to a grave below,
Where silent things weave in and out
And ragged sea-weeds grow.

I nose along beneath the fog
That curtains all the sea;
A slimy eel, all made of steel,
A thing of mystery.
For none may see and none may hear
Nor learn my deadly hate,
Until they know the crashing blow
That shivers ev'ry plate,
As through her side my missile goes,
To wound her sore and deep;
And from her deck, a twisted wreck,
Her white-faced seamen leap.

Sing ho! for ships I've yet to meet;
Sing ho! my hearties, ho!
Pick and pride of some mighty fleet,
Gone at a single blow,
Down where the slimy sea-snakes creep,
Their evil eyes aglow.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

What Would Happen?

(New York Herald.)

What would have happened to the German submarine that sank the American steamship Gulflight if there had been an American warship within gunshot distance? And if what ought to have happened did not happen, what would have happened to the commander of that American warship when he happened to return to these shores?

Don't kick about the taxes. You may be on the city payroll some day.

Will the bobble skirt prevent a woman from jumping at conclusions?

Some Suggestions.

Oh, is there nothing I can do
To make the world seem brighter,
To help my fellow men along
And make their burdens lighter,
To drive old care away from where
It plays across the faces
Of those I meet in private life
And eke in public places?

I might lift sorrow from the slough,
Might cause some smile of pleasure
Across the faces of customers
By giving better measure.
I might cause happiness to be
Decked out with frills and flounces
By always weighing out with care
A pound of sixteen ounces.

I might cause joy to lighten up
The face that long had sorrowed
By paying back with interest
The dollar that I borrowed.
I might induce him to be gay
And cheerful as a plumber
By bringing back the garden tools
He let me have last summer.

It isn't, after all, so hard
To keep the gay life going.
Just open up your pocketbook
And do a little blowing.
Oh, there are many little ways
For any one who wishes
To scatter joy! He always can
Go in and wash the dishes.

Not Exactly.

"I hear your uncle has died and left you a fortune."

"No, that is not quite right."

"What is wrong about it?"

"Well, he wasn't my uncle, and he didn't leave me any money."

"Is that all?"

"No; he isn't dead either."

Make Him Prove It.

"Have you captured the culprit?"

"Yes. He has confessed."

"I wouldn't take too much stock in that unless he can bring corroborative evidence. Fellows of that kind are such liars!"

Cross Fire.

"I hear you are fired with enthusiasm for your new job."

"I was at first."

"Something wrong with it?"

"Well, the boss fired me with enthusiasm."

FIND TORONTO WOMAN'S BODY

Few Lusitania Corpses Expected Until Next Week

Queenstown, May 15—Twenty-eight additional bodies of Lusitania victims were brought in last night. One was a three months' old baby thought to be named Williams. The corpse of one Canadian, Mrs. F. A. Rogers, of Toronto, was identified. The bodies found had been washed to sea by the gale. All wore life-belts. Americans here are loud in praise of the eager efforts and honesty of the Irish fishermen who have worked through the storm for twenty hours at a stretch and have recovered many bodies bearing large sums of money. The search is being resumed for thirty miles alongshore, but few more recoveries are expected until Sunday, the ninth day, when bodies without belts may commence to rise, all with belts having been washed out by the gales.

Many Canadians Sail

New York, May 15—Bearing huge stores of arms and ammunition of war, the White Star liner Cymric sailed yesterday for Liverpool. The Cymric carries 570 passengers, not one of whom is American. They are mostly Canadians with a number of British. There were no cancellations and fresh bookings were made up to the hour of sailing.

Rockefeller's Income Tax

New York, May 15—John D. Rockefeller, it was said at the bureau of internal revenue yesterday will be called upon to pay this year nearly $4,000,000 as income tax. This is about 4 per cent. of the total which the government expects this year from this source of revenue. The annual income of Mr. Rockefeller varies from $55,000,000 to $65,000,000. Conservative estimates place his fortune at $900,000,000.

Glad to be Out of It

Washington, May 15—The consensus of opinion among those congressmen now in Washington is that there is no such emergency as will require the summoning of congress in special session. Senators and representatives are of one mind that if congress were in session the President would be embarrassed.

Crucifixion Verified

Northern France, May 15—There is reason to believe that the story of the crucifixion of a Canadian during the fighting about Ypres on April 22-23 is true. A written deposition testifies to the fact of the discovery of the body. This deposition is in possession of the British Headquarters Staff. The victim was a sergeant.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

The prisoner didn't say a word.

"But tell me, how did he get past the dog?"

"It's owner," explained the officer, "is a Wall street broker, and the poor dog didn't know the difference between the two at night.

Princess Mary, Daughter of King George of England.

© by American Press Association.

Since the European war broke out Princess Mary of England has been untiring in her efforts to aid the soldiers in France and their dependents at home. She was largely instrumental in gathering a fund before the holidays to purchase comforts for the men on the fighting line. Princess Mary, or May, as her brothers call her, is the pet of the royal family of England, although no longer a little girl. She will be eighteen next April and, of course, is quite grown up. The princess is the only daughter of King George V. and Queen Mary and has been brought up in quite an old fashioned way. She was taught to sew and is said to be an expert at embroidery. She has also studied the preparation of food and during her vacations at Sandringham was initiated into the art of making cheese and other dairy products. Quite unusual employments for a royal princess. But that is her mother's idea of bringing up a girl.

About Mythology.

In very ancient times the people believed in many gods. Jupiter was the king of all the gods, but he was very human. He had a wife, Juno by name, and they had a son called Vulcan. Vulcan was very strong, and he was the blacksmith of the gods.

It is said that when he was a child he displeased his father, and Jupiter in his anger hurled him from Mount Olympus. This fall caused him to be lame, but he grew to be large and powerful. He forged thunderbolts for his father, and he built the magnificent palaces in which the gods lived on Olympus. For his mother, Juno, he built a golden throne and for the sun god, Apollo, he made a golden chariot, and all his works were very beautiful. Vulcan had servants who were called Cyclops. They were queer looking giants, each with but one eye, placed in the middle of his forehead.

Now, whenever you see a picture or statue of Vulcan you see him with his tools about him, standing at his anvil, making a thunderbolt. He has muscular limbs and long hair and beard. Vulcan married Venus.

Venus was the goddess of beauty, and their child was Cupid, the god of love. For Venus, his wife, he wrought a delicate girdle which contained this magic—whoever wore it inspired love in all she met. Venus treasured it, although many requests came from other goddesses for the loan of it.—Chicago News.

Buried Fruits.

The name of one well known fruit is buried in each line.

1. Good things drop earthward to my care,
2. Fairies or angels send them there.
3. A cur ran to me on the street.
4. Done up in tape, a Chinese feat.
5. If I could not heap plenty, health
6. And fame, I'd shed a tear for wealth,
7. And mickle money I'd purloin—
8. A sequin, cent or other coin.
9. While drumming, rap each note, I pray;
10. It grieves me long to hear you play.

Answer.—1 pear, 2 orange, 3 currant, 4 peach, 5 apple, 6 date, 7 lemon, 8 quince, 9 grape, 10 melon.

Heard in the Kitchen.

"Why do you give me such black looks?" asked the range to the coal.

"Because," answered the coal, "I don't like the way you scorched Dora's dinner last evening, and I mean to make it hot for you."

The Spelling Match.

Ten little children standing in a line,
"F-u-l-y, fully," then there were nine.
Nine puzzled faces, fearful of their fate,
"C-i-l-y, silly," then there were eight.
Eight pairs of blue eyes, bright as stars of heaven,
"B-u-s-s-y, busy," then there were seven.
Seven grave heads, shaking in an awful fix,
"L-y-d-y, lady," then there were six.
Six eager darlings, determined each to strive,
"D-u-t-i-e, duty," then there were five.
Five hearts so anxious beating more and more,
"S-c-o-l-l-a-r, scholar," then there were four.
Four mouths like rosebuds on a red rose tree,
"M-e-r-y, merry," then there were but three.
Three pairs of pink ears, listening keen and true,
"O-n-l-e-y, only," then there were two.
Two sturdy laddies, ready both to run,
"T-u-r-k-y, turkey," then there was but one.
One head of yellow hair, bright in the sun,
"H-e-r-o, hero," the spelling match was won.

TOOK SIX MONTHS TO CAPTURE PARIS

Germans Carried Out Whirlwind Campaign in Former Clash With French

When the Prussians under Kaiser Wilhelm I. with Count Bismarck and Gen. Von Moltke, started the movement against Paris in 1870, the German troops met fierce resistance. It took the Germans six months to capture the French capital.

The first order to mobilize the Prussian army was given by Kaiser Wilhelm I. July 15, 1870. France declared war four days later. Three armies were put in the field by the Prussians. The first was under Gen. Von Steinmetz near Trever, the second under Prince Frederick Charles in the Reinish Palatinate, and the third under Crown Prince of Prussia on the frontier of Baden. Fifteen days after the mobilization order had been given, Prussia had 520,000 men under arms.

On Belgian Frontier

A line 100 miles long from Mountmedy on the Belgian frontier to Belfort, at the junction of the Swiss and German borders, was covered by an army of 350,000 men under Napoleon III. The French army was divided into eight army corps with Marshal MacMahon commander-in-chief, near Strassburg. Emperor Napoleon left Paris July 28 to take command at Metz, and Aug. 2 Kaiser Wilhelm with Count Bismarck and Gen. Von Moltke took the field with headquarters at Maniz.

Saarbrucken was attacked and captured Aug. 2 by Froussard. France was invaded by the German crown prince Aug. 4 He engaged the French under Douey at Weissenburg and drove them back after a terrific five-hour fight, in which the losses were heavy on both sides. Again two days later the crown prince engaged the French. This time he met MacMahon's men at Zabern, and forced them to retreat in disorder. Steinmetz, in the meantime, routed Froussard's corps at Spichern, driving the French back to Metz and Forbach.

Alsace Abandoned

Following these disastrous defeats the eight French corps were consolidated into two armies, one under Bazaine at Metz and the other under MacMahon at Chalons. It was shortly thereafter that the northern part of Alsace was abandoned, while the French retreated along the Moselle.

On Aug. 8 the crown prince left Worth to push on through the passes of Vosges to Nancy. He entered the city Aug. 16. In the meantime Steinmetz was the most active man in the German army. He took Forbach Aug. 7, St. Alvord Aug. 9, and on the 14th was near Metz. In the battle of Colombey-Noully, Gen. Von Moltke prevented the junction of the two retreating French armies.

Bent on the capture of Metz, Prince Frederick Charles took part of his army via Saarbrucken and part through Saargemund, and Aug. 16 drove Bazaine back on Crelorrw. He was defeated on the 18th and cornered in the fortifications at Metz.

Surrendered at Sedan

On Aug. 19 the Prussians formed a fourth army to move rapidly through the plains of Champegne to Paris. The crown prince of Saxony was placed in charge of this fourth command. One hundred and thirty thousand men were concentrated at Chalons under MacMahon to defend Paris. On Aug. 21 MacMahon moved to Rheins and, under orders from Paris, attempted to relieve Metz. His division was cut off by the Prussians at Sedan, surrounded and overwhelmed. He surrendered Sept. 2, being taken prisoner with the Emperor. The battle of Sedan was the most disastrous of the entire war.

The surrender of Strassburg came on Sept. 28 and Oct. 11 Gen. Vonder Tann occupied Orleans. Metz was surrendered by Nesaine Oct. 27, Gen. De Callasines in a heroic effort recaptured Orleans from the Prussians Nov. 10, but was defeated in a battle lasting from Dec. 2 till Dec. 4.

In vain, Gen. Ducrot tried to break the strong Prussian lines at Berle and on Dec. 29 the Prussians captured Mt. Vernon, one of the forts defending Paris. Rouen was captured by the Prussians December 6, and the French were overwhelmed at San Quentin Jan. 19. Paris finally capitulated Dec. 28.

CANADIAN VOLUNTEERS

How the Recruits Must Measure up Before the Sergeant

Following are the physical qualifications for Canadians volunteering for service overseas:

In the artillery the gunners have to be five feet seven inches or over and the drivers five feet three inches. The chest measurement must not be less than 34½ inches.

For the engineers the height for the sappers must be five feet four inches and over; for the pioneers five feet seven inches and [illegible] measurement must be the same as for the artillery, not less than 34½ inches.

The infantry's minimum height has been cut to five feet three incehs, and the chest measurement not less than 33½ inches.

In the Army Service Corps, horse transport, the height for drivers must also be five feet three inches and over and for the supply and military train branch the same. The chest measurement must be a minimum of 33½ inches.

In the Army Medical Corps the height and chest measurement must be the same and the age limit for all between 18 and 45 years.

THIS WILL NOT BE LAST GREAT WAR

Expert View as Expressed by a Neutral Observer

That the war in which the great European powers are now engaged will be short and decisive, and that it will not be so terrible as to make wars impossible in the future, is the editorial expression of The Army and Navy Journal of New York. The Journal says:

"The present war in Europe will not be the last war, as some are rashly predicting. As long as racial prejudice exists and until there is universal brotherhood, wars will occur. The treaties that will be signed at the close of the war will last until the vanquished have gained sufficient strength to attempt to regain their lost honor and territory. The war will be a short and decisive war. More men may be killed in battle but the percentage of the casualties will scarcely be larger than in former years. Owing to improved methods of sanitation and in training soldiers, the number of deaths from disease will be reduced to a minimum. The developments of modern implements of warfare will shorten the time of the war and reduce the amount of suffering and financial loss. Within a year Europe will be in peace again, and in a few years will have recovered almost entirely from the [illegible] be so terrible that in another crisis like this nations will refuse to go to war."

Bayonet Not Obsolete

It is a great mistake to imagine that the bayonet is obsolete, or that the days of hand-to-hand fighting are over. When an advance begins, it must go on. To stop is bad, to retreat fatal. The bayonet is relied on to push the charge right home, when the desired spot is reached. Whatever may have happened to the sword and the lance, the bayonet is as important to-day as it ever was. The mere sight of it in the hands of a British soldier is often enough to frighten an enemy.

Swiss in Canada

There are about four hundred men of the Swiss militia in Canada and almost 1,500 in the United States.

LATEST GERMAN MOVE THREATENS PRZEMYSL

Russian Retreat From Cracow to San River--- Counter-attacks Near Roumania---French Are Still Advancing.

London, May 15—The tremendous drive of the Austro-German armies under Gen. von Mackensen through Western Galicia continues unstemmed according to Berlin and Vienna yesterday. From being the besieger of Przemysl, the Russians now have turned to its defense, an official statement from Berlin says. The German war office claims that the forces under von Mackensen have pushed their pursuit of the Russian corps, defeated to the east of Cracow, until now their advance guards are before the fortress. The Russians also are in retreat from their positions at Kielee, Inowlodz and along the Pilica river, according to Berlin.

The Russians, it is reported, are developing counter-strokes, but these have not yet developed to a point where military men are willing to commit themselves on a prediction as to their success. The Russian official statement last night admits the German claims of an advance upon Przemysl. Petrograd announces that the Russians have fallen back to the river San, upon which przemysl is situated, with the object of shortening their front. The Grand Duke reports a very considerable success for the Russian offensive in the extreme southeast, asserting that the Austrians on Tuesday night evacuated one strongly fortified position extending from Bistritz to the Roumanian frontier, and fell back precipiately beyond the river Pruth. The Russians are in full pursuit. The Russians are also meeting success in the north in the direction of Shavli.

Berlin Belittles

In the west the allies are having the best of the fighting, especially to the north of Arras, where the French midnight official communique announces further progress. The weather in this section for the last day has been distinctly unfavorable. Heavy rains have fallen. Despite these handicaps, the French have pressed their gains to an appreciable extent, occupying a strong German trench southwest of Angres, on the Aix Noulettes-Souchez road, capturing additional positions on the eastern and northern slopes of the Lorette hills, and occupying more houses in the village of Neuville St. Vaast. Berlin, regarding this fighting, contents itself with the assertion that the day was comparatively quiet. The French hope by driving a wedge through the German lines in this section to open a conspicuous gap, a development which will necessitate the falling back of the Germans on a wide front.

While to the north of La Bassee the British are kept pretty well engaged on the defensive, they are keeping large numbers of Germans engaged, who otherwise would be available against the French offensive. The fighting around Ypres yesterday according to the German report, consited mostly in the repulse of several English attacks against the new German front. Berlin also claims some gains towards Hooge, along the Menin road.

Desperate Beyond Belief

Boulogne, May 15—One of the most violent actions of the campaign is taking place on the Armentieres-Arras front. The British in conjunction with the French have taken the offensive. The combat rages with terrible fury. The intensity of the fighting around Ypres is beyond belief. The German losses are terrifying but the Germans have not yet given up hope. At an early hour yesterday morning they made a very desperate stubborn massed infantry attack along the whole front from Armentieres to Arras. After being repulsed three times the Germans made a fourth attack. Finding this effort also useless they called to their aid poisonous gases. British troops were forced to give way in the face of the fumes but about mid-day we were once more well on the way to recover all the ground lost.

The German bombardment of the allied positions around Ypres continued yesterday followed by an infantry attack on one of the British divisions northeast of the town. This attack was handsomely repulsed. The allies have ample reserves near Ypres and the situation there is well in hand. Elsewhere along the front the British artillery carried out a continuous, deliberate bombardment. The British have caused a loss to the Germans of 10,000 men in the last few days. The plain before Ypres is a charnel house of German dead and the Britísh line is stronger than before.

Shot His Bolt

Petrograd, May 15—The Germans in the north have now all been driven to the westward of the River Dubissa. Their forces are much weakened. The invasion was permitted because the Russian general staff had determined to continue preparations for an advance in Poland, to frustrate Mackensen's movement eastward below Cracow. Gen Mackensen's army is now in a difficult position, exhausted and without fresh reserves. Russian cavalry hold both banks of the Vistula near its junction with the Nid and continue their successful flank attacks while Mackensen's infantry are engaged in frontal attacks along the Wisloka.

Dog Killed Rescuer

Ingersoll, Ont., May 15—A few hours after he was rushed to the hospital here, the death of John German of Beachville occurred last night from lockjaw. A week ago Thursday Mr. German had his hand lacerated by his dog, which he attempted to rescue from the wheels of a street car. He is survived by a wife and 13 young children.

London, May 15—The impression made here by the text of President Wilson's note is most favorable.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL'S DEEP REGRET EXPRESSED

At Death in Battle of Major Bennett for Many Years Township Clerk

At a special meeting of the North Monaghan Council, held at the home of the clerk, all the members of the council were present with the reeve in the chair. The reading of the minutes of the last meeting was dispensed with. A deputation was present, consisting of the following gentlemen: Messrs, Anglessey, Rowan, Boyle, who presented a petition to the council asking that a sidewalk be built on the south side of McGill Street from Lock Street to Park Street as local improvement.

Moved by Messrs. Forster and Rye that this council proceed with the construction of a cement sidewalk on the south side of McGill Street.—Carried.

Danger to Pedestrians.

Moved by Messrs. Rye and Bell that the clerk notify the Peterborough Agricultural Society that the plank platform at the ticket office on Lock St. is broken and dangerous to pedestrians and that the society should repair the same.

Mr. Forster reported having seen Ald. Green chairman of the Board of Works, Peterborough, who suggested that the council appoint a committee to meet a committee from the city to go over the boundary and lay out the work for the coming season. Moved by Messrs. Bell and Robson that the reeve and deputy-reeve be appointed a committee to act.

Regret Major Bennett's Death.

Moved by Messrs. Forster and Bell that the council of North Monaghan desires to express its deep regret that Major G. W. Bennett, a life long resident of the township and for many years clerk of this municipality has been killed in battle in Europe. Major Bennett was an excellent citizen, a big-hearted neighbor, and a first-class soldier and his death will be keenly regretted by hosts of friends as well as by members of his family to whom we tender our sincere sympathy. At the same time we wish to record our high appreciation of the self-sacrifice and heroism of Major Bennett who was one of the first to offer his services and his life in defence of the Empire and who gallantly and heroically fulfilled his whole duties, even to the supreme sacrifice of his life to assist in defeating the foes of England and of civilization.

That copies of the above resolution to sent to Mr. J. J. Bennett, Rink Street, and Mrs. Pope, Montreal, the only surviving members of the family.

Moved by Messrs. Forster and Rye, that the clerk secure a copy of plan No. 30 in order to report to the council on the sidewalk petition.

By-law No. 705 re maintenance of boundary road between Smith and Monaghan councils was read, and finally passed.

The above by-law provides for the maintenance of the boundary road by the two municipalities under the old agreement.

The following communications were received:—

From City of Peterborough in reply to question re grading King George Street.

From D. W. Dumble re opening of Cottesmore Ave.

From J. T. O'Connell, reply to notice to remove fence.

Moved by Messrs. Forster and Robson, that the motion received from the secretary of the Hydro-Electric Railway Association, a copy of which is placed on fyle be hereby approved and passed by this council and copies sent to Premier Hearst, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., Liberal member, and Mr. T. J. Hannigan, secretary of the Association.

Moved by Messrs. Robson and Rye that following bills be passed and paid:—

J. H. Bell, with team putting in two culverts, Western Ave.	$1 75
J. C. Morrow, putting in two culverts	.87
Lorne Morrow, putting in two culverts	.88
Herbert Windsor, same	.87
Total	$4.37

Moved by Messrs. Bell and Rye, that the reeve and deputy-reeve be appointed a committee to engage an engine to run the stone crusher for the present season.

Moved by Messrs. Forster and Bell that J. C. Morrow be appointed to run the stone crusher for present season at $2.25 per day.

The meeting then adjourned until the Court of Revision which will be held at the town hall, North Monaghan, on Thursday, May 27th, at 2 p.m.

PARK STREET CHURCH.

The Park Street Baptist Church will hold anniversary services tomorrow. The new pastor, Rev. Dugald Brown, will preach in the morning on the subject, "A New Testament Bible Church." In the evening a special anniversary sermon will be delivered by Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray Street Baptist Church. The services will undoubtedly be largely attended. Mr. Brown has already established a reputation in the city with those who have heard him, and Mr. Webb is much sought after as a preacher [illegible] services. It is expected that in the morning Mr. Brown will set up a new level for the Park street people to work for as a church, and at night Mr. Webb will lay down some essential principles for future success. Special music will be rendered at both services, and the yearly thank offering will be made by the church and congregation.

Coalition Cabinet With Salandra Out

Italian Crisis Enters Dark Troubled Phase --- Former Premier Giolitti's Mysterious Intrigues

Rome, May 15—Premier Salandra has insisted upon his resignation being accepted, and King Victor Emmanuel has entrusted Giuseppe Marcora, President of the Chamber of Deputies, with the task of forming a new Cabinet. After accepting the King's Commission, Signor Marcora had conferences with Premier Salandra, former Premier Giolitti and President of the Senate Manfredi. If he succeeds in his purpose, the Marcora Cabinet will contain representatives of all the opposing parties. These events have put a new complexion upon affairs as earlier refusals by the King to accept Salandra's resignation had quieted the populace, who anticipated that retention of Salandra meant the desired war speedily.

Shortly after noon here yesterday large crowds broke through the lines and invaded the chamber of deputies, demolishing stalls and breaking panes. The cavalry finally cleared the chamber. Interventionist deputies who were interviewed say that the coming sittings of parliament will be of the stormiest character. If necessary they are ready to lead in civil war.

Sensational revelations have leaked out which explain in a measure the unexpected resignation of the Cabinet and confirm the reports of Signor Giolitti's intrigues. It has been learned on the highest authority that the Italian government decided on May 3 to break off negotiations with Austria, hence the royal visit to Genoa on the occasion of the Garibaldi celebration there was abandoned. On the following day King Victor Emmanuel formally denounced the military convention attached to the alliances between Italy and Germany and Italy and Austria. As an inevitable result the Austrians and Germans residing in Italy considered war imminent and began to flee the country.

Paris Expects Italy In

Paris, May 15—The opinion here is that the Italian Cabinet crisis must be regarded as merely the last act of clever diplomacy on the part of Giolitti. Since the beginning the head of the most powerful party in Italy has played the part of neutralist with two purposes: First to draw Austria into admitting the principle of Italy's right to compensations; second to remain until the last the one man who if called to power might declare war without being accused of having deliberately worked for it. It is now expected that he will join the new Cabinet. When the triple alliance will be denounced before the opening of the chamber on May 20 is not decided; but the opinion gains that the new ministry which will take the form of a grand Cabinet will come before parliament with a "fait accompli."

The Lambton medical doctors have forwarded to the Government an offer of a hospital unit of 200 beds.

LAKEFIELD COUNCIL

Lakefield, May 15.—The regular monthly meeting of the council was held in the town hall on Monday, May 10th. The members present were H. G. Fitzgerald, reeve, and councillors Charlton, Griffin and Kennedy.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A communication from the secretary of the Board of Trade regarding the congestion at wharf were received and the clerk was requested to communicate with Federal member regarding same.

Other communications from vice-president of the Hydro-Electric Railway Association and from the Salvation Army were read and received.

Moved by Councillor Kennedy, seconded by Councillor Charlton, that the clerk be another to hereby authorized to issue permits to parties within the fire limits for building and repairs so long as such permits for building and repairs are carried and made within the meaning of the fire by-law.

Moved by Councillor Griffin, seconded by Councillor Charlton, that the council meet as a Court of Revision at the next regular meeting, June 14th, at 7 o'clock. Moved by Coun. Kennedy, seconded by Coun. Griffin, that the tender of W. H. Stabler, being the lowest (at $34.00 per month) for street watering be accepted, the council to have the privilege of terminating the contract at the end of the first or any other month.—Carried.

The Finance Committee presented the following report and recommended payment of same:—

J. H. Davis, repairs	$1.50
W. Fenocio, labor	3.00
D. E. Edwards, labor	3.00
Hugh Miller	6.30
Isaac Watson, labor	.75
Fred Dunsford	.75
Ira Lennox	.75
Electric lights, April acct.	59.37

Moved by Coun. Kenendy, seconded by Coun. Charlton, that the report of the finance committee be received and adopted.—Carried.

INSPECTION OF MILK

ly Mr. White's outfit and Mr. Dummitt's were practically alike, while Mr. Gillespie's, though somewhat similar, looked to answer up to all requirements. Not only were the outfits judged, but the owners as well.

This is the first exhibit of its kind in the city and Dr. Clinton stated to a reporter that it was a pleasant surprise to him and indicated the intelligence and prosperity of Peterborough milk dealers and dairymen.

Mr. F. Roy took some good photos of the exhibit.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Such is the statement of Mr. A. O. Norton, of Boston, the largest Jack Manufacturer in the world. His voluntary testimonial regarding ZUTOO follows:

286 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

"I have been a sufferer from Headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all the so-called 'cures' on the market. Some months since my attention was called to Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a 'sick' or 'nervous' headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effects. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

They had to make a thousand yards across a flat field with the Germans onfilading them.

"One's feelings are very similar to those that you would have under any very pressing circumstances. You are so occupied looking after the men that you haven't time to think of being nervous. Once in a while when one drops in your immediate vicinity you think, 'Well, that was a close one,' and continue with your work. When we were about half way across the space our fellows, who are all big fellows (the minimum height is 5 feet 7 inches, you know) overtook the Tenth. We were so shot to pieces by that time that we had to re-form our lines—not because they were wavering, but to spread the remaining men out to the best advantage.

"The men were absolutely splendid. Greater courage in the face of a devastating fire could not have been shown. I was shot in the stomach and fell at this time and did not take part in actually regaining the guns. Yet, the pain was severe. Every officer has morphine tablets for the men. I took one and it eased the pain a little. I remember looking at my watch at that time. It was shortly after one o'clock.

"Anyone who tells you the Germans are all in and that the war is about to be over is mistaken. The Germans are wonderfully equipped with munitions, and are wonderfully good shots, both with artillery and rifle.

"Yes, it is lots of fun out here, but the Germans really got quite nasty and knocked all the fun out of it. They also knocked the spots off of poor old Ypres. It was a town of about twenty thousand. It is now a desolate waste."

Capt. Morden's and Lt. Smith's regiments came into action the following morning, supporting the tenth and sixteenth, and to the left. They were about five miles behind the firing line but made a move in the early hours. They went into action about eight a.m., and were at it until four in the afternoon. The Fourth Battalion were in a most exposed position and their losses were very great. Ross Binkley, the famous Argonaut and Tiger football player, was killed by a Jack Johnson before the action started. Bill Jarvis was killed leading his men in the height of the battle.

The fight was similar to that which Lt. Armour had gone through the night before, excepting that it was daylight.

"I wasn't nervous. I don't think I was excited. I was just awfully busy. A chap hasn't time to get nervous when he has a company of men depending on him. When I was first shot I hardly felt it. I felt a thud thud as the bullet entered and left but nothing more at first. Of course, I could not stand up so I had to lie there.

"Shells were bursting all around us. It is wonderful how so few deaths result. Occasionally of course, one takes a tremendous toll. I escaped and was taken back and fixed up.

"The gas was not strong enough to bother us particularly and we were really up against legitimate fighting. The German artillery was right up behind their trenches, and they let us have it from all manner of engines."

Capt. Morden, who had just been operated on a short time before, gave the above. We hope to get a fuller story from him and Lt. Smith, whose leg was rather painful, by next mail. Both men are doing splendidly and should make a complete recovery.

A great source of trouble is the fact that all the German bullets are septic and the wounds become festered. An operation is thus necessary to clean it up.

One of the most discussed men in the hospital is Captain Ogilvie, of the Ogilvie Milling Co., of Montreal, who is with the Princess Pats. A bullet hit somebody else's periscope in the trench on Sunday morning, and the broken glass was shot into the Captain's arm. It is a painful wound, but not a serious one.

WEDDING BELLS

ALLEN—HARTLEY.

At George street Methodist parsonage on Tuesday evening Miss Eva Verna Hartley, only daughter of Mr. William Hartley, 630 George street, became the bride of Mr. William Allen, son of Mr. Hubert Allen, of Peterborough. The young couple were unattended. The groom is a soldier, and is one of the Third Contingent at Belleville selected for overseas service. The young couple will receive the heartiest congratulations of their hosts of friends. The bride was formerly with the Bell Telephone Company and exceedingly popular, while the groom is also a widely-known young man.

$40,000 FOR HOSPITAL

Canada's Gifts of Men Also Increase — Americans Would Enlist

Toronto, May 15—Recruiting has been considerably increased during the last week in Toronto and all over the second division. Forty recruits were sworn in here last night, and the officers have their hands full and hardly know what to do with the men coming in from the United States and begging to be taken on at once.

Word has just come from Mr. A. C. Hardy of Brockville of a splendid donation of $40,000 towards the Toronto University Base Hospital.

Following the voluntary closing, for the present, of the two German clubs in Toronto, the Liederkranz and Deutscher Verein, the Ontario License Board yesterday cancelled the liquor licenses. They may apply for licenses after the war.

The midnight list added: Died of wounds: Pte. Chivas, London, Ont.; Gunner Hale, Toronto; killed in action: Pte. McDiarmid, Thurso, Que., and Pte. Holland, Prince Rupert.

Ottawa, May 15—Missing in the 2nd Battalion is Private Alder Eardley Bliss, of Ottawa, grandson of the late Bishop Du Moulin of Niagara, who was for many years rector of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto. The night list includes many suffering from gas fumes and many Patricias' wounded. In the sixteenth battalion the killed in action include Ptes. Robins and Carrol, Hamilton.

A Pound of Cure.

"My son," said the family man, "is anxious to become a pugilist. I'm doing my best to prevent him."

"Let him go ahead," said the friend of the family, "and have some one pound him. You'll find a pound of cure worth more than an ounce of prevention."—Philadelphia Record.

GERMANY TO COMPROMISE

United States Will Still Sell Munitions and Save Citizens

[illegible] Washington, [illegible] the main point [illegible] of the United States will be [illegible] substantially as follows: Germany will yield to the demand of the United States to this extent: She will agree to discontinue her submarine warfare against passenger vessels on condition that the United States see to it that passenger vessels, neutral and belligerent alike, do not carry arms or ammunition or any other kind of munitions of war. Ordinary contraband, such as foodstuffs, will not come under the ban. Thus the United States will continue to sell munitions at the allies' risk and Germany will not risk American friendship by having to destroy lives of American passengers. It is believed here that this compromise will be effected after considerable diplomacy.

Marvelous Activities.

A diner in a restaurant thought he would have a joke with the waiter and asked him if he had ever seen a sausage roll.

"Say," said the waiter, "I have not only seen a sausage roll, but I have seen a biscuit box, a table spoon, a chimney sweep, a chain link, a nose gay, a camera slide, a garden fence, a sword fish and a wall flower."

Saving His Strength.

Mr. Bunker—I've walked at least twenty miles playing golf and—

Mrs. Bunker (breaking in) — I don't doubt it, and yet you made an awful fuss this morning when I asked you to step down cellar and bring up a pail of coal for me.

Mr. Bunker—Well, did you imagine I was anxious to tire myself out carrying coal when I knew I had that long walk ahead of me?

Might Be All Right.

Philosophers tell us to brighten the world with smiles, which would be all right were there not so many people who are happy only when they have something to make them sob.

GERMANY AND AMERICA

Situation Has Many Interesting Sides

New York, May 15—The press generally of Great Britain, France and the United States, which has made any comment at all, seems satisfied with President Wilson's note to Germany. Several German papers in the United States protest, and The New York American sees danger in it. The remainder of the press has nothing but praise for the note. British papers are making little comment at present.

Full approbation of President Wilson's note to Germany was given last night by Former President Taft, speaking to 900 men at the dinner of the Methodist men of New York. Underlying the speeches of Admiral Fletcher, Assistant Naval Secretary, Roosevelt and Rev. Lyman Abbott at the Navy League banquet here last night was the feeling that the United States navy was in a deplorable state for such a time of crisis. President Wilson comes here to-day to review the Atlantic fleet and a nicely-timed agitation for a bigger navy is on. President Wilson is under special guard because of wild German threats. The President is said to be greatly relieved since the dispatch of the note.

One Way to Sell a Horse.

During the Peninsular war, when the British army was in front of the enemy, Colonel Mellish appeared mounted upon a wretched steed, which provoked the derision of his fellow officers.

"It isn't worth £5," one of them remarked.

"I'll bet you £50 I get over £40 for him," said the colonel.

"Done!" exclaimed the other.

The harebrained colonel immediately rode off in the direction of the enemy, who, of course, fired upon him. Nothing daunted, the colonel continued to advance until his horse was killed under him, when he hastily freed himself and returned to the British lines, where he promptly claimed the wager.

The money was handed over to him by the other unlucky officer, for the government then allowed a sum of £45 for every officer's horse killed in action.—London Globe.

HIGH COST OF ACTING.

Salaries of the Past as Compared With Those of Today.

Our imaginations are so nimble in this world of dollars that we have already ceased to notice the bagatelle of a vaudeville salary of $3,000 a week, such as some of our actresses are said to have received. We are already calculating on the salary of the future. The salary of the past was not so ambitious. It was a thing to worry over, not to speculate upon.

In the late fifties of the last century Mrs. Drew and her mother received $16 a week for the two. Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gilbert received the same sum. At this time the custom was to give two plays a night, with singing and dancing between. The regular actors also did these specialties. They supplied their own wardrobes as well, and as the theater going public was smaller there was necessarily a constant change of bill. The $16 was undoubtedly well earned.

The first person to receive a salary of three figures was Rose Eytinge, the most popular emotional actress of her time. Her first salary as leading woman had been $25, and at the time she considered it a great sum, for she had started on the stage at $7 a week.

Hamlet called the players "the abstract and brief chronicles of the time," and indeed in no other business today do we find so clearly the characteristics of our age. No other profession is more overcrowded or more of a gamble, yet those members of it who succeed in finding engagements should have little complaint to make against the high cost of living, with such changes in their remuneration within our memory.—New York Tribune.

Not a Square Deal.

Miss Mason was explaining to her Sunday school class the lesson for the day, the subject being the tares and the wheat.

"Now, remember, children, the tares represent the bad people and the wheat the good ones."

"Why, Miss Mason!" exclaimed a rosy cheeked boy, who had been listening through the lesson with deep interest. "Did you say the tares are the bad folks and the wheat the good ones?"

"Yes, James," replied the teacher, pleased at the lad's interest.

"Well, that's funny, I think!" remarked the matter of fact child. "It's the wheat that gets thrashed; the tares don't."—Country Gentleman.

Fishery Overseer Was Threatened

On Monday, Joshua Nurse, of the township of South Monaghan, appeared before Police Magistrate Davidson on two charges. On Sunday, April 25, Fishery Overseer W. H. Thompson caught Nurse fishing with a net on Rice Lake. Nurse, who, his counsel, G. N. Gordon, of Peterborough, described as a high tempered man of peculiar habits, said to Thompson: "Come up on the bridge and I will kill you," at the same time picking up a stone and throwing it at Thompson. Nurse also told Thompson that his neighbors had threatened to mob him. On this charge Nurse was bound over to keep the peace for a year, two neighbors putting up sureties of $150 each. He is also to pay the costs. On the charge of illegal fishing he pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs or ten days in jail. He paid the fine and costs of the two cases.—Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

Sewing Wounded Hearts.

A Russian surgeon named Zeldler reports 31 patients who recovered from stab wounds of the heart in the hospital at Obuchow. Prompt and rapid operation is the probable reason for this good showing.

The patients were all put under the influence of ether very soon after the injury, part of the chest wall was removed, the heart lifted from its bed, and the stitches quickly introduced between pulsations. The bony chest wall over the heart was not put back in place, that organ being left covered only by skin and muscle. This was done to give the heart room to expand and to prevent adhesions from embarrassing the heart's action. Several of the patients are at their daily work after seven years since the operation.

Guides To Success.

In picking out your career consider the things you like to do, the things you can do best. FRITZ THADEN IS CONVICTED OF CONSPIRACY

Boxes Which Contained Arms Were Sent to Officer of German Army

Calgary, May 15.—Fritz Thaden, a German settler of the Hussar colony, was this morning found guilty of a charge of aiding one Von Wissman, an officer in the German army, by sending him boxes which contained arms after war between Great Britain and Germany had been declared. Mr. Justice Walsh, who delivered judgment in the criminal court, found him not guilty in aiding one Krull, a German reservist, to return to Germany.

In postponing sentence until Friday, May 21, the judge said that he did so because he desired that the man should be punished for the offence he had committed and for that alone, and that he felt so strongly over the unspeakable infamy of the prisoner's fellow countrymen in sinking the Lusitania that he thought he should not sentence him there and then.

"I am administering British justice in a British court" said his lordship, "and I do not want a suspicion of revenge for that awful brutality to be connected with the sentence I shall give this man."

Judgment Delivered.

Mr. Justice Walsh, reviewed the evidence in the case, and in dealing with the first charge of sending money to the reservist Krull, came to the conclusion that conspiracy, if there was any, was entered into before the war started between Great Britain and Germany, and that therefore he must find accused not guilty.

On the second charge of sending boxes to Von Wissman, an officer of the German army who had reached Germany, he said the prisoner took a grave responsibility because he knew who Von Wissman was, had a letter from him from Germany, so that in sending him his effects and a firearm he was helping him, and for that he had to take responsibility and had committed an offence. Upon these grounds he was convicted, and addressing counsel for the prisoner, the judge said:—

Sentence Postponed.

I do not propose to sentence this man this morning, and my reasons for doing so will doubtless commend themselves to you, Mr. Culbert. The horror of the unspeakable infamy of this man's fellow-countrymen in sinking the Lusitania is so strong upon me that I think I should not do so. I am here to administer British justice in a British court of law, and this man must be punished for the crime he has committed and for that alone. I do not desire a shadow of suspicion that in passing sentence on him there should be any idea of revenge for this awful evil his countrymen have committed brought on his head. I have therefore decided to remand him for sentence until Friday, May 21, at 10 a.m.

GOOD TEAM FOR HOLIDAY GAME

Riversides of Toronto to Play Here May 24th

John Sutherland, secretary of the local lacrosse club, has received the following letter from E. H. Sullivan, secretary of the Riverdale Lacrosse Club in regard to the Riverdale-Peterborough game here on the 24th of May:

"We are fully aware that we are to play an intermediate team, and feel positive in stating that we will give you a good game. We have been up against intermediate teams before, and have always made a good showing. As you are no doubt aware the Riverdale lacrosse team was only beaten out last year by St. Catharines after two strenuous games, and, taking into consideration the fact that we have practically last year's team in addition to several new-comers, I cannot see why we should not be able to give your intermediate team a 'good run for the bacon.' The boys are practising hard, and I'm sure our showing on May 24th will corroborate the above statements."

STAN. CRESWELL WITH BRANTFORD

Brantford, May 15.—Pitcher, Higgins has reported, and the worries of the Brant management about the pitching staff are now at an end. With Warner, Worfel, Nickel, Higgins, Crothers and Creswell all in line, and all in pretty fair condition, the twirling department appears to be on a par with the balance of the team, and that is saying a good deal.

The infield is going great guns, Fried, Mullin and Dunlop being a classy combination, while even "Rube" Deneau is showing a lot of "pep" around first base. Burill, Green and Brooks will likely constitute the outfield.

A letter received at Barrie from Sergt. Robert E. Smith, wounded in the battle of Langemarck, states that his injuries are slight, and that he will soon be back in the fighting line.

COMMENT

As You Like it

WALTER TRUMBULL of the New York World says:—

Anthony F. Wilding, of New Zealand, has been killed in the battle of the Dardanelles. There is no doubt that in the game of war he displayed the same coolness, the same calm courage for which he was noted in other games. As a matter of fact, we believe that he had already won promotion for bravery under fire.

Wilding was an all-around athlete. One of the greatest tennis players in the world, he was also a fine golfer, a skilful racing driver, and an aeroplanist. There was hardly a branch of sport in which he could not make a showing with the best.

He had the keen brain coupled with the stout heart and the endless patience which make for the top in any form of athletics. His will be a hard place to fill.

He suffered few defeats in life, and it seems a tragic pity that in the prime of his manhood he should have been forced to play with Death and to lose the game.

The game of life is ended;
Called by the umpire, Death;
Called on account of darkness,
Night falls with chilling breath;

Yet, when the coming morning
Scatters all doubt and pain,
We'll meet, clasp hands together
And play the game again.

FRANK NELSON, the sporting editor of the Toronto Globe, writes as follows on the King's Plate:—

The King's guineas will be run for this year under circumstances unprecedented in more respects than one, and it is doubly unfortunate that general interest cannot be concentrated, as in former seasons, on a race which includes the best material that has furnished the Plate competition in a score of years, if not in its whole history. The year of the great war finds Canadian breeders offering a lot of horses that represent the results of a steady improvement [illegible]

So many good horses are found among the entries for this year's race that the unique condition exists of practically no choice among about eight owners, though this is written only a week before the decision of the event, and all of the prominent candidates were seen in action last season. The winner may carry the colors of Messrs. Dyment, Seagram, Hendrie, Giddings, Crew, Millar, Dolan or Krausmann, and at this moment there is little to choose among them.

Character Shown by the Nose.

"Here is an article in the paper that says a woman's character can be determined by her nose."

"Well, there may be something in that, but there's a surer way. No one can make a mistake concerning a woman's character if he will look at the noses of other women who meet her. The extent to which they turn up at such times shows just what she is or isn't."—Exchange.

QUEEN MARY SENIORS DEFEAT CENTRAL NINE

Snappy Game in the Senior Series of School League

In the second game of the senior series of the Public School Baseball League played at Central School yesterday evening, the Queen Mary team defeated the Central school team by a score of 8 to 5. The game was snappy and showed up some really good baseball material amongst the boys. The battery for the Queen Mary team was Soden and Batten and for the Centrals Ward and Frost. Mr. B. Taylor umpired in a satisfactory manenr.

ALLIANCES OF CENTURY

Political Exigencies Have Caused Many Changes in Europe

In the history of Europe during the past century nothing is more curious than the easy way in which national alliances have been made, broken, made again and changed as dynastic, economic and racial reasons have demanded. Here are a few of these political transformations:

In 1815 Russia, Prussia, England and Austria combined against France and crushed the power of Napoleon for ever.

In 1849, when the revolution in Hungary threatened the house of Hapsburg in Austria, Russia intervened and by force of arms placed the present Emperor Frances Joseph firmly upon his throne.

In 1855-6 England, France, Austria and Italy allied themselves with the Turks against Russia in the Crimean war.

In 1859 France defeated Austria in Italy, and gave a great impetus to the unification of Italy.

In 1866 Prussia gave its present ally, Austria, a fearful beating at Sadowa and forced it out of first place in the Germanic confederation.

In 1870 Prussia inflicted upon France the defeat, with accompanying loss of territory, that has been the cause of Europe's unrest ever since.

In 1877 Russia defeated the Turks decisively, but was cheated out of the rightful fruits of her victory by a combination of the other powers in the treaty of Berlin.

Old enmities and friendships are now forgotten, and those old-time enemies, England and Russia, are allied with France in the Triple Entente.

DIAMOND FOR KNUTE BELTING

A letter has been received from Knute Belting, who is in Ottawa, Ill., hurling for the manager he first played under in his first professional appearance. Knute says he's going well and in strong. The opening day he was presented with a diamond ring. As yet he has not signed a contract. He is willing to place his name on a one-year contract, but the club wants to tie him for three years.

Antevolo Rysdyk Will Come to Peterboro'

Champion Standard Bred Stallion Will Stable at The Windsor Hotel

Horsemen in this district will be pleased to learn that Mr. S. A. Devitt of Lindsay has arranged to bring his champion standard-bred stallion, Antevolo Rysdyk, 51-53950, to Peterborough, once a week. This horse, which will be stabled at the Windsor Hotel, Brock Street, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week, won the championship at the Toronto, Ottawa and Guelph fairs in 1913. These honors were never won before by any horse in Canada as a three-year-old. He is a brother of "Gallagher," who had a track record of 2.03 ½. Antevolo Rysdyk has never been marked up, but he has shown just as much speed as any of his illustrious relatives.

The route is as follows:

Will stand at Maunder's Hotel, Lindsay, from Friday noon until 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Tuesday will proceed to Peterborough by G. T. R., arriving at 11 a.m., where he will stand at the Windsor Hotel, Brock street, until 9 a.m. on Thursday.

Thursday, will proceed to Wm. Hooten's, Lot 18, Con. 12, Cavan, for noon, thence to Commercial House, Omemee, for night.

Friday, will proceed to his own stable, Maunder's Hotel, Lindsay, where he will remain until the following Tuesday morning.

Mr. F. Waters, of Guelph, has received official notification that his son Corporal W. W. Waters of the 5th Battalion had been wounded.

The new St. James Church at Elmira, started last year, has just been completed, and dedicatory services were held on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

THE RED CROSS WHAT IT MEANS

The Red Cross Society was incorporated as the Canadian Red Cross Society by act of Parliament of the Dominion of Canada in 1909 and thus became the official channel of communication as between the public of Canada, the British Red Cross Society, and the Department of Militia and Defence of Canada, for the purposes of furnishing aid and assistance to the sick and wounded in war.

Although not incorporated until 1909, it was really organized in 1896 by Col. Geo. Sterling Ryerson, and thus was ready for active work when the call came to Canada to assist the Empire in South Africa.

* * *

Last August shortly after war was [illegible] declared with Germany His Royal Highness, the Governor General, summoned a meeting of representatives of the Militia Department, the Red Cross Society, and the St John's Ambulance Association and Brigade. To these were shortly added the ladies representing the National Service Committee, consisting of presidents of the organized women's societies of Canada, at first known as the Hospital Ship Committee.

* * *

This committee organized by the Duke of Connaught is called the Central Relief Committee of Canada." To the Red Cross Society was assigned the task of raising necessary funds for all work on behalf of sick and wounded soldiers during the war, while the National Service Committee undertakes the work of collecting and forwarding funds and supplies for our soldiers in camp or on the field. Two of these committees, the Red Cross Society and the National Service Committee, have their headquarters in Toronto at 77 King St. East, Col. Hon. James Mason, Senator, being general treasurer and William Lowe, Esq., being con- [illegible] secretary of the Red Cross Society.

* * *

The Red Cross Society has the proud distinction of recognition under international law, as the authorized channel through which all voluntary aid for the sick and wounded shall go, and alone has the right to use the red cross. Its officers are in constant attendance at the office, and its executive meets weekly since the war began, and is fully organized to transmit money and supplies from Canada to London, the actual seat of war.

It has already sent forward about one and a half million articles for the sick and wounded. These articles are all sent free of charge direct to the Red Cross depot in London for distribution or have been given to the Canadian contingent hospitals.

* * *

The Red Cross Society in Ottawa are equipping sixty cots in the Canadian Base Hospital at Cliveden, and the Daughters of the Empire of the same city have sent through Lady Borden $2150 for the equipment of forty-three cots, each cot costing fifty dollars. Mrs. R. M. Waddell of this city has equipped one, and the Red Cross Society is hoping in the near future to make it easy for the children of the city to equip another.

The Red Cross Society work should appeal to every Canadian, first in the field it carried comfort and help to our wounded Canadians on the veldts of South Africa, and now it is the official medium through which supplies are distributed to every hospital in France and England. The widow's mite and the millionaire's cheque are equally welcome and will be faithfully applied. We bespeak for our local branch of the loyal support of our citizens on its coming tag day, next Saturday, May 22. Patronize our ladies when you meet them with their red cross boxes.

Refused License.

The Provincial License Commission has refused a liquor license for the Baltimore hotel at Cobourg.

The following ladies will be in charge:—

Saturday—Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. Travers and Miss Pearce.

TAG DAY FOR RED CROSS.

Thousands of sick and wounded soldiers are being saved through the work of the Red Cross. This society is being called upon as never before in the world's history. The work of this great institution must never be hindered for lack of funds. The citizens of Peterborough will be given an opportunity to contribute to this grand cause, as the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society are arranging for a tag day next Saturday, May 22nd.

PRICES ARE CUT.

W. M. Pappas, proprietor of the Royal Theatre, has decided in wartime to charge his patrons only five cents admission at afternoon performances, beginning Monday.

PERSONALS

City Solicitor Gordon was in Toronto yesterday on business.

Miss L. Tobin, Queen's '12, is visiting Miss Madge Lees, 514 Gilmour Street.

Miss M. McMillen of Richard Hall & Son, Ltd., has returned from Toronto, where she has been attending the training class given by the H. W. Gossard Co. in the King Edward Hotel during the past week.

The Canadian Kitchener League has received material sufficient for five thousand respirators, and the ladies of the city interested in this work are invited to attend the meetday at 8 p.m. in the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Cameron will address the ladies.

OBITUARY

MR. J. D. TULLY.

One of Peterborough's most widely known citizens and veteran druggists died at three o'clock this morning in the person of J. D. Tully, 352 McDonnel street. He had been in feeble health for some months, and had been failing ever since last summer. For over forty-five years he carried on a drug business in the city, and was about the first druggist to establish in the city. His first place of business was next to Lech & Sons', about where the Tiz-It Theatre now stands. He sold out to C. M. Moncur about four years ago and retired. Mr Tully was a citizen who was popular with all who enjoyed his acquaintanceship, and his business principles were of the most upright and straightforward character. He passed peacefully away at three o'clock this morning.

He is survived by his wife, one son and one daughter, Victor, of Belleville, and Ethel, of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery.

LIEUT. R. D. PONTON.

Lieut. R. D. Ponton has been promoted to the rank of Captain following the reorganization of the Second Battalion after the battle of Langemarck. It will be remembered that in the terrific fighting in this great contest, the company in which Lieut. Ponton was serving, lost half its officers. This early promotion to so young an officer is a striking tribute to Lieut. Ponton's thorough [illegible] in the field and popularity with the men.

THE GREAT NORTH LANDS.

The Rev. E. J. Peck, the heroic missionary of the great north land for so many years among the Eskimos, has kindly consented to give an address on his life's work, illustrated by limelight views, in St. John's schoolroom, Monday, at 8 p.m. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

SEALED TENDERS

Sealed Tenders marked "Tenders for Fuel" and addressed to the undersigned will be received until 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, May 26th, for 600 tons or more of soft coal to be either select ¾ lump Youghiogheny or smokeless coal, to be weighed on the market scales, and to be delivered to the different schools as required.

KITCHENER LEAGUE CONCERT.

The concert given last evening in the Y.M.C.A. under the auspices of the Canadian Kitchener League realized over $30.00. The amount will be used by the League to purchase cigarettes, gum and other comforts for the soldiers at the front. Mr. C. N. Meserve of the Y.M.C.A. staff, acted as chairman. The following program was well received:—

Quartet—Saxaphone.
Solo—Soldier Lad—Miss Stevens.
Piano solo—Polonaise — Chopin —Mr. Treneer.
Solo—Angus MacDonald — Miss McLaren.
Solo—Mr. Weller.
Recitation—Selected—Miss Hill.
Solo—Selected—Mr. A. Costello.
Solo—Selected—Miss Richardson.
Piano Duet—The Bugle Call — Misses McDonald, Carveth.
Solo—His Majesty's King—Mr. D. Carlisle.
Solo—Selected—Mr. Moynes.
Duet—Mandoline, popular airs—Cranfield Bros.
Solo—Selected—Miss Hanson.
Solo—The Toilers—Mr. I. Warde.
Solo—Selected—Mr. A. Lee.

PROGRAM WAS REPEATED.

The repeated program by the children's orchestra last night given in the Conservatory of Music hall drew the largest audience the hall has ever contained. It was literally packed to the doors, the largest portion of those present being children. It was repeated purposely for children, the proceeds being donated to the supervised playgrounds fund. It was estimated that 500 children were present, not counting parents. Mrs. (Dr.) Neal, president of the Women's Council, under whose auspices the concert was repeated, explained the nature of supervised playgrounds and told what its objects were.

Among members of the supervised playgrounds committee present were Mrs. (Dr.) Neal, Mrs. Harstone, Mrs. Mowat, Miss Aldrich and Mrs. Davidson.

A handsome sum was realized.

FAMOUS BATTLE PHRASES

Undying Words That Inspired Men For the Fray.

Great fighters have been able, at critical moments, to address their men in words that inspired them with fresh spirit for the fray, and encouraged them to face frightful odds with a confidence born of their enthusiasm that carries all before it and almost wins the fight before it is begun.

Our own history, as well as that of the old world, is filled with striking instances. Who can recall without a thrill Farragut's commnad to "Go ahead!" when warned of the presence of torpedoes in the bay. Or Grant's calm response, "We propose to fight it out along these lines if it takes all summer."

Each of Nelson's victories was preceded by its own particular motto. "Victory or Westminster Abbey" were his words before the battle of the Nile. "I have only one eye and have a right to be blind at times," said he at Copenhagen, as he placed his glass to his blind eye when the signal for recall was hoisted on the admiral's flagship. "I really do not see the signal," he added, and sailed on to victory. "England expects every man to do his duty" was the signal flown at Trafalgar, where the hero fell.

Waterloo produced several famous phrases. Strange to relate, Wellington's "Night or Blucher" found an echo in the words of his great rival when the issue of the fight was in doubt. "Oh, that Gruchy or night were here."

At the close of the day the Old Guard sullenly determined to stand their ground, formed themselves into a square and awaited the approach of the enemy, while their comrades fled in all directions from the field. In reply to the summons to surrender, their leader, Gen. Cambronne, proudly answered in the memorable words, "The guard dies but it never surrenders."

Very practical was Cromwell's advice to his men when about to cross a river in the face of the enemy. According to his usual custom he harangued his troops in a speech. He ended with, "Put your trust in God and keep your powder dry."

"To die in the last ditch" has become one of the commonplaces of proverbial philosophy. The words were originally used by William of Orange during the Dutch war of independence, when he was asked if he did not see that the commonwealth was ruined. "I shall never see the ruin of my country," replied the prince stoutly. "I shall die in the last ditch."

Frederick the Great was the author of certain characteristic sayings, but none more so than that which he uttered at the battle of Kolin, when his troops were wavering under a fierce fire. "Dogs," he jeered, "would ye live forever?" A taunt whose harshness was justified only by its success.

"Oh, for an hour of Dundee," has, with a change of name, been heard on many a battlefield since first it was used by Gordon of Glenbucket, when the Jacobites were hard pressed at Sheriffmuir.

A familiar phrase of war is Gen. Bosquiet's exclamation when he witnessed the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava: "It is magnificent, but it is not war," a saying that will always be associated with that brilliant charge.

Not Catching.

Jane's sister was coming home from normal school.

"Why is she coming home?" asked the neighbor. "Is she sick?"

"Yes; she is very, very sick," said Jane.

"What ails her?" asked the neighbor.

"Well, I don't know exactly. Mamma has a letter from the principal, and he said it was lack of mental ability. I don't know if it is catching or not."

Musical Note.

"Does Miss Yeller sing for money?" asked the old fogy.

"I don't know," replied the grouch. "The only time I ever heard her she seemed to be singing for spite."

Must Keep Off Trawlers.

An Admiralty order has been issued at Grimsby prohibiting any foreigner from sailing on a British trawler.

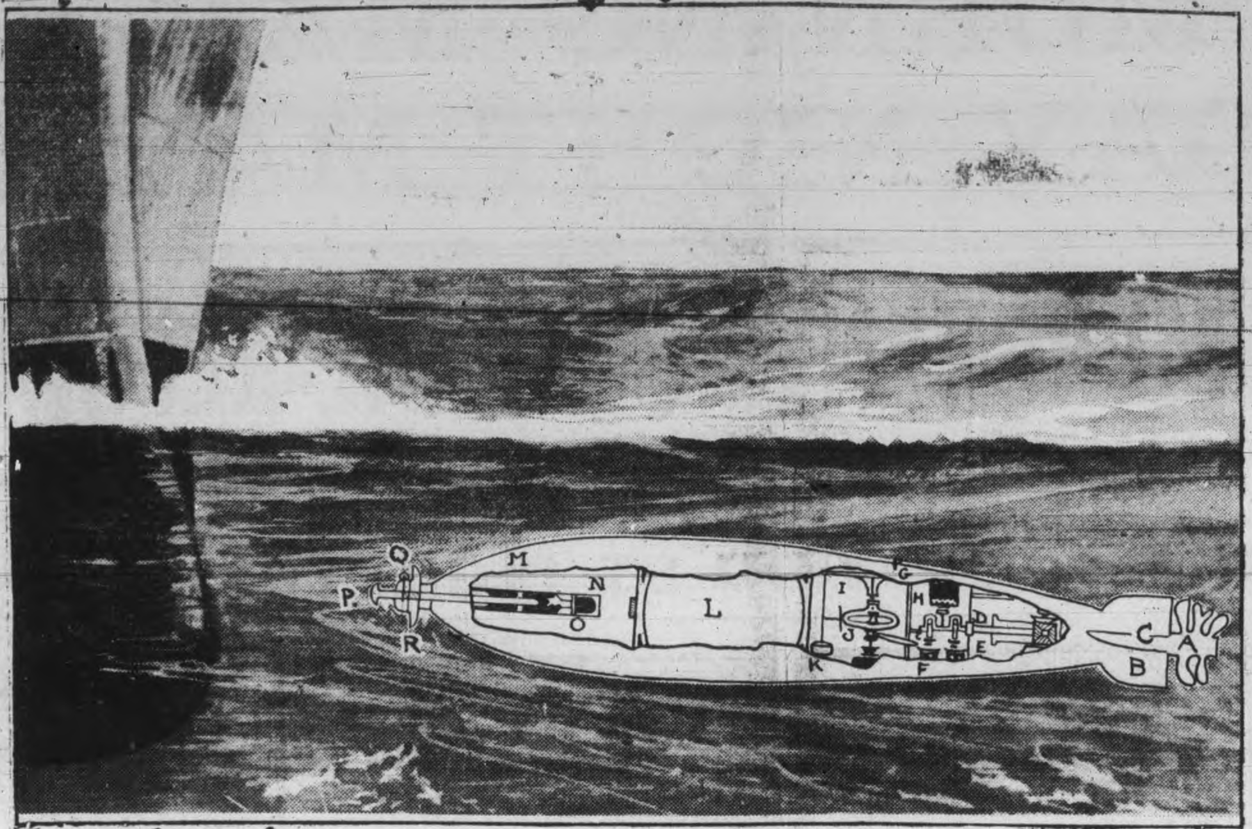
THE HIDDEN DEATH --- HOW TORPEDOES CARRY DESTRUCTION AT SEA



How the Lusitania was sunk. The torpedo carried by the large German submarine is about 15 to 16½ feet in length and from 18 inches to 2 feet in diameter. The key to the letters on the torpedo are: A, twin screws revolving at high speed; B, vertical rudder; C, horizontal rudder; D, propeller shaft; E, buoyancy chamber; F, starting gear, touched by catch as torpedo leaves tubes, starting engines; G, starting pin; H, engine chamber; I, balance chamber; J, gyroscope (stabilizer); K, weight acting on horizontal rudder, controlling distance beneath surface; L, compressed air chamber—350 pounds pressure to square inch providing motive power for engines; M, strong steel head, encasing explosivxes; N, 200-pound high explosive; O, primer, which ignites charge; P, striker, which is driven in by contact with ship's side and explodes charge.

A WARSHIP IN A STORM IS ANYTHING BUT PLEASANT

The Acme of Discomfort on a Man-of-War is Reached When Everything Has Been Made Watertight and all the Decks Are Awash—British Sailors Prefer to Fight in a Gale if They Can.

While the words "battened down" may not convey much to a landsman they mean all the difference between comfort and misery to the sailor, with the risk of ill-health in the bargain. "Battened down" means much more to the modern sailor than to him of Nelson's time. In weather of which the old ships, with their high freeboards and protecting bulwarks, took little notice, the modern ship is battened down. The open, unprotected upper deck is swept fore and aft by high seas, and the smaller the class of ship the more is she affected.

Everything that science can contrive has been done to alleviate the discomforts of "battening down," which is closing all upper deck hatches to keep the seas which sweep over the deck from penetrating to the interior of the ship, but even then the mess decks are often awash. However, it is the lack of exercise and fresh air that tell most heavily on the health of the crew.

The difficulties with which old-time admirals had to contend, as far as the health of their men was concerned, were not bad weather but lack of fresh provisions and fresh water. These do not affect the modern seamen at all, as a plenitude of fresh water can be distilled and fresh provisions can always be replenished at the same time as the coal bunkers are refilled. An old-time sailing ship would ride out the heaviest of gales without taking much water on board, and even when forced to batten down the discomforts of between decks were infinitesimal compared with those of to-day.

It may not be generally known that with nearly every new type of ship the living space afforded to the men has grown less and less. This is due to a multitude of causes—increased speed, increase in the size of guns, and the multitude of auxiliary engines with which a warship is fitted—so we no longer find the great, airy mess decks of even thirty years ago, but a multitude of iron boxes which, at the best of times, have to be kept well ventilated. When all natural ventilation is stopped the iron beams and sides begin to sweat and the atmosphere becomes foul and rank. Yet it is doubtful if in a general way the men trouble much about these conditions; cards and other games are played or sleep is wooed; the sailor now has a little motto of his own: "More wind less work," and it really works out like that when the upper deck is merely a mass of tumbling waters.

As a spectacle a modern fleet in a gale of wind is an imposing sight, and one hardly knows whether to give the palm to the stately leviathan or the perky torpedo craft. A battleship can hardly be called an ideal sea-going craft; she is much too massive to be buoyant and too cumbered with top hamper to recover herself easily. So she staggers along butting at the seas but never trying to ride them; down will go her nose right up to the fore turrets, then, as she rises, hundreds of tons of water are lifted to be flung aft in great torrents. And yet for some reason known only to itself the navy prays that when it goes into action it may be in a gale of wind. Our men believe, rightly or wrongly, that no other navy has had so much sea training as itself, and that, therefore, the worse the weather conditions the better it will be for them in action.

The small cruisers and torpedo craft have nothing to do with weather; their job at sea is to get from one destination to another as quickly as possible. How they live through it is a mystery, for very often the only things above water are the bridge and the funnels; then one may see them poised on the crest of a wave with fifty feet of keel showing at each end.—Navy and Army.

RECKLESS DISCIPLINE

Teaching a Scared Russian Soldier How to Face Danger.

At Sebastopol, during the siege, a Capt. Samolloff, wishing some wine, ordered an officer to send a man for it. The man, a young soldier, took the money and started on the errand. Just then, however, a French battery had concentrated its fire upon the very spot where the young man must go outside the works. He stopped and turned back.

"I wouldn't go out there for the world," he said.

An officer of course reported the act of disobedience to the captain. The captain in a rage ordered the man into his presence and demanded why he had not obeyed his order.

"I beg you to pardon me, captain, but I was terribly afraid."

"Afraid!" cried the captain. "Afraid! A Russian soldier afraid! Wait a minute. I will drive the fear out of you. Come with me."

The captain led the way to the rampart, mounted it, and there, with the bullets raining round him, began putting the man through some military exercises. The lookers on in the fort held their breath. If a hat was put on a bayonet and lifted above the walls the bullets came that way on the instant.

Not many seconds elapsed before a bullet struck the captain in the arm. He did not wince, but kept on with the drill, while the blood dripped down his hand to the wall.

Next a bullet went through the tail of the soldiers' coat, and another through his knapsack. Then suddenly the firing ceased.

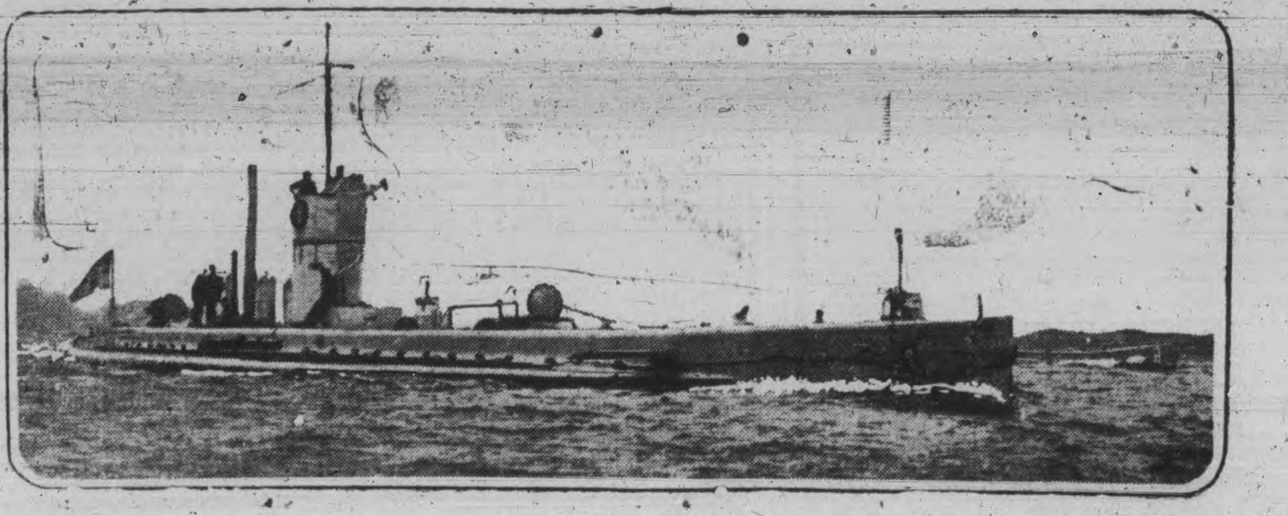
The soldier begged for grace and promised to go wherever he was sent. Still the captain continued his drill. When he thought the lesson had been learned, or perhaps when his wound grew too painful, he dismissed the soldier and went himself to the surgeon and had his arm dressed.

The French explained afterward that they ceased firing out of sheer astonishment at the sight of the two men exposing themselves so recklessly.

Spiral Nebulae.

It is now an established fact that the majority of the nebulae known to astronomers are spiral nebulae. Their study is very important, and in particular a knowledge of their spectra is capable of furnishing valuable information. The study of the spectra of nebulae is rendered very difficult by the small intrinsic brightness they possess. Nevertheless, some careful experiments made by Slipher on the nebula in Andromeda render it probable that the nebula has a radial velocity of about 186 miles a second, a result which is distinctly greater than the figures formerly obtained for other nebulae. If this nebula in Andromeda approaches the solar system with this velocity—11,160 miles a minute—it suggests that the new star which appeared near its nucleus in 1885 had been a dark star which was encountered.

THE WRECKER OF THE LUSITANIA --- GERMANY'S NEW SUBMARINE DEADNOUGHT



Type of the great new submarines of the German navy, literally under-water dreadnoughts. It was one of these craft which sunk the Lusitania, it is believed, because it was 1500 miles away from a German naval base, and only the great new submersibles could attempt such cruising. Further, such submarines had been noted in the neightborhood where the Lusitania went down. The boat is believed to be the U-36, a craft more than 300 feet in length and carrying four torpedo tubes. The picture above is of such a submarine.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR CUSTOMER

As Result of Big Fare Refunding Plan Being Worked on a Large Scale by Peterborough Merchants

Sometimes real opportunities come the way of the ultimate consumer, and one of these times for the people of this section will be during this BIG FARE REFUNDING SALE, when the merchants of Peterborough will offer many special bargains in every line of merchandise.

By this plan, many of our leading merchants are offering special inducements in the way of goods and prices to the general public. It has, of course, created more or less competition among the merchants, but this is all the better for those who have to buy, as it will mean genuine bargains in every line of merchandise. Prices in many instances are much lower than have ever been made anywhere on standard brands of staple and seasonable goods.

Besides the special bargains to be offered by the merchants, Railroad Fares will be Refunded to all out-of-town customers during this BIG FARE REFUNDING SALE. Under the plan, shoppers may distribute patronage among as many stores as they desire, and then come to the Review Office and get their fares refunded to them in cash. Their return fares from their homes to Peterborough and back to their homes again.

You can come in any manner you wish, and you will get your fare just the same—the only condition is that your purchases will reach a certain small total, which will, of course, vary for the various number of miles travelled.

This BIG FARE REFUNDING SALE is an innovation for the city of Peterborough. It is being promoted and arranged for the purpose of proving to the people in our surrounding districts that Peterborough is the most profitable place in Ontario to shop in.

Great Chance For You to Buy Merchandise

Everyone should arrange to come to Peterborough for this occasion

RAILROAD FARE TO BE REFUNDED

By the Peterborough Merchants to all Out-of-Town Customers, in Addition to Many Special Bargains

For six days, commencing Monday, May 17, and ending Saturday night, May 22, the people of this section of Ontario will be given the greatest opportunity of their lives to lay in a supply of all kinds of seasonable merchandise at special value-giving prices and without any travelling expenses to out-of-town customers. The occasion is to be known as the "Peterborough Merchants' Big Fare Refunding Sale," and you can rest assured that it will prove everything that its name implies.

Practically every merchant in the city has made price reductions in the different departments of his store for this sale.

Those needing anything from a candle to a complete outfit for the home, from a pair of stockings to costumes, from a clothes pin to a winter's stock of groceries, shoes, or hardware, or anything in the line of human needs, should avail themselves of this opportunity to lay in a big supply.

Not only are the merchants offering many special bargains in their goods, but, in addition to this, they will refund the fares to all out-of-town customers who buy anything to speak of at all. So it can readily be seen that it will be a great opportunity for the people of this section to save money on anything they may need for some time to come.

REASON FOR THE MOVEMENT

Many will wonder why the merchants of Peterborough have united in a movement of this kind, but the reason is simple when explained. Each merchant was requested to make some special inducements in the way of goods and prices for one week just before the Twenty-Fourth, beginning May 17 and ending Saturday night, May 22, and at the same time to refund all fares to out-of-town customers on these days.

The plan met with the approval of nearly every leading merchant in Peterborough, and, as a result, it will mean the biggest trading opportunity ever known in this section.

Come on Monday, the first day of the sale, and then tell your friends and neighbors of the many great advantages offered for trading in Peterborough during this BIG FARE-REFUNDING SALE.

Now is surely the time to do your summer trading. Read the announcements and look over the bargains offered by the merchants in this issue of the Review.

Keep this paper until the last day of the sale, for there are Special bargains for you each day of the sale.

HOW TO GET YOUR FARE BACK

Persons coming to Peterborough from any of the surrounding places to trade during this Big Fare-Refunding Sale will get their fares refunded, providing their total purchases amount to the sums in the schedule. Fare refunding slips will be furnished all merchants who have agreed to pay their portion of the fares of out-of-town customers during this sale, and in order to have your fare refunded you should obtain one of these slips from the first merchant from whom you make a purchase.

The slip will contain a list of all the merchants who are participating in this big sale, with blank space for each to put down the amount of your purchase. This slip is retained by you, and afterwards presented at each store from which you buy anything during the day, and then before you leave for home, take the slips to the REVIEW OFFICE, where your fare will be refunded in cash, providing your purchases during the day amount to the sum required, according to above schedule.

By this method it will be readily seen that you will not have to buy everything from one store, but, on the contrary, you can patronize as many different stores as you like, and if your purchases amount to the required sum, your fare will be refunded by presenting the slip at the REVIEW OFFICE before leaving for home.

COME BY AUTO, TRAM, RAIL OR BOAT

Fares will be refunded to all persons who come from a distance equal to any of the towns or villages in the above schedule, whether by auto, rail, vehicle or boat, or any other conveyance, and it makes no difference if you simply walk—you get your fare in cash just the same. This will include farmers as well as those living in towns. The price of a railway ticket to and from any place within sixty miles of Peterborough, whether on the railway, river, or in the country where there is neither car nor boat. For instance, all persons, whether farmers or town people, who drive to Peterborough during this Big Fare Refunding Sale, will get their fares, just as though they came on the railway, providing their purchases total the required amount.

Amounts equivalent to railway fares, according to the distance, will be refunded to all persons coming from points on Rice Lake or Stoney Lake, or anywhere else during this sale, in the same proportion as if they were located on the railways.

Come by auto, railway, boat, aeroplane, horse vehicle, or on foot, and you get your fare back, or an equal amount to it.

Read the schedule carefully, and don't forget to ask the first merchant from whom you make a purchase, for a refund slip, so that you can keep account of your purchases.

Come Monday, then go home and tell your friends and neighbors the many advantages of this great sale

A WAX ROSE

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN.

Worthington, an American tourist, was traveling on foot in Italy.

There are some queer regions in Italy. Worthington would pass over a section of country wherein there were no inhabitants, then he would come upon a town set on the top of a hill, with no outskirts, nothing to connect it with any other people. He resolved to investigate one of these towns and, for the purpose, remain in it several days. He did not find out much about the town, except that it was a relic of medieval times, when no one felt safe unless inclosed in stone walls on the summit of a hill.

Worthington stopped at a hostelry commanding beautiful and interesting views. He loved to sit on a stone portico and look out on the landscape. The landlord's daughter seemed to have been captivated by him on sight, for on the evening of his arrival she waited on him at the table and could not keep her eyes off him. The next day when he was on the porch she went out there with a litre of wine and took advantage of his asking her about some points of interest on the rolling ground below to chat with him.

While they were there a young Italian of her own class went by the house and saw the girl evidently very much interested in the stranger. This man was her lover, and love is very sensitive. He saw danger for him in the American. When he saw her again he reproached her and accused her of being infatuated with one he considered his rival.

"Oh, Andrea," she replied, "how easily you become jealous!"

"Oh, Bianca," was the reply, "how quickly you are caught by a new fancy!"

Worthington remained in the place three days. Then when about to depart Bianca took a wax flower from a vase and offered it to him, telling him that it was a piece of her handiwork. He thanked her and put it in his buttonhole. She watched him descend the roadway, flanked on each side, as is customary in Italy, with high walls, until he was out of sight. But she knew he was on his way northward and must soon emerge where she could see him again. Presently he reappeared, and not far behind him a man was following. Bianca gave a subdued cry. Despite the distance she knew this man to be Andrea.

When Bianca saw her lover again she could tell by his appearance, his actions, that he had committed a crime, and she suspected what that crime was. If Andrea had followed the American and killed him there would be no likelihood of the murder being known, because the country so far as the next town, miles farther on, was uninhabited. She was tempted to charge Andrea with murder in order to see how he would receive the accusation, but she thought better of this and pretended not to suspect him. Gradually he seemed to recover from what haunted him and one day asked Bianca to name the day when she would marry him.

"The day I will marry you, Andrea? I will tell you that when you have brought me something I wish."

"What is that, Bianca?"

"The day the American went away I gave him one of the wax roses in the vase on the mantel there. He put it in his buttonhole, but I watched him go down the road and saw him throw the rose away. I wish to put it back in the vase with the other flowers. Find it and bring it to me. Then I will tell you when I will marry you."

"How can I do that, Bianca?"

"You must or I will not marry you."

Andrea was much cast down at this and went away, saying that she had given him an impossible task. But the next day she saw him hunting beside the road. This action she received with a curl of the lip. A few days later he came to her with the rose. She turned pale as he handed it to her, for, since she had made it herself and put her mark upon it, she knew that it was the one she had given Worthington. She had laid a trap for Andrea and caught him, but she had not been sure that Andrea was a murderer. She did not believe that the American had thrown away the rose, and she now believed that Andrea had killed him and concealed or buried her gift with the body.

"Now, will you name the day, Bianca?" he asked.

"Come and see me the day after tomorrow."

Andrea was obliged to wait. On the day appointed he went to see Bianca for her answer. He found with her a carabineer, who, the moment Andrea entered, closed the door. Andrea's teeth chattered.

"You have come," said Bianca, "to have me name the day I will marry you. You will be wed to the gibbet, but it is for the judge to name the day. I saw you follow the American and by your guilty appearance believed that you had murdered him. In order to prove this I asked you to bring me the flower I had given him. Yesterday the police made a search of the road over which your victim passed and found his body hidden in a wood beside the road under a heap of logs that had been pulled together for the purpose. The rose had been bent and broken, but repaired."

The carabineer took Andrea away, and the judge pronounced the day for his execution.

Snow Ice Cream.

Snow ice cream—what a joy it used to be to the child heart! Mother used to make it when she had been importuned to "dis let us have one more cupful, mom." The youth of today, perhaps, does not need that joy, with everything so handy for buying "store" ice cream. But never can such makeshift take away the memory of the earlier dish. It was so easy to make too. Nature kindly furnished the foundation, and all that was necessary was to add sugar and milk. When a new fall of snow came the children watched anxiously until it became deep enough to scoop up cupfuls of the crystals. Then it was carried to mother and milk poured in and more snow added, and then more milk poured in and more snow added, until there was a full cupful. Sugar was added until the taste was just right and the mixture was placed out of doors until it had become a half frozen mass, and there was the ice cream!—Indianapolis News.

Points for Mothers

The Mother's Authority.

Obedience that cannot be secured without many repetitions, loud tones or a threatening manner is of little value. A prompt response to a simple request is of great value in securing an obedient habit of mind. For instance, if you say, "Mary, please close the door," Mary may do so immediately without waiting to finish something she may be doing at the same time, or she may dawdle along and wait for a repetition of the order and finally say, "Yes when I get this done," or something like it. In the child who responds quickly is seen one already on the path to trained and instant obedience without servility, simply showing the recognition of simple orders, a most valuable point in the education of little children.

In the other a careless habit of mind is noted, a lax recognition of the mother's authority, which should be held always, in gentle ways, and which must be recognized at first, in every way. Abbott says in his "Gentle Measures In the Management of the Young" that there are three ways the mother governs the child—first, by maneuvering and artifice; second, by reason and affection, and, third, by authority. He also says that of the three methods the last is the only one which can be followed either with comfort to the parent or safety to the child, and this method can be brought effectually into operation by gentle measures. It is, indeed, true that the importance of tact and skill in the training of the young and of cultivating their reason and securing their affection cannot be overrated. But the influences secured by these means form at the best but a sandy foundation for filial obedience to rest upon. The foundation must be a gentle but firm authority.

Babies Should Sleep Alone.

From the very dawn of his precious life the baby should sleep alone in his own crib.

From the viewpoint of hygiene it is the only plan, and it is, moreover, the only possible way of insuring comfortable rest for either child or mother.

When the means are lacking at the time of baby's arrival to provide a bona fide crib a very good one may be improvised out of an old fashioned clothes basket, which has the advantage of being easily transported from one room to another.

It should be fitted from top to bottom with a detachable lining of white mull or dotted Swiss shirred over pale blue cambric. The mattress should be quite four inches thick and made to fit the bottom of the basket, and it should be well protected with a rubber sheet.

Over this—not under it—should be smoothly spread the usual white sheet, made preferably from a piece of an old sheet of soft linen, and over this again should come the washable pad of stockinette.

There is no need of an upper sheet, as the baby will be wrapped in a soft, warm blanket before being laid in his snug little nest, nor should a pillow be used, as he will be infinitely better off without one.

The coverlet should be light of weight, but well wadded, with three or four thicknesses of silkoline over the cotton filling. Down fillings should never be used for a baby's pillows or coverlets, as the particles of down, filtering through the covers, will almost certainly find their way into the nostrils and mouth and thence into the lungs and air passages.

KEEP YOUR BABY WELL

Mothers can keep their little ones happy and healthy by the occasional use of Baby's Own Tablets. There is no minor ailment of little ones that the Tablets will not cure, and above all they are absolutely safe and positively no injury can result from their use. Concerning them Mrs. Henri Huard, Kingston, Ont., writes: "There is no medicine I know of so good for little ones as is Baby's Own Tablets. They have certainly been of great service to me." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Before Spoons Were.

The domestic spoon probably owes its origin to the shell rather than to the human hand. Shells of the mussel, scallop and oyster, it is believed, were used in prehistoric times as spoons and ladles, the handle being formed of a piece of wood split at one end to hold the shell firmly. Some savage nations make similar spoons up to the present day.

Whitening Linen.

To whiten unbleached table linen or muslin or other unbleached articles, boil them in blue water such as is used for rinsing. After they are thoroughly scalded remove from the boiler and hang them on the line without rinsing. The next washing will remove the bluing.

GRAY HAIR

MIRACULOUS CURE OF ASTHMA

Suffered Terribly for 15 Years Until He Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

D. A. WHITE, Esq.

21 WALLACE AVE., TORONTO,

Dec. 22nd. 1913.

"Having been a great sufferer from Asthma for a period of fifteen years (sometimes having to sit up at night for weeks at a time) I began the use of "Fruit-a-tives". These wonderful tablets relieved me of Indigestion, and through the continued use of same, I am no longer distressed with that terrible disease, Asthma, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives" which are worth their weight in gold to anyone suffering as I did. I would heartily recommend them to all sufferers from Asthma, which I believe is caused or aggravated by Indigestion". D. A. WHITE

BLACK WITH COLORS.

Brilliant Decorative Effects Achieved by Means of Combinations.

The decorative value of black as a foil for brilliant colors, which finds its peculiarly modern expression in wide hems and bands, was no doubt suggested to the couturieres by the magnificent imperial coats of the Chinese, to which special attention was attracted after the looting of Peking in 1900.

On many of these brilliant garments the gorgeous colors and the gold designs are, as it were, framed by broad bands of black, and there is no doubt that the shining dragons and radiant blossoms gain a hundredfold by contrast with this sable setting.

It is striking to notice how one slight but very definite note of color introduced on a black or dark blue toilet can give it just all the distinction in the world. It may be supplied by the long ostrich feather of flaming red or florentine green, which adorns a hat, or a splash of vivid orange against a background of dark blue, or perhaps simply a large pink malmaison tucked into a waist belt.

Postage Stamps.

The American public consumes 40,000,000 postage stamps per day. By the ordinary methods of printing postage stamps this process costs the government a tremendous sum annually. By the invention of one machine by the officials of the bureau of engraving and printing the cost of manufacturing stamps has been reduced 57 per cent. The new stamp machine eliminates nineteen of the operations in making stamps, goes through twenty-one different operations of its own and turns out 4,000 completed stamps per minute, 2,400,000 in a ten hour day.

Britain's Iron Duke.

The Iron Duke, Great Britain's new super-Dreadnought, said to be the most powerful battleship in the world, is a costly sort of ornament for the navy. In action her guns can use up ammunition at the rate of $50,000 a minute. This is the first battleship to be equipped with specially designed guns for air craft. These guns are expected to send a projectile made for the purpose a height of 10,000 feet.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Shortness of Breath.

There are many ways in which shortness of breath may arise. It is often one of the symptoms of illness. When a person begins to complain of habitual shortness of breath it is important to have a physical examination made without delay. One reason is that tuberculosis often begins with no other symptoms than shortness of breath and a slight cough. If these cases are seen and diagnosed very early it is not difficult to arrest them.

The symptom is, of course, present in such troubles as pneumonia, broncho-pneumonia and pleurisy, which attack the organs of breath directly. Violent exercise naturally causes temporary shortness of breath. In the case of healthy people it disappears quickly when the exercise ceases. If it does not do so it is a good plan to have a careful examination in order to find out what is wrong. Young people sometimes persist in a favorite form of exercise after they have begun to notice their shortening breath. In that way they may do themselves lifelong injury.

Cookery Points

German Cheese Cakes.

Here are some recipes for the dainties known as cheese cakes which will be found delicious. Try some for the Easter day menu.

Cheese cake—it would be more appropriate to speak of it as cheese pie—is made from ordinary short pie crust filled with a custard mixture made from eggs, sugar, pot cheese and various flavorings. The cheese can be made at home from sour milk or bought by the pound in the delicatessen shops or bought in prepared cakes of different sizes. If one desires to make curd quickly, hot water may be poured into clabbered milk and the curd will separate. But the water must not be too hot. Here is one recipe:

Rub together until smooth one pound of cottage or pot cheese and a cup of sugar. Add three beaten eggs, a tablespoonful of melted butter, half a cupful of cream or rich milk, the juice and rind of a lemon and a teasoonful of cinnamon. Beat all until the mixture has a smooth, creamy consistency. Then pour into a deep pie tin which has been lined with pastry and bake in a quick oven for forty-five minutes. This can be covered with a meringue made from the whites of three eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. The meringue should be browned in a slow oven. It should not be put on to the "cake" until this has been let to partly cool after being taken from the oven.

Some cooks bake the pastry for cheese cake before putting in the custard, laying it over the outside of the pan and cooking with the bottom of the pan uppermost. They prick the crust with a fork so that it will not blister and, after pouring in the custard part, set the crust back into the oven just long enough for the eggs to set. Some German cooks use an egg pastry in their cheese cakes, but at this season, when eggs are so high priced, most of our American housewives will prefer to use the ordinary short pie crust. Here is a good recipe:

Allow three level tablespoonfuls of shortening to every cupful of flour or an extra tablespoonful if a very short crust is desired. Also allow four level teaspoonfuls of salt and half a level teaspoonful of baking powder to each cupful of flour. Work the shortening into the flour with the finger tips or with a knife or spatula until you have a mixture resembling soft breadcrumbs.

Mix to a stiff paste, using as little cold water as possible, first making a "well" in the center of the flour. Mix only long enough to take up all the dry flour. Toss the ball of dough out on a lightly floured board, letting it get a thin film. Do not press so hard that the pastry sticks to the board, as sticking spoils the texture.

Cream pastry can be used with cheese cakes. Make as above, only use one to one and one-half tablespoonfuls of shortening and use cream in place of water in mixing. If very thick cream is used the shortening may be omitted altogether, the salt and baking powder being mixed with the flour. Pastry made from thick cream is a very quick and usually very digestible form of pastry.

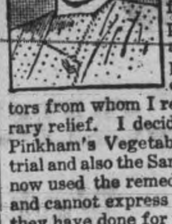
MRS. WILLIAMS' LONG SICKNESS

Yields To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

An Error Perpetuated.

The ... positor, who has b... accused of many things, seems really to have been responsible for the fixing of the festival of St. Alban, the first British martyr, on June 17 in the English calendar. All other saints recognized by the English and Roman churches in common are honored on the same days in both calendars, but in the Roman calendar St. Alban's day is June 22. In all English prayer books also, prior to 1662, St. Alban is commemorated on June 22, and the present discrepancy seems to have arisen from the typesetter of the prayer book of 1662 mistaking the X of XXII for V and rendering the date June XVII—an error which has been perpetuated ever since.—London Chronicle.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

AUTHENTIC SIDELIGHTS

The Berliner Tageblatt publishes without comment a remarkable tribute to the kindness with which Germans in England are treated. The author of the article is a fine art publisher, who only recently returned to Germany. In the course of the article, he says:—

"Hatred against Germany does not exist, and the great feeling of hatred that one encounters on arriving in Germany is quite foreign, and indeed, is incomprehensible to the English. Lissauer's song of hate, the dreadful brooches and rubber stamps inscribed with the words "God Punish England" have not produced what one might call a gratifying effect upon the German point of view. Educated Englishmen with whom I spoke have a deep aversion for the fabulous being whom they call the "War Lord" and who, they think, completely rules Germany, and of whose non-existence even the best-educated people cannot be convinced. Such people, however, as butchers, bakers, green-grocers, and workmen do not understand hatred between people, and see in the mighty war only a contest of two giants, Germany and England. For the enemy, who they now regard as beaten, they have only esteem.

After describing the politeness and courtesy of the English police, the writer continues:

"Still greater consideration and friendliness were shown us by the Home Office officials in the numerous conversations I had with regard to obtaining a permit to leave the country. No English official and no Englishman with whom we had to deal during the days preceding our departure parted from us without the most cordial wishes for our journey. Germans who go away may take with them any sum of money they like, though, of course, gold is prohibited. Not only do Germans receive kind words, but the tremendous amount of relief work, which is undertaken for German prisoners as well as for German women and children, would not have been possible without the collaboration of the authorities, and especially without the financial help of English people."

As an illustration of how German official press reports are manufactured the London Morning Post a few weeks ago was published in parallel columns a quotation from the previous night's press news service circulated in Germany and sent from that country by wireless, and a cable despatch to the "Morning Post from its Washington correspondent of which the item in the German wireless service purported to be an abstract.

The deadly parallet is as follows:

German "Wireless" Version.

The Morning Post, New York:

At the instance of 300,000 workmen belongong to certain unions here it was resolved at a meeting to go on strike so as to render the supply of arms to belligerent nations impossible.

The Morning Post's Original Message

Washington, April 16.—Under the auspices of the Central Federated Union, which has an affiliated membership of 300,000 working men, 3000 men and women held a meeting in New York last night to urge the men working in arms factories to strike in order to......stop the shipment or arms and ammunition to belligerents. But the meeting broke up in disorder because of protests that to cease work on war contracts would be simply in the interest of Germany.

As a contrast of the methods followed in the treatment of prisoners of war in England and Germany the following two paragraphs were recently published in a London paper:

From the "Ladies' Field," April 3rd.

"On Tuesday, March 23rd, the Quorn hunt were at the now much discussed Donington Park, and they held something of a lawn meet for the benefit of the German prisoners who are interned in the beautiful old house. Of course, there was a big crowd of people in motors and on foot, who had taken the opportunity of getting into the park to have a look at the Germans. Captain Forester, who is now hunting the hounds himself on Tuesdays and Saturdays, after he had been into the hall, mounted and brought the hounds close up to the entanglements, in order that the eGrman officers might have a better view of the pack.

A little more law than usual was allowed; then the master raised his cap to the officers, they bowed in return, and a very curious little ceremony was over, and the ordinary business of hunting began."

From the Diary of a British Officer who is wounded and a prisoner in Germany. Published in London, April 10th.

Our beds are iron cots with dirty straw paillasses, arranged in two tiers round the room. I myself occupy an upper berth, and find it a little inconvenient to climb into since I have only one serviceable arm. Only a privileged few amongst us, such as the wounded, have a blanket —and that only by the courtesy of certain English civilians, who share our captivity and have been told to act as scouts for us (in the Varsity sense of that expression. Amongst these is a well known M. F. H. These unfortunates have not only been employed for weeks in erecting sheds, barbed wire fences, and so forth, but have been set to more menial and degrading tasks, such as cleaning out latrines. Small wonder that, like many of our wounded, who have been so grossly ill-treated, they are consumed with a deadly intensity of hatred, which will go down into the grave with them."

The following is an account of the present situation in England given in a leading article in the Neue Freie Presse, one of the leading Vienna newspapers, presumably with the intention of heartening the Austrian public: "The war feeling in England seems to have abated very considerable under the pressure of calm reflection on the existing conditions. One of the most important events since the outbreak of the war is the attitude assumed by the Independent Labor Party against the war, in favour of the commencement of peace negotiations and against the Government. A natural reaction has set in among the mass of the British people, which hears only of awful carnage, of unceasing battles, which result in the loss of many lives but lead to no decision. It would be premature to adduce already far-reaching inferences from such facts but we must not forget that the war was started by a few men who had all of the forces of the country absolutely at their disposal. Even the workmen's representatives in the House of Commons sided with the Government; they deposed their chairman, who was against the war, and joined a movement inaugurated by Lord Kitchener, by means of which an army of millions was to be raised by moral compulsion. This feeling, however, has undergone a great change. An old and trusted leader of the labour movement in England, Keir Hardie, will have nothing more to do with Sir Edward Grey's war policy, while the Independent Labor Party will declare its disapproval of the policy at the next meeting of the Parliamentary representatives of the Labour Party."

On the ball ground he was famous—
He could pitch and bat and catch.
He could box and throw the hammer,
And at wrestling he was good;
He was thoroughly athletic—
But his father chopped the wood.

She was well informed on ethics,
She could formulate a plan
Which would show us all our duty
To our struggling fellow man.
She could write on household topics
In a manner hard to beat;
She embroidered fancy pillows—
But her mother cooked the meat.

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1,500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policyholders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is today saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment, but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.

Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.

Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.

The need of LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in

VOTE SCHEDULE WILL BE DECREASED AFTER TO-DAY

Note the Difference in the Schedule This Week and Next Week — Subscribers Who Have Promised Help Should not Let To-day go by Without Making Good Their Promise

The Review's great contest is rapidly drawing to a close. The end looked a long way off at the start, but it is only a matter of days now, and the days will soon be reduced to hours.

It is for each candidate to pitch in and do her best, leave nothing undone. Let each one be able to say at the finish, no matter what the results are, that not one vote was lost. Very often after a contest is over and the final standing is published, some candidate will say, "Well if I had just received that other subscription, if I had just another thousand votes, how different things would be." Let every candidate do her best, so there will not be any of those vain regrets so often heard after the voting passed into history. The contest department would refer again today to the fact that not a vote will be accepted neither by mail or personally after 8 o'clock Saturday night, June 5th. However, probably every candidate understands this and it will not be necessary to enlarge on the matter.

Today is the last day of the present vote schedule. Turn in every possible subscription today.

Ypres Once Famous

The little Beigian town of Ypres, in Belgium, in the heyday of its greatness and prosperity ranked as large in the civilized world as Philadelphia, Chicago, Berlin and other big cities do today. Indeed, it was a splendid city when Berlin was a mere hamlet of half civilized Slavs.

It was in the days of the commercial greatness of Venice that Ypres attained the summit of its prosperity. It was an important distributing center for the traffic which came up through the Adriatic by boat, was carried overland and then scattered from Belgium to England, France, Holland, Germany and other countries. It also had great manufactures, and in the fourteenth century its population exceeded 200,000, making it one of the largest cities in Europe. Ghent and Bruges, its near neighbors, were no less prosperous. With the changing of the trade routes of Europe the wealth and population of Ypres disappeared until it has now less than 20,000 people.

When one reads of the rise and decline of these communities which flourished long before America was discovered it is interesting to speculate whether the same fate will overtake our own cities. Who can tell? To us their foundation seems substantial, but doubtless the worthy burghers of Ypres thought the same of their beloved city 600 years ago.—Philadelphia Record.

Women's Weakness And Health Perils

Anaemia Comes so Gratefully That the Victim Scarcely Realizes the Hold the Trouble Has Upon Her Until Almost in a Decline

Woman's work is more wearing than man's, because it lasts almost every waking hour. There is no eight or nine hour day for the breadwinner's wife, and often she toils under the greatest difficulty because her strength is below what it should be. The woman who is indoors all day is very often careless about what she eats and does not keep her blood up to the mark. It becomes thin and poor, which makes her weak, headachy, tired, breathless and liable to pains in the back and sides, the scourge of her sex. New blood will do wonders for the woman who is tired out, who aches all over when she rises in the morning and feels unaccountably depressed. She can gain new blood now and drive away the pains and aches and tiredness if she will take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have worked marvels for other women, and will do the same for you, if you are weak, tired, depressed or suffering from backaches or sideaches. Mrs. Elmer C. Taylor, Calgary, Alta., says: "I was so run down with anaemia that I could scarcely walk without aid. I was not able to leave the house. I had no color, no appetite, and was constantly troubled with headaches, dizzy spells and a general disinclination to move about or do anything. My friends did not think I would get better, and even the doctor was apprehensive. I was constantly taking medicine, but it did not do me a particle of good. One day a friend asked if I had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decded to do so, almost as a forlorn hope. After I had used a few boxes there was a decided change for the better, and people began to ask what I was taking, the change was so noticeable. As I continued the Pills my color came back, I could eat my meals regularly, the headaches and dizzy spells ceased, I gained in weight, and took a new interest in life, my cure being complete. I have told many sickly women and girls what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me and urged them to take them and shall continue to do so, knowing what a splendid medicine they are."

Every weak and ailing woman who will follow Mrs. Taylor's example and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial will find new health and strength through their use. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TOBACCO PLAYS BIG PART IN PRESENT CONFLICT

Tobacco has played its part in every war from Waterloo to the Balkans. It is playing a tremendous part in this, the greatest war in history. Tobacco is a solace and has won and lost battles. A battle hinges on a tiny incident, if historians are to be believed, and tobacco fills a big place in war. All the governments in the present war now see the wisdom in supplying solace in the form of tobacco to their fighters.

One of the first moves of Germany was to seize all cigar, cigarette and tobacco factories. "For the reason that a majority of the capital is held in England," Germany seizes and placed under government control the Jasmatzi concern at Dresden and the Balschari factory at Baden-Baden.

Germans' First Demand.

When the Germans entered Heyst the population was ordered to leave, but before the people went the German officers demanded 50,000 cigars.

No town of any considerable size in Belgium has been taken by the Germans that a demand for cigars or tobacco in other forms has not been made of it.

In Berlin and other important cities in Germany there is on every prominent corner a box for the collection of cigars for the soldiers in the field. In the receptacles are dropped daily thousands and thousands of cigars, which are taken up and sent to the men fighting against the allies.

The French colony in Porto Rico is collecting funds to supply 10,000 cigarettes monthly to the French soldiers at the front. The first gift of this Porto Rican colony was 10,000 cigars.

First Call of Wounded.

When a man has been wounded and it has been possible to send him back to the hospital, the one thing he has craved has been tobacco, in the form of cigarettes, cigars or in a pipe. For this reason, Dinard, France, is raising a fund to buy cigarettes for invalided soldiers. Dinard points out that a cigarette is often a consolation to the wounded man when time hangs heavily on his hands and he has no friends near to cheer him.

Strange as it may seem, there is a greater consumption of tobacco by those who have nothing to do with fighting in war. The war throughout the world has stimulated men, who, roused from the humdrum of their regular lives, consume more tobacco when such an excitement as a great war is on. The consumption is greater now because this war touches more men than any war since history began.

Increased U. S. Export.

A "war month" of 1914 compared with a year ago shows that United States exports showed an increase of 23,277,408 pounds, and since then the demand for tobacco has increased steadily. There is a greater demand for tobacco as the war continues, for the war will slacken the production of tobacco in England, France, Austria, Russia, and Germany.

While alcoholic drinks are forbidden in the armies now fighting in the field, and to soldiers preparing to take to the firing lines, urgent requests have been made by all governments at war to have the public include tobacco in comfort gifts to soldiers.

In most armies tobacco is now a regular item in the supply of all soldiers and sailors.

Fought With Cigars Lighted.

In 1870, in the charge before Saarbrucken, the Brunswick Hussars galloped into the historic encounter with the French with cigars in their mouths. It has been repeated a number of times in this war, particularly after a city has been forced to contribute cigars, and men have held them for the moment when they should go into battle.

Bismarck was fond of a cigar, almost as much as General Grant. At Koniggratz, Bismarck had one cigar left, so the story goes, but he did not want to smoke it during the battle. He preferred the happy hour when he should enjoy it after the victory.

Bismarck never smoked that last cigar, although he is said to have remarked, "I never enjoyed a cigar so much as the one I did not smoke."

Bismarck's Finest Smoke.

He came across in the field a helpless dragoon with both arms crushed, murmuring for something to refresh him. Bismarck stopped a moment, hesitated, and finally put his hand into his pocket and placed the cigar in the dragoon's mouth. Then he lighted it. The grateful smile on the soldier's face was pay enough.

Complications.

A porch swing in the lobby of a furniture store bore the sign, "Made In America."

Soon so many people gathered about the spot and began to laugh immoderately that one of the salesmen went out to investigate.

"What is the matter?" asked the store manager.

"A tramp is asleep in the swing," said the salesman, "and the sign is in his lap."—Judge.

Polish Peasant Girls.

Polish women have been known to fight on the battlefield and die in the cause of their country. And what seemed harder to some they have given up all their worldly goods in the same cause. Many have been exiled, but never has there been a murmur heard from these brave women, who are capable of any sacrifice. The Polish women have ever been noted for their physical charms, their hands and feet being, from an artistic point of view, absolutely perfect. In the field at harvest time far more women are to be seen than men, and the effect of their different colored dress makes an attractive picture. The skirts of their dresses are generally pinned up, leaving bright petticoats exposed to view.

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

REVIEW OF FLEET

Is Most Powerful Ever Assembled at American Port

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

New York, May 17. — President Wilson this morning reviewed a land parade of six thousand sailors, marines and militia and later in the day will review the fleet of sixty-four battleships, destroyers, submarines and auxiliary craft, the most powerful fleet ever assembled at an American port.

TWO CHILDREN WERE KILLED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Calais, May 17.—A Zeppelin airship flew over Calais last night dropping bombs at various quarters. Two children were killed and one woman injured.

Elliott Brothers Killed in Action

A copy of the Daily Colonist, published in Victoria, B. C., announces the deaths of Ptes. Fletcher and George Elliott, who were killed in action at the battle of Langemarck. They were sons of Rev. Wm. Elliott, who resides at Cumerland, B. C. All the relatives of the family reside in the county of Peterborough.

The boys were born in Japan, Rev. Mr. Elliott having taught the English language for some years at a college in Japan. Some years ago, owing to the ill health of Mrs. Elliott, the family removed to British Columbia, and when the call for men was sounded, both Fletcher, aged 23, and George, aged 21, enlisted.

The return to power in Italy of the Salandra government, with its policy intact and enormously strengthened by public support, is accepted in England as confirming the belief that Italy will enter the war on the side of the Allies.

ROME, May 17. — An effigy representing the German Emperor was insulted, pelted with missiles, and finally burned by a crowd, amid frantic excitement.

NEW GOVERNMENT IN PORTUGAL

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LISBON, May 17. — Revolutionary forces have been successful, and a new government presided over by Joao Chagas has been formed. Casualties in Friday's fighting were 67 killed and three hundred wounded. There were many casualties on Saturday also.

PARIS, May 17. — A Lisbon despatch says that absolute calm has been restored in the Portuguese capital.

TOOK THE DE LAVAL PRIZE

Bottling Machine is Won by Clifford Cartis

Clifford Curtis, milk vendor, of Otonabee, is the proud possessor of a thoroughly modern bottling machine, presented by the De Laval Company for the prize winner in the milkmen's parade held on Saturday. Mr. Curtis had the neatest, cleanest, most hygienic and serviceable outfit of the twenty-one exhibitors, although the judging was so close that the judges were almost perplexed in making a decision. Wm. S. White secured second prize, which was a flag, while third honors went to I. Hetherington of Smith, who captured the 10,000 milk stoppers donated by the Peterborough Pure Milk Co.

Mayor Buller introduced Dr. Clinton after the judging was completed, remarking that it was almost an impossibility to arrive at a decision owing to the general efficiency of several of the outfits. However, Dr. Clinton found that the honors had to be divided as stated, and he expressed his unqualified satisfaction with the showing all the exhibitors made.

JUDGMENT FOR WILLIAM KEMP

Judge Huycke Finds That Notice of Illness Was Given

Members of the Canadian Order of Foresters will be interested in the following judgment handed down Saturday by His Honor Judge Huycke, in connection with an action of Kemp versus the Society, heard recently in Division Court.

At the close of the evidence I found that plaintiff was really ill and not shaming illness as suggested by the defence, says the judge.

The only remaining question is therefore was notice of illness given and if so was that notice sufficient and in accord with the defendant's by-laws.

The notice said to have been given in June, 1914, by plaintiff was not sufficiently proved, but I find that notice was given by his wife verbally "on his behalf" on 7th August, 1914, to Metherall, a proper official of the defendants in that behalf. She was sufficiently her husband's agent to give notice "on his behalf" as set out in by-law 3 but she did not state to Metherall "the notice of such illness" and if such is necessary to satisfy By-law 37 the action must fail. Although such a provision would seem prudent and wise the by-law is indefinable and does not so provide. It does so provide in case the claimant is absent from his own Court and gives the notice to the Court where he lives which Court as I understand then reports to the Home Court. The wisdom of this is self evident and the provision might well have been extended to a notice direct to the member's own Court but the defendants did not see fit to do, perhaps relying on the member's own knowledge of local conditions and the certificate of a local physician. If the members do not mean their by-law as I read it they should amend it forthwith. I must take it as it stands and according to it I find plaintiff was ill for the 12 weeks claimed and that notice was given by plaintiff's wife to a proper official of defendant's on 7th August, 1914, sufficient to comply with existing by-laws. Plaintiff must therefore succeed. Judgment for him will be entered for $36.00 and costs of suit.

E. C. HUYCKE,
Judge.

13th May, 1915.

Mr. Jos. Wearing appeared for the plaintiff, and W. A. Hollinrake, K.C., of Brantford, for the defendants.

TO DECIDE ITALY'S STAND

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, May 17. — It is expected that the stand Italy will take will be decided at a meeting of ministers called by Premier Salandra for this morning. It is reported that forty-seven women were killed and over three hundred injured when the mob which burned an Austrian flag at Trieste was charged by gendarmes. Women fought stubbornly.

ENEMY AIRSHIP ATTACKED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 17. — The Admiralty announces that a German dirigible which raided Ramsgate early this morning was pursued by aeroplanes and apparently seriously damaged.

Off Nieuport, Belgium, the airship was attacked by eight naval machines; four bombs were dropped from two hundred feet above. A large column of smoke was seen to come from a compartment. There were no casualties among the attackers.

CONVENTION OF DOCTORS AND HEALTH OFFICERS

City Will be Invaded Next Week by Members of Medical Profession

One week from Tuesday Peterborough is to throw open her doors and give the freedom of the city to anywhere between three and four hundred physicians who are to convene here for four days, listen to addresses and discuss questions vitally connected with their profession. Unquestionably it will be one of the largest and most imposing conventions of its kind ever held in this city and preparations are practically completed for the accommodation of the distinguished gathering. With such an august assembly of medical practitioners present there is bound to be in their number many of the cleverest men in the province. In addition prominent physicians and authorities on various subjects associated with the profession will be present from across the line. Among these will be Dr. Rosenau, of Chicago, who will discuss the question of medicine on a broad basis; Dr. Shepherd, Professor of Surgery at McGill University, will deliver an address on surgery, not to mention other leading men in the profession who are to deal with the various phases of its operation. In view of this the convention should be a noteworthy one in every respect.

Health Officers Too.

A departure is being made this year, inasmuch as the Ontario Medical Association are holding their convention in conjunction with the Ontario Health Officers' Association, which will mean a doubly interesting and profitable program. As it is an experiment this year the outcome of the innovation is awaited with interest.

The hotels of the city are expected to give accommodation for all of four hundred visitors and if more than this number are present arrangements have been completed whereby private houses and residences will be placed at the disposal of the visitors. Many residents already agreed to billet one or two of the doctors if they cannot secure hotel accommodation.

The four-day convention will be held in the Collegiate Auditorium which will be amply large. This will be the fourth annual conference for the Health Officers who will only be in session two days, Tuesday, May 25th and Wednesday, the 26th. W. R. Hall is president.

In regard to the Medical Association convention Dr. Cameron informed a reporter that they are not certain how many would be present, but he put between three and four hundred as a conservative estimate. It was easily possible that six hundred would attend.

PROGRESS OF FRENCH CONTINUED

Take First German Line, Prisoners and Machine Guns in Het Sas Region

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 17. — This afternoon's official statement says:

"In the region of Het Sas we have continued to make progress. Yesterday evening, we occupied a house strongly defended by the enemy, and on the east bank of the canal we took possession of a first German line, making at the same time 145 prisoners and capturing four machine guns. A counter attack on the part of the enemy was a complete failure.

"There is nothing new to the north of Arras, where it is raining, with the exception of an extremely violent artillery duel in the region of Lorette, and the sanguinary checking in this same vicinity of four counter attacks on the part of the Germans."

CARD FROM PTE. M. WOOD AFTER THE BIG BATTLE

Mrs. J. C. Wood, 777 Water St., has received a postcard from her son, Pte. Maitland Wood, saying that he is well. The card was dated April 27. The news has greatly relieved Mrs. Wood, and many friends will also be glad to know that her son is safe. Pte. Wood enlisted at Brantford. Before being transferred to that city he was with the local branch of the Royal Bank.

AUSTRIANS CAUGHT BY RUSSIANS OFFENSIVE

Nadworna is Captured and Movement in Courland is Progressing Favorably

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, May 17. — It is officially announced that during the Russian offensive in Eastern Galicia, they captured thirty thousand Austrians and forced the remainder to retreat in disorder across the Pruth. On the 14th, the Russians captured Nadworna, after a great struggle.

In Courland, the Russian offensive is progressing favorably.

MASSACRE OF ARMENIANS

LONDON, May 17. — Six thousand Armenians have been massacred at Van, Armenia, Asiatic Turkey, according to a despatch received in official quarters at London from the Russian consul at Urumiah, Persia, dated May 15th.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, MAY 17, 1915

THE TACTICS OF PARTIZANSHIP.

THE SINCERITY of Liberals on the question of holding an election is to be questioned, in view of the policy they are following throughout the country. The Globe and its allies have expressed themselves as strongly opposed to an election in war-time. If they were sincere in this avowal, would they be whacking the Conservative party from all sides? If Liberal members were sincere in saying they did not want an election in war-time, would they be making bitter partizan attacks on the Conservatives on every occasion? It is one thing tc say what should be done, and another thing to practise what is said. The Liberals say Conservatives should not bring on an election, because they allege it would divide the country, but they themselves are doing everything in their power to provoke an appeal to the people. Liberals say Conservatives should not attack them, yet they want a license to attack Conservatives. Is that just or fair? Is it playing the game according to British standards or according to German standards?

At the annual meeting of the Haldimard Liberal Association a day or so ago, Mr. W. M. German, K. C., was the chief speaker, and delivered a strong attack on the Conservative Government. He first deprecated an election, and then went through the whole list of partizan arguments against the Conservative policy. He charged the army scandals, in which members of his own party were concerned, against the Government, and declared the war taxes were not war taxes, and that to a great extent they would not reach the treasury. He lauded the Laurier naval policy that laughed at an emergency, that saw nothing to fear in Germany, and that pinned its faith on a tin-pot navy. If Mr. German really was opposed to an election, as he declared in the opening sentences of his address, why did he attack the Conservatives as he did? It is just such tactics as these that provoke dissention in the country and lead to elections. It is a two-faced attitude that must be apparent to the majority of electors.

DO THE UNITED STATES WANT ANOTHER SCRAP OF PAPER?

THE UNITED STATES has presented a pretty stiff note to the German Emperor. It says a simple apology and expression of regrets will not be sufficient. What it wants, aparently, is a guarantee that Germany wil cease attacking unarmed merchantmen. Suppose Germany does give the United States some such promise, there will not likely be any improvement, because a power that has regarded its own treaties as scraps of paper will violate at its convenience any guarantee that it may give the American people.

The fact is, Germany has adopted a policy that can only be shot away. Protests and guarantees to keep the international peace, if we may use such a phrase, to be effective, must be backed by force. That does not mean, however, that the United States should declare war. The Allies are quite able to do the fighting for some time to come, and the United Staes is aiding as effectively by maintaining her neutrality as she would be by actually participating in the conflict. So long as she is neutral, she can sell munitions of war to all who can pay and get them. That means that Britain and France can secure them, because German ships are off the seas. However, there is this to be said in favour of the United States' protest — when the time of settlement comes, Germany will have a much weaker case than she otherwise would. That is an important consideration.

THE WAR TAX ON CHEQUES.

SPEAKING with a local George street bank manager, we were informed that the war tax on cheques has made a noticeable change in the business of the banks. There is, he says, a marked shrinkage in the number of cheques issued. Where firms paid their employees by individual cheques, they now pay in cash, and use just one cheque to withdraw the payroll. In the savings accounts, there are fewer deposits being made. Where three or four deposits were made formerly, one is being made now, so that the people are paying cash and keeping more of it about them than they did formerly when cheques were the order of the day.

A decrease in this line was to be expected to a certain extent. Any tax of such a nature has always operated that way. When taxes were placed on the number of windows a house in France had before the Revolution of 1799, houses were built with only one window, to avoid the tax. In Upper Canada, one of the principal property taxes about a hundred years ago was a tax on fireplaces or hearths, and very soon houses were built with few or no fireplaces. However, the people realize that this is a war tax; it is to meet exceptional conditions, and is not to form a part of the general scheme of taxation, as the window and hearth taxes did in years gone by. The money must be raised, and, if it does not come from war stamps, it will have to come in some other way. Canada means to see this war business through, and that means taxation at home as well as soldiers in Europe. So, while there naturally will be a certain amount of curtailment in the use of cheques, it is probable that the war tax will realize what was expected of it. That is the opinion of the Minister of Finance. It will soon be apparent how the people regard the tax, and it would be well for them to continue business as usual.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

HON. C. J. DOHERTY, who was sixty years of age last Tuesday, was born and educated in Montreal. He graduated from McGill in 1876, and practised his profession in Montreal until appointed a judge in 1891. He retired on a pension in 1896, and entered Parliament for St. Ann's Division, Montreal, in 1908. On the formation of the Borden cabinet he accepted office as Minister of Justice. Hon. Mr. Doherty is regarded as head of the Irish-Catholics in the Province of Quebec.

CHILE has sent Germany an ultimatum to apologize within a specified number of hours for saying uncomplimentary things about her neutrality in connection with the sinking of the Dresden. It must be a terrible humiliation for an ambitious country like Germany to be bossed by a little South American republic. You see, the British sunk all the German warships in that locality.

THE WAR will return to Canada many crippled and disfigured men. Let the industries of Canada, by the exercise of wise precautionary measures, so reduce their toll of injured as to offset, as far as possible, the abnormal increase from war.

EVER SINCE there was a possibility of an election in Manitoba in war-time, the Globe and Star have ceased to oppose elections in war-time. A war-time election in Manitoba, under the circumstances, would be an outrage.

IF every citizen of Peterborough endeavours to improve the appearance of the place where he lives, it will go a long way towards making this city beautiful.

THOSE who live in no-election houses shouldn't throw stones.

THE WISE MAN having a job these days is the one that holds it.

GERMANY is not expected to relish Chile sauce.

A GRAVE IN FLANDERS.

(Lord Crewe.)

Here in the marshland, past the battered bridge,
One of a hundred grains untimely sown;
Here, with his comrades of the hard-won ridge,
He rests, unknown.

His horoscope had seemed so plainly drawn—
School triumphs, earned apace in work and play;
Friendships at will; then love's delightful dawn
And mellowing day.

Home fostering hope; some service to the state;
Benignant age; then the long tryst to keep
Where the yew-tree shadows congregate
His fathers sleep.

Was here the one thing needful to distil
From life's alembic, through this holier fate,
The man's essential soul, the hero will
We ask; and wait.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

With Col. Watterson's Compliments.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

The high-brows among the German-Americans, loyal to imperialism, false to Democracy, obstinately refuse to see or admit it. They read Munsterberg and deny it; they read Ritter and deny it; then they hooray for Bernstorff and Dernberg and cry "Down with the President and the Courier-Journal!"

Their organs continue to tell us that we do not understand Germany and her position; do not know how good the Germans are, how important to the world, how imperiled by the jealousy of England, the unaccommodating spirit of Belgium, the revengefulness of France, and the dark malice of Russia. How, they ask, can we see the valuable and persistently peace-seeking Germans so atrociously assailed and not be for them! Did not gallant old Steuben fight for us—better than Lafayette did—in the Revolution? Did not Germans in considerable numbers fight for the Union in the Civil War? Is not a quarter of our population of the German stock? At least we should be neutral!—and then, when at least, the government is neutral, they rail at Wilson and the rest of us as "the enemies of Germany," yielding to "the ignorant wave of hatred."

To all of which the Courier-Journal says "rats" and [illegible]

Civilization vs. Barbarity.

(Toronto World.)

Civilization, or what we have been accustomed to call civilization in the West, is at stake. The destruction of the Lusitania brings this fact vividly before the world. What the world may do in the face of this fact depends entirely on how deep the spirit of what we call civilization has sunk into the character of humanity.

The whole development of the race is of the nature of a contest between the brute in man and the finer thing that we call humanity. The predominance of humanity above the brute is what we call civilization. If civilization is at stake, humanity is at stake. This has been becoming clearer since the Kaiser and his nation have undertaken to impose their will to power upon the rest of the world.

Little Cause for Complaint.

(Winnipeg Tribune, Ind.-Lib.)

If some unwise criticism of the government has been made here and there by unthinking partizans, that does not represent the real feeling of the people. Generally speaking, the government has done well in prosecuting the interests of the war.

The offences have rather been of a petty character, and the government has shown every desire and earnestness in bringing the guilty to justice, and to prevent a repetition of wrongdoing. The people of Canada ask for nothing more.

PRICE OF WOOL.

Editor Review,

Sir,—The price of wool fell because Great Britain requested Canada to forbid the export of wool as it was being used for the help of Germany unless it was guaranteed that it would not be used so. Until Great Britain takes off this embargo on our wool, prices will be low.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

IT is foolish to fret about the future. The present generally furnishes enough material to work that stunt on.

Luck has a good deal to do with success, but working ten hours a day has more.

Her Preference.

"I like the small checks. Don't you? I think they are prettier and make up better."

"I much prefer the large kind that my husband writes."

Her Idea.

"She always tries to do her duty."

"She does?"

"Yes."

"But the trouble is that she is so apt to consider other people her duty."

Close Enough For Comfort.

If you cannot brace the tiger
In his low and tangled lair,
If you cannot climb the icebergs
And bring home a polar bear,
If the lion and hyena
And the did-dig have you bluffed,
You can go to the museum
And revile them where they're stuffed.

Must Have a Motive.

"I am very fond of you."

"Are you?"

"Really."

"Then I shall have to charge you half of what you make out of it."

Necessary.

"Hypocrites are agile creatures."

"Agile?"

"They have to be to squirm out of the tight places they are always getting into."

The Point.

"She was his first love."

"I don't care anything about that."

"What is it you want to know?"

"Who his last love is."

His Specialty.

High in the seat of honor sits
The captain of industree,
And there he plays a game of wits
Affecting you and me.
The moves he makes are quite profound,
We cannot get them straight.
We only know when bills come round
We have to pay the freight.

He does not swing the shining hoe,
He does not shove the saw,
He does not make the engine go
Nor tell the off mule "Haw."
He does not wrap up gingerbread
Nor weigh a chunk of meat,
But somehow he comes out ahead
And gets enough to eat.

I wish I understood his game,
I'd work it, you can bet.
My intellect must be too lame
To mingle in his set.
Not every simple soul can take
A leather cushioned chair
And elevate his feet and make
Enough and some to spare.

I know the worry well may drain
His store of nervous force.
This cutting coupons is a strain,
Of course, of course, of course.
Perhaps I wouldn't care to dance
To such a lively jig,
But watch me if I get a chance
And see if I renig.

"TIZ" FOR SORE, TIRED FEET---AH!

"TIZ" is grand for aching, swollen, sweaty, calloused feet or corns.

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet; no more swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more soreness in corns, callouses, bunions.

No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ." "TIZ" is the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. "TIZ" cures your foot trouble so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore and swollen. Think of it, no more foot misery, no more agony from corns, callouses or bunions.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug store or department store and get instant relief. Wear smaller shoes. Just once try "TIZ." Get a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents. Think of it.

A Monster Iceberg.

"On my journey north," writes Lacey Amy in the Wide World Magazine, "we had striking evidence of the possibilities of the iceberg even before we reached Battle Harbor, the most southerly settlement on the Labrador coast. Just before sundown we could see ahead a strangely misty object blending elusively into water and sky in the way that so often takes the heart from a photographer. Its flat horizontal top was its first noticeable feature, but as we approached its great size made us forget everything else. The captain ran as close as he dared, and its mile of length and sixty feet of height rose near us like a magnified block left at the door by the iceman, with the difference that in this gigantic block there was enough ice to stock all America for years. Since the opening of navigation it had been in the same place, stranded two miles outside our course, and at that time it was three miles long and a mile wide. On our return some weeks later it was still there, but in the moonlight we saw three blocks instead of one. The sun was doing its work."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1,500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policy-holders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is today saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment, but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.

Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.

Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.

The need of LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in

THE TURKISH HERCULES.

Ahmet Bey's Feat of Daring, Strength and Horsemanship.

The Turks tell of Ahmet Bey, an Ottoman officer who served against the Russians. Ahmet was possessed of a daring in keeping with his heroic proportions and physical strength. He was the beau ideal of a soldier, one whose military knowledge seemed instinctive.

It appears that Abdul Kerim Pasha, the commander in chief, while inspecting his troops one morning casually expressed the wish to capture a Servian prisoner from the Servian lines. Ahmet Bey, overhearing the remark, saluted and asked permission to get the commander a prisoner. He received the permission, although Abdul Kerim wondered at the request. Ahmet wheeled his charger, dashed spurs into its flanks and galloped straight for the nearest Servian outpost.

As he approached half a dozen rifles cracked, but Ahmet galloped on unharmed and marked down one sentry for his prey. The sentry fired at the audacious horseman, missed and started to run. Ahmet swooped on him like a hawk upon a chicken. He bent down, grasped the Servian by the collar and swung him across the saddle in front. Then he galloped back, bending over his horse's neck to escape the bullets, and handed over the prisoner to the Turkish commander amid the shouts of the soldiers.—St. Louis Republic.

IT WAS GEN. BOWSER

But He Held the Title Only for an Hour

By M. QUAD.

Mrs. Bowser was looking out of a front window when Mr. Bowser came home the other evening.

He stopped at the gate, faced the street and gave a man opposite the military salute.

Then he about faced, opened the gate and marched up the street with the tread of a warrior.

As he entered the hall and saw Mrs. Bowser he saluted her as he had the pedestrian.

There was the scent of gunpowder in the air.

One almost expected to see a Zeppelin come sailing down the hall.

Was that the cook slinging dishes around, or was it the rattle of the machine guns?

Was Mr. Bowser six inches taller than when he left the house in the morning?

Was there the light of glory in his eyes—a do and dare expression of the mouth?

"Why this tomfoolery?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"We will wait until we have eaten our rations," he replied with great dignity.

"Rations?"

"That's how we of the army speak of our food."

Mr. Bowser had broken out again, and Mrs. Bowser could see a family row not an hour away. During the dinner he sat with his shoulders squared and a stern look on his face, and he was not asked a single question. It was after the meal was over and they had returned to the sitting room that he said:

"Mrs. Bowser, we are about to have a discussion, and if you have no objection you can use my title in speaking to me."

"Is it 'your majesty' that I am to call you?"

"Woman, if you knew how serious this matter is you would not speak of it so flippantly. My title is general—General Bowser."

"What did it cost you, or did you find it on the street?"

The general turned red in the face and swallowed hard at his Adam's apple. He seemed about to burst forth when he changed his mind and quietly said:

"Mrs. Bowser, you may have read or heard that there is a war in Europe?"

"I have read all about it."

"You haven't heard me say much about it, have you?"

"No, general. You are always looking for advertisements of liver pads."

Mr. Bowser looked around like a man who would wreak destruction, but he didn't wreak. He shook off the desire and said:

"I was looking at the situation from a soldier's standpoint, you see, and you could not help me in that."

"But you were never a soldier," announced Mrs. Bowser.

"We will let that pass, and I will say to you that from a soldier's standpoint there have been grievous mistakes in conducting this war."

"And you can point them out?"

"Each and every one. Listen.

"The Germans have made twenty-four mistakes.

"The Austrians have made twenty-seven.

"The Servians have made seventeen.

"The Russians have made twelve.

"The British have made seven.

"The French have made eight.

"The Bulgarians have made five."

"And you would not have made any at all had you been running the show?"

"I do not wish to be charged with egotism, Mrs. Bowser, but I can see the mistakes that others have made."

"It's a wonder that you have kept out of the war."

"I knew you did not understand it, but I was waiting. I shall wait no longer. Excuse me for a moment, please."

Among the rubbish in the garret was an old saber which a soldier of the Spanish-American war had presented Mr. Bowser as a substitute for a lawn mower. It had never drawn blood, and it had never cut grass. General Bowser now went up and got it out of the frame, and, standing before Mrs. Bowser, he swung the weapon around his head and cried out:

"On, brave boys, on!"

"Do you want to scare the cat and the cook into fits!" exclaimed Mrs. Bowser.

The general cut and thrust.

He right faced and he left faced.

He attacked the enemy in front and flank.

He chopped off heads and arms and legs.

He won Waterloo over again.

When he had lost his breath and laid the bloody but glorious weapon aside Mrs. Bowser observed:

"If you have got through making an idiot of yourself perhaps you will explain."

"Mrs. Bowser, I have watched this war as a hawk watches a chicken from the very first move."

"Yes?"

"I was watching out for false moves that might be made."

"I see."

"I have given you the number of mistakes made up to the present time."

"Wonderful man!"

"At the office today I was pointing them out to Green when a stranger entered and listened to me. He was a general in citizen's clothes, and as I named the various mistakes he nodded

"ON, BRAVE BOYS, ON!"

his head. When I was through he extended his hand and introduced himself as General Scott. Then he said:

"Mr. Bowser, each and all your criticisms are correct. You must have been at West Point."

"Yes, you and I were up there one day for the steamboat ride," smiled Mrs. Bowser.

The general glared at her with cold revenge in his eyes and then went on:

"He wanted to know if a lieutenancy would tempt me to take a hand in the game. No.

"A captaincy? No.

"Would I be a major? No.

"A colonel? No.

"A general? I hesitated."

"But only for a moment?" queried Mrs. Bowser.

"Only for a moment, my dear."

"And then?"

"And then I was General Bowser," he answered as he went strutting around the room, with saber threatening the cat and the furniture.

Mrs. Bowser let him strut for a minute and then asked:

"How soon do you take your departure for the front?"

"I shall start tomorrow if my commission comes tonight."

"As soon as that? I must tell you that the coal is almost out and that there is a gas bill to pay."

"Great heavens, woman!" exclaimed the general. "Can you think of coal and gas bills when mistakes are being made by the dozen and brave men are dying by the thousand?"

"And we are about out of coffee and sugar," she added.

"Woman!"

"And don't forget to leave some change to pay the boy for shoveling snow."

"Shoveling snow! And the wounded are screaming in their agony!"

"And leave me some postage stamps, so that I can write you now and then."

General Bowser turned pale. Then he turned red. Then the purple came. Then he shivered.

At the moment he was about to collapse and die a glorious death on the field of battle the doorbell rang.

"My commission!" he gasped.

Mrs. Bowser answered the bell and took in an official envelope and handed it to him.

General Bowser opened it with trembling fingers and then fainted dead away.

It was a receipt for making lamb's wool grow on a bald head.

The general was a general no longer.

Singing Birds' Deadly Rivalry.

It is well known that caged chaffinches are celebrated for their eagerness to compete with one another in singing. They deliver their songs alternately until one is exhausted and unable to take up his turn. So excited do the birds become that it occasionally happens that one of the competitors drops down dead. The originating and directive causes of the particular song of different kinds of birds is not understood. But it is established that they have a great gift of imitation. Parrots, piping crows, ravens and other such birds are familiar instances, while little birds such as bullfinches can be trained to whistle the melodies which human beings have invented. Even the house sparrow, which, though allied to singing finches, never sings when in natural conditions, has been converted into a songster by bringing it up in company with piping bullfinches.—London Express.

BOOTS THAT STOOD THE TEST

AMES HOLDEN McCREADY LIMITED, Canada's largest shoe manufacturers, supplied, within thirty-three days, 32,217 pairs of leather ankle boots and 30,000 pairs of canvas shoes for the outfitting of the First Canadian Contingent, the largest quantity supplied by any manufacturer.

These boots were worn by our soldiers on active service both in this country and in the training camps in England. They were subjected to the most severe usage that boots could be subjected to. They travelled over rough roads and smooth. They waded through mud and through slush past all description. They were soaked by the never-ceasing rains of an abnormally wet English winter. They were baked on hot stoves, grilled on steam radiators and roasted before open fires. Yet, THEY STOOD THE TEST.

Out of the entire 32,217 pairs of leather boots supplied by this company only a single pair was shown to be open to criticism when the Government enquiry was made six months later.

Experts employed by the Government examined 1365 pairs and 348 odd boots made by various manufacturers. Among the number were found only seven pairs of boots of Ames Holden McCready manufacture, of which five were found to be repairable, one pair unrepairable, and ONE PAIR HAD A SOLE UNDER GAUGE.

The best proof of the durability and serviceability of the Ames Holden McCready boots, however, was afforded by the sworn statements of soldiers who had worn these boots constantly from the time they were issued in September, 1914, right through to March, 1915. They swore that they had worn the boots through all the rough experiences at Valcartier and on Salisbury Plain and that they had given excellent service throughout. Sergeant Nussey, of Toronto, who had served twelve years in the British Army, appeared before the Committee with a pair of such boots still on his feet and submitted them to the committee's inspection.

The testimony of these witnesses has since been amply corroborated by numerous reports and letters received from officers and soldiers at the front all testifying to the good wearing qualities of the Ames Holden McCready boots.

• • • •

When the question was raised concerning the quality of the Canadian soldiers' boots, Ames Holden McCready Limited placed themselves IMMEDIATELY upon record, by writing to the Government, as desirous of having the most thorough investigation of the matter. The appointment of a Parliamentary Committee and the official enquiry followed. It occupied several weeks' time. The Committee stopped at nothing in their efforts to get at all the facts.

This Company purchased the best leather and supplies available in Canada and spared no expense in manufacturing the boots. All our invoices, and shop and manufacturing records were produced before the Parliamentary Committee for their inspection and information. We had nothing to hide and were proud of the boots which were furnished to the Government.

THE AMES HOLDEN McCREADY BOOTS CAME OUT OF THE ORDEAL UNSCATHED.

The Committee reported to Parliament that the boots supplied by this company substantially complied with the sample, that no paper or other fraudulent substances had been employed in their manufacture and that all charges involving the integrity of this company or of the boots supplied by them had been abundantly disproven by the sworn evidence taken before the Committee.

The report, which was adopted by Parliament, was A COMPLETE VINDICATION FOR AMES HOLDEN McCREADY LIMITED.

• • • •

In bringing these facts prominently before the people of the Dominion, Ames Holden McCready Limited are actuated by the desire not only to protect their own good name—which needs no vindication with the thousands of Canadians who are familiar with this company and its products—but also that of a notable and important Canadian industry, which has been unwarrantably aspersed.

CANADA HAS SPY PERIL

Three of Kaiser's Busy Agents Caught at Toronto

Toronto, May 17—"Two of the cleverest German spies in Canada"—according to the statement of Mr. A. J. Russell Snow, K.C., Registrar of Alien Enemies—were arrested in Toronto on Saturday and interned at Stanley Barracks. They are Gusta. Kiefer, aged 23, and Godfried Moser, aged 26, of the firm of Kiefer, Moser & Co., importers and exporters, 1 Brock avenue, Toronto. They are natives of Karlsruhe, Germany, and have been in Canada two years. They both are experienced draughtsmen; they are well educated, alert and keen, with plenty of self-assertion. The production of Kiefer's notebook, found on the ground near Exhibition camp, and containing several pages of carefully prepared observations and notes in German, resulted in immediate action. It is probable that the military authorities will conduct further searching investigation into the conduct and operations of the whole "firm." Both had been under suspicion because of strange actions since January.

George A. Harum, commission agent, 78 Wilson avenue, and former Lieutenant in the German army, was also interned Saturday. He has for some months been under observation by the military authorities and police and was several times found hanging around Exhibition camp under the pretence of selling candies to the soldiers. He has lately been trying to get a permit to visit Niagara. This led to his arrest.

Wilson Refuses Hague?

Washington Remains Anxious Expecting Refusal to Arbitrate

Washington, May 17—Official opinion is growing stronger hourly in Washington that this government is opposed to the settlement by The Hague tribunal of the grave issues presented by President Wilson in his note to Germany calling a halt on her submarine warfare. At the same time the belief grows that the avenue of approach for a diplomatic settlement between the two countries will be along the line of the suggestion that the United States undertake to regulate and prevent the carrying gy passenger ships of munitions of war. There is also the opinion that to be consistent, Secretary Bryan would have to urge the adoption of the principle of the so-called Bryan treaties, which look to general arbitration. Documents written in other recent cases by the President, however, have made no response to Germany on the question of arbitration in cases in which the rights of American citizens are involved. The condition of anxiety growing out of the possibilities of Germany's reply to President Wilson remains as strong as heretofore.

Civil War in Portugal

President Disappears and Street Fighting Creates Anarchy

Madrid, May 17—Complete anarchy reigns in Lisbon, according to news reaching Madrid yesterday. Fighting in the streets continues between the mutineers and the loyal troops. The number of persons killed or wounded is said to have been considerable. Many buildings were burned and the homes of known loyalists pillaged. The President of Portugal has disappeared. Dspatches from Vigo announce that Portuguese people arriving there declare that the uprising is the beginning of civil war in Portugal.

"OUR BRAVE TROOPS FOUGHT SPLENDIDLY"

Sir John French Reports a Great Success by the First Army---Allies Pounding Away.

London, May 17—Sir John French reported last night: "Our first army has made a successful attack between Richebourg-L'Avoue and Festubert, breaking the enemy's line over the greater part of a two-mile front. The attack commenced at midnight, to the south of Richebourg-L'Avoue, where we carried two successive lines of German breastworks on a front of 800 yards. A mile further to the south another attack, delivered at dawn carried 1,200 yards of German front line trenches. We pushed rapidly on, extending our success 600 yards further to the south by bombing along the German trenches. Here we crossed the Festubert-Quinze road and advanced nearly a mile into the German line. The fighting continues in our favor. Throughout the day our brave troops fought splendidly. At Ypres all has been quiet for the last 48 hours. Elsewhere on the front there is nothing to report."

The Paris midnight official comments that the British advance "inflicted on the Germans a serious check," and continues: During the afternoon to-day we repulsed at Steenstraate with complete success a fourth German counter-attack. We have held all the positions taken yesterday and consolidated our gains, of which the violent efforts of the enemy showed the importance. North of Arras we have carried out several actions designed to consolidate our new front driving the enemy from several points to which they had been clinging. Our troops showed in these hand-to-hand struggles the greatest energy and tenacity. We have gained 200 metres on the slope which descends from the plateau of Lorette. Near Souches we have taken some more houses. North of Neuville we exploded a German captured balloon. Our aviators bombarded the railway station at Somain.

"In Champagne an action which was entirely local brought us a brilliant success. During the night of Saturday and Sunday the enemy exploded a mine behind our first line. Eight companies of Germans at once charged and established a footing in one salient. On Sunday two counter-attacks were carried out with much spirit with the bayonet and grenades; we retook all the positions. In the trenches and on the parapets we found more than 1,000 bodies of Germans."

Berlin's Alibi

Berlin, May 17—Main headquarters reported yesterday: "In the western theatre: Strong enemy forces have been attacking our positions east of the canal at Steenstraate and Hetzas, north of Ypres, since Saturday afternoon without regard to their own losses. All their attacks were repulsed. South of Lille the English made repeated infantry attacks after ample preparations by the artillery. These attacks already have been repulsed at most places. On both sides of the ridge of the Lorette Hills and at Souchez, as well as at Neuville, north of Arras, the French renewed their attacks which broke down under our fire."

British Bombard Lille

Rotterdam, May 17—The Germans are still sending forward all available troops in pursuance of a further determined effort to break the British lines at Ypres via the road from St. Julien. During Saturday and Sunday the fighting was fierce. The pressure on the allies probably would have been still greater but for the splendid counter move by the allies further to the north at Steenstraate and Hetzas. The Germans had to rush up reinforcements which were badly needed at the same moment for their Ypres effort. At Lille the Germans are working feverishly to strengthen its fortifications. They believe that Lille is the objective of the allies' offensive. Its outlying defense works are already under the fire of the heavy British guns.

Przemysl Defended

London, May 17—Berlin reports: "In the eastern theatre: The Russian advance was easily repulsed in the region of Shavli and 1,500 prisoners taken. On the Dubissa river in Baltic Russia a small division of our troops were forced to retreat before strong Russian forces. Further south at Ejargola the Russians were repulsed. On both sides of the Omulow strong Russian night attacks resulted in failure.

"In the south-eastern theatre: South-east of Przemysl and along the Stryj and at Stanislau the Teuton allies continue their advance. On the lower San southward from Przemysl the enemy is resisting our advance."

Britain Rules the Air

London, May 17—The "Eye-witness" reports: "During the past week there have been many duels in the air which invariably resulted in our favor. Severel German machines have been brought down by our aeroplanes and anti-aircraft guns. A few of our machines have been hit and forced to descend but this has not been brought about by the enemy's airmen, but by the gun and rifle fire from the ground."

TRANSYLVANIA SAFE IN PORT

German Threat to Repeat Lusitania Disaster Fails

New York, May 17—The Anchor Line steamer Transylvania passed safely through the war zone about the British Isles and arrived at Greenock, Scotland, at 3 o'clock this morning, London time, it was announced by officials of the Cunard Line, to which the Transylvania was under charter. Great anxiety had been felt for the safety of the Transylvania on account of the threats from Germany that she would receive the same fate as the Lusitania. The Transylvania sailed after the Lusitania had been torpedoed. She was not heard from since leaving New York, and it is supposed she slipped through the danger zone in the dark and changed her port from Liverpool to Greenock to defeat the enemy. She carried many Canadians.

Swept to Death by Wave

Toronto, May 17—One man was drowned and another seriously injured when the Canadian Stewart Company's Cyclone, the world's biggest dredge, was caught in a southeast gale off Toronto yesterday. The deckhand who lost his life is supposed to be George Rice, Sydenham street. He was swept from the dredge by a twelve-foot wave. The injured man is Oscar Peterson, Robinson street.

The candidates are doing splendid work these days. Big gains were made by many of them on Saturday and the coupon vote was very heavy. This will be the last week for the coupons so don't fail to save them for your favorite. The vote schedule on subscriptions is shown above.

Miss Irene Booth is still leader in her district and last week did fine work. Miss Gorman is in top place in District 2; Miss Teanie Boate leads in No. 3, and Miss Miller occupies first place in No. 4.

This is the last week to work for the 200,000 free votes. All money turned in last week along with that turned in this week will count on the award of the special ballots. Are you going to win this extra ballot? Better make up your mind this minute to do so. You can do as well as any of your competitors. DO IT NOW.

WILL ADVISE THE COUNCIL

Walter J. Francis Will Come to City on Wednesday

Walter Joseph Francis, consulting engineer, Montreal, is the man who has been selected to advise the City Council whether or not the foot of Lock Street is the proper place to collect the sewage of the city from which it will be pumped across the river to the disposal plant. At the meeting of the council last week the matter came up for considerable discussion and some of the aldermen felt that the engineering department had made a mistake and that the site for the pumping station should be at the end of Park Street. To settle the dispute it was decided to have Mayor Buller and Ald. G. W. Green, chairman of the Board of Works, secure a consulting engineer who would come to the city, take the matter up and then give his decision. As stated above Mr. Francis has been selected. He will come to Peterborough on Wednesday to confer with Mayor Buller and Ald. Green. If suitable arrangements can be made Mr. Francis will commence work immediately.

That the selection of Mr. Francis will be a popular one goes without saying. He has been connected with various construction works in Peterborough and his ability is well recognized. He is very well known in local Masonic circles.

QUARREL AIRED IN POLICE COURT

A neighbor's quarrel was dismissed in police court this morning with a kindly warning by the Magistrate to the parties concerned to strive and live more peacably. One woman accused another of pulling her child's ear and making it bleed. The other woman denied it and said she had not touched the child but had ordered him and some others off her premises because they were throwing stones at her front door. The Magistrate told them to go home and be more generous with each other.

CLEARING THE DECKS IN NORTHERN ITALY

Military Activities Quicken—Many Signs Point to War—Frontier Battle Already.

Rome, May 17—A border clash between Italian and Austrian troops was reported yesterday from Segna. A company of Austrian soldiers crossed the frontier and were engaged by Italian troops who were rushed to the scene. After an exchange of rifle fire the Italians charged and drove the Austrians back. One prisoner was captured. Trains laden with troops and war materials are constantly departing for the Tyrol frontier. The number of soldiers already mobilized is estimated at 1,700,000.

The newspapers yesterday were unanimous in predicting a decisive move forthwith. While the official announcement of the retention of Premier Salandra at the head of the Cabinet has put an end to the war riots throughout Italy, there were many demonstrations of rejoicing yesterday. These were particularly impressive at Milan, Florence, Naples, Messina, Bologna, Palermo, and Catania. At Genoa Saturday night there was hand-to-hand fighting getween partisans of war and the pacifiists. Twenty policemen were wounded. In Rome yesterday 200,000 citizens marched to the Quirinal in a testimonial of loyalty. The city was profusely decorated with the flags of all the allies. The expression of sympathy reached its height before the Belgian legation.

Clearing the Decks

Berne, May 17—A message from the Swiss-Italian frontier says that every Italian soldier has received two blankets and three pairs of nailed boots, stockings and woollen gloves, and that the troops of the third category had left Milan for an unknown destination. Yesterday evacuations began and property-owners were obliged to quit their property, receiving Government receipts for it. By evening the whole district from Lake Garda to and including Trent was evacuated. The Germans are still leaving Italy and arriving in great numbers in Switzerland.

47 Women Rioters Die

Rome, May 17—Forty-seven women are reported to have been killed and more than 300 wounded in a revolt which broke out yesterday in Trieste. Crowds of citizens, women predominating, assaulted the governor's palace shouting "Death to Francis Joseph!" Troops "dispersed" the rioters.

It was reported here yesterday that two or more republican or Socialist representatives will be admitted to the new Salandra Cabinet in the position of ministers without portfolio.

FUNERAL OF J. C. TULLY.

With befitting ceremony that was extremely impressive, the funeral of the late James D. Tully took place at three o'clock this afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery. The bearers were James Nugent, George Gladman, R. J. Kidd, Wm. Green, Andrew McFarlane and Adam Hall.

The funeral cortege was very large, testifying to the high regard in which deceased was held.

MORE MEN AND STILL MORE MEN AND SUPPLIES ARE URGENTLY NEEDED

Soldiers Who Have Been Through the Mill Recognize the Danger From Shortage of Munitions — Canadians Did not Get the Artillery Support Thev Should Have Had

(Special Correspondence to the Review from Walter Curran.)

Shorncliffe, April 30.—Things are moving at the front these days. The activity is reflected here. This evening a transport left for Calais with two thousand odd Canadian reinforcements. Last night thirty-seven hundred of the second contingent arrived. The last lot of officers of the Princess Pats leave tomorrow.

The spirit of the chaps who are leaving for the scene of action is really fine. They all realize that their fate may be sealed or they may be invalided back in a few days.

As a matter of fact, two of the men who left here on Monday were killed one hour after they went into the trenches, and three were back in the hospital here on Thursday. Although there has been some lull, please don't imagin that "lull" means cessation. I just heard from an Ottawa officer today, who, on Wednesday was having tea during a "lull," that shells were falling all about and men were being wounded and killed, but up to the time of his writing their place has been missed. A young Montreal subaltern had his cap split but was not injured. The roar of artillery never ceases. The men become so accustomed to it that they go about as though no such thing as shells existed. Rarely is it that you hear of a man's nerves giving out. It is strange, but it seems to be true, that most of the fellows enjoy the lift over there. They don't like the fierce actions, but now that the weather is fine, they enjoy the novelty of the free open-air life. The strange old-world surroundings, the picturesque uniforms of our allies, and their strange jabber, all tend to interest and amuse the "Colonials."

The detachments of the Second who arrived today were the Divisional Engineers, who were mobilized at Ottawa, four field hospitals, three field ambulances, the 18th Battalion from London, and the Divisional Train Army Service Corps. There were about thirty-seven hundred men in all. Col. Howard of Hamilton was in command. Col. Farmer of Toronto was commanding officer of the Army Medical detachments. The 21st from Kingston are expected shortly, and the 19th and 20th from Toronto later.

The Divisional Train Canadian Army Service Corps is that section which takes the supplies at the refilling point and by horse transport deliver to the company quartermasters, who hand them on to the men. The Divisional Train is under fire most of the time, and if they fail in their duties the men in the trenches go hungry and ammunitionless. The train is under the command of Col. Massie, of St. John, N. B. Col. John Shaw of Toronto is second in command. Major McKeen of St. John commands the headquarters company; Major Knox, of Montreal, Company 6; Major Freeman of Winnipeg Company 7; Major Mitchell of Vancouver, Company 8.

The last of the original 17th, "Borden's Pets," have just left. There has unquestionably been room for complaint by the men of this regiment. No doubt the mix-up which was occasioned by the friction among the officers was largely responsible. But the men, who were a splendid lot, suffered just the same. The last of them has now gone to the scene of the real happenings.

Like Schoolboys.

And strange as it seems for men going forth to flirt with death, as they tramped, tramped tramped through the streets to the dock with the 13th from Victoria, they were like a lot of schoolboys leaving for a holiday. They joked and laughed and had a jolly time generally. Only one company of officers were taken with the 30th. They have had only a little over a month's training, and men who have had more training are being substituted. The 23rd from Westmount left on Tuesday.

The Princess Pats seems to be running short of officers, and Capt. Randolph Mainer of Winnipeg, here, may have to go forward himself if another call comes immediately. The last two available officers went today.

The Princess Pats had the experience with the Saxons that other regiments reported. The trenches were so close that they threw papers to each other across. They chafed each other. The Saxons told the Pats that they wouldn't shoot if the Pats wouldn't, and that they would fire three volleys when they were going off and coming on. They lived up to the arrangement, and the fellows took considerable more liberties when the Prussians were not on duty.

They tell a story about the Saxons singing something about "Mit uns." One of the Pats jumped up on top of the trench and shouted, "Aw, shut up; we've got mittens, too." The Saxons joined in the laugh.

I was talking to a man today whose home was in Ypres. He had just received a letter which said that over 700 civilians had been killed there. This is probably an exaggeration. Two lady friends of his, who were living about a mile behind the farthest point of the German advance, were overcome by gas which came throug a window. One was blind for a day and a half and her lips were terribly swollen. The other, I think he said, drank some milk which had the effect of making her sick and that seemed to carry off the poison.

It has been very foggy last night and today in the Channel, and it was reported this afternoon that the German fleet had slipped down the coast and bombarded Dunkirk. This is getting reasonably close, as when they are at Dunkirk they are about as close as ——— to ——— (under 50 miles).

The recent arrivals report a splendid trip across. It was rough the first three days, but after that it was quite fine. They were escorted by a cruiser part of the way and by two destroyers the last two days. All sorts of fun and sports from night parades to field days made the trip a splendid holiday. They are all very enthusiastic about England, which is showing its very best just now.

Major Gault of the Princess Pats left for the front yesterday with forty men. He has been on the invalided list for about six weeks. More reinforcements go forth tonight, and all those who have been in camp here with the exception of the absolutely unfit, and a few officers who it was expected would go but who are not now required, will have left.

Scene at Boulogne.

I hear that the scene at Boulogne absolutely defies description. The suffering of the wounded and the sorrow for lost chums makes the heart sick. Wonderful weather has helped a little to cheer things up, but pain and sickness is so overwhelmingly present that all joy is taken out of everything. Strange as it may seem the uppermost thought seems to be to get on their feet again so that they may get satisfaction from the Huns. Everyone admits the bravery of the enemy and deplores the fact that in England and Canada the real danger is not appreciated. The Germans are absolutely alert and full of guile and cunning. The closeness of the call when the Canadians saved the situation was such as to make the most optimistic realize that unless we get men, more men, and still more men and munitions, an astute move by the enemy may upset our calculations. This is the feeling of the men who have been through the mill. They have the better of the Germans in square, stand-up fighting, but the French don't quickly adapt themselves to unknown, unaccustomed methods.

Munitions.

Speaking of munitions, it can do no harm to state that the Canadians did not receive the artillery support they should have had, and although the papers have been full of articles dealing with the shortness of munitions in its various phases, it seems unlikely that the average man in the street has an adequate idea of how crucial the situation really is or what the shortage of ammunition and guns means to the men at the firing line. If the workers in the shops realized it they would work double time—was almost going to say at half pay.

The inability of contractors to deliver their material on time because of the failure of the men to realize the situation has resulted in a continuous shortage of gunpowder and the consequent continuous sacrifice of man power. Hundreds, yea thousands of men have gone to their last reward because of the failure of the chap in the shop. A young Canadian officer, who has just come out of a convalescent hospital, calls it "a peculiarly low form of murder."

OBITUARY

MRS. W. W. ARMSTRONG.

Mrs. W. W. Armstrong, aged 62 years, of Campbellford, passed away at her home on Friday. For many years she had been a resident of the town and was held in high esteem by all. City Clerk S. R. Armstrong is a step-son and is present at the funeral in Campbellford today.

MR. DAVID MANN.

Mr. David Mann, 522 Water St., aged 61, who had lived in Peterborough for the past nine years, passed away last night at twelve o'clock after a lingering illness. Before removing here he lived in Cobourg, pursuing the occupation of blacksmith, but since his residence here he had been unable to follow his trade, owing to ill health.

He was born in the township of Asphodel. Besides his sorrowing wife, he leaves two sons and three daughters; Charles, in the Northwest; George Henry, of Peterborough; Mrs. Davidson, of Iroquois, Mrs. Allen, Bethune street, and Mrs. W. Grose, Rubidge street.

He was a member of the I.O.O.F. and a faithful member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery, conducted by Rev. Robert Pogue.

LT. CAMERON APPOINTED.

Lt. C. R. Cameron has been provisionally appointed as machine gun officer to the 39th Battalion at Belleville.

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

Cut out the coupon below and bring it along with your donation to Review.

REFUSED TO PAY BILL

Inspector of Weights and Measures Says Receptacles Were Not Stamped

Featured by constant tilts between the solicitor for the defence and the Crown, a highly interesting case developed in police court this morning when Garbage Collector Fairs and Sanitary Inspector Spence were charged with a violation of the Weights and Measures Act. The charges were laid separately. In the case of Mr. Fair, the information read that he had in his possession receptacles for the removal of garbage which were not stamped with their capacity. The complainant was G. H. Howson, inspector of weights and measures, who also complained of an overcharge levied by the health department against him for garbage removed by Fairs. The account was for $9.00, which the inspector declared was excessive, unjust and extortionate.

Mr. Howson away back in August last year was notified by Mr. Spence that he must have the garbage removed from a house owned by him at 139 London Street. He stated that Sanitary Inspector Spence had told him it would be performed for a reasonable amount. Two days after it was removed by Mr. Fairs, the latter came to his office and presented his account for $9.00. Somewhat staggered by this charge, Mr. Howson asked who made up the bill, and was informed that Sanitary Inspector Spence had. Inspector Howson then went to see Inspector Spence, who told him the charge was all right and in accordance wiht the amount of garbage removed. He was informed that each of the cans in which the garbage was removed contained 30 gallons, and that the charge for removing ashes in them was $1.00 a can. Mr. Howson computed that the cans did not contain that much, and he also found that their capacity was not marked upon them. Consequently he refused to pay the bill, has not paid it yet, and decided to lay informations against both the inspector and the collector.

Mr. Gordon, by cross-examination, endeavored to show that Inspector Howson had not regularly inspected garbage cans in compliance with the Act. He also differed with the measurements of a garbage can computed by him. Mr. Howson found that a garbage can held only 18 imperial gallons, and not thirty, that the cans were just 29 inches in depth and 15 inches in diameter. He had not actually measured one, because they were not in fit condition for familiar handling. He had ordered all the garbage collectors not to use them, telling them they were under seizure.

Magistrate Dumble reserved judgment in the charge against Fairs, and did not take up the information against Sanitary Inspector Spence.

JUDGMENT

The section of the C.O.F. constitution involved was "During the first week of an illness, or injury, a member, or some one on his behalf, shall notify the Chief Ranger or Financial Secretary or some member of the Sisk Committee of the Subordinate Court, or should the by-laws of his Subordinate Court so provide, the notice may be given to any of the same officials of the Subordinate Court in whose jurisdiction he resides at the time of taking ill, or being injured, stating the nature of such illness or injury. If there is no Subordinate Court in the locality where a brother is taken ill or has been injured, a notice sent by mail will date from the time of mailing such notice."

"Kit" is Dead

Hamilton, May 17—Mrs. Kathleen Blake Coleman, known as "Kit," Canada's most famous newspaperwoman died here yesterday after two days' illness of pneumonia.

Market For Everything.

"Is there such a thing as secondhand brass band instruments? Why, certainly," said a musical instrument man. "Why shouldn't there be? You can buy secondhand yachts, pianos, steam boilers, bricks, secondhand anything on earth—why not secondhand band instruments? How do they come to be offered secondhand? Why, just as anything else does. Somebody gives up using an instrument, and then he sells it; or somebody wants to buy a better instrument and then sells the old one. And for all these secondhand instruments there is a market. They may be sold to beginners or to players, and such a thing has been heard of as a new band equipping itself throughout with secondhand instruments for the sake of economy."—Pittsburgh Press.

With as a Noun.

When Walter Scott was a boy his teacher asked him to give the part of speech of the word "with."

"It's a noun," said young Scott.

"You are very stupid," said the teacher. "How came you to say such a thing?"

"I got it from the Bible, sir," said the future novelist stoutly. "There's a verse that says 'they bound Samson with withs.'"

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet, it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

SPORTING NEWS

EMPIRES WON IN NINTH, EAST CITY HAD EASY WIN

Rose and Flaherty Had Pretty Pitching Duel for Eight Innings

"Don't give up till the last bat's in the bag" is one of John McGraw's contributions to the literature of the optimist. The ball team which is imbued with that spirit can be depended on to start something when others would abandon all hope. It's the team built on that principle that wins games. It's the team that draws the support of the neutral fan. The Empire A.C. were helpless against the offerings of Gus Rose on Saturday for the first eight innings. Then, the Blue Sox started something and before the smoke cleared walked off with a 2-1 victory. It was the old, old story. One behind when the last of the ninth came round. A single followed by a double and a sacrifice fly tied it up. A runner on third, another on second and one down The catcher throws to third to get the runner off the bag. The man on the difficult corner loses the ball and before he recovers it, the base runner crosses the plate with the winning counter.

The games on the opening day of the City League were good but that entertainment the Empire Club and the Classics presented on Saturday was better. Some three hundred fans favored the attractions by their attendance. That the first game pleased goes without saying. Air tight ball behind two well seasoned pitchers always will please. When it comes from amateurs it does even more. Professional ball might provide more thrills, more evidence of deep thinking and more hair raising fielding but after all good close ball by home brews can be more thoroughly appreciated. Mayor Buller remarked when the curtain was lifted that Peterborough baseball enthusiasts would forget the paid artists when the City League got rightly started. His "dope" is coming true.

The fact that "Yebbie" Flaherty and Gus Rose were the opposing hurlers in the Empire A.C. vs. Classics game gave promise of a real struggle. It was. For seven and two-thirds innings no Empire man secured a safety off Rose. Flaherty was almost as invincible. The first batter, Lornie Rose, tapped a single. He never reached second. Three batters inhaled "Yebbie's" smoke in the second and in the third Lornie Rose annexed hit No. 2. For three innings then the Classics approached the plate in vain. In the seventh, Connors, the first man up, rapped a safe one. Neary who followed poled one to deep centre. Connors scored and Neary reached third but was called out for cutting second. From then till the finish not a man reached first.

Only one hit up till the first of the ninth and it when two were gone in the eighth tells how generous Rose was. It was enough to discourage any team but not so with Bennie Wilson's gang. "Never give up till the last bat's in the bag" quoted a voice on the benth. They didn't. Flaherty the first man up in the latter part of the last frame was urged to "win his own game." He connected for a single and a moment later reached second on a passed ball. Murphy reached for a fast one with Irish determination and it resulted in a two-bagger. Flaherty was held at third but Sherrett produced a sacsacrifice fly and the pitcher came with the run that made it 1-1. Corrin singled but Murphy failed to come in ot it. Evans was at bat when Murphy took a big lead off third and Kennealley whipped the come in on it. Evans was at bat blocked the third sacker's vision and he lost the throw. Before he recovered it Murphy was home and the game was won.

Both peggers hurled fine ball, each team making but four hits. It would seem as though Father Time has no control over ball players. Flaherty was pitching ball when some of his Saturday team mates were in the cradle. He went out Saturday and produced as much form from his old wing as any one could desire. Gus Rose repeated his performance of a week previous. He was steady all the while and until the Empires staged their rally, they were eating out of his hand.

Kennealley the "kid" catcher for the Classics made a very favorable impression with his base throwing. He threw a couple of would-be stealers out by a city block. His one-handed catch, of a foul, off the boards of the stand brought the fans to their feet. Harry Corrin, in right field for the winners, contributed the fielding sensation of the day when he gathered in Kennealley's fly, after a hard run, in the fifth.

East City 12, Thistles 4.

The second game was not as good an exhibition of ball as the first. East City found little trouble in hammering Roy Smythe of the Thistles for twelve hits, which together with a bunch of errors, enabled them to win by 12-4. It was thought that Louie Yeotes' men would give the team from across the bridge a run for the honors. The dope went astray. The crew from Brooklyn broke in with four in the first and increased the lead as the game advanced. In the seventh they gathered five runs from six hits and a couple of errors. Why the Thistles fell down is a mystery. The team looks good on paper but it was far from being good on Saturday. No less than nine errors were chalked against them the most of which were "juicy." A thorough rennovation is promised so the Thistles will be heard from before many more games are played.

O'Connell was on the firing line for East City and he was wild as Prussian dreams. He allowed seven hits but presented six with free transportation to first. The team behind him hit well but the fielding can be improved. The box score shows six errors against them so Dan McCabe and his assistants will have to give the boys a little more rehearsing. East City and Thistles can play much better ball than they did. They will need to, if they desire to hold Vic Fowler or Bennie Wilson from copping the silverware.

"Bill" Shaw came out of seclusion and held down the left garden lot for the winners. By appearances the same old William has a few games in his hide yet. It is thought that Bill's presence caused the downfall of Fred Craig. "Josh" displayed all kinds of class a week ago but lost it all Saturday. He dropped two flies in a row in the fourth stanza and was "yanked." Adams moved over to centre and Knapman went to left. The latter eat up a long fly from Shaw's bat in the ninth and drew applause from the few remaining fans.

The hitting of Butcher was one of the features of the game. He had four safe ones out of six trips to the plate. Art Primeau dropped two flies in the field but he came through with two doubles which more or less covered up his miscues. Roy Smythe had a three-bagger, the first one made since the league opened.

Ab. Quinla handled both games and as usual gave entire satisfaction.

FINAL GAME IN INDOOR BASEBALL

The following players of (H) No. 8 Co. are requested to be at the Armouries at 8.45 p.m. sharp for the final game: Darling, Hardie, Clancy, Heaslip, Jackson, Hamilton, Stewart, Carr, Smyth, Nicholls, and McDonald.

All players of No. 2 Co. are asked to be at the Armouries at 8.45 p.m. sharp.

Jackson, A. Cranfield, B. Cranfield, Helson, Turner, Roots, Latimer, Lazure, Watt, Veedon, and any others who can play ball.

COMMENT As You Like it

THE GAME between the Classics and Empire A.C. on Saturday was played in an hour and twenty-six minutes. The ball left the field but once, it being a foul over the stand.

UMPS QUINLAN caught a couple of base runners cutting the sacks and didn't let them get away with it. Men qualified to play with a City League team should not pull any bones of that nature.

STANLTY CRESWELL is making a strong bid for a berth with Brantford, Nichol, Worfel, Higgins, Wagner and the local youngster compose Rube Deneau's firing line.

FRANK ROONEY is billed to hold down the left field job with the Senators this season. "Shag" was sweet on the big southpaw last year.

BERT PERRY of the London Advertiser says:— "Doc." Reisling was playing second base yesterday. "Doc." has tried all the infield positions but shortstop, so far. He is showing a lot of "pep" these days and may find a position that fits him yet.

We question if "Doc." Reisling will ever find a position which suits him unless its caring for a furnace in winter and cutting grass in summer.

LOUIE YEOTES says he is going to begin building up a team. A winner could be made of the material on hand if the boys were handled properly.

MURPHY the third sacker for the Empire Club is playing good ball. The Home Ruler came through with a double at the proper moment Saturday.

EAST CITY can hit the ball when they start connecting at all. A week ago they fielded well and fell down at the bat. Saturday they poled out twelve safe ones and had six errors.

WITH BILL SHAW, Craig, Kirn, Rose, Flaherty, and several other old timers "coming back" the league will soon be the old City League reorganized.

THE IDEA of allowing all boys in free on condition that they remain in the west stand was successfully carried out on Saturday and will likely be worked every game.

Dumas' Dramatic Intuition.

A story is told of the elder Dumas which illustrates his remarkable dramatic intuition. An eminent Parisian critic who sat beside him at a first performance noticed that he seemed abstracted.

"You are triste, my master," observed the critic.

"[illegible]," replied Dumas. "I'm not bored, but I'm somewhere else here, so to speak. I am unable to follow any play to the end. I listen closely to the first act, and then my mind carries me off into thoughts of the play I would make of it."

Same Old Style of Cooking.

Professor Snaggs—Strange there's been no improvement made in cooking in the last 2,000 years. Now, down at my boarding house this morning I had a steak broiled in the regular Pompeiian style.

Boggs—Pompeiian style? How do you mean?

Professor Snaggs—Why, scorched to a cinder on one side and covered with ashes on the other.

Patriotic League in Ashburnham

Ladies Arrange to Start Sewing This Week

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham held an adjourned meeting in the hall on Saturday afternoon, with a good attendance and a very enthusiastic meeting.

Arrangements were completed for the concert to be held in the Ashburnham Hall on Friday, May 21st. A splendid program has been provided.

Full arrangements have been made to start the sewing this week. A meeting is called for Wednesday in the Mothers' Club room at the King George School, and the ladies in charge of the sewing will give the work, with instructions, to the members. The ladies in charge of the surgical supplies will have material to start their work, and all those interested are asked to attend.

The ladies were sorry to accept the resignation of Mrs. R. B. Rogers, who was president, but were pleased to make her the honorary president. The new president is Mrs. T. H. Adams, who was elected by ballot. Mrs. Parsons was elected first vice-president by acclamation to take the place of Mrs. Huycke, who resigned on account of ill-health. Mrs. Huycke will remain an active member.

MISSIONARY FROM THE GREAT NORTHLAND

The congregations at St. John's listened attentively to the Rev. E. J. Peck yesterday to a soul stirring account of work among the Eskimos. Hundreds of miles from the nearest doctor, and a thousand miles from a post office, a visit once a year from a small vessel, and not always that; to spend eight years in mastering the language for purposes of translations of hymns and Bibles, among a people who have no literature, were some of the difficulties Mr. Peck had to face commencing in the seventies. Tonight in St. John's school, slides will be shown of the varied planes of life in that great lone land, and all who can possibly do so, will or should be present.

Public Reception at Park St. Church

Ministers Will Welcome Rev. D. Brown and Mrs. Brown

A public reception will be given tonight at 8 o'clock by the Park St. Baptist Church to Rev. Dougald Brown, the new pastor, and Mrs. Brown. Ten minute addresses will be given by Rev. J. Rollins for the Ministerial Association, Rev. J. R. Webb for the Baptists of the city, Adjutant McElhiney for the south end, and Rev. C. G. Smith of Belleville for the Peterborough Baptist Association. The chair will be taken by Mr. Joseph Wearing. Special music will be rendered by the choir and male quartette.

Splendid audiences turned out morning and evening yesterday to take part in the anniversary services. In the morning the pastor spoke on the subject "A New Testament Model Church" and held up the first church at Antioch as an example for Park St. Church to follow. In the evening Mr. Webb of Murray Street Church preached from the text, "I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord" (II. Cor. 12-1.) In the vision on the way to Damascus Paul saw Christ as his Saviour. In the vision which called him to Macedonia he saw a larger field of usefulness; and in the vision which took him to the third heaven he saw his future reward. From this Mr. Webb adduced lessons for the new pastorate under Mr. Brown.

Geneva, May 17.—Information has been received here that the Allies aviators inflicted damage of over two million dollars on Strassburg tanneries, which were working on material for the German army.

BERLIN ADMITS IT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Berlin, May 17.—The German official statement admits that north of Ypres and west of the canal near Steenstracte and Hetsas, the Germans yesterday gave up advanced positions and withdrew their forces to positions east on the bank of the canal under pressure of artillery fire.

NATIONS WILL BE PURIFIED BY THIS WAR

Sacrifice of Pte. Taylor and Other Soldiers Not in Vain

SIN AND SELFISHNESS THE CAUSE OF WAR

"That war was brought about by the sin and selfishness of men; because Christian men have not done the will of God and that instead of glorifying in war we should be humbled and shamed," was one of several points brought out and elucidated by Rev R. Pogue, in his sermon Sunday mornig. "There is strife and bloodshed," the preacher said, "because we have not exemplified the Christian spirit."

Some problems suggested by the war and lessons to be learned from it, was the theme on which the preacher spoke. He had no text, he explained, but if one were to be selected, he would use the words found in the 45th verse of St. Mark, chapter 10: "He gave His life a ransom for many." These words, he applied in speaking of the sacrifice made by Private Odely Taylor, killed in action at the battle of Langemarck. Pte. Odely Taylor was a communicant member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and the opportunity was taken to extend the sympathy of the congregation to his parents and to assure them of the congregation's prayers.

Did Not Die in Vain.

Odely Taylor did not die in vain. No soldier in the present war would die in vain. Because Calvary was not in vain, so we believe his sacrifice will not be in vain. He was so young to die, celebrating as he did his twentieth birthday in the trenches. He was communicant member of St. Paul's for some four or five years and had taken his stand among the soldiers of Christ. And it was soldiers of Christ who made good soldiers on the battlefront. "Let us think of him as dying for us," said the preacher." Let us honor and revere his memory.

In explanation of some of the problems of the war Rev. Mr. Pogue pointed out how we read of the churches of Germany being crowded with worshippers; of mothers praying for the safety of their sons; of German soldiers marching to battle singing O God Our Help in Ages Past and of reading of how in England the same thing is to be forced.

Ideals Clash.

It would seem however that there are times when our ideals must clash and such appears to be the case today. Advocates of peace in England believed that peace was possible only through war, that militarism could be crushed only by unsheating the sword.

While the Germans go into war singing hymns, their spirit is one of hatred. The Allies' is one of love. They are fighting not merely to defeat Germany but to save her from the curse of militarism.

Other Horrible Things.

We should not forget that there are other horrible things in the world besides war. There was not the least doubt that the evils of the liquor traffic were infinitely greater than the misery and suffering caused by war.

Purification of the nations would follow this war, through the chastisement brought down on the people. God lives and reigns and has not forsaken His work. We should look at all these things in the light of the sufferings of Calvary.

ing to a wire received by his sister yesterday who is Mrs. S. Touchburn, 20 Benson Avenue. Harvey Staunton was attached to the 48th Highlanders of Toronto where he held the rank of corporal. He enlisted in Lindsay shortly after the outbreak of war. He lived in Peterborough for many years and was actively associated with the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, being a member of the Leaders' Corps in 1912. He was employed with the Peterborough Light and Power Company when he left Peterborough.

PTE. ARTHUR CONLON.

Pte. Arthur Leonard Conlon, whose mother, Mrs. Rose Conlon, lives at Warsaw, is officially reported as missing. He was with the 7th Battalion.

Pte. Conlon had been living in the west and when the war broke, joined the Saskatoon Rangers.

PTE. J. H. MINORGAN

Pte. James Harold Minorgan, of the 1st Battalion, who was reported Sunday as killed in action, was a cousin of George Minorgan, the local boy who was killed in action at Langemarck. Like his cousin, Pte. James H. Minorgan was a bank clerk in the Merchants Bank of Canada at Chatsworth, Ont.

TWO MORE MISSING.

Pte. J. Vincent and Pte. W. J. Long, two 57th men in the Second Battalion, are reported among the missing. Pte. Long boarded at 166 McDonnel Street.

SERVICE HELD IN HONOR OF PTE. MINORGAN

Lt. Col. Walker and R. J. Kidd Speak at Charlotte St. Church

The services at the Charlotte St. Methodist Church last evening partook of a memorial character in honour of the late George Minorgan who was formerly a member of that church and its Sunday School. Mr. Kidd read the lesson, and Lieut.-Col. Walker gave an address. Mr. Kidd read two passages, one from Hebrews 11, 36; and the other from Revelations. The Rev. Mr. Wilson, the pastor, said that they would not likely hold services for all who might fall in battlte, but as this was the first casualty in the congregation he felt it a duty to hold one.

Mr. Kidd, after reading the lesson said that the late George Minorgan had been brought up in a Christian home and under Christian influences. Some 16 years ago he entered the Primary Department and was duly promoted until he became a member of the young men's class. He was without vicious habits and had a splendid chance in life. A few days before the battle in which he lost his life he partook of the sacrament. We never thought that the losses would be so severe and we never thought to have them come so closely home to us. He extended to his father, sister and brother the sympathy of himself and the congregation for the loss of so fine a young man. He lived a good life and died a noble death.

The pastor then followed with a few words of eulogy. Life has always been the price of blessing. It is so in the present life. By the death of others blessings come. It is not necessary to die, but a man must be willing to do so. Many went into the battle and George laid down his life. Others came out, but they all risked their lives. It was so with St. Paul and John Brown. They laid down their lives and blessings came of it. Our liberties have all been bought at a price. Liberty is the heritage of our race. Mr. Wilson told of three trophies in Windsor Castle that were very highly prized. One was a golden peacock studded with jewels, another a piece of serge, and the other a quill pen. The serge was valued equally with the peacock because it was a piece of an old flag and was stained with blood. In the present war civilization was at stake. It was better to be a bleeding conqueror than bleeding slaves. Herod has been held up in execration for 1900 years. The present German Emperor will be held up as the man who out-Heroded Herod. Christ laid down His life in order that man might be redeemed. Are not our soldiers laying down their lives for liberty and civilization? We must care for our national life. Order will come out of the present chaos.

The pastor extended comfort to the sorrowing ones, but said that we must not become too depressed at a time like the present when there is a preponderance of sorrow and affliction.

Lieut.-Col. Walker said that a eulogy had been pronounced by the pastor on the late George Minorgan, and that he would not deal so much with that. He died in war. As it has become proverbial to speak of it, war is known as hell. Still, good has been the result of British wars. The speaker instanced South Africa, where the man who is now leading the British forces was once considered a rebel. In British wars, in modern times at least, women and children have been respected. Many heroic virtues are due to war. War does not produce these virtues, it only stages them. Premier Asquith said that he would rather have the British Empire blotted out than break its word. There are many heroes who have not been in the limelight. They have not had the opportunity.

Like Peter of Holland.

He told the story of little Peter of Holland who stopped the water from wearing down one of the great dykes, and interpreted the battle in which the late George Minorgan lost his life. The canal was the road to Calais, the floods of water were the Huns, and among those who stopped the flood at Langemarck were the Peterborough boys. Langemarck will go down in history as a great battle. General French said they saved the situation, and that will become a proverb.

He knew George Minorgan for a number of years. While he was a good steady-going young man, there was nothing remarkable about him, but he must have had throbbing in his breast the virtues that make for manhood. He chose good companions; Rogers and Gibson were his friends. They slept in the same tent; now they sleep in a foreign land in a common grave. We must hear what they say to us. It is for each of us to hear that call, and what shall be our answer?

The music was very good and appropriate to the occasion.

Pte. Bills Writes From Hospital

Private J. Bills, who was wounded when the Peterborough boys were in the trenches, writes to Mrs. J. Booth, 176 Sherbrooke Street, at whose home he boarded, to say he is still in the hospital. The soldier who found Pte. Bells when wounded has since been killed and four out of six in his tent have been wounded. Referring to Majorf Bennett's death. Pte. Bills says he was loved by all the men in the company and they would follow him anywhere. Pte. Bills wishes to be remembered to his friends in Peterborough. His address is Pte. J. Bills, No. 7603, 35B Ward, R. V. Hospital, Netley.

CAPTAIN FROST ASKS FOR FUNDS

To Brighten Lives of Soldiers When Ill

The following letter has been sent to the Christian Guardian by Rev. H. A. Frost, who formerly preached in Charlotte Street Methodist Church following the death of Rev. T. J. Mansell:

A Fund to Help Canadian Soldiers.

To the Editor, Christian Guardian.

Dear Sir,—The following letter received a few days ago from Captain Harry A. Frost, one of the Methodist chaplains with the First Canadian Contingent, will be read with very deep interest by the readers of the Christian Guardian:

"Coman's Hotel,
"21 and 23 Castle Hill Ave.,
"Folkestone, April 9, 1915.
"Rev. T. Albert Moore, D. D.,
"Toronto, Canada.

"Dear Brother, — I am writing you today in regard to a matter which I hinted at in my last letter to the Guardian in January. It is to give our Methodist people an opportunity to assist the Canadian boys, and especially Methodist lads, on this side the water.

"This call ought to have come through our senior Methodist chaplain, Major Emsley, but as he is located with No. 1 General Hospital, I am the one who has the roving work to do. I will give you an instance. I went down to Southampton on a few days' leave. When there I met a Canadian medical officer, and learned that there were Canadian boys in Netley hospital. I went out and found one hundred who had not seen a 'padre' for six weeks. We know our boys are scattered around in about twenty different hospitals. Now, our plan is for each church at home to put a certain amount of money at our disposal, and then in turn we shall visit these outlying hospitals and minister to our men. I don't mind spending my own cash for the boys, but it doesn't begin to cover what I would like to do. I simply cannot provide little extras which bring brightness into the men's lives when ill.

"Now, this is my plan: To have a fund opened in Toronto by you or some other responsible official of our Church, and to send on to us the money as we need it. We shall spend the money as judiciously as we can, and when the war is over the balance that is left could be used with honor to the boys and credit to our Church in erecting a memorial to the brave Methodist lads who gave their lives for their country's sake.

"I don't see any reason for making this fund too large. At the present, $1000 or $1500 would enable us to do a great deal in the next six months, and possibly would cover all our requirements. If this meets with your approval, and you can assure me of a couple of hundred in the next month, will you cable me to that effect as soon as possible? A cable to this address will reach me.

"In a letter to the Guardian, which I shall write in a few days, I shall endeavor to give our people some conception of the magnitude and scope of the work. With kind regards,

"Yours sincerely,
"(CAPT.) HARRY A. FROST,
"Methodist Chaplain."

The C. L. A. Society of Charlotte Street Methodist Church has decided to make a donation for the project. If any others desire to contribute, donations may be sent to the Rev. J. P. Wilson, 302 Reid street, or to the secretary of the C. L. A. Society, Mr. Jamieson, 493 Gilmour street.

CORP CUMBERLAND NOT A PRISONER

Is Among Wounded at Base Hospital in France

Cheering news awaited Eldred Cumberland of the City Engineer's office this morning, in the shape of a telegram saying that his brother, Keith Cumberland believed to be missing was not a prisoner but was lying wounded in a base hospital in France. The news was obtained through Sir George Perley, High Commissioner of Canada who also instituted enquiries about Stuart Hayes at the request of his father Judge Hayes of Guelph. The wire stated that Stuart Hayes was still missing.

Mr. Eldred Cumberland was greatly cheered by the information that his brother was not missing as first reported.

RECORD PRICE FOR CHEESE

G. A. Gillespie Bought up the Board at 18 3-8 Cents --- R. Duff of Selwyn is the New President of Peterborough Cheese Board

Eighteen and three-eighths cents per pound was the record price paid for cheese by Mr. G. A. Gillespie at the opening meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board held this morning in the Bank of Montreal chambers. It was the highest bid ever made on the local board. The top figure last season was 15 1-8 cents. This morning the total amount of cheese boarded was 1,042. The buyers present were: W. S. Cook, G. A. Gillespie, T. Thompson, Wm. Flavelle, J. A. Kerr, J. Riddell and M. Morton. As soon as the bidding opened Mr. Flavelle offered 18; Mr. Morton, 18 1-16; Mr. Flavelle, 18 3-8, and Mr. Gillespie 18 3-8 for the board.

38th Annual

It was the 38th annual meeting of the board and was very largely attended. President W. C. Switzer made a few remarks, thanking the members for their hearty co-operation during the three years he had held the presidency, and assuring them of continued interest on his part.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Mr. R. Duff, Selwyn.
First Vice-President — Mr. J. G. Brechinridge, Westwood.
Second Vice-President — Mr. G. W. Mann, Trewern.
Secretary-Treasurer — Mr. Ed. Hawthorne, Warsaw.
Auditors — Messrs. W. A. Anderson, Keene, and J. W. Hunter, Pine Grove.

The new president, Mr. Duff, assumed the chairman's duties, and in a few well-chosen words thanked the members for the honor, and hoped the board would meet with further success. He voiced his deep regret at the old officers not desiring to remain in control, but hoped for their co-operation.

The treasurer's report was received. It showed a balance in the bank of $16.36.

Patriotic Fund.

Before the meeting adjourned the members took up the matter of disbursing the money collected last year by each factory donating one day's make for the patriotic fund. Secretary Hawthorne reported that the amount on hand was $1023.37. During the winter one family had received $40 from the fund, but none others were found wanting. He thought it would be wise to have the money given to various societies assisting in Red Cross work. Considerable discussion was given the matter, and it was plainly the feeling of all that the various societies in the two Peterborough ridings should all receive a portion of it. It was decided that the committee consisting of President Duff, ex-President Switzer and Secretary Hawthorne be authorized to make any donations to societies in this vicinity as they deem advisable.

The board wll convene again on Wednesday, June 2nd.

The Boarding

The following were the amounts boarded this morning by the various factories:

Keene, 30; Warminster 65; Shearer, 90; Selwyn, 35; Villiers, 35; Warsaw, 55; Westwood, 110; Oakdale, 60; Daisy D., 35; Pine Grove, 30; Myrtle, 35; Ormonde, 70; Young's Point, 22; Lang, 70; Indian River, 35; East Emily, 75; Trewern, 45; Norwood, 100; Fleetwood, 40; Killarney, 55. Total, 1,042.

WAS SHOT IN THE MOUTH

Pte. Jefferies Guesses He Will be Disfigured for Life but He's Happy

MINUS HIS TEETH

Pte. C. W. Jefferies, one of the 57th men of "A" Company, Second Battalion, who was recently reported wounded when the Canadians were in their first real fight, has written to his brother, George Jefferies, who works with John Armstrong near Indian River. Pte. Jefferies writes from a hospital in Dublin, Ireland, as follows:

Just a line, and I hope it will find you well, as it leaves me feeling a bit better now. You will see where my abode is for the present. I don't know how long I shall be here, but it is a nice place, and they give us good attention. This makes the fifth hospital I have been in, four in France, and this one.

I am glad to get out of it for a time, for it was hell for four days up around Ypres. We had just come out of the trenches, when word came that the Germans had driven back the French and had taken their trenches. So off we had to go and get them back.

You can fancy us just out of the trenches for four days, and then having to return again. It did not make us feel good at all. But we started out at midnight and had about six miles to march. All this time the Germans were advancing on Ypres. I shall never forget the sights going up to Ypres. There were only old men and women left. All others were ordered out of the town, as it was being shelled with Jack Johnsons and lyddite. My God! it was awful, but we kept on going. Old Bill had more than he could do to make us run. Well, we hit the first lot of Huns at the Yser canal; not many, but they had the best of us, as they were dug in. Yet it did not take long to make them shift. You should have seen them run. It is not a nice thing to stick your bayonet into a man, but if you want to live you have to do it.

Now for the best scrap. It was just getting daylight when we came up to a wood full of Prussian Guards. I guess you have seen in the papers where we lost all our officers. We made a good charge and defeated them, but we were cut off for four days.

I was hit in the mouth, and it went through my tongue and knocked out a good lot of my teeth. I will be disfigured for life, [illegible] but don't worry, I am still ha[illegible] get seven days in England before I go back to France, and will write from there.

STEAMER ON POST DUTY IS RAMMED

Six Out of Crew of Fourteen Are Saved Vessel Was Sunk by Another Boat That Should Not Have Been in the Vicinity

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

QUEBEC, May 19. — Rammed by another vessel, the steamer Christine, doing post duty at the naval station off Maheux River, Isle of Orleans, sank within three minutes last night. Of the crew of fourteen, only six are reported as being saved. The Christine was under the command of Captain Kennedy, who was saved, and is in the hospital with a broken leg. Among the dead are Odilon Larose, Levis; Michael Varon and W. Langlois, Bienville, a suburb of Levis. The chief engineer has not yet been accounted for, and it is supposed he is dead.

AN INQUIRY WILL BE HELD.

OTTAWA, May 19.—Marine officials will conduct an inquiry into the sinking of the Government steamer Christine off the Island of Orleans. Details at hand here are meagre, but it is stated she was rammed by another Government boat that should not have been in the vicinity.

The Christine was about one hundred feet long, and her crew was that put aboard by her owners when she was chartered by the Government, but it is also believed a few government employees were also on board when the accident occurred.

WHAT CAUSED THE TROUBLE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 19.—"The Government has definitely sought the co-operation of the opposition and opposition leaders have in principle consented to join them, but nothing is likely to be decided until Unionist leaders have obtained the formal backing of their followers at a party meeting," says the parliamentary correspondent of The Times. Trouble between Churchill and Lord Fisher arose from the British Cabinet sanctioning the first naval attack on the Dardanelles in ignorance of the fact that the Sea Lords were opposed to naval operations unsupported by a land force.

CHURCH PARADE SUNDAY JUNE 6

Regiment Will Attend Service at St. John's

A church parade of the 57th Regiment will be held to St. John's Church on Sunday, June 6th. The hour has yet to be decided.

The weekly drill and marchout was well attended last night, there being between 275 and 300 men out.

PETERBORO' GIRL BRIDE-TO-BE.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Ogden Schfield, daughter of George A. Schfield of Highland Park, to Blasdel Shapleigh, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Shapleigh of St. Louis, is planned to take place in September. Miss Schofield was born in Peterborough, Ont.—From the Chicago British-American.

The Lindsay Council voted to call off paving operations for this summer.

LORD FISHER TO REMAIN

Arrangements Will be Made to Have Him Retain Post

MIGHT ASSUME FIRST LORDSHIP HIMSELF

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 19. — No announcement has been made regarding the cabinet reconstruction. There is a widespread belief that, although Lord Fisher has tendered his resignation as First Sea Lord, arrangements will be made to enable him to retain the post under the new First Lord of the Admiralty if he does not assume the First Lordship himself.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1915

PATRIOTIC EFFORTS SHOULD BE MORE UNITED.

EVERY EFFORT for the welfare of the soldiers at the front and dependents at home should be generously supported by the citizens. The conflict with Germany, we believe, is not half over, and every resource of the Empire, financial, military and naval, will be strained to the utmost. The time is one of testing of a severity never yet experienced in the long and checkered hitory of the British nation. That is why every legitimate effort for the welfare of our position in the conflict should be generously and cheerfully supported by the citizens.

But there is a danger that the best results will not be realized through a division of the people at home. There are too many societies undertaking individual schemes, and unless people are willing to sink personal prejudices and dislikes for the public good, many well-intentioned movements will not only be of little or no avail, but will create an opposition to organizations that should be given every possible encouragement. Intelligent citizens realize that they must support patriotic movements to the limit of their resources, and great care should be taken to prevent a division arising in what citizens do, and to prevent their efforts running to small and futile ends. This is doubly important because the war is constantly requiring new things that were unforeseen, and these must be provided for by additional levies on the citizens. That is why there should be a minimum of twenty-five-cent levies.

In any event, the merits of a society or movement must be decided by the citizens. They are asked to pay, and they should satisfy themselves of the merits of the movement. There is one society, however, that can be given a recommendation, and that is the Red Cross Society. It has been doing a great work and earned a just title to the support of the citizens. At the same time, too many individual campaigns that can easily arise from the exigencies of the war is a danger that should be kept in mind.

RUMOR OF LOCAL MEETING.

IT WAS STATED freely this morning here that in view of the quarrel between Churchill and Lord Fisher, and the consequent reconstruction of the British cabinet, a meeting would be called in the Market Square by the Liberal Association of West Peterborough to protest against any political move during war-time.

BETTER MUNICIPAL BOOKKEEPING NEEDED.

AN INVESTIGATION of fifty-five municipal lighting plants of middle western state towns has revealed some interesting facts. Less than one-ninth of the plants pay, according to the statement in their own reports. The majority of the towns really do not know whether their plants pay or not, because their methods of bookkeeping make an intelligent answer impossible. One town reports that private ownership would be preferred.

Readers should not run away with the idea that municipal ownership is a failure. It is not a panacea for all civic ills, but this report points to a condition that is notorious. So far as Ontario is concerned, there should be some provincial legislation making better bookkeeping possible for municipal corporations. In some places there is nothing to complain of, but in others there is much. A general system for the Province, insisting on more detailed requirements than exist at present, ought to have beneficial results.

WHERE SOME OF THE MONEY GOES TO.

CANADA has received orders for eighty million dollars' worth of shells. The Bethlehem Steel Company of the United States has received orders for one hundred million dollars' worth, and has had to farm out large amounts. A billion and a quarter dollars is the estimate made by the Boston News Bureau of the war orders placed in the United States by the Allies. The Montreal Journal of Commerce has estimated that in Canada upwards of a quarter of a billion dollars' worth of war orders have been placed by the Allies, which makes a total of one billion five hundred million dollars' worth of orders placed in Canada and the United States.

When it is remembered that the British forces alone fired more ammunition at the battle of Neuve Chapelle than was used during the whole Boer War, the above amounts of money for shells and other munitions give an idea of the colossal magnitude of the present war. They give also an idea of the scale on which the Allies are preparing for the coming months of war. To meet such preparations seems to be a hopeless task for Germany. This is where the silver bullet will count.

MONTREAL is to have a clean-up week. It is not stated whether it will be backyards or municipal politics.

A COSMOPOLITAN FIGHTING FORCE.

CONSIDERING its small numbers, the Canadian Overseas Contingent, which has been winning laurels in the fighting line, is perhaps the most cosmopolitan force of that kind ever gathered together, says the Wall Street Journal. Its members hail from all quarters of the globe — Asia, Australia, Europe, Africa, and of course America. Its dead and wounded already count not only Canadians, Americans, English, Scotch and Irish, but Russians, Danes, Swedes, Armenians, Belgians, Alsatians, Greeks, Italians, Hollanders and Montenegrins. Perhaps most interesting in one sense are such names in the casualty lists as Klotz, Scharschmidt, Hertzberg, and many others of Teutonic origin fighting against the land of their fathers, for many of these men are sons of Prussian-born. And they are fighting, not from compulsion — for Canada's troops are wholly volunteer — but for principle.

VIOLENCE BEGETS VIOLENCE.

IN CANADA, England and Africa, so strong has been the popular feeling against Germans since the sinking of the Lusitania, that serious riots have occurred, and Germans have been mauled and their property damaged. Had Germany respected the international laws and treaties, as she agreed to respect, popular feeling in these places would not nave been vented on Germans. Those who suffer can thank the Kaiser and his pirates for their losses. Violence begets violence. If Germany causes damage by such despicable means as she has adopted, she cannot hope to escape the consequences. Violence against British in Germany or on the sea will lead to violence against Germans in places outside of Germany.

WHO SUFFER MOST IN WAR-TIME?

WHO are they that suffer most in war-time? The boys who fearlessly face shell and shrapnel? The boys who eagerly enter the fray, glad of the chance to avenge the fallen? Their suffering is not so great as the agony and heartache of the wives and mothers they have left at home. What of the army of loving women who are watching bulletin boards looking for news of loved ones, fearful to read, lest the name of him whom they love will be among the killed, wounded or missing? It is the women on whom the full meaning and force of war and fighting falls hardest.

Watch the aged mother pause in front of the bulletin. Her bent and aged form is quivering. Her plain, black dress accentuates a white, drawn face. Her eyes are dim, and her step is feeble. As she moves closer, for her eyes are not as bright as they once were, the crowds close in, and she cannot read the words upon the paper. In trembling voice that almost breaks, she asks someone to tell her if her boy's name is there.

Who suffers most in war-time? Let us think of the mothers when we think of war. All honour to those who have sacrificed home comforts for the trials and jeopardy of the march, the trenches, and the battle. But more honour to the brave, noble, loving, devoted wives and mothers who have seen them go and who await their return.—C. F.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

They Laid Down Their Lives.

(London Telegraph.)

All the actions recorded are severely practical in their aim; none is a mere exploit for the exploit's sake. Private Hyslop volunteered to carry a message which six men had been killed in attempting to deliver; he didn't; but it was the urgent importance of the message which set the seal on his courage. Sergeant Riley, with only three men, took machine guns across a turnip field; the feat was justified, because it compelled the enemy to retire. The nation does well to honour these men, for the spirit which inspires them is the spirit of individual resources and intelligent bravery against which the blind courage of the German military machine has dashed itself in vain. We commend this page to the earnest study of our readers. They will find there the record of many who have laid down their lives for their friends, while there is not a man mentioned in the list who did not offer his life freely and continually with a sublime disregard of danger and an entire forgetfulness of self.

The Bloody Fighting in Belgium.

(Calgary News-Telegram.)

"Gettysburg was the greatest battle of the war, Antietam was the bloodiest," says Fox, in his "Regimental Losses in the Civil War." At Antietam the Union losses were: Killed, 2,108; wounded, 9,540; missing 753; total, 12,410.

The casualties reported by General Sir John French at Neuve Chapelle were: Killed, 2,527; wounded, 8,533; missing, 1,751; total, 12,811.

A comparison of these casualties will show that Neuve Chapelle, in the proportion of killed and wounded, was a bloodier battle than Antietam, and it will probably prove to be the fact that on the German side the casualties were much heavier than on the British. Sir John French says that "the enemy left several thousand dead on the field, and we have positive information that upwards of 12,000 wounded were removed by trains."

A Good Old Institution.

(Montreal News.)

The old-fashioned spelling school, where all the contestants stood up in two rows, and the best speller stood longest, with all the neighbourhood there to see, was one of the best educational institutions ever established. It is to be hoped that it has not gone forever.

Who Can Be Indifferent?

(Toronto Star.)

Surely no man whose heart is sound can be indifferent to the sufferings and the perils of millions of men, women and children in Europe. Surely no man who thinks clearly can fail to see that great issues are involved, and that the whole world may be influenced by the decision. It is mere stupidity to be content with saying that one nation or set of nations is as bad as the other. A man who claims to have an intellect and a conscience must at least make an effort to decide who is right and who is wrong.

It Passes Understanding.

(Ottawa Journal.)

"Greater regard for the German Empire in the United States," is what one Austrian paper expects from the crime of the Lusitania. It's impossible to fathom the depth of the modern Austro-German mind.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Risks of Submarines

The modern type of submarine carries five torpedoes, which it can discharge one after the other by means of compressed air. So perfect is the firing arrangement that hardly any shock can be noticed either during or after the discharge, and the equilibrium of the vessel is not upset in the least.

When it is realized that each of these torpedoes is quite capable of making a hole in a battleship as large as a haystack, it will be seen that the sinking of a battleship that is not armored below water is practically an easy task for them.

A submarine vessel, however, runs a considerable risk in even attempting to torpedo another vessel. Before it can fire a torpedo it must come to the surface and show its periscope in order to aim the weapon correctly. If the battleship once sees the periscope the object of the submarine is practically thwarted, for such a vessel can be sunk by a shell from a big gun when only its periscope is visible, because of the fact that the cushion of water above the vessel does not offer sufficient resistance to prevent the shell sinking and holing it.

While running on the surface of the sea gasoline engines are used to drive the submarines. These engines also generate electricity, in addition to propelling the vessel, and this is stored up. As soon as the submarine dives the gasoline engines stop and it is driven by an electric motor, which gets its power from the stored up electricity. The speed at which the average submarine can travel is eleven knots on the surface and five below water.

A submarine can go to the bottom of the sea near shore and, if it is necessary, "sit" on the bottom for twenty-four hours at a stretch without coming up to the surface to "breathe." The ability to do this comes in very handy when a storm is raging, for below the surface waves are not experienced. Some of the latest types of vessels can run for 4,500 miles without taking in a fresh supply of stores or fuel.

In calm weather the submarine's range of vision is somewhere about eight miles. That is to say, an opposing warship can be seen when it is eight miles away, and, as at that distance the periscope would be almost, if not quite, invisible, the man-of-war would be unaware of the submarine's presence. Then, by means of the gyro scope compass, the submarine could fully submerge itself and without even the periscope showing run to within striking distance of the vessel it has designs upon.

The mere fact that before it can strike a submarine has to come to the surface and show its periscope renders it vulnerable, for if the periscopes are showing a large vessel knows exactly where the submarines are and can both fire at them and also keep out of the way of torpedoes from them.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Rude Thomas.

"I understand you were punished in school yesterday, Thomas?" said Mr. Bacon to his twelve-year-old boy.

"Yes, sir," promptly replied the truthful Thomas. "It was for telling the truth, sir."

"Your teacher said it was for some reflection you made on her age."

"That's the way she took it, father. You see, she drew a picture of a basket of eggs on the blackboard, and while she was out of the room I just wrote under them:

"The hen that made these eggs isn't any chicken."—London Answers.

When Notre Dame's Bell Tolls.

One of the most interesting sights of Notre Dame is the ringing of the great bourdon, the giant bell of the cathedral. It can be seen by those who happen to visit the belfry at noon on Good Friday. There are no ropes; the huge mass is swung by a sort of seesaw, on which the ringers perform curious gymnastics. The tone of the bell is so pure that one may stand quite close and suffer no more inconvenience than from the sounding of a thirty-two foot organ pipe. Huysmans has described the ringing in one of his novels.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The man killed on the G. T. R. tracks at Chatham on Thursday last has been identified as Robert Allison, who made his home with his step-son William Weiss. The dead man was 80 years of age. He left home on Thursday morning without saying where he was going.

Curious Battlefields

At the battle of Monterey, in the Mexican war, our troops were able to command the streets of the city with their artillery, but they experienced much difficulty in driving the Mexicans from their houses. Accordingly, as the city was built of stone or adobe, the Americans broke through the walls from one house to another, fighting and driving out the enemy as they proceeded. Thus, it appears, the battle of Monterey was largely fought indoors.

In the time of William the Silent, when the Netherlands were fighting the Spaniards, a number of Spanish vessels became frozen in on the Zuider Zee. Out came the Dutch on horseback on the ice to attack the Spaniards. This is probably the only battle of record wherein cavalry was employed directly against a naval force.

There have been battles fought under ground. Chiefest of these was the fierce encounter pertaining to the siege of Haarlem in the Dutch wars. The Spaniards mined and the Dutch countermined with equal industry, and below the ground a terrific conflict ensued.

When, after the commune, the Versailles troops took Paris they chased certain of the communist forces to the great sewers of the capital, and in these more than one sanguinary battle occurred.—Exchange.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

MR. THOMPSON'S MODEL

And How She Got a Permanent Engagement

By ALICE R. WETMORE

"Where are you, Bill?" came a lazy drawl from the tiny anteroom, which Thompson designated the office.

"Here," replied that gentleman as distinctly as a mouthful of brushes would permit. "It's only Carter," he explained to his model. "Or perhaps you'd rather"—

"Oh, let him come in by all means," replied the girl. "I'd rather like to see him."

A long, clean limbed young fellow lounged in, halted apathetically for a moment behind Thompson's canvas and then sank lazily into a pile of cushions on the floor.

The girl on the model stand scrutinized him closely and made up her mind that he was the most typically lazy man she had ever seen. His voice, his walk, his carriage, had an absolute lack of effort that was positively fascinating, and to complete the impression his strong, lean face was absolutely devoid of expression.

Suddenly, however, he gazed intently and with a semblance of awakened interest at the model. The pose was rather striking. A heavy black velvet gown accentuated that peculiar transparency of coloring which accompanies a certain deep rich shade of auburn hair. A dull green background reconciled the brilliant coloring of the upper part of the picture to the dusky mysteries of the lower canvas. The pose of the figure was saved from insolence only by the winsomeness of the face.

Carter pulled lazily at his pipe and continued to gaze at the girl with half closed critical eyes. "Nice color," he finally asserted. "By Jove, that's a wonderful pose!" with a sudden burst of enthusiasm that startled the girl. "Are you engaged after you finish with Thompson?"

The other artist opened his mouth; then, with a quiet smile, closed it again. The girl smiled, too, a little smile that curled her upper lip deliciously.

"No, sir; I'm not engaged next week," she replied quietly.

"Can you come to me for a two weeks' pose, then, in the mornings?"

Thompson looked dubiously at the girl. "Yes, sir, I'll come," she said.

The next Monday the model presented herself at John Carter's studio. He scarcely looked up as he greeted her.

"Oh, is that you, Miss— Do you know, I forgot to ask your name," he drawled.

"Parks," the girl supplied smilingly.

The gown he gave her was also black. He had hung heavy stuffs around and above the model stand until the black gown and the background mingled darkly and the white face and auburn hair fairly jumped from the gloom in a single, startling note of color.

Carter set to work with a feverish energy which quite transformed him. He tried first one pose, then another, in such rapid succession that the girl was positively bewildered.

When he had at last found one that pleased him he drawled apologetically, with a slow, winning smile. "I'm rather a hard fellow to get started, Miss Parks, but I won't give you much trouble once we're off."

The girl watched the man with fascinated eyes. He worked with the precision and energy of a splendid machine. His face shone with positive inspiration.

As for Carter himself, he was blissfully happy. With the true artist's sensitiveness he felt the absence of the usual clash between the half hearted, prosaic models and the ideals he struggled to embody by their aid. The atmosphere lacked a single inharmonious element, for the girl seemed to throw her whole personality into the work.

At last he emerged from his trance sufficiently to observe that a white line had appeared around the girl's compressed lips and that she wavered as she stood.

"It must be time to rest," he observed. "Why," as he glanced at the clock, "you've been posing for nearly an hour. Why didn't you rest?" he demanded reproachfully.

The girl sank into a chair with an amused gleam in her eyes. "I never saw anybody so completely lost," she said. "I couldn't bear to disturb you."

The next morning he found himself awaiting with unmistakable impatience the arrival of his model, and when at last she did stand before him with a smiling "Good morning" on her lips he regarded the girl with an artist's satisfaction.

She was charming in her dark street gown. Her face was flushed and her eyes bright with the exhilaration of an autumn morning, and Carter was strongly tempted to put away serious work and make a study of her as she stood. He banished the idea, however, and soon they were at work on the "masterpiece." He refused to believe it when the noon whistle insisted that it was 12 o'clock and Miss Parks departed.

The afternoon was unprecedentedly long. He felt strangely disinclined to work and finally put aside the canvas and brought out some unfinished sketches. He worked on these until he discovered that he had converted five different heads into unmistakable likenesses of Miss Parks. Then he muttered something beneath his breath and gave up in despair.

At the end of the last day but one of the two weeks Carter realized that the central figure of his canvas was completed, and the realization brought a poignant feeling of regret. The reason for it came when it suddenly flashed upon him that tomorrow was Miss Parks' last day. And then it was that Carter made a discovery that a less inexperienced man would have made long before. It came with such a shock that he was fairly stunned. He, John Carter, the most unimpressionable of men, in love with his model!

When Miss Parks appeared the next day he greeted her with his usual cheerful "Good morning," but not another word was spoken until she had taken the old familiar pose—for the last time, he said to himself, with a pang.

There was a strange restraint of which both were aware. At last, "This is the last day of the pose," the girl ventured. Carter worked furiously. "Yes," he answered shortly. Another pause. "Then you won't want me any more?" The girl's voice strove hard to be commonplace.

Carter threw down his palette in despair. The girl kept her pose bravely, her pretty head tilted, but the eyes which met Carter's held a look which even he could not mistake. The man brushed his hand across his eyes in a quick, desperate little gesture. He seemed to have brushed the old nonchalance away. He was fairly transformed.

"Want you!" he gasped. "Want you! Don't you know I want you more than anything in the world?"

"But you don't understand," the girl began finally in a voice that was somewhat smothered by Carter's broad shoulder. "There are reasons," she continued, with dignity, "why I cannot marry you."

"I am all ears," avowed Carter solemnly, "but you won't mind if I say right now that the reasons won't make a particle of difference, will you?"

"Oh, but they will. I've been deceiving you," she confessed haltingly.

"Go on," commanded Carter more soberly. All kinds of dreadful possibilities loomed up before him.

"You'll never love me when you know," she continued, with visible effort. "I—I'm not a model at all. I'm Billy Thompson's cousin," she rushed on, "and when you came in and thought I was a professional I wouldn't let Billy tell you, and—I thought it would be such a good joke because Billy had told me how you never cared for girls or—anything, and"—

"You there, Jim?" interrupted a familiar voice from the hall. The girl fled to the model stand and took her pose. Carter dabbed lazily and with perfect composure at his canvas.

Billy strolled in, an amused look in his eyes. "Nice model," he remarked. "Can I engage you for next week, my pretty maid?"

Carter turned about lazily and regarded his friend.

"I'm afraid not, Billy," he drawled. "You see, your cousin has a permanent engagement with me."

Maple Seed Aeroplane.

One of the newest flying machines is said to be shaped on the plan of a maple seed. This seed has, as we know, one long, queerly curving wing and two seeds hang from the stem in pairs, making a very pretty pair of tiny wings to dangle in the breeze or to float far in the wind when they break from the twig. The new aeroplane, however, is shaped like a single wing and seed. It has what is called a hollow blade wing, given its motion by a rapid current of air that passes through it from an engine at the opposite end of the machine. The machine will rise or descend vertically and will remain in one position or go ahead as the driver chooses. When the engine is stopped the machine revolves like a winged maple seed and sails to the earth.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Children and Sickness.

Train children when well to be docile patients when ill was the advice of Dr. Charles H. Smith at the New York Academy of Medicine. "I am confident that many little lives could be saved," said Dr. Smith, "if mothers would only teach their children the few simple duties that a sick child must know. Taking a child's temperature, for instance, would seem easy, but I have known children desperately ill who screamed and were so wrought up at the thought of it that it was almost impossible to do, and consequently the patient could not be properly treated.

"Every child should be taught to show his throat. I expect most physicians have had the humiliating and very harrowing experience of being obliged to force a spoon down a little throat while the child fought and struggled and the parents were in dismay. It would be easy enough to teach any child to show his throat whenever he was asked.

"I should go so far as to recommend keeping a healthy, normal child in bed one day every few weeks that he might get thoroughly used to it and that the family might not be kept in actual torture when he is really ill."

Predicts Fish Slaughter.

A well-known authority on fish and game at Lindsay, Ont., predicts that there will be a slaughter of fish in the Scugog waters this year equal to, if not greater than the fish mortality of 1904. This would be the result, he claimed of the gas from decayed vegetation in the "shallows" and the way to avoid the depletion of the finny tribe was to cut holes in the ice.

Woman's World

How a Great Dancer Teaches and Mothers "Her Children."

ANNA PAVLOWA.

Pavlowa dances. Surrounded by chattering coryphees, hand on hip, head to one side in a pose of anticipation, she works out a terpsichorean problem. She has succeeded. The group parts, and she steps forth, leading a tall girl in shimmering blue classic dress. Pavlowa reiterates the steps, the music breathing soft accompaniment. The girl imitates. Over and over the steps they work, Pavlowa snapping her slender fingers, tossing her head, forcing into the figure the spirit which makes great dancing. And when the coryphee succeeds an approving pat on the shoulder rewards the radiant girl.

In rehearsal when the music is a bit uncertain, when the lights are blatant, when the vast orchestra and the vaguer balconies beyond are chilling in the unresponsive mustiness, the joy of Pavlowa's dancing is as apparent as when she dances to crowded auditoriums. She colors the ballet, the director and the strangely gentle conductor of the orchestra. The final twirl is not coincident with the final chord. She steps out of the musical picture and shakes her head at the conductor. "Last four bars," orders Mr. Theodore Stier, and again the final twirl, still out of beat. Over and over she does that difficult twirl, the ballet does its intricate tableau and the orchestra its tempestuous finale. All watch her. She snaps her fingers. "One, two, three, four," marks time with her arms and smiles because it is art to achieve the difficult.

"She is the hardest working woman in the world," her agents, her directors and the rest of her adorers declare fervently. And to watch her and talk with her during an hour confirms the extravagant statement.

Far more than merely the director and teacher of these girls, she is their mother, speaking of them as "my children." They live with her. She sees to it that their other studies are not neglected. She watches them; will not allow them to go to parties or go out at night. Their street clothes are as quiet and unexaggerated as her own are. Never do they wear silk stockings on the street, for, besides being very bad for the feet, they are extravagant, and children must be taught not to be improvident.

And most important is their work. But that she teaches them less by word than by example, for they cannot fail to imitate the ardor with which she pursues her art all day and every day, to the exclusion of every other pleasure.

Coquettish Little Hat of White Straw For the Small Girl.

The small fry are by no means forgotten in this season's offerings of millinery. The hat shown in this illustration is of white straw, with a drooping brim and a trimming of blue satin ribbon and clusters of tiny pink rose buds. A shirred facing is becomingly placed in the underside of the brim.

SPRING CHAPEAU.

To Keep Silver Bright.

An easy way to keep silver bright is to put a handful of borax in a dishpan of hot water with a very little soap. Put the silver in this and let it stand the entire morning. Then rinse in clear water and wipe thoroughly dry with a soft cloth.

You can treat plated ware in the same manner without the slightest injury to the plate.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Gluten Bread.

Pour a pint of boiling water into a pint of milk. Add a teaspoonful of butter and a teaspoonful of salt. Let stand until lukewarm; then add a well beaten egg, a quarter of a yeast cake dissolved and enough gluten to make a soft batter. Cover and stand in a warm place to rise; then add enough gluten to make a soft dough and knead it well. Form it into four loaves and let rise again. Bake for one hour.

Gluten bread requires less yeast and less time to rise than ordinary bread.

Colors and Flavors.

Certain flavorings seem to fit certain colors. No good cook would think of flavoring yellow cake, bonbon or dessert with pistachio, almond or rose or a pink dessert with lemon, pistachio or orange. Rose extract is always reserved for sweets of pink or white tint, almond for white, orange for yellow, lemon for white or green and pistachio, of course, for green. A discord is noted between color and flavor in a pink dessert flavored with pistachio or a green dessert flavored with rose, no matter how "good" it may taste.

New Idea For Doughnuts.

When frying doughnuts have a dish of boiling water beside the hot fat. As you remove the doughnuts from the frying kettle dip hastily into the boiling water. This removes all grease and renders them more healthful than they would otherwise be.

There is another point not to be despised when lard is as expensive as it is at present. After the water cools the grease may be skimmed from the top and used again. One will be surprised to see the amount of fat that will rise.

Bran Gems.

One egg, one cupful of flour, two cupfuls bran, one teaspoonful salt, three tablespoonfuls of molasses, one tablespoonful of shortening, one teaspoonful of soda, buttermilk to make a stiff batter. Raisins may be added if desired. Bake twenty-five minutes.

POTATOES FOR CLEANING.

Many Purposes to Which They Are Adapted in Housekeeping.

To clean a vinegar cruet fill the cruet with finely chopped potato skin, cork tightly and let it stand in a warm place three days; then turn the skins out and rinse the cruet with warm water and borax.

To clean rusty knives use a raw potato dipped in brick dust.

Potato parings dried in the oven are good to kindle fires, as they light easily.

To clean carpets grate a raw potato and rub over the surface of the carpet and finish off with a clean cloth wrung out in warm water.

To clean dresses grate two raw potatoes into a pint of cold water, strain through a sieve, add another pint of water and let it settle. Dip a sponge into the water and rub the soiled garment carefully, afterward rinsing with clear water.

To clarify drippings slice a raw potato into the fat while rendering. It will absorb all impurities.

To make light bread mash a boiled potato and add to the flour.

For corned beef hash chop a raw potato and add to the meat.

To clean mud spots from silk, after washing thoroughly rub soiled places with a raw potato.

When a fern turns yellow slice a raw potato and put it on top of the soil. This will draw out the worms.

Today's proverb: "Every moment is the right moment for the woman who has pluck."

Scores of votes were received yesterday, and for a Tuesday vote was an exceptionally large one. The last few weeks of the Review's great transcontinental tour contest have certainly been hummers. The ladies are working with might and main, and they have realized that only perseverance will win. This week will be the best ever, and to say that a large number of votes will be polled will be putting it mildly. Every contestant realizes the importance of the special vote prizes, and will put forth every effort to win them. Inasmuch as the votes that win the special prize vote ballot count on the final closing of the contest, June 5th, too, certainly make the special votes worth working for.

Only three days more left in which to secure votes on the extra vote ballots, and they will be awarded to the ones who hustle and get the largest amount of subscrption money before 10 p.m. Saturday.

Those who will win will do so on popularity and hustle and on that alone.

Miss Bogue Still Leads.

Miss Bogue is still the leader in the big contest. This popular lady has a host of friends who will help her on to success in the great campaign and make her the winner of a never-to-be-forgotten vacation trip across the continent. Miss Irene Booth made a splendid gain yesterday and is close up on Miss Bogue. Miss Booth is leaving nothing undone in the way of getting votes, and will make a splendid effort to win the special 200,000 vote ballot this week.

A Few Don'ts

Don't get discouraged because a man says "No." The next three you meet will likely subscribe.

Don't wear a frown. A smile and a grin will let you in where the frowner is never known.

Don't rush—take your time and get the attention of your hearer. A favorable impression means a good hearing—a good hearing means an order.

Don't ask for six months—start at two years. It is easier to drop to $1.50 than to go up to $6.00.

Don't expect to get a subscription from every person you meet, because you will be disappointed.

Don't appear sluggish to your prospective subscriber. Assume an attitude of sincerity, self-reliance, enthusiasm, tact and cheerfulness at all times. Show clearly that your mission is worthy of consideration.

Don't forget that you are giving a full measure in return for what you are asking.

Don't "knock" another candidate. Every "knock" may mean a "boost."

Don't forget that this is the most important week of the contest.

Don't fail to be the winner of the special votes in your district. It will show your friends that you are deserving of support.

WORK INVOLVED IN THE PLANNING OF A DREADNOUGHT

The Monster Armored Naval Battery Must be Steady in a Heavy Sea, Else She is Not a Good Gun Platform — Wonderful Accuracy in Results

Talk of a Chinese puzzle. It is nothing to the problem set before a naval designer who has to build a battleship.

Here he has a steel structure of such and such a length and breadth and depth, and into this space, which is controlled by hard and fast measurements, he has to fit so much coal, so much armament, room for so much ammunition, quarters for so many men, space for engines of a certain power and also allow for an immense weight of armor.

Take the original Dreadnought, for instance. The task which was given to Sir Philip Watts was to plan a battleship capable of steaming 4,000 miles at 21 knots, with room for 800 officers and men and able to carry ten twelve-inch guns with eighty rounds of ammunition for each.

She had also to be enormously, heavily armored. This armor alone when the sum was worked out was found to [illegible] eary coal to weigh 2,500 tons. The guns and their mountings weighed 1,600 tons, their ammunition 450 tons.

When you add to this that the boilers and machinery of the first Dreadnought were calculated to weigh not less than 1,200 tons the reader may begin to get some faint idea of the difficulties before the designer.

We have not even mentioned the smaller but quite important details, such as boats—some of them large steam launches sixty feet long—anchors and cables of gigantic size and weight, torpedoes, etc.

To be a good naval designer a man must be far more than a mere naval architect. He must have the most extensive knowledge of all sorts of craft and be blessed with a large share of imagination into the bargain.

Now take the Dreadnought again. She is 480 feet long. If her hull had been built of the same shape as previous battleships she would have been very unhandy. Her great length would have prevented her from turning quickly, as is always necessary in a sea fight.

Sir Philip got over this difficulty by shortening her keel base. Under water she is very like a racing yacht, being much shorter below water than above. Another clever dodge of her designer was to fit two rudders abreast well under the stern. The same dodge has been adopted in all the Dreadnoughts, with the result that they are wonderfully quick to answer their helms.

Quite apart from the marvelous internal fittings of a great warship and the utilization of every inch of space inside the hull, the hull itself is a nerve straining problem. A battleship must not only be fast, she must also be a good sea boat.

This is all important, for if she is not steady in a heavy sea she is not a good gun platform.

To gain the requisite combination of speed and steadiness each new warship, as soon as her plans are complete, is built up in model and these models are tested in a big tank 500 or 600 feet long. The models, which are built absolutely to scale, are drawn through the water at certain speeds, and the waves which they make are measured by a clever apparatus too technical to be here described.

The designing of a new type of battleship is not a one man job. When a new departure is to be made the members of the board of admiralty call together a number of naval experts, and the opinion of each is asked and discussed. When the general design has been approved then the director of naval construction and his assistants get to work.

The extraordinary accuracy of such work may be gathered from the following:

The Majestic, of 15,000 tons, was designed by Sir William White. When finished and armed she was exactly, to a very few pounds, the weight which he had estimated beforehand, while her center of gravity was within two inches of the point which he had previously fixed on.—London Answers.

Australians, Ghurkas and Fleet Active Around Dardanelles

Tenedos, May 19—All day Monday there was carried on a heavy bombardment of Kilid-Bahr and Canak-Kalessi. The Australian forces are now most securely entrenched to a depth of about two miles back from the firing line. A spirited attack was made by the Ghurkas with their kukris in the capture of one of the Turks' guns. The Turks fled panic-stricken.

The allies' difficulty in dealing with the Turkish guns is that the Turks are employing guns which disappear by rail into shelters bored in the rock. Reports from Gallipoli yesterday state that the progress being made by the allies is excellent. The Turkish resistance is becoming noticeably weaker, following their enormous losses during the recent fighting.

Ban Johnson Helps Allies

Chicago, May 19—Canadian soldiers in France who want to spend the intermissions between battles in playing baseball will be supplied with the necessary paraphernalia by President Johnson of the American League anh other enthusiasts. Ban heard that supplies were hard to get in France and will contribute several boxes of new baseballs.

Ready to go Home

Paris, May 19—The German authorities have ordered the destruction of all growing fall wheat in that portion of French territory which they occupy, said last night's Liberte. This is taken as the clearest indication that the Germans do not expect to remain in France later than this summer.

London, May 19—The Russian Black Sea fleet has destroyed one Turkish steamer and 26 sailers.

Kitchener's Praise

Canadian Pluck Under Severe Ordeal Elicits Strong Commendation

London, May 19—Besides asking for 300,000 more men and reviewing the whole military situation War Minister Kitchener in the Lords yesterday paid the following tribute to the deeds of the Canadians at Langemarck: "The forced retirement in front of the heavy clouds of gas which preceded the German advance at Ypres resulted in the left flank of the Canadian division being exposed. The Canadians suffered severely from the poisonous fumes, but, nevertheless, they held to the position in the most determined manner. This was an ordeal to try the qualities of the finest army in the world, and all the more credit is due the soldiers of Canada, who were unprepared for such an attack, and were at the same time exposed to a withering fire. Reluctantly, and with perfect steadiness, they withdrew their left flank to conform with the new alignment. The Canadians were soon supported by British brigades, which were pushed up, and the enemy's advance was thereby checked."

Lost Soldiers Found

Ottawa, May 19—Several Canadians mourned as dead have now been heard from or reported as prisoners in Germany, some in hospitals; among them are Heber Rogers, Peterboro'; Sergt. Hardwick, Montreal; Lieut. Owen, Port Arthur, and Pte. McLain Smith, St. Thomas.

More Hospitals

The militia authorities are making preparations for the establishment of convalescent homes for returning Canadian wounded soldiers. A clearing hospital for wounded Canadians is to be established at Valcartier. Directions are being issued for communicating by post with Canadian prisoners of war in Germany. Letters from Canadian soldiers at the front show that they exacted big toll from the enemy at Langemarck.

ASKED FOR PASSPORTS

Teuton Envoys Preparing to Leave Italy

Rome, May 19—The Giornale de Italia, the leading newspaper of Italy, announced last night that Prince Von Buelow, the German Ambassador, and Baron Von Macchio, the Austrian Special Ambassador, had demanded their passports and would leave Rome immediately. Prince Von Buelow, however, stated last night that under no circumstances would he leave Rome until after Parliament convenes. An extraordinary Cabinet session was still in session at midnight. Great importance was attached to the Council meeting, and the streets surrounding Braschi Palace were crowded. Von Buelow and Von Macchio visited Sonnino yesterday afternoon. Sensational reports that the ambassadors had offered further concessions were officially denied. The Turkish Minister also conferred with Sonnino yesterday. Last evening Sonnino conferred with the French and Roumanian Ministers. No definite action is likely to be taken until Parliament has sanctioned the abrogation of the Triple Alliance treaty and ratified Baron Sonnino's accord with the Entente allies. Parliament will meet Thursday without a doubt. Only the regular Socialists will vote against mobilization an the day will be declared a national holiday.

The Foreign Office refuses to confirm the report that the Ambassadors from Germany and Austria have asked for their passports. It is known, however, that the trunks of Von Buelow and of Von Macchio have been cleared through the Customs stations at the Austrian frontier. Departure of Austrian Consuls has begun. Herr Erzeberger, head of the German Catholic party; and Father Ledochowski, Austrian subject and head of the Jesuits, left Rome yesterday. In the army and navy office incessant activity marks the preparation for mobilization. Premier Salandra is receiving thousands of telegrams encouraging him to declare war. Yesterday, all the engineering students of the University of Rome enlisted in a body.

To Alarm the King

Paris, May 19—A plot to drive the King of Italy into the neutralist camp was described by the Journal Des Debats last night. It asserts that Gen. Brusati, the King's aide-de-camp, hatched the conspiracy and in the King's presence, described Foreign Minister Sonnino as a madman, adding that Germany had 1,200,000 troops in Southern Germany and the Tyrol ready to capture Milan and march on Rome. Jealousy of Salandra actuated Brusati.

"Price of Admiralty"

London, May 19—The Admiralty announced last night: "Regarding reports of the sinking of the Australian submarine AE2 at the entrance of the Sea of Marmora in which it was stated that three officers and seventeen men were captured and taken prisoners out of a total of 32 crew, no communication has been received from the vessel since April 26 and it is presumed it has been lost."

Generals of Allies Co-operated in Week of Triumph—Lull Now in West—Four Polish Fights.

London, May 19—Four great battles are raging on a front of nearly 200 miles extending almost in a direct line from the neighborhood of Kielce, past Jaroslau and Przemysl, to Stryj, according to the German official statement yesterday. Austro-German forces claim to have crossed the San at several points, after severe fighting, securing footholds on the eastern bank between Jaroslau and the junction of the Wistok and the San, north of Jaroslau. The Russians are reported to be retreating north and east. Vienna claims 170,000 prisoners captured in the last two weeks. Heavy concentrations of German forces before Shavli, in Gen. von Hindenburg's Baltic drive, availed them nothing, according to Petrograd. The Germans there are on the defensive.

Paris reports that heavy mists and rains have settled over the battlefield in Flanders and Northern France. All activity there has been suspended. Belated reports state that the Germans left 2,000 dead on the west bank of the Yser when they were driven across the canal. Berlin states that French attacks at Ablain and near Souchez were repulsed.

The Russian report throws considerable light on the reasons for the great Franco-British success in the west during the past week. It now appears the Germans were caught off their balance—that the allied drive was timed precisely to the right minute. The Germans were transporting enormous bodies of troops from the west to the east, presumably to hurl them in behind and on the flanks of Von Mackensen in Galicia and to aid Von Hindenburg who had launched a vigorous offensive simultaneously in the northwest. Gen. Mackensen had the Russians on the run in the Carpathians and Przemysl was in danger. To press the momentary advantage to a decision, the German staff had weakened the western line long enough to lend this needed strength to the crushing of Russia. The prize was great, the dream of Calais again took form. But the French smashed at Ablain. And, because the French flank was exposed, the British drove hard ahead and battered down German line after line between Festubert and Richebourg. The French front was saved and the gains maintained.

Polish Front

Warsaw, May 19—The Russians are effecting a sweeping change of front in accordance with the plans of the Russian general staff, an in spite of rumors to the contrary and reports of German successes given out in Berlin the situation is not in the least alarming. It is thought here by military experts that the recent German offensives in the Baltic and Galicia were to divert Russian troops from the Warsaw front. The retirement in Galicia seems to have been well carried out. The Russians were constantly adding to their own numbers without robbing their other fronts.

Austria's Back to Wall

Petrograd, May 19—The Russian aggression from East Galicia has met with immense success, the Austrians having been beaten along a front of 100 miles to the southern bank of the River Pruth. The only point of importance the Austrians now hold on this front is Kolomen and fighting is progressing to the north of there. Kolomen is a railway junction the possession of which is indispensable to the Austrians if they are to extricate themselves from a difficult situation.

Set For Big Retreat

Rotterdam, May 19—Eyewitnesses behind the German lines report the position of the new defensive line which the Germans intend to occupy if the vigorous offensive of the allies is resumed. Tremendous preparations are being made on a line from the coast west of Bruges and Ghent to Courtrai, which is to be the northern base of the important defensive through Tournai to Antoing with Lille as the apex, which they hope to maintain as the wedge in the allies' lines. At Courtrai twelve big guns fresh from the Krupps have been put into position. Between Lille and Lens, which is now threatened by the allies, the Germans have thrown up more earthworks more for covering a retirement than for serious holding.

All the Austrians, Hungarian and Austrian Poles living in Guelph were rounded up and sent to the detention camp at Toronto. They were out of work, penniless and hungry.

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1,500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policyholders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is today saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment, but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.

Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.

Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.

The need of LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in

LORD FISHER RESIGNING DEFEATS CHURCHILL

Result is Political Revolution and Coalition Ministry, Says Garvin—Methods at Dardanelles.

London, May 19—J. L. Garvin, editor of The Pall Mall Gazette writes: "A political revolution has happened. The crisis at the Admiralty has involved the whole ministry and opposition. Lord Fisher has resigned and has not only made impossible Mr. Churchill's retention at his present post, but has brought down the government. The cabinet as it stood before has practically ceased to exist. A national ministry is about to be formed. For that purpose active negotiations are already afoot. We believe the chief opposition leaders are already agreed upon entering the government. There are difficulties but they must be overcome, and quickly. We must stand together as a nation or lose the war.

"For some weeks the political position has been more serious than the general public suspected, or even some ministers realized. Two positive and masterful personalities clashed—Winston Churchill, and Lord Fisher, first sea lord. They could not co-exist in the same department. The nominal question on which the split came was the Dardanelles. Shrewd judges prophesied something of this kind would happen. The fault was in the nature of a situation—not in the men. Before Lord Fisher returned Mr. Churchill's mastery of the Admiralty and administration and historic stroke of courage in mobilizing the fleet before the Germans could strike had rendered services which would have been held in everlasting honor. Mr. Churchill could not change his former way and begin to back down. It might have been better if he had taken another office when Lord Fisher returned. Unfortunately they even Lord Fisher hesitated at the critical moment. He did not approve the original employment of the fleet alone in connection with the Dardanelles enterprise. He could have stopped it by putting his foot down. He did not put his foot down. He was therefore involved in the common responsibility with the rest of the board of Admiralty but he wished more and more to be free from that responsibility and to make a fresh start altogether. A sailor by resigning could dislodge a statesman."

"Mr. Asquith will remain as Premier. Arthur J. Balfour is expected to be the first lord of the Admiralty; Mr. Churchill secretary for India; Lord Crewe, president of the council; Mr. Lloyd-George the new minister for war supplies; Bonar Law chancellor of the exchequer and Mr. Austin Chamberlain colonial secretary. Lord Reading will become Lord chancellor; Sir John Simon, lord chief justice, and Mr. F. E. Smith attorney-general. Lord Derby will also have a post.

The ministerial crisis received greater prominence in the evening papers than the developments of the war. The Globe said editorially: "Why not give Lord Fisher the same control over the navy that Lord Kitchener has over the army?" As a result of the crisis, Mr. Lloyd-George's proposed tour of the manufacturing areas has been postponed.

NEWS NOTES FROM OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, May 19. — The Soldiers' Aid Society send the following report as being the work accomplished by their association since its inception: 46 woolen shirts, 138 pairs socks, 153 hospital shirts, 4 pairs pyjamas, 6 cholera bands, 8 Balaklava caps, 12 pairs wristlets, 2 pairs bedsocks, 37 pillows, 31 pairs pillowcases, 2 scarfs. Thirteen pairs socks and thirteen shirts sent to the soldiers at Lindsay. A cheque for $50; raised by collectors, $145.90; by concert, $88.55; English church guild, $14.80; anonymous, $10.35; Epworth League of Methodist church, $20.20; union prayer service, $9.30. Meetings are held as usual every Tuesday afternoon, to which all the ladies in the neighborhood are welcome.

A very pleasing entertainment was provided by the Presbyterian young people on Friday evening last. The guests were the members of the young people's societies of the Anglican and Methodist churches. After a splendid program of songs, readings and speeches had entertained the young people for about an hour, they all formed in line and had a grand promenade of twenty-five minutes. At the conclusion of the program dainty refreshments were served by the young ladies.

Rev. J. W. Down, Dr. Thompson and Rev. H. B. Neale, of town, attended the district meeting of the Methodist church which was held in Lindsay on Wednesday.

Dr. W. L. Howden has moved his residence and office one door east of his former situation. Mr. W. H. Kennedy has moved into the house formerly occupied by Dr. Howden.

The Grand Trunk carpenters are busy enlarging and renovating the Sturgeon street station, where a new ticket office has been installed. This change is of tremendous convenience to travellers, since baggage is now handled at this station.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner left for the West on Wednesday morning.

Mrs. and Miss McCrea, who have been passing the winter at their home in Toronto, have reached town to spend the summer months.

Several of our local young people will attend the celebrations in Millbrook and Bethany on Victoria Day.

The annual election of officers of the Epworth League of the Methodist church was held on Monday evening. Mr. F. Johnson was elected president.

Ptes. Cunningham and Mills of the Lindsay company spent Sunday at home.

The Omemee people are to be favored on Friday evening, May 21st, with a presentation of one of the most entertaining farce comedies ever presented by amateur actors. Under the direction of Mrs. William Allen, the Millbrook Dramatic Club will present Mark Ambient's "Oh, Susannah" in three acts. The action is continuous throughout. The scene appears in the office of Dr. John Sheppard. The doctor is persuaded that marriage is the secret of success and secretly espouses Flora Garden. Mr. Plant, solicitor, discovers that Sheppard is entitled to considerable fortune, and brings his two daughters to London with the fixed resolve to marry one of them to him. These young ladies' afections are planted elsewhere, and one of their lovers, Lieut. Merry, conceives the idea of impersonating a maiden aunt Sheppard is expecting. Many amusing dilemmas ensue. The dramatic club are giving everything above their expenses to the Shorncliffe hospital for wounded Canadian soldiers and in which some of our local boys are at the present time. It is the duty of every loyal citizen to attend, and while gaining considerable amusement for themselves they will be helping to obtain comforts for the boys in the hospital.

"LIEUTS." PLUMMER AND ARNOLDI HAD BUSY WINTER

Canadian Girls Who Respresented the Canadian Field Commission in London Took the Amesbury Vicarage for Their Headquarters

In a recent London Mail appears the following article by Twells Brex on "Lieut. Mary Plummer and Lieut Joan Arnoldi."

"Throughout the winter two plucky and devoted Canadian women quartered in Amesbury's old vicarage, have toiled for months in the self-imposed task of distributing to the Canadian troops the whole of the gifts sent to the Canadian Field Comforts Commission by the people of the great Dominion for their soldiers.

"Miss Mary Plummer, daughter of Mr. J. H. Plummer, president of the Dominion Steel & Coal Co., and Miss Joan Arnoldi, daughter of Mr. Frank Arnoldi, K.C., (both of Toronto), are doing this work for the commission, for which purpose they were appointed by the Minister of Militia and Defence, each with the honorary rank of lieutenant.

"I found Lieut. Plummer and Lieut. Arnoldi up to their eyes in their preparations for the move they are making to Ashford, in Kent, more convenient to Shorncliffe, Maresfield and Canterbury (depots of the Canadian troops still arriving) and also for the division gone to the front itself. They were surrounded by bales, boxes, bundles, goods, enquiries, letters, labels and lists that would have flurried even the despatch department of a general store. They were unpacking, sorting, sifting, identifying, weighing, tying, re-packing, boxing, hammering-up, stitching, labelling and addressing crates and bales of socks, tobacco, cakes, biscuits, chocolate, belts ('Too many belts,' murmured Lieut. Arnoldi) and other gifts. They were searching Canadian army lists non-alphabetical) for the names and regiments and individual men among thirty thousand so that each should get his parcel from the Homeland. "It is better to send gifts to units rather than individuals," murmured Lieut. Plummer. They were writing letters of acknowledgment to donors or answers to enquiries at their average rate of fifty a day ("and we always try to make each letter personal, with a touch of the life of the men in the camps"), and they have only had, in all their winter's task, an orderly to assist them in the heavier work.

"The story of how they secured the occupied vicarage, the only house large enough for their work, is illustrative of the Canadian spirit: 'We went first to the churchwarden, then to the bishop, and then to the registrar. We started again, followed the bishop to Broadstone, and found he had left the night before for London. We borrowed his library, and left a long letter for him. The bishop eventually telephoned that he would be glad to let us have the vicarage, but must consult his legal adviser. We chased the legal adviser, and caught him at 10.30 at night. The legal adviser was wrathy and maintained that the bishop could not let the vicarage. We tackled the churchwarden again, and then we tackled the legal adviser again — he was milder, but firm, and he was doubtless right. So we went then to the general of the Southern Command, saying, 'We have found the house, but you must commandeer it for us.' We got the vicarage in two days.'

"Over 100,000 articles have been received, checked, repacked and distributed by those two workers. At Christmas Amesbury platform was littered with parcels for the Canadian troops, some of them insufficiently addressed, some for camps inaccessible for delivery and the steady rain was obliterating the labels. Lieutenants Plummer and Arnoldi went up to the station, collected all the goods, and got most of them delivered by Christmas Day. On Christmas Eve they went their rounds in a deluge in an open motor lorry. They were out again all Christmas Day. On some of those winter runs to the camps the floods reached the steps of their car, and always, visiting the camps, they had to wear high rubber wading boots and often the mud rose above the tops of them. 'At Christmas,' admitted cheerfully Lieutenants Plummer and Arnoldi, 'we lost our tempers and quarrelled with each other.'

"Since the Canadian division went to France tobacco for over 1,200 men has been sent from the vicarage depot. Last week a telegram came from headquarters requesting the immediate purchase and despatch of games, cards, and notepaper for the fifteen club rooms of the division. Lieutenants Plummer and Arnoldi went to London and procured the goods that day. The journey time between Amesbury and London is three hours.

"From all over Canada the gifts came for the Canadian troops. The Far West has been especially generous. I saw bales of socks and mufflers from Winnipeg, Regina, Vancouver and Victoria and a big check came from Prince Albert, Saskatchewan. The United States do not forget their sister Canada. Twenty-five dozens of socks arrived from the nurses of St. Luke's Hospital, Chicago. And in January a Christmas pudding arrived, addressed to Sir John French. 'Don't mention it, for Heaven's sake,' said Lieut. Arnoldi. 'Suppose he reads of it and sends for it!'

"The address henceforth will be: The Canadian Field Comforts Commission, Canadian Ordnance Stores, Ashford, Kent. Socks, plug tobacco, cocoa, condensed milk, soup tablets, or money that will buy them would be more than welcome."

HOW SHELLS ARE MADE

A Description of the Process of Manufacture of the Death-Dealing Monsters.

In view of the fact that immense numbers of shells for use by the allied armies in Europe are being manufactured in Canada, the following description of the process of manufacture will be read with interest:—

The shell is turned down from an ingot of bar steel. This material is received from the steel works in blocks ten inches long and four inches in diameter. It is sawn into the size from the bar, each ingot is numbered, and is received at the local factory in car load lots. the first operation is to bore out the ingot, which is done very rapidly on the ponderous drill press. The core of the ingot is drilled away, leaving a shell the walls of which are about three-quarters of an inch thick. The shell is then placed on the turret lathe, where it is turned down to the required size and shape. The interior of the bore is then threaded at one end to receive the gun-metal conical head, which is pierced to receive the exploding fuse. A copper band is forced on the other end of the shell by the heavy press. This band engages the rifling of the gun when it is fired and gives the shell the necessary spin.

The material from which the shells are made is the toughest steel, yet it is drilled and shaped up by the great machine built for the purpose without noise, and no apparent effort. The operator touches a handle, and down comes the press mighty, irresistible, cutting out the core of the tough steel ingot as though it were only cheese. The shaping, threading and finishing are done with equal ease and dispatch.

Shell making is a matter of rigid accuracy and scrupulous care. Gauges are used of the most exacting nature, and no latitude is allowed in the matter of weight or dimensions, only one thousandth part of an inch being allowed for the bore of the shell. This is necessary, from the fact that the quantity of lyddidte or other explosive with which the shell is loaded must be absolutely accurate and identical in all shells, as the range and accuracy of the gunfire in action depends upon the load of explosive contained in the shell. Officials of the British Government are permanently on the premises, and each shell is inspected as it is taken from the machines, and the shells are only accepted and paid for when the official approval is stamped upon the finished shell.

Shells, of course, differ according to the service they have to perform. Some, for instance, have hardened steel heads for armour-percing purposes, others are intended to burst and spread death by bullets as well as jagged fragments.

It is essential that there should be no roughness within the shells, and they are as smooth and polished inside as out; and to keep them from rust and corroson the inside is varnished before they are sent away to Woolwich to be filled with lyddite.

S.A. TERRITORIAL SONGSTERS GIVE VERY PLEASING PROGRAM

The following newspaper report on the work of the Territorial Songsters, is very flattering to that organization which comes to Peterborough next week:—

The programme opened with a march, "The Leader" by the orchestra of 8 pieces, with Staff-Captain Florence Easton at the piano. This was followed by a male chorus, "The Old Chariot," which was a plantation melody, and given with a rhythm, and precision of attack, smooth shading, and clearness of enunciation that showed careful training in choral singing.

This was followed by a violin solo by Herbert Smeaton, the air from the sextett from "Lucia." For a young man of his age he handled the bow with ease, and gave this number a creditable rendering.

A song by the entire company, entitled "Good Bye, Pharoah" was next given. This was also a plantation melody. A selection by the orchestra, of "Listen to the Mocking Bird," "Old Black Joe," and "Swansea River," followed which were well played.

A violin duet by Herbert Smeaton and Major Arnold, revealed the fact that the Major could handle the violin equally as well as he wielded the baton. The "Melody by Rubenstein" was greatly enjoyed.

The "Soldier's Chorus" from Faust, was sung by the full chorus. This number showed again the careful training. It was sung with a swing that was delightful. It was followed by "Singing Merrily." Both numbers were given with good articulation effect rhythm and with a precision that was especially marked.

Another selection by the orchestra, entitled "Devotion" was followed by a solo by Captain Satya Mapp, entitled, "Jesus the Very Thought of Thee," which was well sung. She gave it with a feeling and expression which was enjoyed.

Staff Captain Florence Eaton, who accompanied all the numbers of the evening, gave "Bonnie Doon." She clearly proved herself a master hand at the keys, and her interpretation of this well known air called forth the hearty applause of the audience.

"Songs of Heaven" by the entire chorus was next on the programme. It caused the Mayor to remark that the music was heavenly, so well was it sung. Mayor Hett gave two short readings, which were heartily applauded.

Another selection by the orchestra, entitled, "Hallelujah," followed by a song by the Male Choir, "Mansions in Glory," closed the programme. The last number was considered the best of the evening, and was finely sung.

MAD AT UNITED STATES NOW

Germany's Wooings Were Treated as Barnum's Circus, Writes German

London, May 19—The Washington correspondent of the Cologne Gazette gives the following picture of Germany's vain efforts to win favor in the United States: "We have sent our best courtiers, princes of the emperor's house, princes from our land of genius. America replied to our attentions by sending us yachting millionaires, a rough riding colonel and exchange professors. They were all received with distinction. All the giving was on our side. We showered upon the representatives of America everything we had to give. America took it all as one in a performance of Barnum's Circus."

LL.D. For Premiers

Toronto, May 19—At the annual convocation Friday the University of Toronto will confer the honorary degree of LL.D. upon the following: Dean Ellis of the Faculty of Applied Science; Principal Gandier of Knox; Premier Gouin of Quebec; Chief Justice Haultain of Saskatchewan; Premier Hearst, Justice Stuart of Alberta.

Lost Two Million Men

London, May 19—The Chronicle calculates German casualties to date at 2,150,000. Up to March 31, the total losses were 1,800,000, with an estimate of 250,000 for the tremendous fighting of the last six weeks. Up to February 14, Berlin admitted the deaths of 10,951 commissioned officers.

THE CULTIVATION OF CORN.

The Agricultural Gazette in a recent number contained much important matter relating to the cultivation of corn. "By the aid of science," the Gazette says, "great progress has been made in extending and improving the corn crop in Canada." In thirty years the yield has increased from a little over nine million bushels to nearly seventeen million. In 1893 the yield of fodder corn was 1,049,524 tons. Twenty years later, or in 1913, it was 2,616,300 tons. Increase and improvement were noticeable in almost every province. Relative to the argument sometimes advanced that Canada is situated too far north for the production of corn, Dr. M. O. Malte, Dominion Agristrologist, says that while there are districts in Canada where Indian corn could and should be grown to the greatest advantage, there are also thousands of square miles where profitable growing would be very difficult. After stating that the quality of the ensilage produced by a certain variety of corn would be the factor which should guide the farmer in in his choice of seed, Dr. Malte says that the experience gained by the Experimental Farms demonstrates the wisdom of increasing the acreage of early varieties rather than of depending on large yielding late sorts for the desired tonnage.

The Canadian Seed Growers' Association has given special attention to the corn crop, particularly to that grown for ensilage. All experiments and research indicate that the great need of ensilage growers is a supply of seed corn of strong vitality and of a variety and strain suited to the conditions under which it is to be grown. For Ontario the following seven varieties are best adapted:

Dents.

Wisconsin No. 7.
Golden Glow.
Whitecap Yellow Dent.
Bailey.

Flints.

Longfellow.
Compton's Early.
Salzer's North Dakota.

As for sweet corn, Deputy Minister Roadhouse states that the Golden Bantam has proved the best early variety and Stowell's Evergreen the best late variety.

Manitoba is not much given to corn growing, but the fodder favorites are the Longfellow, North-Western Went and North Dakota Flint. Of the husking varieties the choices are native or Squaw corn, Gehu Yellow Flint, Free Press and Quebec or Canada Yellow, the last mentioned being a little later than the others. In Saskatchewan and Alberta the varieties favored are about the same as in Manitoba. In British Columbia the progress in corn-growing has been marked, Minnesota No. 13, North Western Dent and Quebec No. 28 having so far given the best results. In New Brunswick and the Maritime Provinces generally New Brunswick Yellow, Canada Yellow and Squaw Corn have proved the most valuable varieties.

WHY SNOW IS WHITE

Water being transparent rays of light pass through it without being reflected by the water itself. When drops of water are partially frozen into snowflakes they are transformed into a crystal substance with a great many reflecting surfaces, from which the rays of light are sent back just as a mirror reflects a great deal of the light or color thrown against it.

A mass of snow is whiter than a single flake, because of the countless number of crystals that are compactly grouped thereby greatly increasing the reflective power. Like a mirror snow will reflect the color of any light thrown upon it.

MADE RICH BY FAKE CHARITIES

A Reuter despatch from Paris states:

"An investigation into a number of so-called "charities" which have sprung up since the war, has led to some astonishing results. One of these concerns was installed in a German hotel and was under the control of a secretary who had come within the clutches of the law on no fewer than eleven occasions. Two ladies of mature age who were without a penny at the time of mobilization today possess a fine motor car and a private house. They were making something like £400 per diem and this huge profit appears to have been gained by spurious agencies for tracing missing soldiers.

"The most remarkable feature of the whole business lies in the fact that in several cases Austrians and Germans who had somehow succeeded in escaping from concentration camps, got themselves elected as presidents of various organizations in order to carry on swindling on a large scale. Some of the concerns which the police are investigating were commercial in character, and sold various articles at exorbitant prices, customers being induced to buy in the belief that the profits were devoted to good works."

A rifleman in the Rifle Brigade, who has arrived at Letchworth after being injured in France, states that the Prince of Wales, just before his recent visit to England, paid a visit with the staff of "Mudlark Alley," a name given by the Rifle Brigade to one of their splinter-proof shelters. The Prince examined the breastworks and spoke to several of the men. For an hour he was exposed to shell fire.

Mrs. C. E. Morgan of Guildford, England, has communicated to the English press a letter in which she says: "I have today received a letter from a company sergeant-major in the Queen's Regiment, interned in a German camp. Writing on a postcard to thank me for a parcel, he adds: 'Three men have died quite lately.' He gives the names, all men of the Queen's Regiment. Last week news reached a mother through Geneva that her son, a 'Queen's' prisoner, had also died. No notification of these deaths appears to have reached the war office. A private, writing to his wife about a month ago, said: 'For the love of heaven, send me bread. If you knew what was going on out here, you would not wait to be asked twice.' How many more of our prisoners of war are to be allowed to die without any effort being made to save them?"

HOW TO MAKE RESPIRATORS

The War Office issues the following communication:

As a protection against the asphyxiating gases being used as a weapon of warfare by the Germans, supplies of one or both of the following types of respirators are required by the troops at the front. Either can be made easily in any household:

First, a face piece (to cover mouth and nostrils) formed of an oblong pad of bleached absorbent cotton wool about 5¼ in. by 3 in. by ¾ in., covered with three layers of bleached cotton gauze, and fitted with a band to fit round the head and keep pad in position, consisting of a piece of ½-in. cotton elastic 16 in. long attached to the narrow end of the face pad, so as to form a loop with the pad.

Second, a piece of double stockinette, 9½ in. long, 3½ in. wide in the centre, gradually diminishing in width to 2½ in. at each end, with a piece of thick plaited worsted about 5 in. long attached to each end, so as to form a loop to pass over the ear.

These respirators should be sent in packages of not less than one hundred to "Chief Ordnance Officer, Royal Army Clothing Department, Pimlico."

MANURE AND FERTILIZERS.

The Division of Chemistry of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has issued another of that useful series of circulars by Dr. Frank T. Shutt, Dominion chemist. This one, Circular No. 8, deals with "Manures and Fertilizers," and, like all the work of the doctor, is at once explicit and practical. The first section is devoted to a description of experiences at the Central and other Experimental Farms, and the second is devoted to a summary and to advice that if followed cannot help but benefit the farm and profit the follower. Here are a few sentences given in sententious form that illustrate the conclusions arrived at and the counsel given by Dr. Shutt:

Rational farming is "mixed" forming."

Barnyard manure is the most effective of all fertilizers.

The liquid portion of the manure is the most valuable.

Use sufficient litter in the stables to absorb the liquid.

The amount of manure on a farm being insufficient, frequent light dressings are advisable instead of larger ones at longer intervals.

The manure is most advantageously applied for the root or corn crop in the rotation.

It is not wise to "bury" the manure; a shallow ploughing under is more advisable.

Manure is worth most when first voided.

Rational farming involves a rotation of crops.

Investigation has proven the high manurial value of clover, alfalfa, and other legumes.

The lesson is: grow a leguminous crop in the rotation, as all other crops, save the legumes, leave the soil poorer for their growth.

Commercial fertilizers cannot be depended upon profitably to maintain the soil; hence their exclusive use is discountenanced.

By home mixing fertilizers a saving of 25 to 35 per cent. can be effected.

Such in brief are a few of the conclusions arrived at by Dr. Shutt, but to get real benefit from the circular application should be made for it to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

At the Conservative convention at Chatham, Mr. Hugh Stonehouse, of Wallaceburg, was nominated as candidate for the new riding of Kent. Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, was the principal speaker.

"The Trip of a Lifetime"

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

Cut out the coupon below and bring it along with your donation to Review.

PROVED HIS THEORY,

Tragic Climax In a Murder Trial, but It Saved the Accused.

The acme of realism was reached, though by accident, in a criminal trial that took place a number of years ago at Lebanon, O.

Two men had a personal encounter. One of them after vainly trying to draw his pistol from his hip pocket turned to flee. A moment later he fell, shot in the small of the back. One chamber of his pistol was found to have been fired. His assailant was tried for murder.

The defense contended that the man had shot himself while trying to draw his pistol, which had become entangled in the lining of the pocket, and that the prisoner's shot had not taken effect. The prosecution contended that such a wound could not have been self inflicted.

The defendant's counsel, Clement L. Vallandigham, undertook to demonstrate to the jury just how the dead man's pistol had hung in the pocket and just how possible it was to inflict such a wound. Suddenly there was a loud report, and the lawyer sank to the floor. The ball had entered the back almost in the identical spot where the dead man had been shot.

The defendant was acquitted. Mr. Vallandigham died.—Exchange.

Forecasting the Future.

"I met my fate today."

"What is her name?"

"I don't know what it is now. I only know what it will be."

Good.

"What are the best pair of mascots you know?"

"Common sense and ability to use it."

Her Reason.

"Why did you marry him?"

"I wanted to see if he were really as amiable as he appears."

Too Modern.

"Oh, fly with me," the lover said,
"To some far distant spot!"
Her cruel dad unscrewed one wing,
And thus he foiled the plot.

The Reason.

"Why is he henpecked?"

"Because he is so chicken hearted."

An Awkward Situation.

"Unless I get help," declared the detective, "this revolving door is going to lose me a prisoner."

"How so?"

"There's a fellow I want in that office. But this revolving door has got me blocked. He'll start out if I start in."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Impossible.

"There's no use talking, it's impossible to suit that theatrical manager."

"Impossible, my boy. Nothing in this world is impossible."

"Yes, there is. He wants me to write a tragedy with a happy ending."—Detroit Free Press.

Natural Result.

FULLERTON TELLS HOW HE PUT MILAN IN BASEBALL AND DIDN'T KNOW IT

Clyde Milan is one of the greatest little baseball players in the world. He is an earnest, thoughtful, rather quiet fellow, ambitious, honest and is a hard worker always. His heart is in the game. He has held on year after year among the leaders in batting, in drawing bases on balls, in base running and in fielding.

This is the story of his success:

Years ago, when I was a boy in Hillsboro, O., our "back lot" was the favorite ball field for all the boys. Frank Emmerling was the name of a jeweler in the town and one day there came to his home his brother's boy, an orphan, Fritz Emmerling. He came from Germany and spoke no word of English.

He got among us, watched us play baseball, and in a month, before he had picked up the language, he was talking baseball argot, and playing ball better than any of us. He learned our ways quickly, became a cracking ball player, a royal good, reckless youth.

One day Fritz quarrelled with his uncle and disappeared.

In that fall I received a letter from Emmerling at Bristol, Tenn., saying he had a ball player on his semi-pro team who was a wonder, better than any outfielder Chicago had. I then had moved to Chicago. He said this player—young Milan—was going into the little mountain league, and to watch him.

I watched Milan's records. Also I wrote Fritz Emmerling, but the letter came back marked "No such party known."

That fall there came another letter from Fritz, urging me to try to get a job for Milan. I tried. Four managers refused to listen.

Then Milan appeared for a try-out with the Washington team. From the first he showed his speed, his nerve, his eagerness to learn. He had only one fault, oversliding bases, and all year he worked and worked to correst this. In another year he was a star, one of the greatest outfielders in the country.

Meantime I heard that Fritz Emmerling was dead. I had forgotten his name — or what position he played.

One night a few years ago Milan and I were sitting in front of the team's hotel at Washington. He turned to me suddenly and remarked:

"You put me in this business."

"I," I replied astounded. "I never heard of you until you broke in here."

"You taught a kid named Fritz Emmerling to play, didn't you?" he asked.

"Yes—I played with him when he first came over from Germany.

Then he told me the story. Fritz Emmerling had gone to Bristol, had adopted a new name, Frank Baker, had asked the courts to make the name legal, had become a big man in that country, had been chosen to office, had risen in the lumber business, had married and finally died.

He had taught Milan baseball and had developed a star.

BASEBALL

The results Tuesday were:

Federal: Newark 8, Pittsburg 0. Al other games postponed.

International: Richmond 2, Toronto 1; Jersey City 5, Rochester 2. Providence at Buffalo—cold weather; Newark at Montreal—rain.

A Home Guard for the town of Welland was organized and ninety-three members enroleld.

PLAYERS DIDN'T WANT THE MONEY

Play 1-0 Game Although Offered "Five Dollars a Run"

NEW YORK, May 19.—Chicago evened its series with New York, winning the second game yesterday by a score of 1 to 0. It was a tight pitchers' battle between Humphries and Tesreau, in which both pitchers received perfect support. It was suffrage day at the Polo Grounds, though showers and a cool, dismal day held down the crowd. The Equal Suffrage Campaign Committee received a percentage of the receipts. Each player scoring a run was promised $5, but Schulte was the only player able to take advantage of the offer. The score:—

		R.	H.	E.
Chicago	100000000	1	3	0
New York	000000000	0	5	0

Humphries and Bresnahan; Tesreau, Schauer and Meyers.

THAT McFARLAND GIBBONS MATCH HOW ABOUT IT?

Every time they match Packy McFarland and Mike Gibbons, they don't.

Not that Mike isn't ready, because he is not only ready but anxious. At one time Mr. Gibbons betrayed so such undue desire to mingle with the light hitting but extremely clever young millionaire-dollar fighter from Chicago's stockyards, but then Mike had everything to lose, including the fight, probably. Times have changed, however. Gibbons is about as simon-pure a middle weight champion as was Ketchel, and those who disputed Stanley's claim usually took care to do it outside of a ring. The phantom boxer that was Mike Gibbons of many moons ago, today is in addition a hard-hitting walloper, as clever as any who ever came along in this modern ring era, and confident that he can whip all creation at the right weight.

When Mike was prone to dodge, it was Packy who was the world beater, and he still may be just that—only we are inclined to voice a few just doubts. Packy, when he was at his best, easily outclassed everything in the division in which he fought—the 133 pound class. Not only did he actually possess the wonderful skill he still insists he retains, but he was too big for the lightweights who faced him. When he was compelled to admit that he could no longer make the weight, he simply dropped out of active competition and went to nursing along his real estate.

The very career of McFarland explains his reasons for avoiding, as long as convenient, the very lucrative match with Gibbons. If Packy were at his best, he would figure to outclass the cleverest of them all at his weight, but the point is that Packy in Gibbons, will be compelled to face a bigger man than himself, a terrific hitter and a veritable shadow. The tables would be reversed exactly for the stockyards wonder. And Packy never relished a beating.

It is axiomatic that a good little man cannot defeat a good big man.

CANADIAN LEAGUE TODAY.

TORONTO, May 19.—The Canadian League, reduced from eight to six teams, will open its season today. Erie, Pa., and Peterborough are the absentees. President Fitzgerald will go to Guelph.

The games are as follows:—Hamilton at St. Thomas; Ottawa at Guelph; Brantford at London.

ARE OUT OF ALL AMATEUR SPORT

Members of Victoria Hockey Team Ineligible for T.A.B.A.

Toronto Globe: A couple of players on the ill-fated Victoria hockey team that went on the rocks last winter now find themselves ineligible to play on the Union Bank team in the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association's jurisdiction. That is part of the penalty they undertook to pay when they laid their own course last winter, and they have no complaint coming, unless it is against the Winnipeg authorities who promised to see them safely through the difficulties that were certain to follow their defiance of the organization to which they owed allegiance.

The Peterborough City Baseball League takes the same attitude as the T.A.B.A. Players under suspension by the O.H.A. are not permitted to play.

NO POSSIBILITY OF PEACE.

President "Ban" Johnson, of the American League, declares that there is no immediate possibility of immediate peace among the warring factions. He still believes that the Federals are on the verge of bankruptcy.

PRACTISE GAME THURSDAY EVE

Also Workout at Central Park This Evening

There will be a practice game of lacrosse played Thursday night at 6.30 between two teams, captained by Frank Larone and Lew LeBarr.

The teams will line up as follows and every man is asked to be on hand sharp on time ready for action.

There will be a practice at Central Park this evening at 6.30 when all players should be out.

THE SAME IRVIN.

Irvin Trout now with the Leafs is meeting the ball right. He had two hits in two trips to the plate yesterday. He is playing left field.

Mr. Fred M. Billings, alleged to have absconded from Strathroy about two months ago, was arrested at Houston, Texas, by Chief of Police Wilson. He will be brought back.

The ore house, blacksmith shop, and shaft house at Chamber-Ferland mine at Cobalt were destroyed by fire. The damage amounts to $7000.

The Late Sergt. Boone

The news that Sergeant Gordon Valentine Boone, B.A. Sc. had fallen with his pal, Gunner G. A. McDougall, was a distinct shock to many local people, particularly the hockey fans. Although he had been in the city but two years he made a host of friends and all regret that his life should be brought to such a sudden and early close. When one thinks of the strenuous manner in which "Dicky" Boone fought the battles of the Test Hockey team in the Mercantile League, he is convinced that Sergt. Boone died fighting. He was given the name "Dicky" after Dick Boon the Montreal magnate, and the name stuck.

While in Peterborough Mr. Boone was employed in the C.G.E. Test Department. His home was in St. Johns, Newfoundland. He was in his thirtieth year.

THOSE YANKEE HEAVERS.

Ray Fisher, of the New York Yankees, is making a bid for the twirling honors of the American Ball League. He has won six straight games. McHale, Keating, and Caldwell have also been doing good work for Bill Donovan's club. Fourteen thousand people turned out to greet the Yankees at Detroit.

LOBERT GOING GOOD.

Hans Lobert is playing a clever brand of ball at third base for the New York Giants. In 22 times at bat last week he had 9 hits. Besides he accepted 22 chances without an error. Now that his team has rallied McGraw sees visions of the championship pennant.

CITIZENS URGED TO PARTICIPATE IN NEW SHOWER

The Canadian Kitchener League wishes to thank the people of Peterborough and vicinity, for their cooperation through the Review fund last week. The total amount raised was $37.25, besides some donations of bandages, gum and peppermint, the latter being used by the soldiers for cramps.

Now while the donations of last week were generous, can we not double that amount this week. This may be the last week of the shower, so do not miss this opportunity. We want to realize an amount sufficient to purchase at once, make up and forward 100 dozen sheets, pillow covers, towels, and bandage cotton. We also wish to get material for sacks, which the soldiers fill with sand and use as a kind of fortification when they have no time to dig trenches.

Now you who have not sent in your donation; kindly do so and assist in the protection of our great empire.

Thursday of this week will be open for sand bags and sheets. The sand bags are made of sacking. One doctor in writing to Toronto stated that they had to use the sheets three times over as they could not spare them long enough to be washed, on account of the scarcity. Let us, as far as we are able, help out this situation.

There will be a full publication of the week's contributions on Saturday. Who will come forward and help roll it away past the $100 mark? Jam will also be accepted.

LAST LETTER DICTATED

Gunner O'Toole Did Not Think His Injuries Were Serious

Gunner Joseph O'Toole's last message to his mother written in a hospital by dictation has been received by his parents. It is only a brief note to allay their fears for his safety, but injuries that he speaks of so lightly proved fatal. The letter reads as follows:—

April 29th,
M. B. Ward No. 3,
No. 2 Stationery Hospital,
Rouen, France.

Dear Mother,

I received your letter of the first of last week. Many thanks for the same. I got wounded up at Hill No. 60 near Ypres in both legs and hand. Not very serious, no bones broken, so you have nothing to worry about. I'm now comfortable in this hospital miles away from the firing line. The sisters and doctors are very kind. I'm getting a friend to write this for me as it is my right arm that is hurt.

Love to all from your loving son,
JOSEPH.

"Good bye and God bless you. Write soon."

Whether Gunner O'Toole knew that his wounds were to cause his death will never be known perhaps but this brief letter and its eight word postscript are significant in the light of his subsequent death.

That the late "Happy" O'Toole enjoyed the respect of his officers and was highly thought of is indicated by a letter received by his father from Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, which reads:

Ottawa, May 13th, 1915.

Dear Mr. O'Toole,—

Will you kindly accept my sincere sympathy and condolence in the loss of your splendid son Gunner Joseph O'Toole.

While one cannot too deeply mourn the loss of such a brave soldier, there is a consolation in knowing that he did his duty fearlessly and well, and gave his life for the cause of liberty and the upbuilding of the Empire.

Again extending to you my heartfelt sympathy.

Faithfully,
SAM HUGHES,
Major General.
Minister of Militia and Defence, for Canada.

Messrs. Henderson and Company's monthly circular issued from Colombo, Ceylon, states: "A feature of the market was the record prices paid for flavory teas. The oldest members of the tea trade in Ceylon could not remember such high prices being realized before." The Salada Tea Company have determined that no matter to what price tea goes, the public will get exactly the same quality in their packets. They will, of course, be compelled to charge the enhanced prices that teas fetch, but they will keep to their standard of quality.

INSPECTION OF CADETS

Collegiate Corps Under Inspection of Major Gillespie

The annual inspection of the P. C. I. cadets is being held late this afternoon on the park in front of the Armouries. Major G. H. Gillespie, Kingston, is the inspecting officer. This is the third year in succession this officer has inspected the local cadets and he is very popular with all who have met him. The cadets are expected to make a good showing as they have been carefully instructed by Capt. C. E. Jamieson, assisted by the following officers:—

Battalion Commander—F. Hooper.
Adjutant-Lieutenant—H. Dixon.
Capt. Co. No. 1—George Stewart.
Capt. Co. No. 2—V. Eastwood.
Capt. Co. No. 3—H. Knapman.
Capt. Co. No. 4—W. Adams.

WIRES WERE CROSSED.

A slight disarrangement of the fire alarm system occurred for a few minutes this afternoon owing to the telephone wires getting crossed. It caused the fire alarm bell to resound but the trouble was quickly righted.

PEACE AND HARMONY

A meeting, which is said to have the approval of the Liberals, will be held on the Market Square this evening to protest against any change in the British cabinet or any other cabinet for that matter, in time of war.

'Tis argued that peace and harmony should prevail.

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

The matter published in this column will be supplied by the local Council of Women and in the interest of their work.

"Do you approve of the suggestion that an appeal be sent by the Council to those women whose menkind fell in battle, asking them to refrain from wearing conventional mourning and to wear, instead, a band of royal purple on the arm?"

That was the message sent a few days ago by the chiefs of the Executive of the National Council of Women to lesser officers of the society. And yesterday, from coast to coast, the most hearty endorsations came pouring in. The Council, which embraces nearly all societies of women, has spoken with one voice, and it has asked that the remembrance of those who have stepped quickly, by way of eager sacrifice, from life to larger living, and who have triumphed gloriously in a victory in which their women exult through blinding tears, shall not be the dead funeral black which has no counterpart in recreative nature.

They plead with their fellow-women not to waste means needed to complete the work so gallantly begun, by putting on the garb of woe, which would have distressed those who have fought the good fight, and will bring the enervating effects of depression to the men who are going forth.

It is hard to brave convention, the Council has declared, but now, if ever, is the moment for courageous women, who have won the crown of martyrdom in will if not in deed, to show the pride that is in them by a badge that speaks of glory rather than of defeat. Royal purple, and not black, is the tribute due to the kings of our hearts.

"When will the playgrounds begin, lady?" was the question asked by a very small boy on the evening of Carnation Day. He was one of the many little fellows who crowded around the window attracted by the bright flowers, and so eager to help sell. No one had the heart to tell him that unless some kind friends help there will be no place but the dusty street for him to play in this summer. When given a flower for running an errand he immediately took it home to his mother, though he probably never heard of Mothers' Day. His surprise that any one should take the trouble to get a place for him to play in was pathetic.

Imagine the delight of the slum-children of the larger cities, accustomed to play in the dust with only bricks, tin cans and broken bottles for toys, hounded from one street to another like stray cats, scolded for shouting or otherwise using their lungs, imagine still bewilderment when some beneficient fairy not only turns the dusty back yard in a playground but actually invites them in to play with a real ball, to swing, to teeter, to build sand castles in the nice clean sand, to learn to sing and march and to learn the lesson of play. You may say that such conditions do not prevail in Peterborough. Perhaps not yet, but we will soon have slums and slum-children if we do not now secure spaces for the children to play in.

Through the kindness of the Conservatory of Music the Children's Orchestra gave a concert on Friday evening, May 14th, for the benefit of the playground fund. The hall was well filled with delighted children and quite a sum was added to the fund.

Psychologists and the medical profession have agreed that if the aim of education is not learning but the production of well-balanced men and women who can bear the burdens and do the work of their own place in life, then the chief business of the earlier grades must be to promote healthy, physical growth. The body of the young girl or boy demands more care and attention than the mind. Pulmonary and not cerebral capacity is the best promise of future usefulness.

NEW UNION SUNDAY SCHOOL OPENED IN NORTH MONAGHAN

The opening of the Union Sunday school building in North Monaghan last evening by the Salvation Army was a big success, there being a very large gathering to enjoy the banquet and program. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M. L. A., was chairman. The Sunday school will be in charge of Mr. Geo. Leggottt.

Supper was served from six to eight o'clock, and needless to say all enjoyed themselves. The program was as follows:

Selection—The Band.
Address—Mr. Geo. Leggott.
Address—Fire Chief Howard.
Vocal Duet—Misses Brooks and Northcott.
Report by Secretary Campbell.
Selection—The Band.
Recitation—The Fireman's Wedding—Bandsman F. Gray.

GUNNER FINDLAY WELL.

Mr. James Pammett, 277 Stewart street, received a card this morning written by Gunner George Findlay, of the 24th Battery with the First Contingent. It was written April 29 and said he was well.

Word has been received of another Peterborough soldier who has been wounded in France. Private Noel Clark of Omemee who went with the 57th boys in the First Contingent was shot through the right arm in the deperate fighting around Hill Sixty a day or so before the big battle of Langemarck. He is now in a London Hospital and doing well. An aunt of the wounded Canadian wrote to his mother Mrs. N. P. Clark, Omemee, informing her of the satisfactory condition of her son.

BROCKVILLE, May 19. — Col. William Buell, who was injured while leading the 4th Battalion in the battle of Langemarck, is in a hospital at South Kensington, London. He was painfully wounded by a piece of shrapnel in the left shoulder and arm, and it is not expected he will be able to return to duty within four months. After being wounded he continued to fight, and he did not give in until he attempted to jump a ditch, when he fell to the bottom and became unconscious.

BELLEVILLE, May 19.—A letter from a driver in the 2nd Battery, 1st Brigade, C.F.A., at the front, conveys the information that Gunner Leo Ross of this city had been killed in action on May 1st. Gunner Ross parents have received no official notice from Ottawa as to any casualty there in which their son figured.

Man and the Ground.

The love of dirt is among the earliest of passions, as it is the latest. Mud pies gratify one of our first and best instincts. * * * Fondness for the ground comes back to a man after he has run the round of pleasure and business, eaten dirt and sown wild oats, drifted about the world and taken the wind in all its moods. The love of digging is sure to come back to him. * * * To own a bit of ground, to scratch it with a hoe, to plant seeds and watch their renewal of life—this is the commonest delight of the race, the most satisfactory thing a man can do.—Charles Dudley Warner.

MILITARY NEWS

(Ottawa Free Press.)

Citizens of Ottawa were given an opportunity today of seeing on the march the 8th Mounted Rifles the corps so highly praised recently by H.R.H. the Governor General.

With Lieutenant Colonel Munroe in command, this fine unit held a route march through the city this afternoon. They are made up of men of exceptional physique who have been drilled to perfection and all along the line of march they were greeted with outbursts of admiration and approval by the crowds who stopped to see them by.

The regiment was headed by the newly organized pipe band, which is made up of a very fine lot of musicians, recruited from various Scottish districts in the military division. The parade left the barracks at 2.30 and marched on the driveway to Elgin Street, up McLeod to Metcalfe, to Wellington, to Bank to Sparks, to Bronson to Albert, to Kent, to McLeod to Bank to the barracks.

Start Mounted Drill.

The machine gun carts, used for the carrying of these guns and their equipment recently obtained by Lieut. Fraser, were also in the parade.

The C. M. R. this morning started mounted regimental drill. There were two troops from each squadron, making 242 mounted men, under the different squadron commanders, with Liuet.-Col. Munro, officer commanding, in charge. The regiment drilled at Brantwood Place.

It was announced this morning that all the officers of the regiment are qualifying in machine gun drill.

Three mornings a week the officers go through some stiff sword exercise, while the other three are used for rifle exercises. The officers rise at 6.30 and are kept hustling throughout the day.

No official notice has been received as to when or where the regiment will go to camp.

Expect Early Move.

It is generally expected by the officers of the 25th battery and ammunition column that they will be ordered to Barriefield before the end of the week. The right section of the battery gave a banquet in the Russell House last night, which officers and N.C.O.'s also attended. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

OTTAWA, May 19. — The Militia Department is arranging to establish a clearing hospital at Valcartier for wounded Canadians. On arrival at Valcartier the men will be examined by a medical staff and those whose condition is such that they cannot travel will be kept there, the others being sent home or to hospitals established at points throughout the Dominion.

Permanently wounded soldiers will be pensioned at once. Those less seriously wounded will receive active service pay until recovered, when they will be given discharge from the service.

At a regular meeting of Belleville city council, amongst other matters transacted was a motion to grant $400 to the 39th Battalion regimental fund, towards purchasing some comforts for the boys who are going to the front.

There are 1,159 men in the 39th Battalion stationed in Belleville, and at least 1000 men will leave for overseas.

Y.M.C.A. Boys to Visit Peterborough Canoe Plant

Thursday afternoon the members of the Y. M. C. A. will visit the Peterborough Canoe Company and witness the making of canoes, motorboats and all kinds of boat supplies. This should prove very interesting, as most boys enjoy boating. The boys will meet at the factory on Water St. at 4:15.

Preparations are now being made for the annual boys' camp, which will be held from June 29th to July 10th. The camp this year promises to be one of the best held in the history of the Association. Members who intend to go to camp are requested to hand their names in as soon as possible. The camp is for all members of the boys' department 17 years of age and under.

OBITUARY

MRS. ROBERT STEWART.

The death occurred yesterday afternoon of Minnie Florence Stewart, wife of Mr. Robert Stewart of the Trent Canal staff after a lingering illness. The late Mrs. Stewart was in her thirty-sixth year and had been a resident of the township of Mara before coming here. She had resided in Peterborough with her husband for the past seven years and was greatly esteemed by all her acquaintances. Death resulted from a complication of diseases.

A service was held this afternoon at 4.15 by Rev. Robert Pogue, after which the body was forwarded to Beaverton where the funeral will take place Friday afternoon.

The sympathy of his many friends will be extended to the sorrowing husband and one little daughter.

RESORTS IN THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

"Resorts in the Canadian Rockies" is the title of a new folder issued by the C.P.R. The cover is in black and gold, while the pages contain a series of beautiful pictures, accompanied by explanatory and descriptive letterpress. A chief feature is a map on which are shown the Rockies in one large view—a bird's-eye view, which picks out and tabulates every single peak and which gives to the whole a wonderful sense of vividness and reality. "That surging sea of mountains," as the Rockies have been named, stands out from the paper, each peak distinct and marked by its own characteristics—the whole being presented with photographic minuteness." It took the artist who painted the picture, in the first place, two years to accomplish this work."

Getting Them Fresh.

The proprietor of a Paris art store was explaining to his head clerk about a customer he was expecting who had just inherited money and had gone in for art.

"Is he a hard man to handle?' asked the clerk.

"No. You just push him up to a painting and take his money away from him, but you want to be careful that he doesn't rub against those two old masters I have set aside for him, as the paint on them might not be quite dry."

Mr. Sinclair, of Thorold, while fishing at Beaver Dam, found a man's leg in the water. He notified the police and inquiries are being instituted.

EXTRAORDINARY POWERS FOR THE ITALIAN GOV'T

Rome, May 20, (C.P.)---Premier Salandra introduced a bill this afternoon in the Chamber of Deputies conferring on the Government extraordinary powers in case of war. A committee was named to give this project immediate consideration.

FRESH PROGRESS IN BUKOWINA FOR RUSSIANS

At Most Points Russians Repulsed Attacks With Enormous Losses to Enemy, Petrograd Statement Says

BOMBARDMENT OF PRZEMYSL CONTINUES

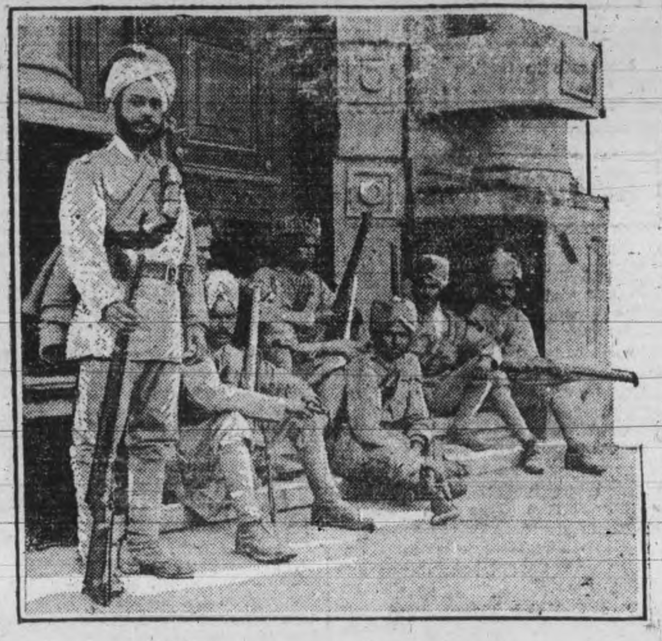
(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, May 20. — The official Russian statement reports fresh progress in Bukowina, where more prisoners and war booty are being captured.

The bombardment of Przemysl continues.

At most points Russians repulsed attacks with enormous losses to the enemy.

In Courland Province, hundreds of Germans were taken prisoners and counter-attacks were repulsed.



INDIAN TROOPS IN EGYPT

Besides the Australians, New Zealanders and Territorials in Egypt there are also a number of Indian troops. The picture shows a group of Indians outside the National Bank of Egypt.

TOLD TO LEAVE WITHIN HOUR

Aged Wanderer Was Gathered in by the Police

An aged looking man who gave his name as William McEwen, occupied a seat in the police court box this morning. McEwen was an example of the class of tramp who foot their way around the country, begging their living and otherwise beating their way. He started on this trip from Kenora and claimed to be making for Montreal and didn't want to be locked up. A charge of vagrancy was laid against him, and begging without a proper certificate. He admitted it, but if given a chance would walk out of town within one hour.

His Worship cast a pitying glance at the old man who hobbled out of court leaning on a cane.

"Not often you see a Scotchman of his age and appearance living such a life," was his remark.

ACTION IS DISMISSED

No Damages for Wesley White Whose Father Asked $1500

Judgment was given this morning by His Honor Judge Huycke in the recent case of Wesley and William White of Campbellford vs. Thomas Sampson, William Jordan and Luman Jordan, also of Campbellford. The plaintiffs, through Solicitor G. N. Gordon, were seeking $1500 damages for injuries received by Wesley White, caused, it was claimed, through alleged negligence of the defendants. It will be remembered that during May, 1914, blasting operations were being executed by Thos. Sampson and Luman Jordan on property in Campbellford owned by William Jordan. Wesley White, aged [illegible] years, [illegible] premises on a Sunday afternoon, and according to his story, as told in the witness box, he found a dynamite cap, which exploded in his hand. Part of his hand was blown off, and injuries to his body received. The lad was brought to Nicholls Hospital and was confined there several weeks.

About a month ago the action entered by the plaintiff's solicitor was heard at a special sitting of the County Court here. Mr. I. A. Humphries of Campbellford appeared for the defendants. According to the evidence of witnesses for the defence young White did not find the cap in a post-hole, as he had said, but rather entered Luman Jordan's home and took the cap from a box in which the explosives were kept. In view of this evidence, which was corroborated by several witnesses, His Honor dismissed the action without costs.

In the absence of Mr. Humphries, Solicitor Gordon represented the defendants.

Since the sinking of the Lusitania the number of Germans becoming naturalized in Nek York has increased 300 per cent.

AUSTRIAN WILL REMAIN IN JAIL

Has Some Letters Which Will be Translated

No chances are being taken by the police in regard to foreigners of German or Austrian nationality who may be found roaming the country. The local police gathered in an Austrian yesterday. He carried the remarkably "English" name of John Newell, but professed an ignorance of the English language. His appearance was decidedly Austrian, light complexioned, and light moustache. Questions addressed him by the court where he was charged with being a vagrant this morning received no answer.

Newell carries some letters written in a language that looks like Austrian and Chief Thompson is waiting to have these translated before taking action with him. He will remain in a safe place on the hill for a week. In the meantime his fate will be decided.

Heavy Casualties for Australians

Nine Hundred Names on List From Gallipoli Peninsula

INCLUDES COMMANDER

LONDON, May 20.—A casualty list of 170 officers and 1400 men issued today includes 900 casualties among Australians on Gallipoli Peninsula, and 150 naval losses in the same area. Among the wounded is General Sir William Ririwood, commanding the Australian forces in the Dardanelles.

C.G.E. MACHINE SHOP TO START FULL TIME

It is understood that the Canadian General Company is putting forth an extra effort to have no aliens drawing pay cheques while so many British citizens are out of work. The company is very careful that the right men get the jobs. Several departments of the C. G. E. are working full time, and it is expected that the machine shop department will also be running fifty-five hours a week in the near future.

Salandra's Declarations Received With Cheers

Premier Submits Bill to Meet Expenditures of National War

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 20. — The Temps' Rome correspondent says: "All galleries of the chamber of deputies were crowded at one o'clock, some time before parliament assembled. There were four hundred and fifty deputies in their seats. When Premier Salandra, followed by all the members of the cabinet, entered, it was a solemn moment. Then cries broke out. "Vive, Vive, Salandra!" were the words, and the cheering lasted five minutes. Premier Salandra appeared much moved by the demonstrations. After the formalities of opening, Premier Salandra arose and said:

" 'Gentlemen, I have the honor to present to you a bill to meet the eventual expenditures of a national war.'

"Prolonged applause followed this announcement.

"The Premier declared that Italy had submitted to every humiliation from Austria-Hungary for love of peace. By her ultimatum to Servia, the Premier said, Austria had annulled the equilibrium of the Balkans and prejudiced Italian interests there. Notwithstanding this evident violation of the treaty of the Triple Alliance, Italy endeavored during long months to avoid confliction, but these efforts were bound to have a limit in time and dignity. 'This is why the government felt itself forced to present its denunciation of the Triple Alliance on May 4th,' said Premier Salandra. The declarations were received with great applause, which the Premier tried to quiet. When he had succeeded in so doing, he said: 'Italy must be united at this moment when her destinies are being decided.' "

FULL POWERS FOR ITALIAN WAR MINISTER

Chamber of Deputies Gave Assent by Unanimous Vote

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 20. — Reports have been received from Rome that the Italian chamber of Deputies by virtually a unanimous vote today granted full powers to the minister of war.

MAY SWEAR OUT AN INFORMATION

Sanitary Inspector Spence Wants Health Provisions Obeyed

By all appearances, the differences between Sanitary Inspector Spence and G. H. Howson, inspector of weights and measures, are not ended yet. Mr. Howson, so the inspector says, is the owner of a house on London street which is not supplied with sewer connections and sanitary provisions required by the Board of Health. The sanitary inspector says he has been after Mr. Howson to have this performed, for the past two years, without success, and now he thinks he will have to lay an information [illegible] in order to get it performed. He gave Mr. Howson a month's notice, but that time has elapsed, and on Tuesday, unless it is done, he intends to take out the information.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Halifax Centenarian Walked on the Tracks

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

HALIFAX, May 20.—Wesley Bent, one hundred years old, was struck and killed by a train while walking on tracks this morning.

Bandits at Calvin, Ok., tied up the policeman for a day and looted the post office at Wewoka.

VALUABLE HOUND KILLED BY CAR

A valuable hound belonging to Cyril K. Lech was killed at noon today by a street car at the corner of Park and Bolivar streets. The accident started a chain of action. The street car conductor notified the police, the police notified the sanitary inspector, the sanitary inspector notified the collector, the collector carted the dead beast to the incinerator, and the last of the affair occurred when the sanitary inspector started off to see the owner of the dog, to collect fifty cents as the fee for the collector in removing it to the incinerator.

SEVENTEEN SUBMARINES LOST TO FOE

Since Commencement of Attempted Blockade of England

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 20.—A Copenhagen despatch says a report is current in German naval circles that seventeen German submarines have been lost since February 18th, the date of the commencement of the submarine "blockade" of England.

CAMERONIA IS IN PORT

Carried Montreal Battalion and Other Canadian Troops

ALSO LOCAL DOCTORS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, May 20.—The Militia Department announced today that the steamship Cameronia has arrived safely in England carrying the 25th Battalion, Montreal, and other Canadian troops. She sailed on the eleventh and arrived in England yesterday.

Dr. Frederick and Dr. McPherson sailed on the Cameronia.

FAVOR WAR

LONDON, May 20.—A News Agency dispatch received here this afternoon but accepted with reserve stated that the Italian chamber of Deputies in Rome has voted overwhelmingly in favor of war, the vote being six to one in support of hostilities against the Teutonic allies.

ALLIANCE WITH AUSTRIA BROKEN OFF BY ITALY IS REVEALED IN GREEN BOOK

Austria Offered Territorial Compensation for Italy's Continued Neutrality and Made Demands Described as Contemptible

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, May 20. — That Italy has definitely broken off her alliance with Austria-Hungary is revealed in the publication today of the Italian official gerne book. After negotiations, Austria offered Italy territorial compensation in return for Italy's continued neutrality, and made demands which Foreign Minister Sonnino described as contemptible.

On April 25th, the Duke of Avarna, the Italian Ambassador at Vienna, reported that the Austrian Government did not believe Italy ever would make war, and that Vienna regarded the continuance of discussions useless. Signor Sonnino then, considering any accord impossible, denounced the alliance with Austria-Hungary, and on May 4th the Duke of Avarna informed the Vienna Government that Italy was confident of her rights, and affirmed to the Austrian Government that "from this moment Italy resumes entire liberty of action, declaring her treaty with Austria-Hungary is hereby annulled and without effect."

TRAWLER SUNK CREW RESCUED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETERHEAD, Scotland, May 20. —The British trawler Chrysloite was sunk by a German submarine 35 miles off Kinnead's Head in the North Sea yesterday. The crew took to boats and were landed here by a Norwegian steamer.

It is believed that at least two submarines are operating in these waters.

Nothing to Report

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 20. — This afternoon's official statement says there is nothing from Wednesday night to report.

Cadets Win Praise Cup for Company 4

Major Gillespie Finds Great Improvement in Collegiate Corps

WITHOUT AN EQUAL IN THIS DIVISION

That the endeavors of Capt. C. E. Jamieson, cadet instructor of Peterborough Collegiate Institute, to have the P.C.I. cadets well drilled in military matters was clearly demonstrated yesterday when the cadets made an excellent showing in their annual inspection by Major G. H. Gillespie of Kingston. Although the corps has but an hour and a half every week in which to drill, their work yesterday justified comparison with active service battalions. It was very evident that because of the great struggle in which the Empire is now involved the boys took up their military studies with far more eagerness and enthusiasm than ever before. There seemed to be keen interest in the cadets, on the part of many citizens and the grounds in front of the Armouries on which the inspection took place was spotted with civilians.

The first part of the afternoon's manoeuvres was taken up by battalion drill which was brought to a close by a march past. Those who have witnessed the inspections of the P.C.I. cadets for the past number of years expressed themselves as being of the opinion that yesterday's march past exceeded all others. The company drill was also well performed and the short skirmishing exercises drew commendatory remarks from the onlookers. After all the drills had been gone through the battalion was drawn up near the Armouries and Major Gillespie and Colonel Miller spoke a few words.

Greater Improvement.

Major Gillespie said that last year he thought the P.C.I. cadets were remarkably well trained but this year he found even greater improvement. The corps is without an equal in this division of the province. He spoke very highly of the officers whose excellent work was quite evident. He felt confident that the P. C.I. cadets would bear comparison with many militia regiments in the province. He expressed his deep regret that the cadets would not be present at the camp at Barriefield this summer but hoped to have them there next year when "the allies will have reached Berlin."

Major Gillespie referred very kindly to the work of Company No. 4 commanded by Wilfred Adams and expressed his great pleasure in presenting to that company the silver cup emblematic of the most highly efficient company in the corps. The presentation was then made and the boys gave "three cheers for Captain Adams."

Colonel Miller, as a member of the Board of Education and as a citizen emphasized his great pleasure at being present and how proud he felt of the grand showing of the boys. He referred to the large number of former members of the P.C.I. cadet corps who are now fighting for the flag at the front and felt confident that many of the members of the 1915 corps would also do their share

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MAY 20, 1915

HON. HONEST FRANK OLIVER'S NATURAL RESOURCES.

THE QUESTION of "Provincial control of natural resources" was discussed in the House of Commons on February 24th, 1914. As the question referred primarily to the Western Provinces it was natural that Hon. Honest Frank Oliver should take a hand in the discussion. It will be remembered that Sir Robert Borden proposed that the new Western Provinces should be given control of their natural resources on fair terms, but that Sir Wilfrid Laurier proposed that the Dominion Government should keep control of them. Hon. Honest Frank Oliver, defending the Laurier policy on the occasion referred to, said in the House of Commons:

> "A definite arrangement was made in the broad light of day; an agreement was arrived at which was satisfactory to the people of those provinces at that time. The Government of that day stood by the agreement; they believed it was right in principle and right in practice. They stood by it then, and they stand by it still. When that agreement was being made, the party of the Opposition, led by the present leader of the Government, took issue with the then Government on the question of principle. The then Government held that it was in the best interest of the country that the natural resources should be administered by the Dominion Government. The party of the Opposition, led by the present Prime Minister, took the view that it would be more to the interest of the country that these natural resources should be administered by the Provincial Governments. It was a question of principle; there was fair room for difference of opinion, and, naturally, of course, the view of the Government prevailed."

This statement looks like a straightforward exposition of the difference of opinion prevailing on the question. Doubtless it was received as such at the time when it was delivered. In the light of the dealings of Hon. Honest Frank Oliver, that have lately been exposed in the House, this statement appears in a new light. It is apparent now that the former Minister of the Interior had personal interests in the natural resources of the new Provinces, and that very probably he supported the Liberal policy so strongly in order to give him an opportunity to feather his own nest. It was shown in the House at the last session that Hon. Honest Frank Oliver received revenues from natural resources that rightly belonged to the Crown. All the time Hon. Honest Frank Oliver was helping himself to public money in this fashion he was advocating the policy of leaving these natural resources in control of the Dominion Government. He advocated this policy because his department had control over them, and so that he could enrich himself at the public expense.

But note also how he assailed the Conservative position. He declared in the House of Commons on the same occasion that Sir Robert Borden's proposal was nothing short of a $200,000,000 bribe to the people of the Prairie Provinces. You see, Hon. Honest Frank Oliver had evidently made a calculation—he was competent to know how much one could get out of the natural resources of the Prairie Provinces. He went on to say:

> "I say no such corrupt proposition was ever placed before the people of Canada as was placed before the people of the Prairie Provinces during that campaign. The leader of the Government found then, and he will find when the next election comes, that the people of the Prairie Provinces are not for sale."

Imagine this statement from a minister who came from the Prairie Provinces, who sold fifteen thousand dollars' worth of influence in his newspaper to the Grand Trunk Pacific, and who sold, in his own name, mining rights that legally belonged to the Crown! Methinks Hon. Honest Frank Oliver, ex-Minister of the Laurier naval forces, hath protested too much.

THE SITUATION IN MANITOBA.

IN A LEADING editorial in the Toronto Star on Tuesday appeared the following:

> "If the rumor be true that the outgoing Conservative leaders and the incoming Liberal leaders in that province have made a deal whereby the new government will hush up and hide the offences of those who have handed over the keys of office to them, it is so bad a bargain that public opinion in Manitoba ought to condemn the new government in Manitoba along with the old and fill the legislature with new men altogether."

It is emphatically stated in Winnipeg that there was on collusion between the two parties over the situation that developed in that province. The belief is prevalent that the Roblin Government has quietly handed over complete control of affairs to the incoming Liberal cabinet. This belief is expressed by the leading Liberal newspapers in Winnipeg, and indicates that the new cabinet should have no difficulty in conducting the business of the province. The probability is that no election will be held there during the present war. What the people of Manitoba want is good government, and the public opinion there is anxious to secure it. The work of the new government is being closely watched by the public, and careful steering will be necessary to avoid serious trouble.

A STERN REBUKE.

THE MEETING called for the market square to discuss Imperial Government affairs was no doubt intended as a scathing rebuke to those Liberal politicians who have not scrupled to use every possible means to hold up the Government of Canada. Nothing else but some such plain reminder could call the attention of the public to the scandalous propaganda in the press, on the platform, and at party conventions, which the Liberal party-mongers, both here and elsewhere, have been utilizing for the purpose of bringing the Borden Government to its knees. That the Borden Government should wish to consult the people is treated as a pretended crime. Did those same critics flock to the market square last night and criticize the British Government for doing what it thought best under the circumstances? They dared not. They have been sniping, but they dared not charge. At this sad and trying time, when our gallant lads are fighting so gloriously for the Empire, was there any cessation of the criticism at home? It grew worse from day to day. The alleged meeting will, as it was no doubt hoped, silence at least for a time, those Liberal fanatics who have been doing all in their power to bring the Borden Government down in public estimation in Peterborough. If Sir Robert Borden is to be free to manage the affairs of the country because it is war-time, then he must first of all be free to consult the people, and from the hounding to which he and his government have been subjected. The cloven hoof of partizanship has been sticking through the cloak of alleged friendship too clearly, and it was high time it was given a chance to show itself in the open, if it dared to do so. But it was not present at the market square.

SEYMOUR H. KNOX, vice-president of the F. W. Woolworth Company, and one of the most prominent business men in Buffalo, died in that city on Sunday. He was born in New York State in 1861, and as a boy of seventeen commenced work in a country store in Hart, Michigan. Later he went to Reading, Pa., where, with his cousin, F. W. Woolworth, he opened a five and ten cent store. He made a fortune in this business, the company operating at the present time seven hundred and eighty-one stores in the United States, Canada and Great Britain. Mr. Knox was a great horseman and owned a fine string of racers.

THE NEWS that Sergeant G. V. Boone of the 24th Field Battery, First Canadian Contingent, has been killed in France will be a shock to his many friends in Peterborough. He was a fine specimen of young man, well educated, and companionable. It is the loss of such men that is war's heaviest toll, because they cannot easily be replaced.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

Britain Means Business.

(London Daily Telegraph.)

In a fortnight's fighting about Neuve Chapelle, declared the Chancellor, our guns fired away as much ammunition as was expended in the whole course of the Boer War — about two years and three-quarters! True, we have at the front today over 700,000 men; more than thirty-six divisions, kept up to full strength after all the heavy casualties that have been suffered until now. But that is only the beginning of the British effort, as we all know; and an immensely larger British force, carrying on the war with far more intensity than has been possible in the conditions of the winter months, is what we shall have to provide for in the phase of the struggle that is opening now. That is the task before this nation; and the nation means to see to it.

The Strain on the Red Cross.

(Arnold Bennett, in London News.)

Among the wounded of all the belligerents, the British are beyond doubt the best treated. But while the resources of Britain are incomparable, the number of her wounded has been relatively small compared with those of other nations. The strain on the British Red Cross is only just beginning. In May and June it will be terrific. As for the French, it is notorious that French organization has been overwhelmed by the casualties, and that hundreds of thousands of wounded have suffered appalling martyrdoms through the sheer inability of the organization to cope with the numbers.

A Hidden Message.

(London Daily Mail.)

By using a biblical reference from the parable of the prodigal son, a soldier in a Lancashire regiment, who is imprisoned at Doberitz, has informed his wife at Ashton-under-Lyne that he is starving. In the course of an apparently cheery message he wrote, "I hope at Easter you read my favourite verse, Luke xv., verse 17."

Puzzled, his wife turned up the passage and read, "And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger!"

Impotent at Sea.

(Westminster Gazette.)

The rejoicings in the German press over the official statement that the German fleet has been cruising in the North Sea could only be put seriously before a people which does not understand what sea power means. The German fleet can cruise as it pleases so long as it takes care not to encounter British ships, but there remain only two tests of German sea power. The first is that the German fleet shall encounter and defeat the British fleet; the second, that the German mercantile marine should be able to put again to sea. So long as Germany accepts neither of those two decisive tests, so long does Germany remain impotent on the waters.

Missed and Mourned.

(Toronto Globe.)

Canadian journalism loses a brilliant pen and a generous heart by the death of Mrs. Kathleen Coleman. "Kit" will be missed and mourned by thousands who never saw her.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Moderate to fresh easterly winds, fair today. Friday, south easterly winds, some showers but partly fair.

King Albert in Race

No monarch loves his country more fervently than King Albert of Belgium, and a striking story is told of the drastic manner in which he punished a traitor who betrayed the Belgian army at Namur. The narrative was told to a reporter of the Cardiff Western Mail by a wounded Belgian officer who witnessed the incident.

When King Albert heard that one of his trusted commanders had proved a traitor he immediately ordered a court martial, and the man was sentenced to death. At the execution there was a memorable scene. King Albert was present, and when the doomed man stood up to be shot his majesty went up to him, took from him his sword and snapped it across his knee. The monarch's face was white with passion and his lips trembled with rage. Suddenly he grasped the disgraced officer's coat and tore from it every decoration, every button, every vestige of braid. The officer handed his revolver to the king and asked him to shoot him. The monarch flung the revolver back into his face, stepped back a few feet, signaled to the firing party, the air was rent with a volley, and the man was no more. He had paid the penalty of his treachery.

The Jitneys.

The jitney, in the picturesque and untrammeled language of certain parts of our country, is a five cent piece. By the simple process of transference it has now come to mean in a growing number of western cities a motorbus that runs regularly over a given route in competition with trolley lines or not, as the case may be, and carries passengers for a five cent fare. The city of its origin is a bit uncertain—though probably the idea came from the European cities, where a similar system has revolutionized urban and suburban transportation—but presumably it was in progressive California, for most of the cities there appear to be well fitted out with flying squadrons of jitneys.—Boston Herald.

German Princes War Victims.

The new Almanach de Gotha makes the statement that up to now seven German princes have been killed in the war—namely, Princes Frederick and Ernest of Saxe-Meiningen, Max of Hesse, Rudolf and Ernest of Lippe, Wolsath of Waldeck Pyrmont and Henry XLVI. of Reuss. It is also known that two members of the imperial Russian family have died on the battlefield, but the Almanach mentions only one, Prince Oleg.

The Longest Courtship.

The longest courtship on record was that between Franz Rosner and Anna Renner of Oberpolitz, Bohemia. They had been courting for seventy-five years, but repeatedly deferred the bridal day. At last Franz became fatally ill and was recently married on his deathbed at the age of 100 and died two days later. The age of the widow is ninety-three.—Exchange.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Buttermilk as a Remedy.

To drink buttermilk three times a day to improve the digestion is of great benefit. Every one who has tried it can safely recommend the treatment. The sufferer from skin disfigurements will also find buttermilk a most excellent cosmetic. The treatment must be thoroughly and carefully given, however, to be successful. The parts affected must be really washed with the buttermilk night (at bedtime) and morning (after breakfast). The milk must be permitted to dry into the skin without wiping. If the eruption is on the face use the buttermilk instead of water to wash the face. When this treatment is faithfully followed for a few weeks it generally produces the most satisfactory results.

TORPEDO BOAT DESTROYERS

They Have Many Important Parts to Play in Naval Warfare

Torpedo boat destroyers, as the name implies, were first built to engage the small torpedo boat, which had become a serious peril to the big battleships and large cruisers.

So serious was the menace that searchlights and rapid fire guns were regarded as unreliable for the protection of these big ships against this smaller craft. It was thus that the destroyer was born, and, with graduation, its duties were extended until they included all that was formerly done by the small torpedo boat, and much more besides.

It is a fact that the modern destroyer is three or even four times as large as one of the earlier type, which naturally renders it much more seaworthy and obviously increases its radius of action, seeing that it is capable of carrying much more fuel.

The objects of a modern torpedo boat destroyer flotilla are many. Perhaps the paramount duty of every vessel in the flotilla is to discharge its torpedoes, should it get near enough, at the enemy's big battleships. But a very important office to fulfill is that of scouting, which comprises locating and reporting the position of the enemy.

Should the enemy make a night attack the destroyers are relied upon to locate and report the position of the attacking fleet's torpedo craft, as well as sink or drive them away before they can force an attack against the bigger battleships.—London Telegraph.

STEAM MOTIVE POWER.

It Had Been Used Long Before the Time of Watts and Fulton.

The Marquis of Worcester while imprisoned in the Tower of London in 1656 invented and constructed a perfect steam engine and had it publicly exhibited the same year at Vauxhall in successful operation.

Thirty-four years later, in 1690, Dennis Papin added the piston to the marquis' discovery. In 1698 Captain Savary devised and built a steam engine different in many details from those made by Worcester and Papin, and in 1705 Newcomb, Cawley and Savary constructed their celebrated atmospheric engine, which was complete in every detail.

The above array of historical facts notwithstanding, James Watt, who was not born until sixty years after these great men had given the steam engine to the world, enjoys the distinction of being the veritable inventor, originator and author of the most useful contrivance of the present day.

Fulton, who lived and worked in the early part of the nineteenth century, is given the credit of being the man who demonstrated that steam could be applied to navigation—this, too, in face of the well known historical fact that De Gary propelled a vessel by steam in the harbor of Barcelona in 1543.—St. James' Gazette.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

To Remove Fruit Stains.

Fruit stains will be eradicated easily if one will wet them with a little camphor before washing. Then wash and the stains will disappear. Glycerin may be used in a similar manner, being sure in both cases to use it before water touches the stain.

For grease stains there is nothing better than eucalyptus oil. This may be used on delicate fabrics without injury, as it will evaporate rapidly, leaving no mark.

To Dry the Back.

Strips of Turkish toweling cut from towels that are beginning to show wear may be used to pull back and forth across the back or be hemmed into wash cloths and still give plenty of wear.

When to Buy Shoes.

When buying new boots or shoes always go to the shop in the evening. Toward the end of the day the feet swell, so, unless boots are bought at this time, they will not be large enough in fit.

Before wearing patent leather boots or shoes for the first time warm them gently in front of the fire to prevent the leather from cracking. This process need not be repeated if they are in daily wear, but if they are put away for a few weeks or months it should be done again before they are taken back into use.

BOWSER'S APPENDICITIS

He Expects It Along Any Minute

By M. QUAD.

When Mr. Bowser awoke the other morning he heaved a long sigh.

When he got out of bed he groaned as though in pain.

As he dressed himself he had visions of somber graveyards and weeping willows.

When he came downstairs he intended to tell Mrs. Bowser that the end of things for him was near, but something happened to stop him. He saw her looking at him in an ironical way and without the slightest note of pity. It cut him to the quick. She must know that he was suffering, and yet she could pitilessly look on and make game of him.

Mr. Bowser braced up like a bent bow springing back.

He took his seat at the table as its master should.

He ate with a dignity becoming a Bowser.

When he had finished the meal he rose and departed for the office without unbending. As he came home at the usual evening hour he sniffed and snuffed at the atmosphere of the hall and observed:

"I should say you had a boiled dinner waiting."

"One of the best you ever ate," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"That's very nice of you, I'm sure; but, unfortunately for me, I cannot partake of it."

"But why?"

"I got a little warning today that I think best to heed."

"What sort of warning?"

"Dr. MacCready was in the office on some business, and, hearing me utter an involuntary groan as I rose up, he began to question me. It wasn't five minutes before he announced that I would have to be very careful or fall a victim to appendicitis. He said I had all the symptoms of it."

"I DO WISH YOU WOULD VISIT MY GRAVE."

"I don't believe any such talk, Mr. Bowser! I haven't heard you groan, involuntarily or otherwise, for a year. Did he charge you a fee for telling you this?"

"He made no charge, but, then, naturally"—

"Naturally you went and handed him over at least $5, while I am in need of a dozen different little things. You have no more cause to be afraid of appendicitis than I have of the Indian plague. Why do you let people work you like this?"

"Softly, now, softly!" he said, as he led the way to the dining room, instead of shouting "Woman!" at her. "Mrs. Bowser, I cannot be classed as an alarmist. Thousands of things have ailed me, and I have never said a word to you about them. I wasn't going to say a thing in this case, but, being put on a diet by the doctor, I had to make some explanations. I have known for months and months that the appendicitis was after me. I have figured that when it overtook me at last I would make a sneak for the hospital and have the operation performed before you knew anything about it. That is the way with me. I do my own worrying and planning."

"Well, what symptoms have you felt?" she asked.

"Pains in the back, roaring in the head, wakefulness and all that. There are days when black specks dance before my eyes. The other morning when I got up my teeth seemed too long."

"And that ass of a doctor made you believe those were symptoms of appendicitis!"

"I knew they were before he confirmed me. I have been saved by just one week."

"How?"

"I am going to follow the directions given me by the doctor."

"Did he tell you to sleep with your feet out of bed and breakfast, dine and sup on catnip?"

"No, ma'am, he didn't. He told me to live on milk and water for the next four days. That boiled dinner smells to heaven, but I can't touch a mouthful of it. It's either milk and water or death for me."

"Look here, now," she said, determined on one last argument, "I have [illegible] of as many as five cases of appendicitis right around here, and not one of them had the symptoms you mention. All that ails you is a little biliousness or rheumatism."

"I have got my warning, my dear."

"But you haven't got it from your own doctor."

"One doctor is the same as another when it's a case as serious as this. I'm as hungry as a wolf, but don't tempt me. One full meal would mean the ambulance and the hospital. I might possibly come out alive, but the chances are only one in a hundred. I seem to be fat and solid, Mrs. Bowser, but as a matter of fact I am too spirituelle to stand much pain."

Mrs. Bowser had to laugh. She would have had to had he been standing over her with an ax. She led the way upstairs and was for dropping the subject, but Mr. Bowser hadn't had his say yet.

"In case this milk and water diet doesn't stave off appendicitis and the results are fatal you will find all my business papers in the safe," he observed as he walked up and down.

"Very well."

"You will not be forced to marry to keep a roof over your head."

"No?"

"Naturally I would rather you would not marry at all, but I am not going to exact any promise. I do wish, however, that you would visit my grave once in awhile. I shan't know it, of course, but it will help you not to forget me."

"I shall visit it once in two weeks during good weather," she replied as she saw his lip trembling.

"That is all I ask. The doctor assured me that milk and water would stave off the impending danger, but I have a presentiment, Mrs. Bowser—a presentiment that appendicitis will come and terminate fatally."

"And I have a presentiment that I shall some day meet that fool of a doctor and tell him what I think of him. It's just biliousness that ails you, and a dose or two of calomel would set you to singing. There are yellow streaks under your eyes, and those mean biliousness and nothing else."

Mr. Bowser shook his head and heaved a sigh that finally terminated in a groan and brought the cat out from under the piano. Then he started down the hall and put on his hat.

"Are you going out?" was asked.

"I'm going after a quart of milk. I may wake up in the night and want a drink. I may also talk with the druggist if he isn't busy. I am sure he would help you about the funeral arrangements."

Mrs. Bowser was glad to have him go. She knew the druggist was a blunt spoken man and would diagnose the case pretty speedily. She therefore ran into a neighbor's for an hour. Mr. Bowser made his way to the druggist's, and not finding him rushed, he began:

"Doc, take a careful look at my face, will you?"

"Cert. Thinking of trading it off for a new one?"

"Does my phiz tell you anything?"

"Not much. It never did. The yellow streaks under your eyes show that you are bilious."

"What do pains in the back signify?"

"Rheumatism, generally."

"And roaring in the head?"

"A cold."

"And when your teeth seem too long."

"A little neuralgia in the jaws. Why, what do you think ails you?"

"I was told by a doctor this morning that those symptoms heralded an attack of appendicitis."

"Herald your grandmother! Somebody has been making a fool of you again. You may have appendicitis some day, but it won't come on that way. What did the so called doctor tell you to do?"

"Drink milk and water," sighed Mr. Bowser.

"You ought to be kept on that diet for the rest of your natural life. Didn't Mrs. Bowser say the fellow was a humbug?"

"Well—er—you know"—

"Of course she did, and of course he is. Go home and eat a hearty dinner, [illegible] and then take some calomel. Say, man, if you hadn't the wife you have somebody would get the socks off your feet."

Mr. Bowser didn't jaw back. He was too elated. Ten minutes later the cook was heaping the remains of that boiled dinner on the table, and he was eating like a Michigan lumberman. Mrs. Bowser came home and surprised him at it.

"Well, you saw the druggist?" she queried as he refilled his plate.

"The druggist? What about?"

"About your threatened appendicitis."

"I hadn't heard anything about being threatened."

"But you gave up $5 to a fool of a doctor this morning to tell you to live on a milk and water diet for the next four days."

"My dear woman," said Mr. Bowser between huge bites, "please go away. You are laboring under a hallucination. You have somehow got me mixed up with your uncle Joe or your brother Sam. Go away while I get a few mouthfuls to eat."

OWES HER LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Cured Both Stomach Trouble and Headaches

PALMERSTON, ONT., JUNE 20th. 1913.

"I really believe that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives". Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctor's bills. I was so sick and worn out that people on the street often asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old Stomach Trouble and distressing Headaches nearly drove me wild. Sometime ago, I got a box of "Fruit-a-tives" and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street, noticed my improved appearance and asked the reason. I replied, "I am taking Fruit-a-tives". He said, "Well, if Fruit-a-tives are making you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can".

MRS. H. S. WILLIAMS.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VIII.—Second Quarter, For May 23, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, II Sam. ii, 1-7; v, 1-5—Memory Verses, v, 2, 3—Golden Text, Ps. xxviii, 7—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

In the two portions assigned for this lesson we have the record of David's second and third anointings over Judah and over all Israel (ii, 4; v, 3), the first anointing being at the hands of Samuel (I Sam. xvi, 13). As all anointings are suggestive of the work of the Holy Spirit and of Him whom God anointed with the Holy Ghost and with power (Acts x, 38), who also anoints and seals the believer with the Holy Spirit (II Cor. i, 21, 22), we will turn for a few minutes to the other lesson for today in I Cor. xii, 1-13 to notice that no one can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Spirit, and that by the same Spirit each believer receives gifts for service as the Spirit sees fit; to every man according to his several ability, to every man his work (Matt. xxv, 15; Mark xiii, 34). As our Lord Jesus Christ, the son of David, is waiting for His kingdom, when He will occupy the throne of David, so all true believers, anointed kings and priests, associates of Him who shall be a priest upon His throne, the true Melchizedek, are waiting with Him and for Him, He at the Father's right hand and we in the conflict here (Luke i, 32, 33; Rev. i, 5, 6; Zech. vi, 13; Gen. xiv, 18; Ps. cx, 1, 4). While we wait it is our privilege to suffer with Him and to serve Him in any way or place which He may assign to us, knowing that the glory of His kingdom will abundantly recompense for all suffering or service during the little while of waiting. Returning to our lesson in Samuel, we note that, though Saul was dead, the rule over all Israel did not come to David at once, but in Hebron over Judah for seven years and then in Jerusalem over all Israel and Judah for thirty-three years (chapter v, 5).

We may find an analogy in the coming of the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ when all the kingdoms of this world shall have become His (Rev. xi, 15), and we may then see more clearly the significance of David's three anointings.

We cannot help noting David's lamentation over Saul and Jonathan, with its thrice repeated "How are the mighty fallen!" (II Sam. i, 19, 25, 27). How he could say that Saul and Jonathan were lovely and pleasant in their lives I do not know unless on the same principle that God did not see iniquity in Jacob nor perverseness in Israel (Num. xxiii, 21), grace covering up the wrong. We can more easily understand how David could say of Jonathan, "Thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women" (i, 26), and that leads us to the greatest love [illegible] of God in Christ Jesus to sinners (Rom. v, 8; John iii, 16; I John iii, 16; iv, 10). See David's habit of inquiring of the Lord concerning guidance in all matters of the kingdom (ii, 1; v, 19, 23; also I Sam. xxiii, 2, 4; xxx, 8), reminding us of some of the good advice of his son, Solomon, "In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths" (Prov. iii, 6).

Although David knew that the kingdom was now his, he would not do anything without the Lord's guidance as to when and where. At the Lord's command he went to Hebron with his own and his faithful followers' households, and there the men of Judah anointed him king over the house of Judah. See the story of Hebron in connection with Abraham and Isaac and Caleb, and let us learn to live in fellowship with God. David's words to the men of Jabesh-gilead are for us also, that we may be strong and valiant for God (ii, 7). The intervening chapters in our lesson story tell of the opposition to David by the house of Saul, but that David waxed stronger and stronger and the house of Saul weaker and weaker (iii, 1). In our present conflict it cannot be said that the devil is waxing weaker and weaker, for his greatest effort will be just before his final overthrow, but in due time he will be overthrown, and Jesus Christ shall reign (Ps. lxxii, 11).

After David became king over all Israel it is written that "David went on and grew great (went going and growing—margin), and the Lord God of hosts was with him" (v, 10). That the Lord was with him is repeated again and again in his story (I Sam. xvi, 18; xviii, 12, 14, 28) and reminds us of this blessed assurance to Isaac, Jacob, Moses, Joshua, Gideon and others and of His word to all who go forth in His name as His messengers (Gen. xxvi, 3; xxviii, 15; Ex. iii, 12; Josh. i, 5; Judg. vi, 16; Isa. xli, 10; Hag. ii, 4, 5; Matt. xxviii, 20). The Lord's presence does not insure us freedom from all adversaries, but it does assure us of victory over them. David had to say concerning some with whom he had to deal, "I am this day weak, though anointed king, and these men, the sons of Zeruiah, are too hard for me" (iii, 39). Compare Num. xi, 14; I Kings xix, 7; Ps. xxxv, 10; lxxiii, 16, and then thank God that nothing is too hard for Him (Gen. xviii, 14; Jer. xxxii, 17), and roll all cares and burdens upon Him, and trust Him to carry you and them. All real work for God must be by the Spirit of God, and when He is in control we will fear no mountain nor despise any small things (Zach. iv).

FASHION FADS

FOR THE SMALL GIRL.

Black and White Considered Smart For Child's Garment.

DRESSY COAT.

Much thought and careful planning is expended upon the toilet of the small maid. The pretty coat shown in the illustration is one of the smartest models shown this season.

Black and white checked material was used. A wide belt of the material is finished in front with a sash of soft satin. The collar and cuffs are of embroidered pique, lace trimmed. A chic bonnet of French blue satin has a double frilled brim, soft crown, with trimming of red cherries.

ONTARIO WOMAN'S FORTUNE

Freed From That Weak, Languid, Always Tired Feeling, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Thessalon, Ont.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a blessing to women, and I cannot speak highly enough of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, Thessalon, Ont.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

There are probably hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over 30 years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. If you are sick and need such a medicine, why don't you try it?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Parried.

"And that young man kissed you on the lips! Why didn't you offer him your hand?" said the father.

"Oh, I didn't have to, papa," said the girl. "He's going to ask you for that."

His Temper.

"My dear," said a lady to her husband, "there must be a lot of iron in your system."

"Why do you think so?"

"Because you invariably lose your temper when you get hot!"

RECKLESS SACRIFICES TO SMASH RUSSIANS

Partial Teuton Successes at Great Cost Near Peremysl---Londoners Pessimistic---West Quiet.

London, May 20—Covering their retreat with fierce rear-guard actions and violent counter-attacks, the Russians, their centre menaced, are battling to establish a new line behind the river San beside Peremysl. While the fighting is furious along the entire front from the Baltic to Bukowina it is on the sector about Przemysl that the greatest efforts of the Austro-German armies are concentrated according to advices from the rival capitals. Regardless of the cost in human life the Teuton commanders are hurling their thousands forward. German guns are getting the range of the western forts at Peremysl. It is believed that the Teutons plan the re-capture of this stronghold at all hazards.

Petrograd contented itself last night with the bare statement that the fighting was proceeding furiously along the entire front and that the main object of the Austro-Germans appeared to be in the Peremysl region. The initial attempt of the Teutonic forces to defeat the Russians in Galicia had failed. Petrograd correspondents of London newspapers and military experts here take a gloomy view of the retreat of the Russians in Western Galicia. They say it has undone all the results of the long Carpathian campaign. At the outset the German tactics included an advance on Lemberg by three converging armies. Archduke Eugene in Bukowina was to turn the Russian let, but he has been beaten back into a hasty retrtat.

Russia claims that the Germans have merely undone largely the Muscovite campaign in the Carpathians and added months to the duration of the war. In the Shavli region (Baltic Russia) the fighting is still desperate but no decisive results are reported. On the Upper Dneister and in the Stryj district the Austrians claim to have occupied several Russian positions on the heights north of Samber.

In the western theatre of war heavy mists and violent rains practically put a halt to all activity. The French midnight communique states that no action was fought during the day. Berlin claims that the fighting on the eastern bank of the canal north of Ypres has developed in favor of the Germans and that an English attack south of Neueve Chapelle for which there had been severe artillery preparation was repulsed.

Austria's Last Rally

Petrograd, May 20—Between thirty and thirty-five army corps are taking part in the Austro-German attack in Galicia. Of these at least ten are Germans. Although fighting of a very determined character is taking place practically all along the entire line, it is not yet considered that the battle has become general.

It is still uncertain at what point the enemy intends to deliver a really decisive blow. A Hungarian officer, taken prisoner in a recent battle, says it is general talk in the Austrian army that the present advance is the supreme and final effort to break the military power of Russia. Austrian Poles captured lately say they were hounded into battle by German officers. According to Roumanians taken in the Wisloka region, a very depressed spirit prevails in their section of the Austrian army. The privates would prefer to fight for Russia but are shot by officers on the least sign of deserting.

Poisoned Wells

Northern France, May 20—So confident were the Germans of breaking through at Ypres that they had massed some hundred thousand cavalry between Poel-Capeplle and Roulers, with which they hoped to dash on to Dunkirk and possibly Calais. East of Cuinchy the Germans have been using every species of foul device. There is every reason to believe that the water in the district has been poisoned, British army doctors suspect, with arsenic, and careful analyses are now being made to establish the point.

Expects Peace In Fall.

A Canadian trooper at the front, writing to friends in London, expresses the opinion, which is shared by the majority of his pals, that the end of summer will see the end of the war, and that the trench war will soon be a thing of the past.

"There has been little doing during the past few weeks," he writes, "but I fancy that we shall shortly be on the move.

"I have seen quite a few American Red Cross cars lately, and it is interesting and instructive to see signs on them such as '[illegible] in Boston, U.S.A.' Blood is thicker than water, and no doubt you have heard that the Saxons refuse to fire on our fellows in the trenches. I am filled with amazement and admiration for the British Tommy. I thought that I knew him pretty well, but I did not. He is really wonderful and it is a privilege and honor to do one's bit by his side. What he suffers during the winter, is beyond description. Let us hope that the nation will not forget him after the war."

11 LICENSES CANCELLED

Ontario Board Refuses Renewal in London, Hamilton and Essex

Toronto, May 20—By the latest decisions of the Ontario License Board a number of licenses go. Three London hotel licenses, in addition to the Bank Hotel, refused by the local Board, suffered yesterday as a result of the protests made. Those involved are: The Queen's Park (Orr & Hill), The Brunswick (R. McIntyre), and The Windsor (P. J. McEvoy). Three months' extension was granted in these cases. The Florida (Maurice Riardon), and The Imperial (William Hunter), both of Hamilton, shared a similar fate, while in the case of the Athletic Hotel, in the same cty, three months' extension was also granted, though a final decision will yet be given. Five licenses in Essex county were given three months' extension, these being: The Waverley, Sandwich West; The Country Club, Sandwich West; Wolfe Gangfeller, Sandwich East; Agar House, Sandwich East; Paris House, Tecumseh village, Sandwich East.

Pays 1920 Millions

France Adds 200 Million Dollars for Half Year

Paris, May 20—Minister of Finance Ribot introduced in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday a bill providing for 1,100,000,000 francs ($220,000,000) being an additional appropriation for the first six months of 1915. Parliament already has voted 8,500,000,000 francs ($1,700,000,000) for these appropriations.

Italy Censors Now

New York, May 20—All the news from Italy indicates the Italian censorship has become extremely strict. No mobilization news is allowed to pass the border but reports from Switzerland and elsewhere indicate that it is going rapidly forward. Despatches from London, Paris and The Hague say that in diplomatic circles the belief prevails that Italy's entrance into the war is merely a matter of hours.

Viva Italia ! ! !

Paris, May 20—Gabriel D'Annunzio, the novelist, telegraphs to Paris friends from Rome: "The battle is won. I have just harangued a feverish crowd from the capitol. The tocsin has sounded; cries are rising towards the world's most beautiful sky. I am drunk with joy. You are going to see an Italian miracle after the French miracle."

126 Millions For Guns

Paris, May 20—The official budget figures shows that France expended $126,000,000 on artillery alone during [illegible] Uniforms and camp equipment cost $180,000,000.

Mistrust German Reply

Washington, May 20—Ambassador Gerard yesterday notified the state department that the German note would not be ready for at least a week. The news of the sinking of the British ship Drumeree off Cardiff by a German submarine and the unfavorable comments of the German press on the note of the United States caused a pessimistic feeling here as to the nature of the reply which Germany will make to the demands of the United States.

Roosevelt and Lincoln

Syracuse, N.Y., May 20—Nodding in gratified appreciation Theodore Roosevelt yesterday listened eagerly while his counsel placed the name of Roosevelt beside those of Washington and Lincoln in his last appeal to the jury which will determine whether Mr. Roosevelt libelled William Barnes to the extent of $50,000. Today after Mr. Ivins for Barnes puts Mr. Roosevelt in an entirely different category, the case goes to the jury.

RIVAL PARTIES JOIN TO ENSURE VICTORY

Need is More Munitions and Lloyd-George the One Man, Says Garvin—Asquith's Statement.

London, May 20—The formation of a non-partisan Cabinet for the period of the war is an established fact. The spokesmen for the two great rival parties, Premier Asquith and Andrew Bonar Law, made statements to the House of Commons yesterday confirming the reports of a coalition Ministry. The Prime Minister said that nothing had been definitely arranged, but three things were certain: That the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary will continue in office; that no change is contemplated in the policy of prosecuting the war with all energy, and that the reconstruction of the Cabinet will not mean any surrender by persons or parties of their political purposes.

Man of the Hour

Arguing editorially that the only alternative to coalition is chaos and that a coalition itself will not solve Britain's war problems, I. L. Garyin, editor of the Pall Mall Gazette writes: "To make Lloyd-George either minister for munitions or full minister for war is the only way out for the nation and the only course that can ensure the full success, even, of coalition. Lord Kitchener cannot solve the problem of munitions. A regular military training, no matter how distinguished, is no help towards its solution but is in several ways a disadvantage. The whole nation must be organized to fill the ranks that rapidly overwhelm the Germans with high explosives. To achieve that supreme object, it requires quickness, tenacity, courage, sympathy, shrewdness, imagination. It requires an instinct for taking suggestions from all sides and for enlisting to the utmost the help and services of other men. It requires ruthless indifference to mere seniority or conventional claims of any kind. It requires a seeing eye for a personality worthy of promotion. It requires a frank and genial faculty for getting on with business men and at the same time the power to enlighten and inspire people. There is only one man who can do this work for which our army is waiting and on which victory depends. That man is Lloyd-George."

Mr. Garvin added that Kitchener might if he chose fulfil his old ambition of becoming viceroy of India or else go to the front as generalissimo. If Kitchener stayed at the War Office to recruit men by the magic of his name and organizing power Lloyd-George would not scorn to step down in the official hierarchy and accept a new position as minister of munitions. The vital thing was to get more high explosives. "Hercules is not so young as he once was, and no soldier can do this," asserts Mr. Garvin.

HASTINGS CHAPTER I.O.D.E. JAM AND JELLY SHOWER

(Special Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 19. — The local chapter of the I. O. D. E. held a jam and jelly shower on Saturday afternoon in their rooms. A liberal response was made to the call, and a considerable quantity and variety of the dainties were contributed as a gift for the Canadian boys in the hospitals at the front. As the jars were brought in some were heard to remark, "I hope it will be a treat for somebody's boy who is far from home and mother."

Quite an epidemc of German measles has been going around, and grown-ups as well as children are the victims of their ravages. We are pleased, however, to state that they are not of a virulent type.

A patriotic "at home" was held in the town hall on Friday night and was well attended.

A return game of lacrosse between Norwood and Hastings was played here on Friday afternoon, but the home team are again compelled to admit of defeat as the vistors once more carried off the laurels.

The W. M. S. of the Methodist church held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday last in the church parlor.

Is Out of Danger.

The many friends of Master Virgil Oliver, who was so seriously wounded by a kick from a horse a week ago, will be pleased to know that his physcian pronounces him out of danger, and he is doing as well as can be expected, although still quite weak.

The new verandah around Mr. J. J. English's house has been completed, and is certainly a great improvement to his beautiful residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson and party of Trent Bridge visited last week with Mr. and Mrs. W. Preston.

Mr. R. Walsh took a trip to McKelvie's Island on Tuesday.

Rev. and Mrs. Peer of Norwood visited in Hastings on Saturday.

A Narrow Escape.

A young son of Mr. D. Breckenridge of Westwood met with a serious accident a short time ago, and his escape from death is considered almost miraculous. The boy was about to harness a horse, and unthinkingly tied the halter about its neck. Without any warning, the animal started to run, and dragged the boy for a considerable distance behind it before he was finally extricated from his perilous position. His friends are congratulating him on his fortunate escape with his life. Beyond a good shaking up the lad is not much the worse for his trying experience, which he does not care to repeat.

Miss Pearl McCann of Keene has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. O'Neil.

Mr. Winter Runnels took a trip to Peterborough on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sherwin motored to Peterborough on Thursday.

Miss Belle Humphries of Keene is visiting her brother, Mr. Walter Humphries.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fowlds have received word from their son, Eric, who is on active service at the front, that he is alive and well. This is extremely good news, when so many of the brave boys have fallen in the recent severe engagements.

Mrs. Succee of Lindsay has been visiting her sister, Mrs. G. Kerr.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson shipped quite a consignment of livestock to the city on Thursday last.

Ascension Day was duly observed in some of the local churches by holding divine service.

Copious showers have been falling and in consequence the crops are in the pink of condition.

500 SHELLS AT SMYRNA

Vigorous Operations of Allies Against Smyrna and Gallipoli

Athens, May 20—Seven British ships hurled 500 shells in the latest bombardment of Smyrna. The action commenced Sunday morning and lasted until Monday morning. The forts responded vigorously. The defence of the town suffered great damage which the Turks are endeavoring to repair. The Turks are strengthening the coast defenses with new batteries and trenches in view of an attempted landing. They are also creating new fortifications and laying mines at the entrance to the port. Various positions along the coast have also been bombarded and Turkish encampments dispersed.

An official report from the Dardanelles indicates that the British heavy artillery is getting into position. A howitzer battery on Tuesday smashed a Turkish ammunition train and demolished some entrenchments, besides making a direct hit on one of the Turkish big guns. The report states that every day sees an improvement in the Anglo-French position. The fleet, according to unofficial despatches, has been hammering away at the Kilid Bahr and Nagara forts for several days. It is asserted that Kilid Bahr has been silenced, and that the fall of Nagara is imminent.

Pope Would Exchange

London, May 20—The foreign office made public last evening despatches from Sir H. Howard, British envoy to the Vatican, showing that despite the efforts of the Holy See to effect an exchange of incapacitated civilian prisoners, which had been agreed to by Britain no exchange will be carried out because of German disinclination to hurry such matters.

A RARE OLD DIARY.

Journal of John G. Howard Contains Many Interesting Entries.

"On the morning of the 25th—Christmas Day—I shot a deer and some quail at the rear part of High Park, near Bloor street," say an entry for 1837 in the diary of the late John G. Howard, printed in a quaint old volume which Mr. W. C. Wilkinson, secretary of the Toronto Board of Education, recently unearthed in his library. Mr. Howard, one of the most notable characters in the early history of Toronto, is best remembered as the donor of High Park to the city. He kept a daily journal of the doings of Toronto in the early days, and in 1888 published the gist of it in book form, now a rare volume which [illegible] fortunate as to possess. Mr. Wilkinson has, besides the printed volume, an actual volume of the diary from the year 1849 to 1855 in Mr. Howard's handwriting, and so rich is it in little items of interest, personal as well as historical, that Mr. Wilkinson intends to leave it to the Provincial Archivist.

The item about deer and quail hunting in High Park is not the only one of interest. From the date of his emigration to Canada in 1832 to his death, Mr. Howard's life was full of event. In 1832, with his wife, he set sail on a small ship for Canada, taking eleven weeks and three days from London to York (Toronto).

On landing on Canadian soil somewhere in the gulf, Mr. Howard said:

"At first we walked about with great caution, expecting to see wild beasts and reptiles. I shot a grouse, a dozen snipe, etc., picked a quart of wild gooseberries, and lost about a pint of blood by the mosquitoes and sand flies."

He arrived in Toronto at six in the morning, on Sept. 14, 1832. Mr. Howard was a trained architect and surveyor, and expected to find employment at once from the Canadian Government. He experienced many hardships, however, until his worth was made known, and then he designed most of the houses of Toronto, and later, as City Engineer, erected most of the civic buildings, including Queen Street Asylum, the old courthouse and jail, the old market, and most of the bigger buildings on Front street.

"The Lord Bishop Stewart, of Quebec, called to pay his respects to Mrs. Howard, who was busy washing in one corner of the kitchen. She took her hands out of the wash tub and the bishop shook hands with her."

"In 1833 I built Dr. Widner's cottage on Front street, Thomas Mercer Jones' villa on the corner of York and Front streets, Chewett's Buildings, and the British Coffee House, [illegible]."

"In 1834, the first Mayor, William Lyon Mackenzie, employed me as City Surveyor, and I put down the first 11-foot plank sidepaths on King street."

"On Thursday, Dec. 7th, 1837, I led the right wing of the scouting party up Yonge street to attack the rebels, who had congregated at Montgomery's Tavern."

All this time Mr. Howard was busy putting up scores of residences, shops, and institutional buildings—and taverns.

"In 1842, built two stores on King street, Nos. 103 and 105, with German silver sashes and plate glass. No. 103 was built of the first white brick used in Toronto. I gave the brickmaker £60 for 20,000. They were of clay."

"In 1842 I shot a bald eagle flying over the city."

"In 1844 I gained first prize of £50 for a design of a market house for Kingston, but got only $25, they were so poor."

"In 1853 I was appointed an associate judge, and had the honor of sitting on the bench for four years with Chief Justice Robinson, Judge McLean and Judge Richards."

"MR. SMIFF" IS BURNED OUT

Home of Bobcaygeon Independent is No More

BOBCAYGEON, May 20.—The fire fiend is abroad again. About 6 o'clock yesterday morning fire was noticed to be proceeding from the cellar of the Bobcaygeon Independent printing office and reaching to the roof on the west side. By the time the alarm was given at 6.15 and the fire brigade got to work the whole building was a mass of flames and doomed to destruction. The whole plant, as well as the building, which was a frame structure, including all the files of the Independent since its establishment, was completely destroyed.

From the Independent office the fire spread to Mr. Chas. Bigley's boot repairing shop on the east and to the Chinese laundry on the west, both of which were frame and soon succumbed to the flames. For a time Mr. Bonnell's residence and the fire hall were in great danger, but the fire engine, which worked in fine shape, with the assistance of a line of hose from the pump-house at the canal and from small hand engines saved them.

The Bobcaygeon Independent is known far and wide and has enjoyed a continental reputation. It was first established by Mr. E. D. Hand, now of the Fenelon Falls Gazette, and taken over by Mr. C. R. Stewart about forty years ago, who was later succeeded by his son Mr. Chas. E. Stewart, the present editor. Since the paper was first taken over by Mr. C. R. Stewart the editorship of the paper was associated with a "Mr. Smiff," who it was said wrote the leading articles. He (Mr. Smiff) was a gentleman of a sporty nature, who often retired to the back parlors of the Rockland Hotel for solace and comfort from the outside world.

Mr. Stewart, as editor of the Independent, has always held a high reputation as an able writer. Many times has his paper been quoted by influential journals, both in Canada and the United States. For a local paper, it has enjoyed a splendid circulation, being read all over Canada, the United States, the British Isles, and copies have circulated to the Philippines.

Improving the Room.

A wealthy but miserly baronet was celebrated for having a magnificently decorated dining room, while his viands were very few. A celebrated wit was invited to dine on a certain occasion, and the host asked him if he didn't think the room elegant.

"Yes," was the reply, "but it is not quite to my taste."

"And what change would you make?" asked the host.

"Well," answered the wit, "if this were my house, you know, I would have"—looking at the ceiling—"less gilding and"—here he glanced furtively at the dining table—"more carving."

Ether Wanted Not Author.

A man who did not articulate very clearly was present on the first night of a very badly-written and worse-acted play. A number of friends present, full of compassion, applauded at the end of the play and the man of deficient articulation was heard to call for the author, who came out to bow his thanks.

"What in the world did you yell for the author for?" asked a friend of the man.

"I didn't. You misunderstand. I was yelling for ether."

A Cold and a Coolness.

"Did you ever have a cold," inquired the plain citizen, "that you couldn't get rid of?"

"No," answered the purist. "If I had had a cold I couldn't get rid of I would have it now."

Thus the coolness arose.

Patsy Piccarrili, aged 16, of Jersey City, charged with malicious misconduct, was sentenced to have his hair cropped in court.

OBITUARY

MRS. W. W. ARMSTRONG.

(Campbellford Herald.)

Early Friday morning, following a somewhat long illness, Mrs. W. W. Armstrong passed to her reward at the age of 62 years.

Amelia Kyle was born in Wolfe Island, near Kingston, on April 22nd, 1853. When a young girl, she went to Belleville, where she lived with her uncle, the late Samual Kyle, until her marriage to the late W. W. Armstrong in 1878. In 1881 the family moved from Blairton to Campbellford, where she spent the remainder of her life.

The late Mrs. Armstrong was widely known and highly respected by a large circle of friends. Her generous, unselfish nature won for her many friends among all classes of the community. Early in life she joined the Methodist Church and was always active in Christian work. She was for many years interested in the work of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The deceased is survived by a family of eight, viz; James of Medicine Hat, William J., Mayor of Campbellford, Simon R., City Clerk of Peterborough, Alford of Stettler, Alta.; Charles of the head office staff of the Imperial Life Assurance Co., Toronto, Mrs. H. B. Denike, Dartford, Mrs. G. A. Kingston and Miss Winifred of town.

There remain also two sisters, Mrs. E. J. Warner, of Corona, N.Y.; and Mrs. C. M. Kyle, Pacific Grove, Cal.; and two brothers, David J. of Wolcott, N.Y., and George C. of Harris, Sask.

The floral tributes to the memory of the deceased were numerous and beautiful among them being a pillow from the family, a star from Mrs. Kyle and daughter of Pacific Grove, Cal., wreaths from the mayor and aldermen of the City of Peterborough, the office staff of the Imperial Life Assurance Co., Toronto; the Ladies' Aid and the W.M.S. of the Campbellford Methodist Church, and from the grand children; a cross from Mrs. Gribble and family, Belleville, and an anchor from Mr. A. E. Dawson, Toronto, also flowers wrought in various designs from friends including Mrs. (Rev.) R. B. Denike and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Wood, Mrs. J. Kingston and Mrs. Donnan, Stirling, Mrs. James Waters, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dawson, Peterborough, the Misses Langford, Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Frederick, and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Allan.

The funeral was held on Monday morning, service being held at the home at 11 o'clock by Rev. W. B. Tucker, assisted by Rev. G. A. Brown. The pall-bearers were the three sons, William, Simon and Charles, H. B. Denike, G. A. Kingston and R. J. Allan. The remains were laid to rest in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

THE LATE JOHN MORTON.

The funeral of the late John Morton took place at Cavan this afternoon.

On Saturday last, deceased, who was a highly respected farmer of Cavan, aged 70 years, left via the C. P. R. for Peterborough on a usiness trip. The same night he returned as far as Cavan, where he got off the train, and remained in the village hostelry all night. Sunday morning he started out to walk to his home, a distance of three miles, but he never reached his destination alive.

Tuesday morning, as a C. P. R. train was passing along in the above neighborhood the crew noticed an elderly man sitting up against the fence, and from appearances he was dead. Investigation was made and their fears were only too true.

In due time friends were notified as well as a doctor, and an examination was made. However, it appears that, having become exhausted from his walk, he sat down to rest, and his weakened condition brought about heart failure.

The deceased was well known and had for years farmed in the neighborhood. He was married and survived by a grown-up family.

An inquest was held Tuesday, the jury deciding that death was due to heart failure, there being no marks of any kind on the body that would indicate foul play.

TWO MORE DAYS TO WORK FOR SPECIAL PRIZE BALLOT

Candidates Should not Leave a Stone Unturned in the Way of Vote-Getting This Week — Saturday Will be a Big Day and Some Extra Effort Right Now May Mean the Difference Between Success and Failure — Race is Close in all Districts

200,000 free votes, and the honor of doing the best work in your district, are the rewards awaiting four young ladies on Saturday night. Will YOU be the winner? Will YOU show your friends that you deserve their support? Will YOU have the satisfaction of knowing that you have made great headway towards winning the Review's great international tour?

The 200,000 votes will be awarded to the candidate in each district who turns in the most money on subscriptions between the dates May 10th and May 22nd, inclusive.

This is the last week of the vote coupons which have been appearing in the paper regularly. No coupons will be published after Saturday, and no coupons will be accepted after Monday.

In this age of keen competition, it is the business man or woman who takes advantage of the opportunities others overlook who makes an outstanding success. Is there anybody on your street, in your section of the city, who has been overlooked in the contest canvass? Anybody out of town of whom you have heard? A call at the house on the corner may put you on the track of half a dozen more subscriptions. If you don't secure anything, you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have tried.

Miss Maude Bogue still holds top place in today's publication of votes, In district No. 2 Miss Marion Gorman is in top place.

There is splendid competition in district No. 3. Miss Boate still maintains the lead.

In district No. 4 Miss Lola Kempt of Keene jumps into the lead today. Miss Kempt has done remarkable work during the last few weeks and will make a big effort to win the special votes this week.

The contest will close June 5th. Will you be the winner of a free trip or will one of your opponents know the joy of victory?

STAGE SET IN ITALY

Eleventh Hour Austrian Offer Rejected and Parliament Meets

Rome, May 20—To-day the eyes of the world are turned on Rome. The Government realizes the fact, and is determined that the spectacle presented by the re-assembling of Parliament shall be one of harmony and exalted patriotism. The Government's decision has been definitely taken, and Parliament to-day will sanction that decision. Every precaution has been taken to insure order. The proceedings will be simple and not witout precedent. As in the last war with Austria, the Government will introduce a bill consisting of one article in which will be embodied all the requirements for the prosecution of the war.

Austria made a last offer to avert the inevitable. Her proposals at the eleventh hour were submitted to the Cabinet yesterday. By unanimous vote the Cabinet rejected them. They are inadequate. [illegible] Count Cadorne, Chief of the [illegible] General Staff, conferred with [illegible] at Vincenza, on the Austrian border. Italy yesterday declared martial law on her railway lines The King yesterday granted a long audience with Gabriele D'Annunzio, the poet, who has become the popular champion of war. D'Annunzio left enthusiastic that the King was "the man that Italy needs in this supreme moment."

Amount Destroyed by Emden.

During her career of activity the Emden destroyed British ships valued at $5,600,000 without their cargoes and sank a Russian cruiser and a French destroyer in the harbor of Penang, a British possession in the Straits Settlements.

PETERBOROUGH ASKED TO CONTRIBUTE LESS TO Y.M.C.A. THAN MOST OTHER CITIES

$8000 is Required to Clear the Institution of Debet and Provide for Continuance of the Work in Interest of Young Men

The directors of the Young Men's Christian Association desire to lay before the citizens of Peterborough information which they believe affects the best interest of the city, and of the Association.

The Y.M.C.A. is a public institution. Its benefits to a community are so great as to be universally admitted. Peterborough is fortunate to have as large and well managed an Association as our city possesses. There are thousands of men today whose lives have been influenced for good by our local Association. They are willing to bear testimony to the value of the work it accomplishes.

Like other institutions our local Association has felt the effect of the war. Because our Association is doing a big work, having a daily attendance during the winter season of over 300 young men and boys, and conducting from 70 to 100 class sessions each week, the expense of maintaining such an institution at its best efficiency is large. Naturally also an institution which is conducted for the benefit of the public can hardly be expected to be self sustaining. Each year public spirited citizens who have realized the value of the work done by this orfianization have subscribed sums sufficient to enable us to continue the work. For some years the money contributed in this way has averaged about $3,500 a year. It speaks well for the liberality and public spirit of our private citizens who have each year contributed this amount.

For several years previous to 1912 our local Association was handicapped by a debt. In 1912 the officers put forth a special effort and succeeded in wiping out this debt and completed the year free from all liabilities. During 1913 a small deficit was incurred. The debtors planned to wipe this out during the annual canvass which it was proposed to hold early in June, 1914. It was intended by means of this canvass also to raise whatever sum would be necessary to provide for the needs of the Association for last year. Unfortunately, the Ontario provincial election interfered with this canvass. The directors, therefore, thought it advisable under the circumstances to continue the canvass in the fall. On the first of August the European war commenced, when it became apparent that owing to the conditions created by the war many families of soldiers and others might suffer want, the directors of the Association decided to forego their proposed canvass giving way thereby, to the Patriotic Fund campaign. The result was that the Association commenced this year with a debt of $3,000. This year the Board of directors was confronted with the necessity of raising not only a sufficient sum to meet this deficit, but to provide for the proper conduct of the work of the Association during the current year. A number of improvements to the buildings are absolutely necessary. These include repairs to the roof, to the boiler, and the provision of necessary equipment. In order that the Association may take proper care of its work and provide for the funds it is necessary that a sum of approximately $8,000 shall be raised this year.

A Comparison With Other Cities.

The citizens of Peterborough have been asked to contribute less to their Y.M.C.A. than have the citizens of most other cities in Canada. While citizens of other cities have contributed the funds with which to erect their Y.M.C.A. buildings the Peterborough Association building came as a gift. The building and the adjoining piece of ground was given to the city free by the late Mrs. Nicholls. The only expense the citizens of Peterborough have incurred has been to assist in its maintenance. This work hitherto has fallen on the shoulders of a comparatively few citizens. The value of the investment in the building and ground is approximately $41,000. Orillia which has a population of only 7,650, has invested in its Y.M.C.A. and lot $58,000; Port Arthur with a population of 14,000 has invested $50,000; Guelph with a population of 18,000 has invested $68,000; Galt with a population of only 12,000 has invested $70,000; Sault Ste. Marie with a population of 13,000 has an investment of $80,000; Fort William with a population of 25,000 has an investment of $125,000 while Brant[illegible] Association of $162,000. This shows that the citizens of Peterborough have been asked to do practically nothing for our local Y.C.M.A. compared with the investment made in similar work in other cities of approximately the same population. It will be noted that the figures given below show that Peterborough falls far behind most of the other Associations mentioned.

Economically Managed.

The directors of the Association have made every possible effort to conduct our local Association on an economical basis without impairing its efficiency. That this is the case may be gathered from the following figures:—

To conduct the work of our Association has cost us of late years approximately $7,900 a year. Orillia with approximately one-third of the population of Peterborough spends $7,500 a year on its Association; Galt spends $8,283; Cobalt with a population of 6,000 spends $10,731; Port Arthur with a population of 14,000 spends $9,026; Sault Ste. Marie $12,000; Fort William $19,220, and Brantford in 1913 spent $22,000. Had we had the funds we might have greatly increased the efficiency and usefulness of our local Association to the community. The possibility of making the local Association more nearly self sustaining as well as the practicability of rearranging the space in the building so as to increase the efficiency of the different departments of the Association, have recently been given careful consideration. The present building was erected many years ago. There is much waste space in connection with it. Various plans for utilizing more of this space and thereby increasing the usefulness of the Association have been examined.

At present the boys' department has to be conducted on the second floor, the game rooms and parlor with the secretary's office are on the main floor and the bowling alleys, locker room, plunge and bath are in the basement. With the small staff available it has been found impossible to give the building under these conditions proper supervision. The need therefore of consolidating the work to better advantage so that more of the activities can be supervised from the secretary's office has been apparent for some time. The recreation rooms of the Association are not nearly sufficient for the requirements. There is great need also for more dormitories, dressing rooms and lockers. The baths and plunge need to be renovated.

More Dormitories Required.

The Association is constantly in receipt of applications from young men for dormitary accommodation. Could this be provided it would be much to increase the revenue of the Association and thereby help to make it more nearly self sustaining. Our Association has 12 dormitories. Inquiries we have made reveal the fact that the Galt Association has 27 dormitories; Guelph 36, Orillia 37, Port Arthur and Sault Ste. Marie 45 each, Brantford 75 and Fort William 86. After several weeks consideration the directors have decided unanimously in favor of a plan which it is believed would go far to meet the needs of the Association. By building a small addition to the south of the building and carrying it up two stories it would enable us to increase the dormintory accommodation by 13 rooms or to a total of 25. It would furnish accommodation also for the caretaker and his wife in the building, it would bring the boys' department to the main floor where they could easily be supervised from the secretary's office, it would bring the large recreation room on the ground floor in touch with the bowling alleys where one attendant during the winter months could supervise the game rooms, bowling alleys, locker room and plunge. This plan also would give increased locker space for the boys and for the men and it has been estimated, would increase the receipts of the Association by approximately $2,000 a year.

Three Alternatives.

The directors of the Association therefore are faced with the following alternatives:—

First: Of greatly reducing the efficiency of the Association by making further cuts in its expenditures so that the Association may be made more nearly self-sustaining. This would necessitate our Association being conducted in a manner which would not reflect credit on Peterborough.

Second: Of asking the citizens of Peterborough to co-operate in raising $8,000 to meet absolutely necessary expenditures. This would enable us to conduct the work of the Association much as at present, but needed improvements could not be made, nor would the efficiency and earning powers of the Association be increased.

Third: Of asking the citizens to raise an additional $6,000 or $7,000 which would enable us to make the many improvements mentioned and at the same time increase the earning powers of the Association by $2,000 a year as well as increase its efficiency in every department. This after all, is the most important consideration.

We have confidence in the citizens of Peterborough. We feel that our fellow-citizens do not desire the work of our Association to be handicapped. While it is true that these are war times these conditions have greatly increased the possibilities for good of our Association which has been the headquarters for many members of the expeditionary forces who have mobilized here and which is the centre where men out of work congregate and receive help and encouragement while looking for new positions.

We lay these facts before the citizens of Peterborough anticipating that we will not count in vain on receiving the public's support and co-operation for which we now appeal. We leave these matters, therefore, with the citizens of Peterborough.

Signed,

G. A. Gillespie, President.
John J. Howden, Vice-Pres.
J. J. Turner, Treasurer.

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

The Daily Review Fund affords splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

No Use for Locks

A land of almost utopian simplicity is described by a writer in the London Field, who a few years ago started on foot from Innsbruck and went by way of Landeck to the Stelvio pass and back across the Tyrol to Welschnofen. One of the joys of a walking trip in the Tyrol, he says, lies in the friendship of these exceedingly simple, honorable and religious peasants.

They leave their agricultural implements lying all night in the field, covered with a heavy cloth, for the dew is as dishonest among these holy mountains as elsewhere. They have no locks on their barns. They lift a cross with a cry for prayers and the remembrance of God at every quarter of a mile. These crosses mark the spot where some poor soul has died during the wild storms of winter. How dreadful those tempests are can be judged from the fact that we found six such homely wooden monuments, not one more than ten years old, within half a mile.

At Longarone, which is over the Italian border, we discovered that our chamber, the best in the inn, had its lock screwed on topsy turvy, so that it could not be fastened. Out in the hallway I bellowed for Maria. She came, all surprise. "But the honorable herr cannot have another bedroom with a better lock, for that's the only lock in the hotel, the only one in the village." The landlord bought it because the foreigners insisted, but he had never seen a lock before. If the honorable herr will wait until tomorrow [illegible] knows the honorable travelers are here; every one knows that they go a long trip and must need much money, so no one could be wicked enough to attempt to deprive the honorable herr and his honorable frau of a thing they need so much.

Not Accommodating.

"Why did you quit dealing with Squills, the druggist?"

"He wasn't accommodating," replied the girl addressed. "The other day I phoned for him to send around a two cent stamp and he refused."—Kansas City Journal.

Woolwich Once a Roman Cemetery.

Woolwich arsenal only dates from 1716, but Woolwich's military connections go further back. Batteries were erected there against the Dutch in 1667, and as early as the reign of Henry VII. the spot had begun to be associated with the navy. And even earlier Woolwich was well known, for the Roman Watling street crossed Shooter's hill, and the site of the arsenal was once a Roman cemetery.—London Spectator.

Origin of Alchemy

Alchemy was originally based upon the idea that material substances were base and that by a series of tortures and eliminations the good or noble part could be separated from the base and that finally the purest of all substances, gold, would be the consummation.—Exchange.

SPORTING NEWS

Londoners, Hams and Guelph Were Winners

LONDON, Ont., May 20. — London won the first game of the Canadian League series from Brantford yesterday in a battle which was introduced by the customary street parade and march-past at the park. The players, led by a motor truck load of bandsmen, were carried through the streets in citizens' automobiles, and performed afterwards in weather that was better suited for Rugby.

"Rube" Deneau, whose ambition it has been since his departure from London to trim the home folks, did some real fencing with "Doc" Reisling, and there was some fine sport. The score:

		R.	H.	E.
Brantford	000000130—	4	6	1
London	01003010x—	5	8	2

Batteries — Warner and Lacroix; Hamond and Danford.

Umpire—Walsh.

HAMILTON BEAT ST. THOMAS.

ST. THOMAS, May 20. — Hamilton won the opening game of the Canadian League here yesterday by a 4-1 score. The weather was cold, but the game was fast and exciting all through. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
St. Thomas	000000010—	1	6	2
Hamilton	100010020x—	4	6	0

Batteries — Hughey and Harris; Dougherty and Pembroke.

Umpire—Halligan.

SENATORS LOST TO LEAFS.

GUELPH, May 20. — The Canadian League was opened here yesterday under the most favorable auspices that have ever greeted the baseball game in this city. The day was all that could be desired, and several thousand took advantage of the oportunity to size up the quality of the rival teams. Ottawa, though always dangerous, did not shine up well, probably because the local Leafs played better ball and because Kirley was the opponent pitcher, and he had Shaughnessy's squad at his mercy. The Ottawa team were rather nervous, and several costly misplays made the going hard for Peterson, the twirler. The result was a shutout in a game full of interest. The score was 4 to 0 in Guelph's favor. The score:

		R.	H.	E.
Guelph	00301000x—	4	10	0
Ottawa	000000000—	0	7	1

Batteries — Kirley and Harkins; Peterson and Lage.

Umpire—Bedford.

SAME OLD SCHETTLER

"Louie" Leads in Central and Has Won Five Straights

Former Canadian Leaguers, now playing in the Central, continue to do well. Louie Schettler, of the Youngstown club, is the leading twirler of the series with five straight wins to his credit. In the first five games Louie was touched up for 27 hits and nine runs were made off him. Schettler twirled for Peterborough last season and was one of the best in the Canadian League. Johnson, the Wheeling pitcher, has four straight wins to his credit. Close leads the Erie pitchers with three games won out of five starts. Bobbie Heck has not yet won a game for Erie and Brown, who has been released, also failed to come across with a victory.

MR. F. CRESSMAN NEW PRESIDENT

A meeting of the Peterborough Tennis Club was held last night in the Y.M.C.A. parlors. Mr. H. Meyers, the secretary, gave a report showing a balance of about four dollars from last year. The report reviewed a very satisfactory season in which all expenses had been provided for. The war has made serious inroads on the club, two members, Mr. Boone and Mr. Chalmers being reported killed in action. Others are on active service and removals have also occasioned some loss. It was decided to undertake the financial obligations again this year and playing on the courts at Brock St. will commence immediately. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

Hon. President—Dr. A. W. McPherson.
President—Mr. Fred Cressman.
Vice-President—Mr. J. Brightman.
Secretary—Mr. Ross Dobbin.
Treasurer—Mr. H. Meyers.

Committee to arrange schedule, tournaments, etc., composed of above officers and Mr. Weller.

Ladies will be admitted to the club on the same terms as last year—fee two dollars and playing up till 3 [illegible]

The club is in need of some new members and anyone desiring to join should communicate with some of the officers or members. The members expressed gratification at the manner in which Mr. Meyers had handled the affairs of the club and the prospects this year are encouraging. Under the direction of the energetic officers elected a good year is anticipated.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the young ladies of the Church of the Sacred Heart who play tennis was held recently and the following officers elected:—

Hon. Pres.—Rev. J. V. McAuley.
President—Miss Julia McNicholl.
Secretary—Miss Annie Fagan.
Treasurer—Miss Loretto Milloy.

The courts are in excellent condition and a very successful season is anticipated.

CAN'T STOP THE KING EDWARDS

Made Their Sixth Win in Game With King George Team

In a junior school league game at the King George school grounds last evening the King Edwards defeated the homesters by 15 to 3. It was the sixth straight win for the team from the south.

Batteries — King George: Hagerman and Anderson; King Edward: Taylor and Blondin.

On Central School grounds, in the Junior series of the Public School Baseball League, the Queen Mary team defeated the Centrals by a score of 10 to 1. The latter part of the game was much better than the former as no score whatever was made after the third innings. Cavanah and Bergoine were the battery for the Centrals during the most of the game while Patterson and Pogue represented the Queen Mary team. Mr. Fred McNeely made a very satisfactory umpire.

South Central defeated Queen Alexandra on the former's grounds by a score of 16-1. Good fielding was the feature of the game. The batteries were:—

Queen Alexandra—Graham, Armstrong and Ecubichon.

South Central—Fuller and Montgomery. B. Taylor, the usual referee, sent all away satisfied.

BASEBALL

The results Wednesday were:

National: New York 5, Chicago 1; Brooklyn 2, Cincinnati 0; St. Louis 3, Philadelphia 0; Pittsburg 2, Boston 0.

American: Chicago 9, Philadelphia 7; Detroit 3, New York 1; Cleveland 5, Boston 2.

Federal: Newark 7, Pittsburg 3. All other games postponed.

International: Richmond 8, Toronto 4; Rochester 9, Jersey City 8; Buffalo 9, Providence 5; Newark 6, Montreal 0.

Canadian: Guelph 4, Ottawa 0; London 5, Brantford 4; Hamilton 4, St. Thomas 1.

MEDALS GO TO H. COMPANY

"H" Company, captained by Walter Jackson, won the Indoor Baseball League at the Armouries. In the final game against "B" Company the score was 17 to 4. The pennant and individual medals will be presented next Tuesday night. The batteries were: "H" Co., Hardill and Darling, "B" Co., Cranfield and Cranfield.

MITCHELL WITH WINNIPEG.

OTTAWA, May 20. — Word has been received here that Jack Mitchell, the flashy little shortstop of last year's champion team, is now playing ball in Winnipeg in the Northern League. Western sport writers appear to look favorably upon the youngster and it looks as though Mitchell is performing in the same style he did last year. Mitchell, it will be remembered, was bought by the Senators for a cool $1,000 last season when the club was going badly. Indianapolis drafted him at the end of the season so that the Ottawas lost $500 on the deal.

JOE BYRNE IS BATTING .500

Despite the Fact That "Home Run" Baker is in Same League

A letter has been received from Joe Byrne the "Don't Worry Joe" who covered the difficult sack for the Petes for three seasons. The letter is written from Roxborough, Pa., where the former Canadian Leaguer has been living all winter. He says: "Baseball looks very bad down here as far as league ball is concerned, but independent ball is good. I am playing with the Chester club of the Delaware County League and am going good. In fact, I have been very fortunate and am leading the league in batting, with an even .500. I am captain of the team and am playing shortstop. The Chester club plays on Saturdays only and holidays. It is not too bad, but I would prefer playing every day. 'Home Run' Baker is in this league.

Byrne intimates that he would like to rejoin the Canadian League.

Internment Popular

Alien Enemies Have Lost Their Fear of Detention Camps.

There are many husky Germans and Austrians in Canada to-day who are mighty glad that war came. Work is none too plentiful in Canada this winter and what there is is hard work — railway construction snow shovelling and all that. In the big Canadian cities there are long bread lines, and the charities organizations are overtaxed.

Through all this the alien enemy is getting three square meals a day, warm clothes and living quarters and it doesn't cost him a cent.

American Consul Bradley of Montreal, who, as the neutral representative there, handles the mail from the prisoners at the internment camps, says that he has not only seen no complaints, but that many of the letters are written to friends in Montreal urging them to enlist in the army of prisoners and join them in one of the several camps.

This applies particularly to Austrians. The comparatively few Germans who are included are inclined to be more sullen of disposition and at times resentful of the confinement, though even from these there has been no word of complaint about the treatment.

The Germans and Austrians, soon after the alien enemies' regulations were put in force, were all kept at Kingston, but after a while trouble developed which culminated in a fight. Then the internment department decided to separate th prisoners, sending the Austrians to Petewawa, where they were engaged in brush cutting and road making until the snow came.

Later the Government established a camp in the Abitibi district known as Spirit Lake camp, exclusively for Austrians, and at the present time there are about 300 Austrians at work there clearing the ground, erecting huts and stores and laying out what will be a miniature town.

At the outset of hostilities the alien enemies feared that internment meant real imprisonment, and to avoid this they declared to the registrar that they had work and were able to support themselves and their families during the winter, and they were accordingly placed on parole. But after a few weeks their resources came to an end, they lost their work and could not get employment. A petition was drawn up by the leaders among the Austrians in Montreal in which expression was given to the desire of the Austrians to go to the Spirit Lake internment camp and work under the supervision of the guards. This petition was circulated among the Austrians and within a week, 1,300 Austrian workingmen voluntarily signed the petition.

Two things have contributed to this desire among the Austrians to get away—the fact that the Government supplies them with sheepskin coats, thick winter underwear, lumbermen's socks, overshoes and haversacks for their belongings, feeds them regularly and pays them 25 cents a day for their labor in addition to housing them.

The guards have no trouble with them and the [illegible] emies for Montr[illegible] quests every day from batches of [illegible] to be sent away, and they are being complied with as quickly as possible.

As the Case May Be.

SMYTH—THOMPSON.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson, in South Monaghan, on Wednesday, May 12th, 1915, when their eldest daughter Clara E. was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas L. Smyth of South Monaghan.

At High Noon, to the strains of a pretty wedding march, artistically played by Miss Tressa Thompson, the bride entered the spacious drawing room leaning on the arm of her father who presented her for marriage, and was attended by Miss Daisy Thistlewaite of Peterborough, while Mr. Sidney Smyth ably supported the groom, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. T. Wickett of Fraserville in the presence of a few of the most immediate relatives and friends.

After all had partaken of a sumptuous repast the happy couple left amid showers of best wishes, for Toronto, Owen Sound and points west, and on their return they will reside in the township of South Monaghan.

Their many friends will wish them long life and every prosperity.

GREGSON—SMITH.

Pte. Ernest Gregson of the 39th Battalion, Belleville, was married on Saturday, May 15, to Miss Mary Smith of Toronto, where the ceremony took place.

The bride is well known in this city. Before enlisting the groom held a position with the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company.

SOME QUERIES FOR RED CROSS ARE ANSWERED

The local secretary of the Canadian Red Cross Society, in reply to the many questions of those interested, publishes the following:

Dear Miss Davidson:

I am glad to be able to answer your inquiries. The Canadian Red Cross Society exists to look after the sick and wounded Canadian soldiers. If the Canadian Red Cross Society did not do this, the British Red Cross would do it, but the Canadian Red Cross Society relieves the British Red Cross Society of this bit of its work.

The Red Cross supplies the needs of all Canadian military hospitals at the front, including those whose names you probably know, such as Le Touquet, Le Treport, and the others doing no less useful work, but moving with the army, and so having no special name or address.

These are all supplied from the depots of the Canadian Red Cross Society in France, where we have motor lorries on purpose to distribute goods to all the Canadian hospitals.

Shorncliffe Hospital is a little different from the others, because it was started by the Canadians resident in England. It is a piece of Red Cross Work, but they started doing it, and have always worked most amicably in relation to the Canadian Red Cross Society. We are constantly forwarding supplies to them, and have given them a donation of $5000 and a motor ambulance, so that you can certainly send to us any supplies for Shorncliffe, as we are glad to forward them at any time.

We can forward supplies to Shorncliffe and to Clivedon Hospital in England, but we cannot forward designated supplies to any Canadian hospital in France or outside England, as the difficulties of transportation are so great that Col. Hodgetts has cabled this morning to say that he cannot undertake delivery of any more addressed parcels.

This simply means that the Canadian hospitals in France will all be put on an equal footing and able to draw supplies from our depots at Boulogne, Le Treport and elsewhere.

The Montreal Red Cross is a branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society. We are the headquarters for Canada, and Montreal is the headquarters of the Quebec provincial branch. No Ontario branch could affiliate with Montreal, otherwise their things are reckoned as Quebec supplies, and, moreover, they do not reach England any quicker, as we have a headquarters warehouse in Montreal (besides the Montreal branch), and our supplies go by every ship that will take them.

Yours sincerely,
ADELAIDE PLUMTREE,
Corresponding Sec'.

A letter received by The Review from M. A. McGregor, of Winnipeg, expresses a desire on the part of the writer to help in the erection of a monument, in memory of the late Major Bennett and other Peterborough soldiers. Mr. McGregor would donate $20 to the fund.

MILITARY NEWS

On Monday, May 24th, the 15th Battalion of Belleville is holding a field day in the railroad city for the members of the 39th Battalion. The members of the 39th will be "at home" to their friends all day and it is understood many Peterborough people will visit them. It will probably be the last opportunity local friends will have to see the boys as they depart soon for the front.

Cyril Giroux, who resigned his position with the William Hamilton Co. and went to Belleville with the object of enlisting, is now attired in khaki. He also wears a wrist watch which he received from the office staff of the Hamilton Company.

THE VISITORS STAYED.

Canadian Officer at Front Tells of Some Voluntary Prisoners.

The following very interesting letters have been received by The Toronto Star Weekly from a Canadian officer now at the front with the British reservists. The letters are addressed from "Signal Service R.E., 3rd Army Headquarters, British Expeditionary Force, France," and commence with a valuable hint to Canadians writing to friends at the front.

"In order to save delay in the delivery of letters I would suggest that letters intended for British reservists from Canada serving with the Imperial army be addressed: British Expeditionary Force; those for soldiers serving with the Canadian contingent, Canadian Expeditionary Force. Several of my letters have only been addressed Expeditionary Force, and these have been sent to Salisbury Plain and have been marked 'Not with the Canadian Forces. Try Imperial,' and this has caused six weeks' travel from time of leaving Toronto."

"The German artillery have kept us busy sending over Christmas boxes for the past few days, very little damage being done beyond the destroying of a few houses in a town that is already in ruins. The German gunners seem to like trying to demolish our hospitals. They have not been very successful up to the present, whether it is due to bad markmanship or Providence I cannot say.

"Aeroplanes have been very valuable during this campaign. If you are anywhere within range of German guns and one of their aeroplanes is about dropping lights or smoke signals, it is a safe bet to expect a few shells in that direction tout de suite.

"Our aviators have done splendid work. If a German gets over our lines and there are any of our fellows around he seldom gets back. Too much praise cannot be given to the men who command the air as they run enormous risks to carry out their duties. I saw a plane come down the other day. The airman was quite jovial, and later we found no less than 10 bullet holes in the machine. Some kind friend sent me a copy of your paper and I noticed that the 2nd Contingent are going in for aeroplanes. I was pleased to see this, as the aeroplane wireless has proved very valuable. Some of our fellows were much amused over the mobilization confab. It is not policy for me to add further.

"Christmas Day passed off very quietly in this district. On the night of the 24th heavy cannonading was resorted to by the enemy to no effect. On the 23rd the Germans tried to break through our lines on seven different occasions, but were repulsed by our infantry with the aid of the Indians. Two English soldiers left their trenches and walked over to the German trenches to wish the Germans a Merry Christmas. The trenches at this particular point were not more than 100 yards apart. They carried their message and returned to our lines without harm. Two of the German infantry came over to our trenches to return the compliment. These two must have been envious of the dinner Tommy was expecting to have, as they absolutely refused to return to their own lines. I saw these two men last night, and if looks count for anything they were not disappointed in their anticipation of Tommy's generosity. They, with many others, prefer to finish the war behind our lines, where they are assured of square treatment."

FOR HUMANITY'S SAKE HELP THE RED CROSS WORK

Care of Doctors and Nurses Warmly Praised in Letters of Wounded Soldiers

The great offensive of the Allies is only just beginning and the movement will necessarily be an expensive one, not only as regards the loss of life but we may also expect a continuous stream of wounded who will be carried to the hospitals flying the Red Cross flag.

It is only right that we should look things in the fact and be prepared for heavy losses before the great cause for which our soldiers and our Empire is fighting is finally accomplished.

Lives can only be saved when these wounded men are attended to promptly, and when the doctors and nurses have every medical appliance at their disposal. Every letter that has come from a wounded soldier has warmly sounded the praises of doctors and nurses for their increasing and skilful care of those in their charge.

Peterborough has done well in the past and will continue to do so until the roar of cannon and the clash of arms is stilled.

Our men "Saved the Situation," how those words thrill us, and make us resolve that when Canadians can play their part so nobly and unselfishly on the battle line, that we at home will also play our part to the limit of our ability.

Men cannot content themselves waiting for the news from the front, women will not fold their hands and weep. Men must be up and doing, and women must go on making bandages and other supplies even though the tears may sometimes drop while they work.

So in the name of humanity, we ask every man and woman in Peterborough and the vicinity who understands and can appreciate the true meaning of honor, justice, and freedom to give generously and ungrudgingly to that noble organization the Red Cross Society, which knows no other aim or object than the relief of suffering, when given the opportunity on Saturday.

Cave of the Nativity.

In Bethlehem of Judea is a cave or grotto said to have been the birthplace of Christ. Over it is the beautiful Church of the Nativity.

The cave is about twenty feet below the level of the church and is reached by means of two spiral staircases. It is lined with Italian marble and lighted with many lamps. A silver star marks the precise spot at which Christ is said to have been born. Sixteen lamps of precious metal shed their soft glow upon the shrine, while golden censors send up incense continually.

ENEMY'S LOSSES IN TENS OF THOUSANDS PETROGRAD SAYS

GERMANS GAINED FOOTING ONLY TO BE DRIVEN BACK

French Went Beyond Their Original Positions and Took Some Prisoners -- British Make Progress North of La Bassee--Artillery Exhanges Throughout the Night

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 21. — (This afternoon's official statement): "North of Ypres and to the east of the Yser Canal, the enemy at an early hour last night started an attack against our trenches. He was successful in the beginning in gaining a footing, but an immediate counter attack resulted in his complete expulsion.

"At the same time we won ground beyond our original positions. We took 120 prisoners.

"Further south British troops made some progress at a point north of La Bassee.

"At Notre Dame de Lorette and on the front between Souchez and Neuville St. Vaast, there were artillery exchanges all of last night.

"Nothing is reported from the remainder of the front."

PTE. C. H. ADAMS KILLED WAS WITH MACHINE GUNS

Son of G.T.R. Conductor Adams Met Death at Langemarck

A cloud of grief rests today over the home of Mrs. C. H. Adams, 417 Pearl avenue, who received a wire this morning to the effect that her son, Pte. Charles H. Adams, was killed in the action at Langemarck. He was with the machine gun section of the 10th Battalion and was an electrical engineer. He enlisted in Winnipeg with an engineering corps, but was transferred to the machine gun section shortly after. His father is Conductor C. H. Adams, of the Toronto and Port Hope train.

Mrs. Adams told a reporter that she had been waiting anxiously for a letter, as before the battle her son had written her regularly, but since then not a word had been heard of him.

Pte. Adams was just twenty-four, and was a particularly bright and clever young man. He was educated in the public and high schools of Lindsay, and later graduated from Woodstock College. He went to Winnipeg as an electrical engineer, but when the war broke out enlisted for service with the engineers' corps from that metropolis. Some time after he was transferred to the machine gun section and attached to the 10th Battalion which was engaged in the battle of Langemarck and lost so severely.

Besides his parents there is one Brother, Wm. H. Adams, and two sisters, Evelyn and Elsie, living at home.

MADE STOP FOR REFRESHMENTS

Manager and Chief Comedian of Show Were Pinched

Seven weeks of vaudeville in local option districts proved too much for a show troupe who blew into the city this morning. The manager and his chief comedian commenced a tour of hotels, but alas the invigorating beverages which they sampled so freely increased the comedian's comedy to a degree that made him really funny. However too late they found out that their hilarity looked like disorderly conduct to the police, and detectives Newhall and Meagher strolled to the Grand Trunk station and interrupted the little show without warning. The manager Arthur Noble, and the funny man were taken to the lockup, while the other two were permitted to take the Lakefield train for their destination. The manager has $2.60 on him and the comedian nothing but some matches and smokes. They will be given trial this afternoon if possible in order that they might get the 5.30 train to Lakefield in time for their show tonight.

Empire Day was observed in all the schools of the city this afternoon and members of the Board of Education took part. Addresses were made at the schools.

GENEVA, May 21. — Rome reports say that the ultimatum from Italy to Austria may be expected today, and a declaration of war before the end of the week. The Austrian ambassador is expected to leave Rome tomorrow.

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL.

The Swiss government is taking every step possible to maintain neutrality, and will order a general mobilization from the day Italy enters the war.

The Rome Tribune says that Spain will probably be asked to protect the interests of Italians in Germany after war is declared.

LONDON, May 21. — In a despatch from Rome, the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company says:

Premier Salandra this morning obtained the Royal signature to a decree suspending diplomatic immunity of the Austrian and German ambassadors to the Vatican, who leave tomorrow."

ROME, May 21.—A Rome despatch says the Messaggero declares the council of ministers will meet after a session of the senate and probably will draft a form of declaration of war against Austria-Hungary.

ROME, May 21.—Premier Salandra introduced in the Senate today a bill passed by the chamber of deputies yesterday, conferring upon the government plenary powers in regard to the conduct of war. It is predicted the senate will unanimously approve the bill.

Athens newspapers, says the correspondent, say the British authorities have increased to ten thousand dollars the reward offered for information leading to the destruction of German submarines in the Mediterranean.

C.P.R. TIMETABLE

Change in Time of Departure of Trains From Local Station

A general change of time on the C. P. R. goes into effect on Sunday, May 30th, and, for the information of the public, Mr. James Skinner, the local C. P. R. passenger agent, has supplied the revised timetable as it affects Peterborough:

Train No. 36 for Montreal and intermediate points, which now leaves at 12.13 p.m., will leave at 11.27 a.m., and make connections with all points east.

The local train, No. 602, now running to Havelock, will go through to Tweed, leaving Peterborough at 8.10 p.m., the same time as at present.

Train No. 24, now leaving Peterborough at 12.15 a.m., for Montreal, will leave at 12.10.

Train No. 34, for Ottawa, now leaving at 1.18 a.m., will leave at 1.38 a.m.

On the westbound service, train No. 33, for Toronto and all points south and west, now leaving at 4.24 a.m., will leave at 5.09 a.m.

Train No. 23, for North Toronto, will leave at the same time as at present, 5.57 a.m.

The local, No. 601, for Toronto and intermediate points, will leave at 7.50 a.m. as at present.

Train No. 605, for Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Port McNicoll, now leaving at 9.15 a.m., will leave at 9.55 a.m.

Train No. 35, for Toronto, Chicago and New York, now leaving at 4.23 p.m., wil leave at 3.47 p.m.

Train No. 621 for North Toronto and intermediate points, will leave at 6.30 p.m., the same as at present.

Trains 35 and 36 will have buffet parlor car attached and will make connection for all points east of Montreal and west of Toronto. There will be no Sunday afternoon trains.

FIVE MEN RECOVER FROM MENINGITIS

Very encouraging news was received this morning from the spinal meningitis cases, says the Belleville Intelligencer. For some time there have been seven cases in the local hospital, and for the last couple of days five of these patients have been able to be walking about, and today they will be allowed passes and leave. Some of them have been given a month's leave of absence. All are apparently eager to get back into their respective companies. The physical condition of these men is excellent, considering the illness they have just passed through. These men are Ptes. McDinnick, Beard, Milberry, Scruver and Murray.

There has been no outbreak of any new cases for some time, and no carriers have been discovered for the last ten days. Apparently this epidemic is completely obliterated.

Out of the eighty carriers who were at one time at the exhibition camp, the number has dwindled down to thirty.

There has not been one case of spinal meningitis amongst those who were found to be carriers.

A $1,600 cluster diamond ring was kicked around in rubbish at Frederick, Md., before Mrs. Evard Kepner got it back.

German Forces Used Between Two and Three Million Shells --- In Abandoning Their Guns They Left Several Hundred.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, May 21. — An official statement referring to the recent fighting in the Carpathians during the past three weeks, says the enemy's losses on the four quietest days averaged ten thousand daily, and on the other seventeen days were much heavier. During the severest fighting, averaging several tens of thousands daily, their losses included forty thousand prisoners taken by the Russians, and amounted to one-third or one-quarter of their total strength. The Austro-German forces expended between two and three million shells during this period and abandoned on their positions several hundred guns.

LONDON, May 21. — The Times' Petrograd correspondent says that the victorious advance of the Austro-German army from the line of Dunajek has been checked. All attempts of the enemy to advance in the Stry region, apparently for an attempt on Lemberg, have failed.

KNOCKED IRON PLATE FROM PTE. WOOD'S BOOT

Battle Did Not Seem so Terrible When the Excitement Was up

A letter on the fierce battle of Langemarck has been received by Mrs. J. C. Wood, 777 Water Street, from her son Maitland, who went through the fight unscathed. Private Wood enlisted in Brantford, Ont.

The letter is as follows:—

"I suppose that you will have all heard about our battle by the time you receive this.

I do not feel like giving any details just now. It did not seem so very terrible while we were in it but the next few days when we found out our losses we saw that it was quite a big affair.

There were men killed and wounded on either side but they hit me only in the heel of my boot and knocked the iron plate off. We had bullets coming (it seemed to me) from all directions. They used all kinds of artillery on us. They had shrapnel, Jack Johnsons, Coal Boxes, Whistling Willies, etc. They used gas at first but we didn't get very much of it.

The night before the battle, as we [illegible] ments had [illegible] into Hawley Grant. His ambulance section was right near us and he had been watching us all day. He was very glad to see me and I was glad to see him.

I have not had a chance to visit the Peterborough boys, so I don't know how they are.

I was surprised to see how well our fellows behaved. It was certainly grand to see them going ahead, never faltering. I don't suppose we will have another battle like that. I hope not. I am quite well."

REV. FATHER CANNING.

The death of Rev. Father H. J. Canning, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Toronto, which occurred yesterday at Toronto, occasioned deep regret among his many Peterborough friends. The late Father Canning had been in Peterborough attending ecclesiastical functions, the last time being at the consecration of His Lordship Bishop O'Brien.

$100 FROM CITY FOR 39th FUND

Similar Amount Donated by the Cheese Board

The City Council has decided to make a grant of $100 to the fund the 39th Battalion is endeavoring to raise with which a field kitchen will be purchased. The city made a like donation for the 2nd Battalion. The Peterborough Cheese Board has also donated $100 to the kitchen for the boys at Belleville.

HELP KITCHENER WITH MUNITIONS

CITY COUNCIL HAS DECIDED

To Pave Charlotte Street West, This Summer

Charlotte Street to be paved from Park Street to the Boundary Road was one of the items passed by the Board of Works yesterday as the Board bumped over the rough roads on the annual inspection tour.

The Radial Railway Co. is ready to proceed with the Charlotte Street extension but naturally, feels it is unwise to start work this summer, with the council deciding to pave the street next summer.

The company desired that the city should go on with the paving this summer and the proposed extensions would be carried out. That section of Charlotte St. was not on the list but many of the citizens were anxious to have the paved road and street car facilities, hence the action of the Board at yesterday's meeting.

The Board went over all the city and various minor improvements were decided upon.

LONDON, May 21. — John Redmond, Nationalist leader, refused a post in the new Cabinet.

SERGT. ARTHUR F. FIELD HAS SEVEN BULLET WOUNDS

Seek Skilled Labor to Work in England

LONDON, May 21. — George N. Barnes, Labor M. P. and secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, and W. Wyndham, permanent official of the Labor Evchange Department of the Board of Trade, have gone to Canada by the Adriatic to make inquiries concerning suitable skilled labor for the war munitions factories here. The Board of Trade understands that there is some unemployment even among skilled artisans in Canada, and if this is so, the men will be engaged and transportation will be provided. The deputation will proceed to Ottawa to confer with Sir George E. Foster, and will also visit large employers of labor.

They Had to Cut the Uniform off Me He Writes

A letter received by the sisters of Sergt. A. F. Field, who is in a German hospital, gives the decided impression that the Germans made a big effort to stop for all time, the big officer of the Second Battalion.

"I am very well looked after," the letter, dated April 28, reads. "I have between my shoulder and thigh some seven bullet wounds, which I hope will soon heal, for not a vital spot was struck. I shall write again, but am very weak and anything can happen. They had to cut the uniform off me, and I lost much blood. My head is clear today, the first time since I was wounded, perhaps six days ago."

Sergt. Field was with the Victoria Rifles for three years, until removing to Peterborough, where he was accountant in the Bank of Montreal.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MAY 21, 1915

LIBERAL IMPERIAL POLICY.

LESS THAN six months before Germany plunged the world into the present terrible war, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said, referring to the relations between Great Britain and Germany:

"And from that time to this moment, the relations between the two countries, which were cordial in the month of September last [1913], have been absolutely friendly. The light has been let in on that question, and we know now how much the country and the Empire and the civilized world have been deceived upon that question of so-called emergency."

Bear in mind that the meaning of this quotation is not altered by the context. Bear in mind that the leader of the Liberal party in Canada said these words less than six months before Germany was at Britain's throat. He and his followers were absolutely blind, so far as Germany was concerned, and, had affairs been left to men who would not, or could not, see, Canada would have been in a most precarious and disgraceful position. The war against Germany has demonstrated beyond dispute how incompetent and dangerous was the imperial policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He it was who inspired in the Senate the unprecedented action of that body in throwing out the Naval Aid Bill of the Borden Government. This regrettable and disgraceful procedure prevented Canada from rendering any effective naval aid to the Mother Country during this exacting war. It raised constitutional questions, regarding the Upper Chamber, of a very grave character, but, above all, it created a false impression in Germany that was one of the causes leading that nation into a frightful challenging of British power. One of the greatest newspapers in Germany, the Hamburg Nachrichten, on June 5th, 1913, contained the following:

"Whatever may be decided upon later, the actual decision of the Candian Senate means at any rate a heavy moral and material loss for the defence of the Empire, for Mr Borden's promise has been foolishly counted on. His offer made an enormous impression in the whole world. Mr. Churchill pointed out this fact especially in the well-known memorandum of the Admiralty. This impression will not only be destroyed, but people everywhere will obtain the conviction that England CANNOT DEPEND UPON MUCH HELP FROM HER COLONIES. 'By rivals and by enemies,' says the Morning Post today, 'the decision will be eagerly welcomed. By friends it will be regarded as ominous. The impression must inevitably be created that the solidarity of the Empire is a myth, and that those powers which would like to see the overthrow of British naval supremacy need not be discouraged in their efforts by the thought that their challenge would be met by the united resources of the Mother Country, and of every one of the daughter states.'"

Such action as that inspired by Sir Wilfrid Laurier led Germany to question British power. It has cost thousands of lives and billions of money; yet these same blind partizans, who made a tool of the Senate, are now hounding the Borden Government in every conceivable way; are challenging Conservatives in the House to an election, and, through the Liberal press, are crying out against an election. They are doing this to hamper the Government, to interfere with Canada's efforts in defence of the Empire, in order to create a situation at Ottawa that will lead to a change of government. They do not care whether this change comes with or without an election, so long as it comes. The policy of the Liberal leaders has been a traitorous policy for some time, in that it subordinates the interests of Canada and the Empire, and of Civilization itself, to the advantage of a discredited minority in [illegible] of Canada. Those who have been opposed to an election should know that the Liberal leaders at Ottawa are more anxious for office than they are for dreadnoughts, or battalions on the firing line.

IT IS A MISTAKE for people returning from Berlin or Frankfort to say that the war is not noticeable in Germany. There are many signs of it, apart from the large buildings everywhere converted into military hospitals and the number of invalided and maimed soldiers. There is, for instance, much less life, at any rate, in the smaller towns, and in at least one fairly large industrial town the trams are not running owing to there being so little demand for them. In the fields it is almost exclusively women and children who are preparing the ground for the summer crops. The big army contracts have been given by the government entirely to large firms in large centres of population, and not to smaller firms, which is another of the reasons why the effects of the war are much more noticeable in the smaller German towns than in Berlin and other chief cities.

CANADA'S BIG WAR ORDERS.

AS A RESULT of the war orders which have been placed in the hands of manufacturers and producers, in the Dominion of Canada, during the past nine months, the Montreal Journal of Commerce estimates that approximately $425,000,000 have been or are being spent in Canada by the belligerent nations of Europe. Of this stupendous total, over $234,000,000 have come into the country through the orders for shells which have been given by the British Imperial and the Russian Imperial Governmnets, through their buying agents in this country, and by private solicitation by Canadian manufacturers.

With the coming of spring, the opening of navigation, the greater amount of money coming into the country, and the prospect of bumper crops throughout the Dominion, hard times have almost entirely disappeared, and the feeling in nearly all lines of business is more optimistic and cheerful. Not only is the feeling better, but trade is actually on the increase, as indicated by the letters from prominent manufacturers, exporters and traders, recently published in these pages.

Every available manufacturing establishment in the country is at the present time working as hard as it can on shells or shell parts, according to its capabilities, and at the present time ten thousand shells are leaving the country daily. By July, daily shipments will total at least forty thousand shells. This is comparable with the shipments on the first shell order Canadians received, which averaged some five hundred shells a day, and wages have been greatly enhanced.

In other words, from now until the end of the war, Canada's war contracts will be limited only by her productive capacity.

WHEN POTSDAM CAME TO PETERBOROUGH

THE EXAMINER hardly knows where it is at. From its own statement, it was not consulted as to the big meeting on the market square, and naturally feels a bit sore. It confesses that it has not been able to find out very much about the affair, in spite of the energetic inquiries of the city editor and the superhuman efforts of three reporters. Just because the Review happened to get an early inkling of the proposed public protest and tried to show it up in its true light, the Examiner does not know whether to blame the Review for it or not. Well, we can be of some assistance to our evening contemporary, beset on all sides by the mists of doubt. The Review had nothing to do with the calling of the big blast on the market square. It threw cold water on the scheme from the very first, with the result that none of the Grit protesters, who were supposed to be forthcoming, made any appearance. The whole affair appeared to the Review to be engineered by some Grits who think the affairs of the whole Empire should be subservient to the dictates of every little party clique that starts to make a noise. Fortunately, this little exhibition of Potsdam Kaiserism was treated as it deserved.

LAMENT.

(Virna Sheard.)

Here in my garden, where the tulips grow,
I walk alone;
Dim are my eyes with tears, my feet are slow,
My heart is stone.
Though all the April earth again for me
New sweetness yields,
It matters not: only the dead I see
On battlefields.

Only the dead I see — and strangely bright
Their faces shine,
As though the God of Glory in the night
Had made them fine.
Peace for the victors! Stoop, my soul, to touch
Their tunics' hem:
'Tis those they loved who need tears overmuch—
O, weep for them!

Opinions From Other Newspapers

Lord Kitchener's Speech.

(Montreal Star.)

Lord Kitchener made three announcements in his compact and comprehensive speech yesterday in the Lords. First, that the Allies would fight asphyxiating gases with similar methods, it being impossible to grant the enemy the permanent enjoyment of so great a military advantage. Second, that the Canadians fought gallantly through "an ordeal to try the qualities of the finest army in the world," and defended their positions with great tenacity in spite of the inhuman methods employed against them. Third, that the British Government needs and now calls for 300,000 more men.

The last is the most important for the moment. The additional men must appear. If precedent holds, the British Isles will do their share, but the Canadians must come forward even more numerously than in the past. We have shown that our undrilled recruits make the finest soldiers imaginable and hold their lines like veterans. It is our duty to send more of them. We must not permit our heroes, who have already laid down their lives, to have made that supreme sacrifice in vain.

The Case of the Prisoners.

(London News and Leader.)

There is no direction in which their infamy has touched a lower depth than in their treatment of prisoners, especially British prisoners. With a people guilty of this kind of vengeance on the helpless it will be long before anything like comradeship can be restored. But in the meantime, it is for us to think what line of policy we should pursue in the matter. We cannot answer brutality and starvation in kind. One of the conditions of any peace should be that those, whether on land or sea, who have outraged the laws of war and of humanity, shall be tried as common criminals. Is it not better to leave the punishment of the submarine murderers to the civil power?

A Difference in Fleets.

(New York Evening Post.)

Great Britain can view with equanimity the loss of older battleships around the Dardanelles, providing results are obtained. On the other hand, the recent story of the German high seas fleet cruising the North Sea in search of the British fleet must be received with skepticism, for it would mean that the Kaiser's fleet was out to challenge an enemy probably three times as strong.

A Mob Tendency.

(Montreal Mail.)

The mob at Victoria appears to have made straight for a German brewery. Such is the traditional policy of mobs, and affords a faithful idea of their character. Organized government in Germany is displaying mob impulses; but organized government in this country, as in Great Britain, will not fail to combat them so long as law and order remain inviolate under the British flag.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Fresh to strong south easterly winds, showery. Saturday, northwesterly winds, mostly fair and warmer.

THAT MEETING.

Editor Review,

Sir,—The dodgers got out to call that now celebrated "meeting" on the market square to let people get off for good and all the hot air they have been storing up and shooting out against governments for presuming to exercise their own commonsense in consulting the people or not as they see fit, had nothing on them so far as I saw about Liberals. It was addressed to "all those, etc." Now then why do the Liberal politicians and The Examiner hurry up to say "It wasn't me." Because as you said in your paper yesterday, sir, it has been the policy of the Liberal "party mongers" here and otherwhere to say every nasty thing they could about the Borden Government and when that government said "Oh, well we'll see what the people have got to say about it" then the party-mongers cry out "Oh! no. This is no time for an election." The "meeting" was so ridiculous that it showed everybody how inconsistent these talkers are. Would they go to the square and criticize a government that is managing the war for the Empire and therefore of the greatest interest and concern to us viz., the British Government? No. Though that government is at present just as much our government as the government at Ottawa would anybody criticize it the way they have been spitting and crucifying our government at Ottawa in war time? No. They dared not do it. Let them come to their senses and let the Borden Government use its own discretion and consult the people if it wants to. Hasnt it a right to do so?

Yours,
READER.

A BURLESQUE.

Editor Review,

Sir,—It is a burlesque on municipal management to put down "permanent" pavement, and now to tear it up within a year for its being defective. Will history repeat itself next year? Suck crazy patch-work as may be seen in our streets with its grotesque outlines may commend itself to the artistic tastes of our aesthetic council, but it does n[illegible]peal to the common sense of a [illegible]ness man. It has been remar[illegible] by many that the material used in the sidewalks, if used in the streets would last twice as long and be cheaper, and, vice versa, the material used in the streets, would be better adapted for the sidewalks owing to its resiliance and thus affording more ease and comfort for the feet of our pedestrians and the saving of shoe leather.

Yours truly,
PEDESTRIAN.

FIVE ONTARIO FATALITIES

Father Canning of Toronto Dies After Short Illness

Toronto, May 21—Many fatalities in this city and province were reported yesterday. Rev. Father H. J. Canning, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, is dead after a short illness. Wm. Cunningham, 141 Essex avenue was killed by a train northwest of the city. Thomas H. Taylor, 254 Simcoe street committed suicide because he was out of work.

James Walker of Uxbridge, aged eighty-five, was found drowned in a pond. Alex. Robb, a farmer near Ilderton, was fatally injured when his horses, attached to a disc harrow, ran away.

Poison the World

London, May 21—The Germans are installing pipe lines in Alsace, which are connected with generating stations 20 to 30 miles behind the front, in general preparation to loose vast volumes of poisonous gases when the French attempt to advance.

CRIPPLED BY RHEUMATISM

434 N.Y. Ave., Whiting, Ind. Jan. 20th.

"Will you please send me a box of Gin Pills? When I sent for the last box, I was all crippled up with Rheumatism and my face was so badly swollen, that I could hardly see out of my eyes, but after taking about six of the pills, I felt some better; and after a few days, I had no more pain. I have recommended Gin Pills to some of my friends who are troubled in the same way. I never intend to be without them as I have tried so many other pills and got no results.

Mrs. ED. DEAN.

IDLERS AND THIRSTY ONES VISIT COURT

Vagrants Are Told to Use Speed in Leaving Again

In Police Court today Albert Frederick was charged with non-support and also with being idle and disorderly. Frederick protested he could not work, having been under the doctor's care.

Chief Thompson put the kink in his story however when he said Frederick would not work because his brother-in-law had offered him jobs which were refused. He was remanded a week.

Was a Little Full.

George Scott, charged with vagrancy failed to satisfy a police officer's questions last night. He guessed he was a little full all right. Scott was a one-armed man. He said he was trying to make a living selling a few laces. Toronto was his home and he came here yesterday from Montreal in search of work.

"We'll discharge you, but if we catch you again we'll send you some place where you have to work for a living," said the Magistrate.

"I'm willing to work if I could get it," he replied.

Was a Suspicious Character.

Arthur Quigley faced the same charge. He was not guilty he said. His home was in Toronto. P. C. McArthur arrested him last night loafing round the C.P.R. station. Three or four parties had complained about him as a suspicious character. He declared he had been only in the city one hour.

"Can you get out in an hour?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well you're discharged."

He Could Get Out Quick.

William Nichols was the next vag. He protested his innocence. He had come from Montreal. He happened to be discussing with Quigley the chances for work when the police came along and gathered him in.

"How long would it take you to get out?" asked the Magistrate.

"Just as long as it took me to come in." He got the chance.

George Sidey pleaded guilty to being a drunk in a public place.

"My gracious," said His Worship, "I thought times were too hard to buy whiskey."

He must pay $2 in ten days.

Indulged in a Dry Place.

Leonard Walsh, a farm laborer, went into Head's temperance hotel and went to bed, taking some booze with him for company. When aroused by the proprietor's wife he used insulting language and later he threatened to trim the proprietor himself.

He pleaded guilty this morning and appeared really penitent. He didn't remember what he had said but he was sorry.

He drew a penalty of $2 and costs or $5.75.

Neighbors Fell Out.

Two neighbors were in Police Court today to settle an alleged case of assault. One was a benedict and the other a bachelor. The former charged the single man with grabbing him by the neck and striking him but there was no evidence to show any striking and what evidence was adduced turned the affair more into a fiasco than a fight, as the disagreement arose over a hat. Ex-Mayor Rush was magistrate today and he strongly urged the two to shake hands and live in friendlier terms. The unmarried youth was perfectly willing but the complainant didn't think that satisfactory at first, but finally the younger shoved out his hand and shook on it and the complainant had to be satisfied. He stipulated however that the younger man must not bother him again.

Many Items of Business Are Dealt With Including Magistrate Dumble's Request

Dr. M. A. Morrison and P. J. Kidd waited on the Utilities Commission in session last evening and asked that in relaying the main on Hunter St. between Belmont Avenue and Park St. the work be done so as not to injure the lawns on the north side of the street. The Commission decided that the Superintendent be instructed to lay an eight inch main on that part of Hunter St. and to leave the present four inch main in place.

Repairs Cost $487.70.

Superintendent Dobbin reported that the cost of repairs to the dam was $487.70.

To Separate Circuits.

The manager was instructed to do the necessary work to separate the electric power and light circuit in the East Ward at an estimated cost of $250.

Letter Laid Over.

A letter from C. H. Huffman and Sons asking that a new service be laid at No. 400 Downie St. was laid over till the new main is laid on Hunter St.

Request Not Granted.

D. W. Dumble's request for a refund of $16 on his water rates, an amount which he was fined for not paying his water account when due, was not granted.

The following petitions for mains were received last night by the Utilities Commission: Robinson St. from Rogers St. to No. 115 Robinson St., estimated cost $266, estimated revenue $36.35. The superintendent was instructed to lay this main.

Rogers St. from Sophia St. to No. 260 Rogers St., estimated cost $417.10, estimated revenue $18.97. Not granted.

Munroe Avenue from Concession St. to Knox St., estimated cost $842.50, estimated revenue $55.16. Main not granted.

It was decided that the following accounts be paid:—

TO RELIEVE KITCHENER

Much Conferring Yesterday, Law and Mrs. Pankhurst Criticize

London, May 21—The National Government which is to guide the British Empire for the duration of the war is now in process of formation. The leaders of the political parties were in conference throughout yesterday arranging details. The Prime Minister conferred with Arthur Balfour, who is said to be slated to become First Lord of the Admiralty; Bonar Law, Lord Lansdowne, Sir Edward Grey, David Lloyd-George, and Home Secretary McKenna. It appears certain that there will be a new civil head of the Admiralty and War Office, respectively, and possibly changes in the professional heads as well.

Earl Kitchener, it is generally agreed, has too much to do, and some of his duties will be shifted to other shoulders. Lloyd-George and Bonar Law are about equally favored for civil head of the War Office, and A. J. Balfour is mentioned for a similar position in the Admiralty.

"I hope one of the first acts of the Coalition Government will be to declare martial law and mobilize and actually enlist both men and women for the service of the country," said Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the militant suffragists last night.

Bonar Law, Opposition leader, who is slated for high office, said yesterday: "In my judgment the greatest mistake the Government has made has been its apparent failure to organize until recently the business energy of the nation. Even yet the mistake is not wholly remedied, for Mr. Handel Booth is the only man of business experience and training on the committee appointed for accelerating the supply of munitions."

WOEFUL PLIGHT OF THE TEUTONS

Butchered in Beer Garden or Shot if Try to Surrender

Paris, May 21—An "Eye-witness" account describes sanguinary fighting at Steenstraate and Hetzas, in which, in one case, a body of Germans who sought refuge in the ruins of a beer garden were followed into the cellar and butchered. In the two towns over 2,000 German bodies were found after the fighting had finished. The report says: "Around Hetzas the Germans preferred to do their bombarding with asphyxiating shells. Our soldiers put on their masks, which [illegible] and when the infantry debouches, they are ready with rifles and hand grenades. Several more hundred bodies have been added to those that were left from the first day's fighting. As a zouave said: 'It is disgusting work, but we must walk over them.' On the 15th we heard the sound of a firing squad in the German trenches, but none of the bullets came our way. We have since confirmed the fact that a company was brought up quickly to make an example of some German marine fusiliers who wanted to surrender. Thirty fusiliers were shot in their trenches. That same day we saw an officer fire a revolver at a man whose hands were raised."

10,000 MEN FOR OVERSEAS

Canadians on Firing Line Now 40,000.

Ottawa, May 21—The call has gone forth for ten thousand more troops from Canada for service overseas. These will be in addition to the third division, from which re-inforcements have already been drawn by companies from the various battalions, which battalions are again busy recruiting up to strength. It is estimated that there are now 60,000 Canadian soldiers across the water, 40,000 of whom are on the firing line, not allowing for casualties. Whether it is intended to place a third full division in the field or not has not been announced. Reports received here of the speed of recruiting are exceedingly satisfactory, there being no abatement anywhere of the enlistment.

Niagara Camp Dry

Toronto, May 21—The Provincial Board of License Commissioners has decided that Niagara-on-the-Lake shall be dry between June 1 and October 31, during the military camp season. Five hotels, including the famous Queen's Royal, are affected.

Kingston, May 21—Joseph Smith, a naturalized German of this city, received word yesterday that his son Frank was wounded at Langemarck. Smith has two other sons enlisted, one of whom died this week. Having given all his boys, the father now desires to join.

Sold Lives Dearly

Ottawa, May 21—Authentic information received by the Militia Department from German sources shows that while the Canadians at the Battle of Langemarck had over six thousand casualties, the loss they inflicted upon the enemy was even more terrible. The Germans had 12,000 killed and more than 20,000 wounded.

TURK FORTS ARE SILENCED

Franco-British Forces Advance to Surround Krithia Fortress

Athens, May 21—All the important Turkish batteries on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles are reported to have been silenced by the Anglo-British fleet. Advices from Mitylene confirm the destruction of the forts at Kilid Bahr. The bombardment of the Nagara forts continues day and night. The town of Maidos has been occupied after a violent action. French troops have been landed at Sedd-el-Bahr, at the southern tip of the Gallipoli Peninsula, and on the European side of the Dardanelles, and are now fighting around the Turkish positions at Krithia. The French troops are being supported by the French fleet in the bay. British forces disembarking at Gaba Tepe are also advancing on Krithia to surround the Turks.

Carnegie is Derided

Paris, May 21—Georges Clemenceau, the idol of France, writes: "I have received from the United States a pretty note signed by important names wherein, under the aegis of Carnegie, I am told that this war will eventually result in considerable progress along the road to universal peace. I believe they are all mistaken."

COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS.

[illegible] splendid opportunity of sending comforts to boys fighting, wounded in defence of home.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded or killed and our hearts ache as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

SOME SPECIAL BUILDINGS OF THE PANAMA EXPOSITION

Fairy Gardens and Brilliant Illuminations Are Marvellous Features of the Great Exposition

(By Our Special Correspondent.)

SAN FRANCISCO May 19. — Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who, with his wife and daughter, has been visiting the Exposition recently, expressed great appreciation of the wondrous achievement. It gave him great pleasure also to hear so much praise of the Canadian building. In fact, on California Development Board Day there was a discussion of the subject of a permanent California exhibit along the line of Canada's Exposition display, which has attracted so much favorable comment, the feeling being that California and its possibilities should be brought before every community in the world as far as possible. A resolution will be brought before the legislature with a request for an appropriation of sufficient size to carry the project through in every detail. Canada is much to be congratulated on the profound impression she has made and the forces she has set in motion.

As president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was also very interested in "Little Canada," as the Canadian Pacific building is called to distinguish it from the larger one. It is a handsome structure situated on the Marina, where the C. P. R., through its department of natural resources, has installed a large number of fine exhibits showing life in Canada. A model of the Bassano dam, the second largest in the world — the Assuan dam on the Nile alone being larger — attracts much attention. Situated eighty miles east of Calgary, Alberta, it irrigates half a million acres, part of a three-million irrigation block. The scheme was first thought of twenty years ago, and developed by Mr. J. S. Dennis, assistant to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy. The actual work was commenced on it ten years ago, and has just been completed. The model is a perfect reproduction in miniature.

A favorite exhibit is "The evolution of a loaf." It is contained in a case divided into eight sections as follows: 1. The virgin prairie. 2. The first year's breaking. 3. Ready for seeding. 4. Growing grain. 5. The harvest field. 6. The golden grain. 7. The Flour. 8. The loaf. Above the case is depicted a Canadian wheat field, with a tiny electric train busily running back and forth. Samples also are given of grain awarded the first prize in competition with the world.

This beautiful little building has a separate moving picture hall, where one may see the magnificent scenery of the Canadian Rockies and all features of farm life. In the main hall a model farm is shown, as a sample of the many in Canada used to supply the dining cars of the railroad. Then there is a hunter's camp scene on a large scale, presenting specimens of wild animals to be found within walking distance of the Rockies, and Quebec is brought to mind by an exquisite model of the Chateau Frontenac by day and by night, the electric lighting making the latter especially pretty.

Canadians view with pride — and naturally so — a handsome silver cup on exhibition. This was awarded to the Canadian Pacific Railway for the best display of grain ever made in America, at the exhibit of natural resources of the American Land and Irrigation Exposition, New York, December, 1912. We pass on to minerals next, and specimens of coal from "the largest coal areas in the world," which are to be found in Alberta and British Columbia. Something else surprises us—we find that the figures of the annual production of the B. C. fisheries amount to $15,000,000.

Nova Scotia has a department all its own. A pretty work, the background of which portrays Annapolis Valley, the land of Evangeline, to which tourists are directed by the following words: "Distant, secluded, still the little village of Grand Pre lay in the fruitful valley." Within the nook is a very sweet Nova Scotian lassie dressed in the garb of Longfellow's heroine, and as we chat with her at her spinning wheel and note the charm of her, the poet's words recur to us, "Homeward serenely she walked with God's benediction [illegible] Kentville, King's County, but there is a light, somehow, imprisoned in her face, that makes one think it must be God's land, too, that land from whence she comes.

We Californians are grateful to Nova Scotia for the architect of our $2,000,000 Exposition building (by that we mean, of course, the California building) is Mr. Thomas Burditt, of Middleton, Annapolis County. That is saying a great deal when we remember it is the largest state building ever erected at any exposition in history, and that it houses the exhibits of fifty-eight counties, in addition to a ballroom and all the rooms necessary for the entertainment of guests in the host building. Mr. Burditt has covered himself with honor and his success deserves acknowledgment.

Another feather in the cap of Nova Scotia that we must call attention to is the fact that a large proportion of those delicious-looking apples in the Canadian building were gathered by Inspector Vroom, also of Middleton, Annapolis County. We are not surprised, for many years ago we went to an apple congress in London, where the Nova Scotian specimens carried off the first prize, the people fairly raving over their exquisite coloring.

Before leaving the subject of the Canadian Pacific building, we would like to give testimony to the courtesy of Mr. E. R. Bruce, of Calgary, director of exhibits, and Mr. L. O. Armstrong, of Montreal, general publicity lecturer, to whom we feel indebted for kindness received.

The Great Northern has a most interesting building next to that of the C. P. R., and it points to the fact that 17,000 people entered homesteads in Montana last year, in addition to the thousands who took up land elsewhere along their right of way. Glacier Park was opened four years ago, and in their motion picture hall its matchless scenery is portrayed, as well as numerous farming features. The transparencies in color presented in this building are said to be the finest ever made, and cost $15,000. Another striking feature is the lighting, electric globes with tepee shades being used, in keeping with the Indian atmosphere that prevails in the Great Northern. Each day performances of dancing are given by six Indian chiefs of the Blackfeet tribe, and three of their tepees are part of the exhibit. These warriors, accompanied by two squaws, are here by special permission of the United States department of Interior, as delegates from their tribe, to gather instructive information for the benefit of their people, 15,000 of whom live in the Glacier National Park. Chief Many Tail Feathers is 92 years old but hale and hearty. Chief Eagle Calf, the interpreter, in an interesting talk that we had with him, showed great intelligence and expressed himself in favor of the newer and more civilized life as much better for his race than the former savage life.

The Grand Trunk Railway also has a building near the other two, where excellent motion pictures are given of some of the most stupendous scenery, and where there are some fine exhibits. By midsummer of this year this line will open up a veritable wonderland, one travelling through some of the world's grandest scenery including a view of Mount Robson (13,700 feet), the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and this despite the fact that from the Atlantic to the Pacific it is an almost level line. The Grand Trunk certainly promises big things for central and western Canada, a wild and romantic region but little known in certain sections.

The Southern Pacific Railway has a palatial building at the upper end of the Avenue of Progress. Its distinguishing feature is a division called "The Glade," where one may see in miniature a number of the scenic wonders along its line — part painting with real trees and plants added, the fragrant pine making it a delightfully refreshing spot. Thus one gets glimpses of Lake Tahoe's vivid blue, of Mossbrae Falls—like dripping emeralds; of Mt. Rubidoux, which overlooks the orange groves of Riverside, and where the Easter morning service is held at the foot of a cross erected on the summit. Farther on the mighty chasm of Yosemite is reached, and then the placid bay of Avalon, Catalina Island, the famous Alamo of San Antonio, Santa Barbara Mission — the Mecca of every tourist; Crater Lake, majestic Mt. Shasta in virgin white, the lovely blossom-laden Santa Clara Valley, and the funny little homes of the cliff dwellers in Arizona. Motion pictures also are given of the scenic beauties of the S. P., George Wharton James, a writer of international fame, being one of the lecturers. Organ recitals, too, are given at intervals, and we must not forget to state that the ticket office contains the world's largest photograph, a composite picture which took 500 small ones to make.

One of the most popular buildings at the Exposition is that of the Young Women's Christian Association, its architect a woman. Its reasonable cafeteria is so generally patronized that there is a veritable bread-line at every meal. "A well-bred line," as an eastern tourist facetiously remarked, but all the same a bread-line, where friend meets friend. The excellently planned building includes rest rooms with a trained nurse in attendance, an assembly hall [illegible] are given of Y. W. C. A. work, and where vesper service is held on Sunday, and verandahs where people may watch the lighting of the tower of jewels. There is also a building for the army and navy men of the Y. M. C. A. What a wonderful movement the Association has been! We grew up as a child in London next door to the founder, Mr. George Williams, afterwards knighted by Queen Victoria; a simple, sincere, earnest man, whose godliness was not a mantle to be donned and doffed at will, but part of his daily life. His wife was his help-meet in all good works, and his enduring monument is this wonderful institution that is known throughout the world, and which, founded on prayer, contains within itself the elements of life, even life everlasting.

Of great service to the Exposition is the emergency hospital, maintained within the gates, under the United States health service. It is equipped in a thoroughly up-to-date manner, all details of equipment being classed as working exhibits and subject to award, different firms in various parts of the country supplying them. The X-ray outfit is valued at $3000, the woodwork mahogany mounted in gold. There are two motor ambulances in attendance, a corps of doctors and nurses, and a very complete medical library. Here everyone is examined and treated free of charge who is taken ill within the gates, and it is not possible to estimate the boon this has been in hundreds of cases. We write of it with gratitude.

There is also another hospital maintained within the Exposition grounds for the U. S. Marines who have a camp near the Presidio entrance (the military headquarters). The doctor is not there at night, but the men understand first-aid treatment so can take care of emergency patients till he arrives. The equipment is first-class and there are several beds in readiness which, owing to our good climate and the excellent discipline and health of the men, seem always empty — and happily so.

Turning to the external features of the Exposition, there are found to be five main courts connected with each other by three lesser ones. The Court of the Universe is the most magnificent of them all, being built on a scale of magnitude that is truly colossal. It is more than seven hundred feet square and is a blending of the Occident and Orient. In its centre is a sunken garden flanked by the candle fountains two striking purveyors of falling water taking that form, entitled respectively "The Rising" and "The Setting Sun." A wealth of decorative sculpture makes this court a very imposing feature and yet nine people out of ten will agree that the loveliest spot in the whole Exposition is the Court of Abundance. "Frozen Music" is a term that has been applied to it without exaggeration. In its delicately beautiful tracery it reminds one of Belgium in its days of glory; of just such architecture was the Louvain hotel de ville, and who that has seen the lace-like spire of Antwerp will fail to think of it in this rare court of the Exposition. It brings a lump to the throat every time we enter it. In the four corners of its arcades are Brangwyn's gorgeous murals symbolizing Earth, Air, Fire, Water, the Londoner ranking as the world's greatest genius in color. Its gardens are splashes of vivid color, first pink hyacinths, now scarlet tulips but always brilliantly alluring. A tower rises from one side of this walled-in court where the sun shines warmly in the day time. Here are seen first the Stone Age, then the Mediaeval Age and above, enthroned over all, with a crown on her brow, is Modern Civilization. If this court is beautiful by day, it is doubly so by night when it takes on a note of mysticism. The central fountain, the globe of the Earth, is then seen through clouds of steam—through which it glows a rosy red as some one has said "like a world in the making;" two brasiers near by also send up an offering of red fire, and from the forked tongues of the climbing serpents, flames—yellow this time—pour out on the altars set around the pool, making a scene of weird but indescribable loveliness.

The Court of the Four Seasons found its architectural motive in the famous Villa by Hadrian one of the finest examples of Roman architecture. Here are splendid groups of sculpture and fountains where the water flows at night seemingly over emerald green steps, making an effect altogether unique. The murals, representing the seasons, are also exceedingly fine. The Court of Palms is smaller but has entrancing vistas, some of which are reflected in its waters. At its entrance is one of the favorite pieces of sculpture called "The end of the trail," which depicts a worn Indian Chief exhausted, on an equally spent horse, the pose of the figure is touching in the extreme. The Court of Flowers has a beauty all its own with a luxury of blooms that is intoxicating. A distinguishing feature, too, is a row of dwarfed trees trained over a wooden trellis so perfectly and symmetrically that they form a hedge in appearance.

The Exposition has nine fountains in all, but the one that attracts most attentions is the "Fountain of Energy," a joyous aquatic group celebrating the completion of the Panama Canal. In it the sculptor presents two life-size figures (winged) carrying a wreath and blowing trumpets of victory, each standing on the shoulder of a colossal figure on horseback. With the searchlight [illegible] sparkling glow, it is a never-to-be forgotten sight. Human achievement takes on a new meaning in the presence of this majestic symbolism. The Column of Progress, symbolizing progressive human effort, is a gigantic piece of work also picked out by the searchlight, sometimes gleaming white and at other times glowing red. Great economy has been used in the management of the fountains. Within the base of each one is an electric pump which draws from the pool to supply the jets. Thus the water is used over and over again, with no more replenishment than enough to take care of evaporation.

There are twenty-four gardens in all. Nine acres are devoted to the outdoor display of the Horticultural department. When the Exposition was decided upon it was not difficult to find the right man to plan the gardens, for John McLaren, with the good Scotch name, who, as superintendent of Golden Gate Park, has made himself famous, was at once selected and nobly has he done his part. In his search for what we wanted he did not confine himself to California, a good many trees being brought from Oregon. Four kinds of trees he found most serviceable, the eucalyptus, the cypress, the acacia and the spruce. In all he used about thirty thousand trees. Two years before the Exposition opened he built greenhouses where he assembled his shrubs and plants. In all he is said

DEATH OF MAJOR A WILLIAMSON

Was Father of Mr. Geo. H. Williamson Formely of This City

OUTSTANDING FIGURE

Major A. Williamson, father of Mr. George H. Williamson of Fort William, and formerly general secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., died at Brantford on Tuesday. The Brantford Courier publishes the following obituary:

The death took place at his late residence, Capital Hill, early Tuesday morning of Major Williamson, 47th Regiment Haldimand Rifles, only son of the late Andrew Williamson, formerly of the 71st Highland Light Infantry.

Major Williamson, who for the past twelve years was governor of Haldimand county jail, was in his usual health up until Monday of last week, when he was suddenly stricken with inflammation of the brain. For several days his condition was very hopeful, until Thursday evening, when the disease took an acute form, becoming unconscious, and, in spite of the best medical skill and attention and care of his entire family, including his sister, Mrs. Emerson Peart, Oneida, he remained in that condition until he passed peacefully away as above stated.

The deceased is survived by three sons and four daughters, as follows: Mrs. Wm. Dobie, Toronto; Mrs. Martin Birk, Toronto; Miss Bessie Williamson, Toronto, and Miss Kathleen Williamson, who has occupied the position as matron since the death of Mrs. Williamson, which occurred in January, 1912. George H. Williamson, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Fort William; Dufferin T. Williamson, Brantford, and Arthur S. Williamson, Toronto.

Major Williamson had four other sons, who predeceased him: Andrew, Robert, Thomas and Frederick, the latter two having died in infancy. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Bell, of Ashley, Pa., and Mrs. Emerson Peart. Major Williamson was born in the city of Montreal on the 6th March, 1840, after the arrival of his parents from Scotland. His father was in the regular army, being a member of the 71st Highland Light Infantry. His mother's maiden name was Margaret Turnull, sister of the late Andrew and Alexander Turnbull, early settlers in Haldimand county. When only five years of age, the deceased came with his parents to reside in the village of York, where he spent 58 years of his life, prior to his appointment to the position of governor of Haldimand county jail, which position he had occupied since September, 1903. He held many positions of trust and honor during his long residence in the county, being 38 years clerk of the township of Seneca. During the last 15 years of that service he also held the position of treasurer, also a justice of the peace, and for many years a license commissioner of the county. For the past 54 years he had been an outstanding figure of the militia of Canada, being at the time of his death the oldest officer in the volunteer militia in Canada. He was a veteran of the Fenian Raid of 1866-1870, being in action at Ridgeway, and also sergeant of the guard who took the prisoners to Toronto jail. Besides holding a medal with two clasps for his services in the Fenian Raid, he held the long service decoration.

In religion he was a faithful and consistent member of the Methodist Church, and also for 37 years prior to his residence in Cayuga, superintendent of the York Methodist Sunday school, also a member of the quarterly official board. He always took an active part in all movements relating to good citizenship, and his zeal in the cause of temperance is well known throughout the district. The late major's religion was of the simple, undemonstrative type, and his fine quality of character made him generally popular and beloved. He was an ideal citizen, a faithful public servant, and a loving and devoted father and friend. These with his wide circle of relatives and acquaintances will ever cherish his memory.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Thursday afternoon fifty members of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. enjoyed the privilege of being shown through the Peterborough Canoe Co. and witnessing the making of canoes, row boats, motor boats and sailing yachts. The boys were especially interested in the fine show room of the factory, where the different boats manufactured by the company were to be seen.

Next Thursday afternoon the boys will visit the De Laval Co.

Saturday morning the boys will hike to Lily Lake, leaving the building at 9.30 sharp. A treasure hunt will be the feature of the trip when a Y.M.C.A. pin will be hidden and the boy who finds it will keep it.

On Monday morning, May 24th, a baseball match will be played between the employed boys and the senior school boys, at 9 o'clock sharp, on the Central Park.

CORRESPONDENCE FOR PRISONERS OF WAR IN GERMANY

1. Letters (letters should be left open), postcards and postal parcels should be addressed as follows:

1. Rank, initials, name.
2. Regiment or other unit.
3. British (or Canadian, French, Belgian or Russian) prisoner of war.
4. Place of internment.
5. Germany.

Place of internment should be stated always, if possible, and parcels cannot be accepted, unless place of internment is stated. All addresses must be in ink.

2. Communications should be limited to private and family news and to necessary business communications, and should not be sent too frequently.

No reference to the naval, military or political situation or to naval or military movements and organizations are allowed. Letters or postcards containing such reference will not be delivered.

3. Friends of prisoners of war are advised to send postcards in preference to letters, as postcards are less likely to be delayed. If letters are sent, they should not exceed in length two sides of a sheet of notepaper and should contain nothing but the sheet of note paper. On no account should the writing be crossed.

4. Letters cannot for the present be accepted for registration.

5. Postage need not be paid either on letters or parcels addressed to prisoners of war.

6. No letetrs should be enclosed in parcels, and newspapers must not on any account be sent. So far as is known, there is no restriction on the contents of parcels; tobacco may be sent, and will be admitted duty free, but foodstuffs of a perishable character should not be sent. Parcels should not exceed eleven pounds in weight.

7. Remittances can be made by money order to prisoners of war. Instructions as to how to proceed can be ob[illegible] sion of coin, either in letters or parcels, is expressly prohibited. Postal notes and bank notes should not be sent.

8. It must be understood that no guarantee of either the delivery of parcels or letters can be given, and that the post office accepts no responsibility. In any case, considerable delay may take place, and failure to [illegible] should [illegible] be taken as an indication that letters and parcels sent have not been delivered.

9. So far as is known, prisoners of war in Germany are allowed to write letters or postcards from time to time; but they may not always have facilities for doing so, and the fact that no communication is received from them need not give rise to anxiety.

ENEMY LOSES 100,000 TO REGAIN PEREMYSL

Spearhead Formation of Huns is Costly—Russian Counter-Attacks—Western Struggle Re-opens.

London, May 21—Driving forward in new massed formations the Austro-German legions, under Gen. von Mackensen are endeavoring to close an iron ring around Peremysl. Along the entire front on the San and the Dniester the fighting is proceeding with the utmost violence while opaque mists and heavy rains, rendering the ground difficult, have brought a practical halt to operations of any magnitude in the west. Further gains for the Teutonic allies in their drive against the Russian centre have been made according to Vienna and Berlin. Petrograd military experts believe that Grand Duke Nicholas is slowly consolidating his forces on this front and stemming the momentum of the drive. Strong Russian counter-attacks were developed yesterday according to Vienna, on the east bank of the San, in the Jaroslau region. Berlin declares that north of Peremysl fierce Russian attacks were repulsed. In the fighting around Peremysl it appears the Germans have been using a massed formation on the order of a spearhead. This formation while clumsy is of tremendous power. Banked solidly with huge guns in its apex and consisting of from 100,000 to 200,000 picked troops it has battered the Russian lines back steadily. In the Baltic district the Germans have lost considerable ground. Petrograd yesterday noticed the silence of Berlin on this fighting and attributed this silence to the fact that the Germans had been driven out of Shavli with the loss of a number of heavy guns. Unofficial reports from Petrograd estimate the Austro-German losses in the Galician drive at not less than 100,000 men. The operations were carried on by the Teuton commanders in such close formation that they afforded the easiest kind of a target.

Big Nibbles

In the west the rain-soaked ground has made operations of any sort difficult. Paris reports a violent artillery duel on the front between Nieuport and Arras in which two German aeroplanes were brought down, one by British guns and one by the French. Berlin tells of an artillery duel of great violence between the Meuse and the Moselle and reports the repulse of a French advance at Ablain. In Champagne the French by vigorous mining operations have extended their lines to directly in front of the German trenches and the French now hold ground in close contact with the Teutons. The Paris midnight communique reports that a German attack at Bagatelle in the Argonne was repulsed. At Ailly the French occupied several trenches which they hold.

German Phalanx Diverted

Petrograd, May 21—In the recent great advance of the enemy through Galicia, the chief part has been played by a new German formation to which the name of "Phalanx" has been given. It is equipped with large masses of supplementary artillery, especially of heavy calibres, and served by an immense and complicated system of transport which insures it an unbroken supply of ammunition but at the same time retards its movements. [illegible] average progress is not more than four miles a day. The phalanx required 20 days to advance from Gorlice to its present position on the San. The Russians are now re-inforcing their artillery operating against the mass. They claim that they have already turned it from its original destination at Peremysl and compelled it to approach the San further north. The entire Russian army in Galicia is now in a position to manœuvre as it pleases. The extreme right from Opatow has moved westward into South Poland and now threatens to envelop the Germans.

WILL PREPARE REPORT.

Consulting Engineer W. J. Francis has concluded his work in Peterborough and has returned to Montreal to prepare his report. The report will in all probability be received by the next Council meeting to be held a week from Monday night.

PTE. HANNA WAS WOUNDED IN THE HEAD

Another Quarter of an Inch Would Have Meant Death

IN SEVEN HOSPITALS

Writing to his mother in Millbrook, Pte. N. W. Hanna, who was wounded in the fighting at Ypres says "I was wounded on April 22nd and I have been been in seven different hospitals, and I expect to be here till I am able to go back at tt again, and I don't think that will be very long as I am recovering very rapidly. I got it in the head and another quarter of an inch and I would have cashed in my ticket. I have had several narrow escapes but still on top of the old soil yet. Well mother, it's almost impossible to describe the battle at Ypres. You couldn't imagine how one of us is alive and came through what we had to face. It certainly was a terrible battle, although the boys were overcome by poisonous gas from the enemy's shells, there was not a man flinched till he dropped with a bullet, as we were fighting against great odds and had to capture the ground the French had lost. And when we got the order to advance they never stopped until they reached their point, although regiment after regiment was mowed down just like hay in front of a mower. They never stopped us but our regiment is all cut to pieces, I don't know just how many has been killed yet, but I am afraid the most of them have been killed. I stayed with them till I got so weak from the loss of blood, I couldn't move or go any further, and my captain got me and took me to the dressing station.

Nurses Like Mothers.

Although we have had a lot of hardships in France, I have enjoyed it to certain extent so far. We have been treated the very best in the hospitals, and the nurses are like mothers, especially our Canadian nurses, they are hard-working girls and deserve a lot of credit. And for our Canadian soldiers they will be remembered in years to come in Canadian history, for they certainly did gallant work "and saved the situation," which might have been a bad blow for the British Empire.

When we landed here yesterday from France, the English people nearly went crazy over us, you could hear them cheering for miles. Well mother, after I get out of the hospital I expect a holiday which I consider has been well earned. I don't know how long but I expect a week or more and then we may stay in England for a while or we may go back to the front. I don't just know what will happen yet, but I hope like a lot more it will be over before long, for it certainly is a terrible sight to look back across a field and see hundreds of your comrades laying there dead and wounded. Well mother I think I'll ring off for this time for my head is beginning to ache, it is very tiresome to be in bed so much, you can imagine how it affects me for I never was in bed long before in my life.

Well I hope you are all in the best of health, and besh wishes to father and Etta and all the rest, and don't forget to write.

Your loving son,

PTE. N. W. HANNA,

Canada's Favorite Sugar since the days of the Pioneer

CANADA'S pioneer sugar refiner was John Redpath, who in 1854 produced "Ye Olde Sugar Loafe"—the first sugar "made in Canada".

Redpath

Redpath Sugar has been growing better and more popular ever since. When there seemed no further room for improvement in the sugar itself, we made a decided advance by introducing the Redpath Sealed Cartons.

These completed a series of individual packages—2 and 5 lb. Cartons and 10, 20, 50 and 100 lb. Cloth Bags—which protect the sugar from Refinery to Pantry, and ensure your getting the genuine Redpath.

SPLENDID ITINERARY ARRANGED FOR WINNERS IN THE REVIEW CONTEST

Party Will be Away Twenty-two Days and the Trip Arranged is One That Will be Enjoyed — To-morrow is Last Day of Special Prize Vote Period — Make Every Minute Count — Candidates Living Outside City May Mail Their Subscriptions Saturday Night

It might not be out of place to mention that it is just THREE WEEKS from today that The Review party will be boarding their special car bound for the World's Fair. It is no wonder that all the candidates are more active than ever before and that their friends rally to their support as they never did since the contest began. The young ladies evidently realize the importance of keeping at it.

Another thing which the contest department wishes to again impress on candidates is, in the case of new subscriptions, to write the word "new" or in case of old write the word "old" on the order form in the blank for that purpose, and in the case of repeat orders, to mark them "second order," "third order," and so on. Now is the time to round up the promises. The collection of renewals is not the only work left. [illegible] be found who want to help you on the way to the World's Fair, others who have already ordered The Review will gladly give you another lift. But in no case will subscriptions be accepted for more than two years in advance for The Daily Review.

Now for the finish. Every one of the candidates, their friends and supporters are hustling and a big increase is being quietly piled up to the total vote of each candidate. There never was anything like it in the city of Peterborough. Everyone is watching the closing proceedings of this great contest.

While Monday, June 7th, the day on which the announcement of the winners will be made, will be exciting when The Review appears on the street, yet Friday, June 11th, the day on which the party leaves will be a red letter day in the history of Peterborough. Everyone will be out to give the girls a good send-off.

[illegible] Itinerary.

to have used nearly a million bulbs. From Holland he imported seventy thousand rhododendrons. From Japan two thousand Azaleas. From Brazil rare speciment of cineraria. From Africa the agripanthus that grows on the banks of the Nile. He collected beside these, six hundred thousand pansies, ten thousand veronicas, five thousand junipers and a multitude of other flowers. Mr. McLaren has also originated a fence that is the admiration of visitors. He began it as an experiment to hide some unsightly shacks and it remains one of the most remarkable features of the gardens, one that will be widely copied, we feel sure. Desirous of producing something that would look as though it were moss-covered with age, he erected perpendicular boxes, six feet long and two feet wide, side by side—held together by a wire netting. The boxes contained a two-inch layer of earth and in them he planted the South African dew plant, dense, green and hardy. These boxes piled above each other made a rustic wall of great beauty, irrigated by a one-inch perforated line of pipe that caused the water to look like gems on the leaves. So successful was this device that a thousand foot hedge was made, twenty feet in height, and it was also used in the landscape gardening surrounding the incomparable Fine Arts Building. Just now these mighty hedges are covered with small purple flowers, making them doubly beautiful.

The South Gargen—the piece de resistance of all the gardens—is laid out in the pattern of a formal French garden, surrounded by a low balustrade, with pools, fountains and various ornate vases. And oh, the flowers! First the beds were one carpet of daffodils and jougrils—200,000 of them, with pansies at their roots. Then lo, they vanished and a glory of yellow tulips from the Zuyder Zee burst into view. They, too, went their way and now 250,000 yellow pansies with a sprinkling of their darker sisters are turning their bright faces toward the sun god. Truly McLaren is a wizard for so perfectly has the planting been done, that when these disappear, other flowers will take their place and so on throughout the Exposition. There are 60,000 pink, blue and black tulips in the special garden of the Netherlands—now disappearing owing to the warm days of a late spring but a wonderful sight in full bloom. They represented the aristocrats among tulips owing to their magnificent size color and variety. In these special gardens of the nations, flowers are being cultivated for prize awards, and it is an education to wander through them and see the care that is given the beautiful blossoms. We must not fail to make mention of one external decoration of the Exposition on account of its striking character, and that is the Australian tree fern. The Australian and New Zealand buildings have magnificent specimens, like sentinels on guard around their treasures, and they serve to distinguish those buildings from all others.

And yet when all is taken into consideration—the lands, cape designs, the sculptured groups, the architectural grandeur, the color—all pale before the glamor of the illumination spectacle, for nothing like it has ever been seen before. The man responsible for it is Walter D'Arcy Ryan, lighting expert of the General Electric Company. He has done notable work before. It was he who directed the lighting of the Czar's Palace at Petrograd, as well as the lighting of the New York subway and the locks of the Panama Canal. He has a corps of men doing research work in his laboratories throughout the country.

In opposition to the direct lighting of former years, which was more or less trying to the eyes, the fundamental features consist of massed lights thrown upon softly illuminated facades, towers, domes and minarets in beautiful color tones. The direct source of all lights in the exhibit palaces is concealed, thus artificial illumination at the Exposition is brought into competition with daylight or moonlight. The result is an Arabian Nights' dream. Each court and building has its own lighting scheme worked out with regard to its particular requirements and location. A battery of concealed searchlights in the dome of the Horticultural Palace presents a Kaleidosopic change of colors—processions of the constellations of the universe and the evolution of the nebular hypothesis varied by grotesque and amusing figures.

In the yacht harbor there is a miniature Morro Castle whereon is located a 2,600,000,000 candle power scintillator which works out over 300 effects. The battery exceeds in number the total of searchlights in possession of the United States Army and Navy.

Mr. Ryan, with seventy-five men under him, personally superintends the operation of these searchlights. The greatest of the effects is that of the Aurora Borealis, "Scotch plaids in the sky," as some have said; but to us the uncolored beams recall the ribs of a woman's fan and when colored, as they weave in and out, it is the May pole dance of which we think. Other effects include the beam dance, the spooks' parade, the plumes of Paradise, the devils' dance, chromatic wheels, fairy feathers, the sunburst and numerous others, one being a salvo of twelve six-inch floating searchlight magnesium shells, similar to those now being used by the Germans in illuminating the trenches of the Allies at night. Many a face grows grave as the brilliant lights, with their revealing power, bring thoughts of the brave soldiers far away. God bless them!

The Tower of Jewels is the crowning glory by night. It seems fairly to shiver in an ecstasy of sheer beauty, when 200 concealed searchlights focus their rays upon its coloring and 135,000 prisms. When first we saw it lighted it struck us dumb, its loveliness was so overpowering. And we have never since seen it without feeling uplifted by the wonder of it; uplifted not with pride in man's achievement, but with gratitude to God from Whom all blessings flow, even the blessing of Light.

Sex in Business.

It may be instinct, it may be custom, but anyway it is a fact—

First.—That when a woman marries she doesn't want her job any longer.

Second.—That when a man marries he wants his job all the more. Consequently—

Third.—That as long as there is marrying and giving in marriage business, being desirous of reliable help, will discern a difference between the sexes.—Life.

Funeral Souvenirs.

Weird funeral souvenirs of Dutch origin were called "doed-koecks," or "dead cakes." With a small bottle of wine and a pair of gloves two of these were sent by way of invitation to relatives and friends whom one wanted to attend the funeral. The original recipe for these cakes, which is said to be authentic, called for fourteen pounds of flour, six pounds of sugar, five pounds of butter, one quart of water, two teaspoonfuls of pearl ash, two teaspoonfuls of salt and one ounce of caraway seed. These were baked in four inch squares, then frosted and marked with the initials of the "departed friend." Sometimes they were eaten at the funeral dinner, but usually they were taken away, like wedding cakes, as souvenirs. Many bakers made a specialty of "funeral cookery," one baker in Philadelphia advertising the specialty as recently as 1748.—New York Tribune.

Value of Politeness.

Hollow trees are always the stiffest, but the mightiest oak, it is found, can bend. The more exalted a man is by station the more powerful should he be by kindness. There is no policy like politeness, since a good manner often succeeds where the best tongue has failed. Politeness is most useful to inspire confidence in the timid and encourage the deserving

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

The Sneezewood Tree.

The remarkable sneezewood tree is a native of Natal and other parts of South Africa. Its funny name was given to it because one cannot saw it without sneezing violently. The dust of its wood has just the same effect as the strongest snuff and is so irritating to the nose that workmen are obliged to sneeze even when they are planing it. If a piece of the wood of this tree is put in the mouth it is found to have a very bitter taste, and no doubt it is this bitterness which prevents insects of any kind from attacking the timber of the sneezewood tree. The fact that insects find it so disagreeable makes its wood very valuable for work that is required to last a long time.

RIVERDALES AND THE PETES PLAY LACROSSE ON HOLIDAY

A great amount of interest is being taken in the big lacrosse game on Monday afternoon between the Riverdales of Toronto and the Peterborough intermediate O. A. L. A. team. The locals will present one of the strongest line-ups that ever wore Peterborough uniforms, so a good game of lacrosse is anticipated. Mayor Buller will face the ball and declare the season formally opened.

All the old lacrosse fans and others who would like to see the game revived should journey over to Riverside Park Monday, May 24th, as this will be the first game of the season and the lacrosse executive have been fortunate in securing such a good team. The Riversides are a strong aggregation and the home boys will have to extend themselves to the limit if they win but they have been putting in some hard and consistent practice and will go on to the field to give the fans the best.

In preparation for Monday's game a practice game was played at Riverside Park last night, and the way the boys worked proved that the old timers have not lost any of their cunning, and the youngsters are showing wonderful ability in catching on, so that the team that goes on to the field Monday will be the best that has represented Peterborough in some time. Many of the old familiar faces will be found holding down their respective positions with as much pep as they showed in the olden days. It would be hard to pick out any stars in last night's game as the best men were divided so as to get results. The defence on both teams proved very strong, the score being 4-3.

Line-up:—

Gilman	Fleming
Hatton	Rose
Dillon	Maher
Mein	Reynold
Crough	H. Dunsford
Kelly	Burnham
Brown	McCoy
Halpin	Hamilton
Cranfield	Robertson
Kenneally	Kenneally

Someone suggested that there would be too many Germans on the Guelph pay roll. "Knotty" Lee's batting order Wednesday included the names of Hunt, O'Brien, Isaacs, Murphy, Sullivan, Killilea, Harkins, Kirley and Dorbeck. Reads like the roster of the Dublin Fusiliers.

GUELPH AND OTTAWA PLAY TEN INNINGS

Shag Used Two Pitchers Against Bobby Auld

REISLING FINED

London Manager Was Also Ejected From Coaching Line

GUELPH, May 21.—Guelph and Ottawa played to a tie yesterday, the score at the end of the tenth innings, when Umpire Bedford called the game to allow the Senators to make train connections, being 3 to 3. The Leafs led until the ninth, when Ottawa tied the score. Ross for Ottawa was taken out in the seventh and Kubat substituted. The latter pitched air-tight ball. Bobbie Auld was on the mound for the Leafs and pitched a masterly game. The weather was cold and the attendance small. Score:—

		R.H.E.
Guelph	0010020000	3 9 7
Ottawa	0000100110	3 7 5

Auld and Harkins; Roberts, Kubat and Lage, Powers.

LONDON ALSO WINS THIS ONE.

BRANTFORD, May 21. — Brantford lost the opening game of the local season here yesterday afternoon being outhit by London. The day was raw and cold, and the attendance small. The locals pulled several "bones," and London took advantake of them. Reisling was ejected from the coaching line and Danford fined five dollars for disputing decisions. London bunched hits in the second, third and eighth innings for six runs. The locals got men on, but Evans tightened up at critical moments. Score:—

		R.H.E.
London	021000030	6 7 2
Brantford	000002010	3 6 3

Evans and Danford; Higgins, Nick-

SAINTS TURN THE TABLES.

ST. THOMAS, May 21.—Hamilton went down to a 5 to 2 defeat at the hands of the Saints yesterday. The game was fast throughout, although the weather was exceedingly cold and rain fell. Schroeder was wild, and was replaced by Dolan in the sixth. Reilly for the home club was good throughout, although brilliant fielding helped considerably. Score:

		R.H.E.
St. Thomas	10010102x	5 6 0
Hamilton	000020000	2 7 2

Reilly and Harris; Schroeder, Dolan and Pembroke.

THE DOCTOR'S ORDERS.

With a Side Light on the State of Poor George's Health.

Mrs. Oldwed (calling on Mrs. Newlywed)—How nice and cozy you have it here in your flat, dearie. I can imagine how proud Mr. Newlywed must be to come home to a dinner prepared by your own hands.

Mrs. Newlywed (with a suspicion of a tear in her eyes)—By, my dear Mrs. Oldwed, do you know I am all broken up over poor George's health? He does not eat heartily like he did the first few days after we were married. Our doctor called last evening and said I must not be alarmed over George's lack of appetite. He even said it was best for a person never to dine unless one could eat with a relish. I ordered several kinds of sauces, some mustard, horseradish and also some relishes from the grocer today, and I do hope poor George will be able to enjoy his dinner tonight.—Judge.

BASEBALLS AND PARAPHERNALIA FOR SOLDIERS

Will Play the Game When Resting up Between Battles

CHICAGO, May 21.—Famous ball players of the American League will be asked to autograph some of the balls which President Johnson will forward among other paraphernalia to the Canadian soldiers in France, who want to while away the intermissions between battles in playing the American national game.

President Johnson said yesterday the material he would provide will include in the first consignment five gross of balls, fifty bats, six masks and six catchers' protectors, while six sets of new uniforms will go later.

Mr. Johnson yesterday afternoon sent the following telegram to Mayor T. L. Church of Toronto:—

"An appeal has been made to me to provide a big assortment of baseball paraphernalia, consisting of balls, bats, chest protectors and gloves, for use of the Canadian soldiers in France. I am prepared to arrange for this donation. The American League club owners and players will cheerfully make the contribution. Kindly instruct me to whom I will send this shipment if it is wanted."

Reports reaching Chicago from France indicate that baseball, introduced among the French and British soldiers by Canadian troops, is taking a firm foothold back of the trenches.

Mayor Church's Acceptance.

The following telegram of acceptance has been sent to Ban Johnson by Mayor Church:—

Ban. B. Johnson, Esq., President American Baseball League, Chicago, Ill.:

Your very thoughtful, generous and popular offer received and transmitted to the Canadian Government, and accepted with thanks. Government will arrange shipment. Will further communicate with you. Sporting goods sadly needed at front and constantly asked for by our men. Offer will be greatly appreciated. Take the opportunity offered by this auspicious occasion to thank you personally and your generous club owners and players. You will all be held in affectionate remembrance by our Canadian sportsmen for your splendid offer, kindness and goodwill as manifested in these tokens. We have recently completed the hundredth anniversary of peace with your people. May it be perpetuated, for we all wish you well. Canadians pray that God will give the British-American peoples deliverance from the perils of these evil times.

T. L. CHURCH (Mayor).

The Boys Want Sporting News.

Sporting extras with box scores are among the desires of the men in the European trenches, and the paper containing a description of the Johnson-Willard fight will meet a generous circulation, according to a letter received from George H. Rayner, former shortstop and third baseman of a Montana team in the Inter-Mountain League, today. Rayner is on the firing line near Ypres with the First Battalion of the Canadian expeditionary forces.

"Roll up a few sporting extras and send them along," he wrote a friend. "If I get picked off before they come, the other boys will be glad to get them. Just think, all the old diamond stars are at it again, and I don't even know who or why.

"So old Jack Johnson finally met a big man and got licked! I was glad to hear it, although I have not seen an account of it yet."

ITALY'S PARLIAMENT PASSES WAR MEASURE

Vote Almost Unanimous For War—Hostilities May Precede Cabinet's Decision—Army Ready.

Rome, May 21—Italy took yesterday the first definite step toward her entry into the Europan war on the side of the allies. The decision as to the form which the open break with Austria will take and its exact date now rests with the Cabinet. The German and Austrian Ambassadors were still in Rome last night, but according to despatches from Berlin, their one care now is to arrange for the safety of their nationals. A formal declaration of war, or perhaps action without a formal declaration, was momentarily expected.

It is reported from Milan that the Austrian fleet at Pola is under steam for Venice. The movement of Italian troops toward the northern and eastern frontiers proceeds apace. Gen. Cadorna, the chief of staff, is at Venice to take full command of the 1,700,000 soldiers now in the northern zone. Fifty express trains have been suppressed in the South, while in Central and Northern Italy not even freight trains are running.

Deputies Support King

With despatch the Italian chamber of deputies passed last night amid scenes of tremendous enthusiasm a bill conferring full powers upon the Cabinet to make war. The vote was 417 to 73, one member not voting. The text of the bill which consists of a single article follows: "The government is authorized in case of war and during the duration of war to make decisions with due authority of law, in every respect required, for the defense of the state and the guarantee of public necessities. The provision contained in articles 234 to 251 of the military code continue in force. The government is authorized also to have recourse until December 31, 1915, to monthly provisional appropriations for balancing the budget. This law shall come into force the day it is passed." This is considered vote in favor of war for which the government has made all preparations and the prospects of which had aroused the greatest enthusiasm throughout Italy.

The re-opening of parliament yesterday afternoon was a brilliant one. More than 200,000 persons assembled outside the building. When the poet Gabriele D'Annunzio entered the gallery the deputies rose to their feet and shouted: "Viva D'Annuzio! Viva Italia!"

President Marco, a Garibaldian veteran, received a five-minute ovation as did Premier Salandra. After the opening formalities Salandra arose and said: "Gentlemen, I have the honor to present to you a bill to meet the eventual expenditures of a national war. Italy must stand united at this time when her destinies are being decided." Deputies and spectators alike arose, cheering wildly, when the Premier exclaimed: "We have the utmost confidence in our august chief who is prepared to lead the army toward a glorious future. Let us all gather round our much- [illegible]

London, May 21—Austria has assembled a considerable force in the Tyrol ready, under favorable conditions, to sweep down toward the plains of Venetia and Lombardy from above Lake Garda. The Italian Alpine corps will be mustered on the frontier south of them to hold the Austrians in check, while the main advance of Italy's army will probably be made from Venetia toward Trieste. The Italian army is well supplied with modern material and a plentiful supply of machine guns and field artillery. The peace strength was 14,121 officers, 250,000 of other ranks, and 55,725 horses. The war strength is over a million, and it is believed that the army has been maintained at this figure for some time.

Gloomy and Angry

Amsterdam, May 21—The Frankfurter Zeitung says: "This war by Italy against her former allies is one of the most abominable examples of perfidy that history knows. We shall now have one more war zone. Certainly that is no light matter, but it will only increase our resolution not to allow ourselves to be beaten."

Swiss Determined

Rome, May 21—The Swiss minister at midnight notified Baron Sonnino, Italian foreign minister, that he had been ordered by his government to assure Italy that Switzerland was determined to maintain the strictest neutrality, no matter what happened.

The Johnson homestead at Stratford, Conn., cannot be rented and will be demolished because of spooks of the 1776 period.

To the Men of Peterborough

You are invited to attend a Luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. on evening of Tuesday, May 25th, at 6:30 o'clock, to meet E. R. Wood, Esq., of Toronto, who will address the gathering in the interest of the Association work in this city.

Mr. Wood is a well-known former resident of this city, has always taken a deep interest in the work, and will place before the meeting the claims and objects of the Y. M. C. A.

Please advise the Secretary, at the Y. M. C. A., (up to Tuesday at noon) of your intention to be present.

G. A. GILLESPIE, Chairman.
C. N. MESERVE, Secretary.

E. R. WOOD WILL COME TO CITY FOR CONFERENCE

Big Meeting of Men is Arranged for the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday Evening

In response to the article published by the officers of the Y.M.C.A. which appeared in the Review last evening, a number of business men met in the office of Mr. E. A. Peck to consider the needs of the Association and how they might best be made.

President G. A. Gillespie, and Treasurer J. J. Turner and several other members of the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors were present to confer with representative business men who are not directors of the Association. Mayor Buller, and Mr. Basil Hall, President of the Board of Trade, were present in their official capacities, and in short, earnest addresses emphasized the fact that no local institution must be allowed to suffer because of the war or dull times, and that in view of the good work done by the local Young Men's Christian Association and the fact that dull times made it possible for this institution to even better serve the young men of the community, that something should be done immediately to put the Y.M.C.A. on a footing where it may do its most efficient work.

Mr. Peck called attention to the fact that as the financial efforts on behalf of the Association last year were not carried to a conclusion owing to the war, that this year's budget must not only be provided for but the deficit of $3,000 be paid. This means that at least $8,000 must be raised this year.

Mr. H. B. Cowan on behalf of the Association stated that at the expenditure of about $7,000 in readjusting the space in the building that the Association could be made self-sustaining to at least 75 per cent.

As business men, those present felt that such an investment was most desirable for it would better fortify the Association against possible business depression in the future and make its work more permanent and also insure the Association against future deficit.

It was reported that Mr. E. R. Wood of Toronto, President of the Toronto Association and a former resident of Peterborough, was available for a conference Tuesday evening, May 25th. This being the case the men present unanimously agreed that Mr. Wood should be invited to visit Peterborough to address the largest possible gathering of business men at a supper to be held in the Y.M.C.A. building at 6.30 p.m. on the evening of May 25th. This invitation has been carried to Toronto today by Mr. G. A. Gillespie and we are pleased to state that Mr. Wood will be present on the occasion mentioned. One or two other speakers are expected to be present from Toronto, so a very inspiring meeting is in prospect.

As a result of this gathering it is hoped to get a consensus of the opinion of the citizens of Peterborough regarding raising $15,000 this year for Y.M.C.A. purposes.

A plate at the banquet will be provided every man who will accept this general invitation previous to Tuesday noon.

Judgment in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Foster Lytle vs. A. G. Shearer was given this morning by His Honor Judge Huycke. The case was tried on Tuesday, and at the conclusion of the evidence judgment was reserved. According to the evidence, during the spring of 1910 plaintiff and defendant made a verbal agreement by which the plaintiff would purchase eighty-six acres of land situated in the township of Harvey, from the defendant. The terms of the agreement were that Lytle should pay $250 inside of five years, interest annually at six per ceint., and also the taxes.

Lytle paid the interest for the first two years, but not since. Last year Shearer sold the property to Albert Reeves for $300, to be paid inside of five years, interest at six per cent. annually and taxes. Shearer notified Lytle that he must quit the property because he failed to live up to his agreement in failing to pay the interest. Through Solicitors Gordon and Widdifield, Lytle was endeavoring to secure an order by which Reeves would have to quit the property and Shearer sell to him, according to the original agreement. Mr. V. J. McElderry appeared for the defendant.

In the judgment this morning the defendant was ordered to convey the property to the plaintiff before June 30th, and no interest is to be collected from August last till the end of June.

THE CANADIANS IN ACTION NEAR YPRES

PART OF SECOND CONTINGENT ENGAGED---PROGRESS AT GALLIPOLI PENINSULA

CALL TO DUTY BY VICTOR EMMANUEL

Proclamation Explains How Italy Has Been Forced to Take up Arms

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, May 22. — King Victor Emmanuel will issue a proclamation to the people, countersigned by all ministers, today. The document will explain how Italy has been driven to take up arms, and will appeal to all citizens to do their duty in every way, and success is assured.

Another royal proclamation will be addressed to the army and fleet.

AUSTRIA'S ACTION THE LAST STRAW.

PARIS, May 22. — It is considered that Austria's action in destroying bridges and cutting telegraph and telephone lines at Ponte Caffaro and Lodrone can be held to constitute "casus belli," making the Italian government free to open hostilities without further diplomatic formalities, says a despatch from Turin. Austrian troops were withdrawn after the civil population had been forced to evacuate Riva and other sections of Venezia, under Austrian rule.

LONDON, May 22. — A news agency despatch from Rome says that King Victor Emmanuel today signed an act conferring extraordinary powers on the government, "for the duration of the war."

MILITARY NOW CONTROL RAILROADS.

ROME, May 22. — A decree empowering military authorities to take control of all Italian railroads went into effect last night.

HEAVY LOSS FOR TURKS

Casualties Over 7000 in Fighting Against Australian and New Zealand Corps

A GOOD ADVANCE

By French and English on Southern End of Gallipoli Peninsula

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 22.—Official announcement was made here today that French and British forces operating against the Turks in Gallipoli Peninsula gained further ground on the southern end of the peninsula. The statement reads:

"On May 19th, in the southern area of Gallipoli Peninsula, French forces, in conjunction with the British, made a considerable advance, and consolidated their new position. Our aeroplanes dropped bombs amongst Turkish reinforcements landing at Ak-Bashi, and caused considerable losses.

"On the night of the 18th and 19th the Turkish forces made determined attacks against the Australian and New Zealand corps, which were all repulsed with heavy loss, their casualties being over seven thousand, of which two thousand were killed. Our losses did not exceed five hundred."

Here is a picture of Lance Corporal Gerald Ellis, a 57th Non-Com. officer who was wounded in the battle of Langemarck and is now in a hospital at London.

COVERED GERMAN FLAG.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 22.—Somebody discovered that large four-sheet posters advertising a circus which were being distributed about the city bore among other things a fine reprint of the German flag. The authorities got wind of the affair, and Chief of Police Willis has detailed two officers to paste a white half-sheet over the offending emblem.

TRENCHES ARE TAKEN BY FRENCH

Part of "White Way" North of Lorette Heights is Taken

GERMANS KILLED OTHERS SURRENDER

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 22. — (This afternoon's official statement): "Our troops completed yesterday evening the cleaning up of trenches known as "White Way," situated south of Lorette Heights. A large number of Germans were killed in branch lines of these trenches, and others surrendered. The exact numbers are not yet known.

"During the night the enemy made several counter attacks. He was repulsed and suffered heavy losses. All the spur of "White Way" is in our hands.

"We have made further progress to the southeast of the chapel of Lorette. We are at the present time within one hundred yards of the northeast corner of Albain."

TRAIN WRECK KILLS TROOPS

More Than Forty Dead and Three Hundred Injured Taken From Wreckage

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

CARLISLE, May 22. — Three trains were piled in a heap on the Caledonia railway at Grega, near here, early this morning, and as a result at least fifty persons are dead, mostly soldiers. A troop train collided with a local, and before the occupants were able to get clear of the wreckage an express train from London crashed into them with terrifying results. Locomotives and cars were shattered. Fire broke out and spread with great rapidity. Fire brigades finally extinguished the flames, but not before many travllers pinned under the wreckage had been burned alive.

The final list of dead will probably exceed fifty, as it is believed many sustained fatal injuries. The injured total over three hundred.

PRISONERS OF WAR IN GERMANY.

COPENHAGEN, May 22. — The total number of prisoners of war now in Germany and Austria is said by the Frankfurter Zeitung to be 1,386,000, including one million Russians, a quarter of a million French, fifty thousand Belgians, fifty thousand Serbians and twenty thousand British.

AUSTRIANS RETREAT TOWARDS CARPATHIANS.

PARIS, May 22. — The right wing of the Austrian army in Bukowina is retreating towards the Carpathians, according to a Bucharest despatch, despite desperate efforts to check the Russian offensive.

ANOTHER CALL FOR GERMANS

Two Million More Men Called to Service

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 22. — A Copenhagen correspondent learns from an authoritative Berlin source that Germany is about to call up two million more men.

Turkish Troops Are Bombarded

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ATHENS, May 22.—It is reported from Mytilene, that a British squadron began Thursday a 36-hour bombardment of Turkish troops concentrated near Kara Burnu, near Smyrna.

MIGHT HAVE COALITION

Events in Britain Suggest Possibilities for Canada

To a Review reporter today, Mr. Burnham, M. P., said that recent events in Britain suggested possibilites for Canada. Since the Liberal chieftain and his party have announced that they do not think Sir Robert Borden has a right to consult the people during war time about anything; it might be well to have a coalition at Ottawa with Sir Wilfrid Laurier in charge of that great catastrophe, the N. T. R. How the people of Canada are going to bear this colossal burden created wholly by Sir Wilfrid, many were unable to see, and if Conservatives could not go to the country about it, perhaps Sir Wilfrid would help them out at Ottawa. The N. T. R. was a greater burden than the war, financially, and otherwise there was no compensation. No wonder that Liberals fear a general election.

CANADIANS TAKE MACHINE GUNS

Four Brigades Made an Attack on Germans in an Important Engagement Near Ypres

SUFFERED CONSIDERABLE LOSSES

23rd and 25th Battalions of Second Contingent Mentioned in To-day's Casualty List

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, May 22. — The Canadians figured in another important engagement near Ypres on Thursday night and Friday morning, according to a private cable to the Minister of Militia today. It states that the second and third brigades, supported by the First and the Fourth, attacked Germans in an orchard and captured a number of machine guns.

The extent of the losses is not announced, but it is understood they have been considerable.

OTTAWA, May 22.—Today's casualty list indicates that part of the Second Canadian Contingent is in the firing line, the 23rd and 30th battalions being mentioned.

Patriotic League Had Fine Program

Delightful Concert Held by Ladies of Ashburnham

The Ashburnham Ladies' Patriotic League achieved a notable success last evening on the occasion of their first concert. A few weeks ago the ladies of Ashburnham formed themselves into a league to work for Red Cross purposes, and in order to raise sufficient funds to carry out their good intentions, it was decided to give an entertainment. Last night's concert was the result, and the fact that the league has the hearty support of the citizens generally was amply evidenced by the immense crowd that filled every available seat in the hall. The auditorium looked very pretty in its patriotic decorations. The programme rendered was of an usually high order of merit, and the thanks of the ladies is due Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie who arranged it, and also the various artists who contributed numbers. Mr. J. C. Anderson moved, and Mr. R. H. Parsons seconded, at the conclusion of the concert, a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Ritchie, and the artists, which was heartily concurred in by the large audience.

The chair on this occasion was taken by Rev. W. H. White, in the unavoidable absence of Rev. Dean McColl. In his opening remarks, Rev. Mr. White expressed the delight, he was sure the ladies felt, in the splendid way their efforts were being encouraged, as was especially manifested in "a capacity house. The work the league was undertaking was deserving of the highest sup-

SERGT. GUERIN IN THE THICK OF FIGHTING

Has Praise for the Gunners and Drivers Who Serve Ammunition

The following letter was received yesterday by Mr. J. MacDonald, of the C. P. R. freight shed staff, from Sergt. T. Guerin, 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, First Contingent.

Dear Old Jack:

Your welcomed letter of April 12th received this p.m., and am pleased to hear that you and the boys are well. Well, Jack, I dare say that you know what kind of a place we are in at present. If there ever was a spot on earth that you could call hell, this is it. Believe me, our little bunch are doing their share. I thought that we were doing a lot at the last place, but we are sure doing it here. Our battery got into action on the 23rd about three o'clock, and by five the next night we had put three thousand rounds into the German trenches. The next day they started searching for us, and they found us Sunday. Believe me, they made it warm for us. They put shells through every gun shield but mine, but that did not stop us. The next day, when they started the "coal boxes," "Jack Johnsons" and "tram cars" at us, we had to leave the guns for a few seconds, and while we were away they blew one of our guns and a waggon body to pieces, and our own shells started to go. We shifted to a new position that night, and started in the next morning to give it to them again, and have been at it ever since. I went sick last Saturday. I guess it was the hard work and the strain of the firing that brought it on.

Jack, if there ever was a bunch of men that deserve the V. C. and all the medals they can make, it is the artillery division — the drivers for bringing [illegible] shell fire they have to come through and the gunners for sticking to their guns.

Tell Mr. Dodd that I hope he is elected, and also tell him that I have helmet for him, and that I will write as soon as I can to him and Dave. Well, Jack, give my best regards to all the boys, and tell them that tobacco is very scarce here. Hoping this finds you in good health, I remain,

Your old friend,

"BUFF."

BALFOUR AS FIRST LORD LANSDOWNE AND CARSON WILL ENTER NEW CABINET

Almost Certain That Lloyd George Will Remain Chancellor of Exchequer

OUST CHURCHILL?

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 22. — The reconstruction of the cabinet is proceeding slowly. The Times announces Lord Lansdowne will become a member and it is regarded as certain that Lloyd George will remain chancellor of the exchequer and A. J. Balfour become First Lord of the Admiralty. Another certainty is that Augustine Birrell will remain chief secretary for Ireland.

It is understood Sir Edward Carson will enter the cabinet but in what capacity is not known. It appears from present intention, Winston Churchill may become secretary for India, though some Liberal quarters suggest he be excluded from the new combination.

DELEGATES BACK FROM TORONTO

Local Knights of Columbus Attended State Council

The representatives of the local council of the Knights of Columbus, Messrs. D. O'Connell and F. F. Garden, have returned from Toronto, where they attended the twelfth annual meeting of the State Council of the Knights of Columbus, held yesterday. At the meeting a motion was unanimously carried expressing unqualified approval of the Canadian Government in so efficiently responding to the requirements of the mother country, and, while the members have responded in great numbers to the call of the hour, the delegates were unanimous in a resolution to augment to their fullest capacity the recruiting of men of eligible age to the overseas forces. This resolution was passed amid the united cheers and applause of all present.

Because of existing conditions in Canada, the convention was limited to one day, in view of the fact that all Ontario councils have been more or less taxed financially for the many worthy objects which present themselves in connection with the appal- [illegible] is confronted.

The election of officers resulted in James L. Murray of Pembroke being elected State Deputy; E. J. Butler, of Belleville, State Secretary, and L. V. O'Connor, Lindsay, State Treasurer.

The meeting was presided over by retiring State Deputy Thos. N. Phelan, and all entertainments or festivities in connection with such conventions were eliminated because of the death of Rev. H. J. Canning, chaplain of Toronto council, Knights of Columbus.

At the opening of the convention a resolution was passed expressing profound regret at the death of Father Canning, whose death has incurred an irreparable loss to Toronto Council and the order throughout Ontario.

DRIVER EVANS IS REPORTED KILLED

Was With 4th Battery of the First Brigade

Driver David Evans, of the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, is reported to have been killed in action, in a message from Ottawa received this morning by his wife, who resides at 226 Woodbine avenue. The late Driver Evans was born in Peterborough and was forty years old. There are three daughters, Margaret and Maude, of Toronto, and Audrey, at home, and one son, George P., also at home.

A card received from Driver Evans dated April 27th stated that he was well.

He had been employed on construction work about the city, and before enlisting was working for the Utilities Commission. Some years ago he was a butcher.

Sergeant John McDonald, son of Sergt. McDonald, of the Stratford Armouries, has been recommended for an officer's commission for gallant service at the front, according to word received at Stratford.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MAY 22, 1915

VICTORIA DAY, 1915.

THE CELEBRATION of Empire Day and Victoria Day in Canada this year is of much significance. Every year since the inception of these special days, the idea of Empire and its responsibilities has been brought before the people. Canadians believed they were part of an empire, in spite of contradictory statements by one or two educated and bizarre critics. The South African war gave a possible index of its solidarity, but not an authoritative decision. Still, Imperialism was regularly spoken of as having a meaning in the Empire. The age of Victoria was looked back to as one of great achievements, and in which each outpost of the Empire had an inheritance. The peaceful process of developing our country continued, and the time came when foreigners began to doubt that the Empire had really the strength its proportions would indicate. The rejection of the Naval Aid Bill gave support to these doubts, but still we taught in the schools that we had an Empire, and continued to speak of ourselves as being a part of an empire. Then, when the great testing time came last August, when the whole world was lining up in hostile camps, the full reward of Imperialism was manifest, when the British Empire threw in its whole strength behind the banners of the Motherland.

This year there will likely not be the same kind of feeling on this occasion. There should be a feeling of reverence and thankfulness that the cause for which we stand has prospered, and that the Empire has, in the eyes of the world at least, assumed a new and greater identity. What the future has in store for us we do not know. The armies of our enemies are still great and powerful, and their ships of war are still to be reckoned with, but the seas are swept of their commerce, and there is hope of ultimate victory. Not in any spirit of bravado do we celebrate these festivals, but in the hope that we stand for truth, justice and liberty, and that this cause shall prevail.

THERE SHOULD BE NO CESSATION OF NATIONAL BUSINESS.

THE REVIEW has received a long letter from Dr. E. Scott, editor of the Presbyterian Record, dealing with the question of church union, and proposing to postpone all consideration of the subject until after the war. With this proposal is coupled in the last paragraph an opinion contrary to an election in war-time.

The letter shows to what an extent this foolish propaganda against elections in war-time has been carried. Dr. Scott merely protests against an election. He takes no account of the reasons for an election. No matter how urgent an election would be, no matter how important the questions to be discussed would be, no matter what consequences would result from not holding an election, he sweeps everything aside, and, with a wave of the hand, says, "Go to — let us not hold an election." He writes as though elections were a kind of necessary evil, a kind of convenience for working up a little harmless excitement in our otherwise calm and prosaic life, a sort of tolerated make-believe at discussing questions of public policy, in which no one is to be taken seriously. Possibly that is why the Laurier railway schemes have cost the country four times what the estimtae was, and why the whole N. T. R. line has to be taken over by the Government and operated at a dead loss. That may be the view of Liberals, but the Borden Government has a higher and more serious conception of politics and elections. It regards public business as the most important affairs in a nation's life, and elections as far-reaching decisions pointing out what course the whole people of Canada are to take regarding certain problems.

His serio-comic attitude to an election has led the editor of the Presbyterian Record to advocate the postponement of all discussion of the question of church union until after the war. Following the same line of argument, all competitive undertakings should be foregone in order that there might be no rivalry whatever, and all might thereby present an undivided attitude to the war. We should almost cease to eat while the war is on. Such a position is absurd to a remarkable degree. In the face of such slogans as "Business as usual," "We must do our duty at home, in order to support those in the field," the business of the country is to proceed at its maximum capacity, yet here is a worthy doctor of Divinity who advises that the business of the country should, at least in some particulars, be at a standstill for the duration of the war!

The frightful loss of life on the battlefields of Europe, the incomprehensible expenditure of wealth in a policy of destruction, will set the whole world back, in spite of every effort to neutralize such an effect. Very great problems in political and social life, much-needed improvements in various fields of activity, will of necessity have to wait for years, while the world is paying off the billions it is now spending so lavishly in the struggle between Kaiserism and Democracy. Consequences like these cannot be avoided, and hence every effort should be made to do as much business as possible, to solve as many social and political problems as can be solved, so that the wheels of progress will not be entirely stopped. Just because Canada is engaged in a gigantic war is no reason why, politically, or any other way, the Canadian people should take a draught from Rip Van Winkle's flagon.

If the present outlook is any indication of the duration of the war, it will be fortunate if the end of it comes as soon as a year from next September, and, in that event, an election in war-time will be, according to our constitution, absolutely necessary. Where, then, will be all this argument against an election? or against the solution of important problems? The war has made far greater demands on the Empire than were ever anticipated, yet the manner in which the British people have risen to the occasion has been the admiration of the world and an astonishment to its enemies. Why cannot the people that have already done such great things rise to the necessities of its domestic welfare in a time of stress as well as in a time of peace? It seems quite possible to prosecute the war as vigorously as necessary, and yet solve our own domestic problems, whether they be elections or church union proposals.

"IT ISN'T ME," SAYS THE EXAMINER AGAIN.

THOSE who engineered the big meeting on the market square to protest against any changes in the British Cabinet in war-time, and who must have been disgruntled Liberals, seem to have got our evening contemporary, the Examiner, going. In its last issue it devoted considerable editorial space to denying any knowledge of the affair, and charging that the scheme was concocted in the Review office. Fortunately the Review forestalled the Examiner and denied on the same day any such connection with this ridiculous affair. The Examiner says it could ill spare the space it so used, doubtless because it was required, as usual, to protest against any election in war-time. Our contemporary protests that it knew nothing about the meeting, and its empahtic denials are open to some suspicion. But, even so, it is not the fault of the Review if a few Liberals fail to take the Examiner into their confidence, nor is the Review to blame if any officers of the Liberal Association launch a little scheme on their own hook. It is even rumored on the street that some officers of the local Liberal Association know far more about the concoction of this meeting than they care to say. With this the Review has nothing to do, but, in the course of news-gathering, it heard of the meeting, and ridiculed it from the start. The result was that, in spite of the circulation of dodgers, the whole affair fizzled out. Undoubtedly it IS a stern rebuke to those who have been protesting so much lately against political moves in war-time.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

EVEN the local Liberal Association doesn't take kindly to dictatorship. When someone undertakes on his own authority to call a big indignation meeting on the market square, it doesn't take well.

IF ANYBODY wants to make further inquiries about the big protest, they might call up the secretary of the Liberal Association. If not at his office, his night 'phone is 106.

THE OFFICERS of the local Liberal Association haven't yet denied knowledge of the big meeting on the market square.

THERE'S no telling what will come out of a law office where two or three are gathered together.

AFTER ALL, the best laid schemes of mice and men don't work sometimes.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

The Sunday Newspaper.
(Orillia Packet.)

During the United States Civil War the desire for prompt news of great battles led to the issue by many daily papers of Sunday editions. Gradually the habit became confirmed, and thus began that greatest curse of the American commonwealth, the so-called Sunday newspaper, consisting of about one-tenth real news, and numberless pages of vapid stuff which no one is the better for reading and no one the worse for missing. In Canada it is only on the Pacific Coast that the Sunday newspaper has gained a foothold. In Ontario there are papers printed and issued on Saturday evening, which doubtless are prepared with a view to Sunday reading. In Toronto one newspaper has begun to make the most trivial war news an excuse for the issue of a Sunday edition. On the Sunday before last, all it contained that was not in the Saturday evening papers was a slight addition to the list of casualties in the battle of Langemarck. The newsboys began selling it, and were promptly checked [illegible] see what the Sunday press means when [illegible] this matter Canadian law is in harmony with Canadian sentiment.

Morality in the Army.
(Boston Transcript.)

Soldiers and sailors come in for many hysterical denunciations as "peculiarly immoral." The professional peace-at-any-price agitators never weary of pointing out the derelictions of men in uniform as sinners above all others. The young men of Kitchener's army are very like those who filled our earlier volunteer regiments. They come from all conditions of life, "cook's son, duke's son," as Kipling says, and among them doubtless the majority are those who have received the teachings of Christian homes.

The One Need.
(London Times.)

After eight months of war we have arrived at this point: We have a magnificent army in the field, and are prepared to supplement it continuously. It is in the pink of condition and the best of spirits. It has a definite task before it, is in a favourable position to begin, and is straining the leash. The French are ready, too, and in a similar state of eagerness and efficiency. But they are all held back simply because our troops lack ammunition. Now, it is the business of the Government to provide the ammunition.

PUBLIC MEETING

In Collegiate Assembly Hall Next Tuesday Evening

A public meeting in connection with the convention of Medical officers of Health will be held in the Collegiate Hall, Tuesday evening at 8.30, with Mayor Buller presiding. Moving pictures as sent out by the Provincial Board of Health will be shown. H. D. Pease of Lederle Laboratory, New York City, will give an address on Rational Position on the Food Question. Citizens are cordially invited to this meeting.

Owners of automobiles are asked to assist the Peterborough Automobile Association in entertaining the visitors by showing them the points of interest in the city.

Those who have cars and will help are requested to meet at the armouries, at four o'clock on Tuesday, also at the Empress Hotel on Wednesday at three o'clock as it is the intention to take the ladies for an hour's motor trip before proceeding with the boat trip down the river and also over the Lift Lock.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

There was a good meeting at the Labor Hall this week, but the scribe has to admit that there is not much to report. Much of the discussion was devoted to matters of a personal nature. For instance, the Musicians' delegate was present asking a ruling on a technical point; then the advisability of having an official lawyer was provocative of all kinds of eloquence. Then the constitution and by-laws were subjected to crossfire, also the case of a girl who was injured in a local factory, whether or not the Compensation Act was in force when the accident occurred, and so forth and so on, till President Hammacott announced that the Labor Day celebrations were to be discussed but were postponed till next meeting owing to the late hour.

A MAMMOTH SUGAR REFINERY

Seventeen Thousand Tons of Concrete

St. John, N. B., boasts of having at least one great building that may be truly termed "as solid as a rock." This is the Atlantic Sugar Refineries, which required two years in the building. Seventeen thousand tons of concrete and three thousand tons of steel were required in its construction, and it is recognized as being not only a credit to Canada, but also the most up-to-date plant of its kind on the continent. Some of the machinery, which was designed expressly for this refinery, is almost human in its working. This is particularly true of the machines which fill the two-pound and five-pound cartons of LANTIC GRANULATED SUGAR. These machines fold and seal the cardboard cartons, and weigh each one so that the carton contains the full weight of sugar as stamped on the outside, and all this without being touched by human hands. The Atlantic Refineries also contain many other interesting devices [illegible] this complete plant to have an output of one million pounds of sugar a day, or a yearly output of three hundred million pounds of sugar. Only can sugar will be used in the Atlantic Refineries, so that those who buy LANTIC SUGAR either in cartons or the 10, 20 or 100 pound bags, will be certain to obtain the very finest granulated cane sugar refined under the most sanitary conditions.

NO NEWS FOR GERMANS

The Liverpool papers have published some interesting interviews with members of the crews of the ships destroyed by the German cruiser "Kronprinz Wilhelm" before her internment. An incident described by the chief steward of the "Coleby" was that the German officers, on boarding a ship, made a thorough search for newspapers of every description, of which they took possession. "As they were supposed," said the steward, "to be in constant wireless communication with a station in Brazil, I could not understand the meaning of it, but I found later that it was to prevent their own crew getting hold of the news. The crew told us that we were better off as passengers than if we had continued our own voyage. Our ship, they said, would have certainly been sunk by German submarines, which had been successful in stopping all British shipping. The German sailors were also under the impression that their army had effected a landing in England. Their ignorance of the state of affairs was astounding, until we remembered they had been at sea eight months and their officers, who would not so much as mention the war, kept news back from them. We could have enlightened them, but as they probably would not have listened to our stories, which would have been so unpleasant to them, we refrained."

War Information

The Public has been asking what will be the effect of this war on Life Assurance Companies.

The report to date, May 1st, of one Company, at least, will be interesting and reassuring reading to those interested. It deals with the total death claims during the first nine months of the war, to the 1st of May, 1915, as reported by the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada.

The total death claims for the period mentioned amounted to $1,416,231.16, and of this amount only $33,271.38 was for death claims actually resulting from hostilities, or less than two and one-half per cent.

When you take into account the accumulated reserves on hand on policies taken out (many of them quite old) before the war, and the extra war premium of $50.00 per thousand per year on those who have been insured since the war began, this experience shows most conclusively that the extra risk incurred on account of the war is a negligible quantity, [illegible] Life is concerned.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

LIBERAL LEADER ON WAR TOPICS

Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Advising Young Liberals of Ontario Discusses Canada and the War

Toronto, May 22—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's first public utterance of public policy since Parliament rose was delivered at the Ontario Club last night before the annual banquet of the Liberal Club Federation of Ontario. "In so far as I have authority over the destinies of the Liberal party, we shall not do one thing to prevent the present government from going on with the prosecution of its war policy," was the distinct promise to the two hundred young Liberals from all over Ontario. He asked for a declaration by Premier Borden that no election would be held during the war. Then, after a few allusions to the question of a Canadian navy, Sir Wilfrid devoted much time to a discussion of the war in its relation to imperial and international problems. "What is the duty of the Liberal party at this time?" asked Sir Wilfrid, coming directly to his theme. "That is what we must know. That duty, as I see it, is to see that the war is prosecuted to an end and to a final victory. The time will come when we shall have to resume these political discussions, but we do not wish to do so during the war, because we think there is a higher duty laid upon the Canadian people. Although we do not in all things approve the policies of the government, yet we can afford to postpone our differences and give all our attention to the war." Sir Wilfrid went on to mention the chief subjects of difference between the Federal parties. "We cannot endorse their fiscal policy nor again their policy in relation to the settlement and development of the northwest," he said.

Regarding An Election

He dealt next with the preparations for a general election. "We saw preparations on the other side for an immediate or at least an early dissolution," said Sir Wilfrid; "we saw them pressing and pressing upon the Premier [illegible] not therefore have been true to the country's interests had we allowed ourselves to be caught absolutely napping should an election have come suddenly." It was because of the continuance of these agitations that he now appealed to the Premier and to his colleagues for an immediate announcement that there would be no early election, nor yet one during the war. "Following such a pledge, I pledge myself and my party to stop all preparations for an election. Then there shall be in our thoughts nothing but care for the war and the empire's success. The time is not yet too far spent for such a pledge; it is owing from the Premier to the country; it would have been fairer had it come earlier," declared the Liberal leader. "We are yet in this uncertainty that we do not know yet whether or not Parliament is to be dissolved." Sir Wilfrid added that the recent comments in pulpit and press constituted a sufficient mandate for any government against any election during the war period. He followed this with the threat that if an election were forced the Liberals would be ready with strong convictions and a strong policy, opposed in vital things to the policy of the present administration.

"But we would prefer infinitely to follow the policy adopted so patriotically in England and France, one of almost complete cessation of political strife and of unprecedented union of public men for the common cause of liberty and humanity. There was an example here to be followed, one of postponing differences for the decision of the supreme question."

Canada and the War

Canada's position in the war was an important factor. "We have stepped into this war voluntarily," continued the speaker. "There is only one way by which empires can live; it is the British way. Germany deluded herself with the idea that the British empire would crumble like a house of cards. She should have seen by her own history, her own deliverance from Napoleon, that no empire can be established and maintained by force." And now to the horror of the German armies they found opposed to them the soldiers of the dominions. When the word came from the commander-in-chief himself that our sons had saved the day at Langemarck were not all prouder that they were Canadians? "Priceless is the good your hands win for us all. Canadians are fighting not only for Great Britain, for the allies, for Belgium, but for liberty and for all mankind." Sir Wilfrid spoke of the Franco-British relations. "Blessed, blessed spectacle is the union of France and Great Britain today. They fought countless times, but always as Christians, never so that they could not be friends again. Now I believe, in my [illegible] of hearts that never shall the demon of war raise its hideous face between them again, but peace shall reign forever. If these nations put their hands together they could brave the world, not for war, but for peace, and thus open a new page in the history of the world." Had not France with her idealism and Britain with her practical sense together discovered and wrought out human liberty and the only possible science of home and colonial government? "This is the message and these are the sentiments that I bring to you, young Liberals, on this occasion," concluded Sir Wilfrid, before turning to the naval question. "Had my policy proved victorious," he said, "we would have not had to look in these days to an Australian fleet or to Japanese cruisers for the defence of the coasts of British Columbia," he concluded.

PROVIDE MONEY FOR PUMPING STATION UNIT

Contingent Fund Can be Used With the Consent of City Council

The following letter has been received from Solicitor E. H. D. Hall by the Utilities Commission in regard to the borrowing powers of the Commission:—

Dear Sir,—Re Auxiliary Pumping Plant.

The provisions of the Peterborough Act of last session authorize the Council, without the asset of the ratepayers, to pass by-laws authorizing the borrowing of a sum not exceeding $80,000 and to pay the amount to the Utilities Commission to replace money expended in the completion of the dam and power development of the Water Works System, the erection of the pumping station and the purchase and installation of the pumping units therein and in extension of water mains. The money used for these purposes, over and above the amount for which debentures were issued, I presume was paid out of revenue, which if not used in this way would have gone into the contingent fund under the provisions of Chapter 74, Section 17 of the Acts of 1905. Under these Acts the Water Commissioners were authorized to form a contingent fund not exceeding $50,000 and to use such portion of it, from time to time as might be necessary for making extensions, repairs, improvements and alterations in the water works and the dam, power house, plant, mains and other appliances and appurtenances of the water works system, provided that any contract, scheme or work involving an expenditure of over $5,000 first requires the approval of the Council. If therefore a by-law were passed by the Council providing sufficient money to repay the Commission the amount required to pay the bank, and other sums required and in addition sufficient to pay for the auxiliary pumping unit, money so received would be a return to the contingent fund of a like amount expended out of it, and with the approval of the Council, if the amount required exceeds $5000, the Commission it appears to me, could use this for paying for the auxiliary pumping unit.

Yours truly,

E. H. D. HALL.

What the Act Says.

The sections of the Act governing this are quoted as follows:—

"It shall be lawful for the Commissioners of the Municipal Waterworks to form and maintain a contingent fund not to exceed at any time the sum of $50,000 and to use such portion of such contingent fund from time to time as may be necessary for making extensions, repairs, improvements and alterations in the said waterworks and the dam, power house, plant, mains and other appliances and appurtenances of the water works system provided however that any contract, scheme or work involving an expenditure of over $5000 shall first require the approval of the Council of the corporation of the said town—such contingent fund to be invested by the Water Commissioners until it is needed for the purposes aforesaid and for the purposes of forming such contingent fund it shall be lawful for the said Water Commissioners to retain the surplus annual revenue derived from the said waterworks after providing for all ordinary expenses of management and maintenance and a sum sufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund on the water works debentures until the said contingent fund amounts to the sum of $50,000 and while the said contingent fund remains at the said sum of $50,000 the whole of such surplus revenue shall form part of the general funds of and be paid to the corporation of the City of Peterborough."

THE BLOOD IS THE STREAM OF LIFE

Pure Blood Is Absolutely Necessary To Health

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" PURIFIES

These Wonderful Tablets, Made of Fruit Juices, Are The Best Of All Tonics To Purify And Enrich The Blood.

Pure, rich blood can flow only in a clean body. Now, a clean body is one in which the waste matter is regularly and naturally eliminated from the system. The blood cannot be pure when the skin action is weak, when the stomach does not digest the food properly, when the bowels do not move regularly, when the kidneys are strained or overworked.

Pure blood is the result of perfect health and harmony of stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives", by their wonderful action on all these organs, keeps the whole system as clean as Nature intended our bodies to be clean.

"Fruit-a-tives" tones up, invigorates, strengthens, purifies, cleans and gives pure, rich, clean blood that is, in truth, the stream of life.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50 trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

ITALIANS NEAR WAR PRECIPICE

Communications Between Italy and Austria Are Practically at an End

Rome, May 22—The Italian senate late yesterday passed the measure giving the government full power in case of war. The vote was 262 to 2. This bill is the same one that was passed by the chamber of deputies previously. Any decisive action by the Cabinet has been held up pending this vote of confidenc in the government. Events are now expected to move rapidly. There was a tremendous demonstration in the senate chamber when the result of the vote was announced. Both on the floor and in the galleries pandemonium broke loose. The king and members of the royal household were spectators.

In presenting the bill to the senate Prince Colonna, mayor of Rome, declared he was to have the honor of launching the war cry. He was frantically applauded.

The position Italy finds herself in is very curious. Still there is no formal declaration of war though communications between Austria and Italy have practically ceased. Rome is delirious with joy. The frontier population has been ordered to abandon their homes and withdraw beyond the line of defense. The valley of the Isonzo has been evacuated.

At Brindisi, Bari and Poggia 350,000 Italian troops have been concentrated. The Austrian forces are concentrated at Trent, Bozen and Meran. Prince von Buelow and Baron De Macchio still remain in Rome. They are making no preparations to leave. Friends declare the two diplomats still profess to see no imminent danger of a rupture between Italy and Austria. If Italy decides to intervene in the war the members of the royal house of Savoy who have always taken a full share in the country's struggles will uphold the best military traditions of their house. The king and the members of his family are ready to make the same sacrifices as the people. On the outbreak of hostilities the king who is as well the head of the army, will proceed to general headquarters and the seven princes of the house of Savoy will serve with the forces ashore and afloat. In the Duc D'Abruzzi, commander-in-chief of the Italian fleet the navy and the nation have complete confidence.

port, and while it was not the privilege of all to go to the front, yet everyone could do something in a small way for the Empire in this great national catastrophe.

A detachment from the Collegiate Cadets, in two sections, headed by Miss Ruby Quartermain as "Britannia" and Miss Meta Richardson as "Canada" marched up the aisles to the platform. Two choruses, "Rule Britannia" and "O Canada" were splendidly sung by them.

It was rather unfortunate that a number of young roughnecks were permitted to disturb half the house by their carrying-on at the rear of the hall. If the management had made some provision for order, the concert would have been more enjoyed by a large number of those who attended.

LOCAL ITALIANS READY FOR CALL

They Expect to Receive Word at Any Hour

Although Italian reservists, of whom there are quite a number in Peterborough have not received any call to return to their country, such a call is liable to be sounded any hour and when it does come it will find many of them ready. Apart from patriotism the present scarcity of employment for foreigners in the city would greatly help to augment the number of Italians returning should they be called for.

Mr. Nicholas Minicola, who is in pretty close touch with the Italians of the city said he thought his fellow countryment here would be ready to respond to the call even though it might be a hardship for them. Personally he hoped they would not have to go.

Should a call go out from Rome for Italians to return it would be sent direct to the Consul General in Montreal, who would in turn notify the various Italian consular agencies throughout the country. The reservists of course would be the first to respond and then the volunteers.

Mr. Minecola said that every resident of Italy who was fit and able to train for a soldier did so, although it was not obligatory as in Germany. He figured that about 200,000 men between twenty and twenty-six years of age could be called out on very short notice and after that volunteers would be called for. They could put 200,000 men in the field easily. One drawback to some of the Italians returning home from Peterborough would be their inability, owing to lack of funds. However it is likely the Italian government would make some arrangements to overcome this obstacle. There is a standing agreement between the Rome authorities and the Campagnie General Italiana, one of the largest steamship companies in Italy to transport at reduced rates when the Government needs some men. They might even be transported free should volunteers lack funds for their passage back.

Mr. Minicola said he received no inside news of the affairs of Italy in the present crisis other than what was noted in the Canadian and American papers. All his news came via New York along with the news cabled over to the great American press associations. He spoke of the sinking of the Lusitania and was inclined to feel that it had something to do with hurrying Italy's hostile attitude toward Austria and Germany.

"We Italians cannot see our Mother Country lining herself up with anybody else," said Mr. Minicola.

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN CRIED

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. P. W. LANSENG, Route No. 1, Florence, South Dakota.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Hospital supplies positively required for our wounded Canadian.

Our soldiers are fighting and do not stop because they win or because their comrades are stricken down on the battle field.

Each day we read of some one we know being wounded and killed and [illegible] as we think of them fighting for us, dying for us. Can we then withhold a generous hand in outfitting proper hospital supplies? Bear in mind 2000 beds are being equipped and that means 2000 Canadian boys wounded and that that also means towels, pillow cases, bandages, etc., to comfort them in their agony will be required.

WALTER CURRAN'S LETTER ON LIFE

timentality will cause the British authorities to sacrifice thousands of British lives in playing to the gallery.

An English officer has the following to say on this subject in the Liverpool Post:

"But this latest phase of murder —asphyxiating gas—if I wrote from now till the end of the war I could not say everything about that. Of all the devilish crimes of which the Germans have been guilty since the war started, this one is far away the most devilish, and to try to excuse it on the ground that it inflicts a quick and painless death far different from the tornado of shells we let loose at Neuve Chapelle is blatant lying. We have a lot of the men who have been gassed in our hospitals. Their moans are awful, and they sit up swaying about fighting and gasping for breath. Their faces and body are a muddy purple black, their eyes glazed, and foam comes from their mouths. Their lungs are turned to liquid, and the doctors say they have the appearance of men on the point of death from drowning. Nurses and doctors work night and day to give relief."

Led by the Times, there has been a demand by the English Press that steps be taken to counter this mode of warfare.

It is well to note that the prevailing summer winds in Belgium are south-west and consequently the opportunities for the employment of gas will be limited.

London's nerves are becoming a wee bit jumpy. Yesterday, Ascension Day, a Royal Salute was fired at noon. The noise of the cannon so disturbed many people, who thought the Zeppelins were coming, that they hurried to cover. At night the roar of thunder again got their "goat." When you consider that we can, at this place, on a favorable day hear the roar of the heavy artillery an idea of our proximity to the real happenings is gained.

Yesterday in the mess at Napier Barracks, a Major read a letter from a Major at the front, who left here Tuesday at 8 p.m. He was in the thick of it on Wednesday morning, and has been under shell fire ever since. Some of his men were wounded and one was killed. They were digging themselves in under shell fire in a new position and they were not losing any time. There is a fascination about the life, but it is strenuous work and the ground is not in any too sanitary a condition.

The Princess Pats have no base reserves at all now. The Adjutant, Capt. Randolph Mainer, from Orillia, has been warned and leaves for the front Sunday.

WALTER CURRAN'S LETTER ON LIFE AT SHORNCLIFFE

Field Comforts Commission Doing a Great Work and is Appreciated by the Soldiers

(Special Correspondence to the Review by Walter Curran.)

SHORNCLIFFE, May 6.—These have been busy days at Canadian headquarters. Calls for reinforcements in France have come in so fast that the staff have been absolutely working overtime. The last reinforcements to be sent forward were the Canadian Mounted Brigade. The Strathcona Horse, King Edward Horse, Royal Canadian Dragoons, under Brigadier General Seely, have at last, after much heart-burning because of the delay, gone to the firing line—as infantry.

This occurrence in itself gives some idea of the urgent need there is for Canadian reinforcements just now. It would also indicate that insofar as the British are concerned, the big push is not to start just yet as this brigade has done absolutely no marching, and couldn't, in all fairness, be used in big manoeuvres. They had their first hike on Saturday last. They are now in France—all but two companies of the King Edward Horse, who are quarantined with measles.

The one consolation Gen. Seely's brigade has is that their use as infantry is only temporary, and that they have the promise of the War Office that they will be turned into cavalry again as soon as possible. There is great jubilation on all sides at the thought of getting to the front in any capacity.

There was considerable excitement among the newly arrived 18th on Monday at noon, when a German taube flew over the Sandling camp hard pressed by a British machine. Both were flying very high, but the puff and report of shots added a thrilling touch. They were too high to see very much, however. The Germans escaped in the direction of Dover.

The air scouts seem to be fairly well warned of the German movements. I was talking to a searchlight maxim gun motor crew, which came here two days before the raid, and by means of questions in the form of statements, ascertained that a visit of some kind was anticipated.

The day of the taube's visit was remarkable, too, for unusual activity on the part of destroyers and other war craft along the waterfront of Folkestone.

There has been a tremendous amount of stuff written and said about the First Contingent that was quite untrue. I find that K. of K.'s army was responsible for a large portion of the misdeeds with which the Canadians were credited. The people of Salisbury would be delighted to have the Canadians back again.

The English are absolutely unreserved in their praise of the valorous Canadians at Ypres. What those boys went unflinchingly through will never be realized by the people of Canada. None of the immortal heroes of history were called upon to face such absolutely galling conditions.

They have, I understand, been into it again. They came out on Monday and went back Thursday—the Second Brigade. Friday, it is stated, unofficially, they again proved their gallantry in a bayonet clash with the Huns. The praise you hear everywhere is unqualified and unstinted.

Field Comforts.

The announcement that the Canadian Field Comforts Commission was to be quartered in Moore Barracks here has met with much favorable comment on the part of both men and officers. Lieuts. Plummer and Arnoldi, by their really wonderfully faithful work in attending to the needs of the men at all times at the entire sacrifice of their own comforts and interests, both at Salisbury and at the front, have gained the admiration and appreciation of all ranks.

Being, as they are, the only official channel through which comforts can be sent directly to the men in the camps here and in France, and knowing, as they do, from the soldiers themselves, what is needed, they indubitably have had advantages over any other agency. They have, it seems, taken full advantage of their opportunities and have so established themselves that now, when sox or other comforts run short there is an immediate application put in to the Field Comforts Commission—and the boys tell me that they have not been found wanting.

A staff officer, whom I mentioned the commission's work to today, said: "Nobody realizes the work which those girls did for us at Salisbury. We were up to our eyes in mud and our transport and delivery system had almost insurmountable difficulties to cope with. These young ladies, whose official position enabled them to ascertain the wants of the men, absolutely sacrificed themselves in their work for the comfort of both officers and privates. Everyone recognizes that their work is indispensable, and that is really why they are being quartered in Moore Barracks."

One man, who is back from the front wounded, tells me that they are the one reliable point of contact with the outside world. If a chap is short of sox, the officers write in to Miss Plummer; if he wants to do some shopping, he writes. Parcels are sent in their care. If the people at home get out of touch with a boy, the commissioners locate him.

What I hear indicates that this commission does what no other agency can do. It works from the men to the public. It does not, of course, handle medical supplies or comforts to men in hospitals; that is the responsibility of the Red Cross. They do, however, supply the men in the field with the things they need which the government does not supply. Sox are, of course, the most imperative article. The manner in which the men literally wade through sox makes them always in demand, medium weight, of course, being required now instead of the winter ones.

I am told that the men yearn for good old Canadian tobacco — plug, package, or cigarettes. The Old Country stuff is all very good for the "bleeding blokes," but they say, "Give us a drag of real tobacco."

You can imagine the task which devolves upon these young ladies when you learn that they have to dig up the wherewithal to supply the men in France with such dainties as soaps, mouth organs, small towels, chocolate, gum, tooth brushes and paste. The English Tommy, not being accustomed to an undershirt, doesn't miss it, but not so our fellows. They want medium weight underclothes, and it is up to the commission of two to find them, and incidentally such other articles of haberdashery as khaki handkerchiefs, shoe laces and the omnipresent sox.

Many parcels sent forward have, as was inevitable, gone astray. Owing to the close contact which the Canadian Field Comforts Commission has with the army system it has been signally fortunate in getting its supplies through. This has given it the reputation for reliability which has earned it the prestige and regard of the military authorities and men.

When the depot in Moore Barracks is established, I will pay it a visit and try to describe for the benefit of the Canadian public just how the work of supplying our army with comforts is carried on.

Second Contingent Men.

The men of the Second Contingent, now in camp at Hyde—an extension of the Shorncliffe Camp — are signally healthy and unanimously enthusiastic about England. The weather has been ideal since their arrival and this is generally conceded to be the most attractive resort district in England. From present indications a shipment of baseballs would be very welcome. The boys are practising hard. A game has been arranged for Saturday between the Second Contingent Divisional Train and the First Contingent Infantry to take place at Folkestone cricket grounds. The said cricket grounds will probably receive some shock when the rooters get busy.

It is not in the least probable that the Canadian people grasps the significance of what the use of gas means to our men. No language at my command can possibly describe the heiniousness of this dastardly policy. However, the Germans have chosen their weapon, and it is to be hoped that no weak-kneed sen-

Starvation or Merciless Torture

A choice between starvation or merciless torture is the dismal prospect before all victims of indigestion for, although they are in need of food to nourish the body, they are afraid to eat because of the long periods of pain and discomfort that follow even the lightest of meals.

The urgent need of all who suffer from indigestion is to gain strength so that the stomach can extract nourishment from the food taken. Pain after eating is the way the stomach signifies its protest that it is too weak to do nature's work. To take purgatives is only to aggravate the trouble. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give new strength to weak stomachs because they enrich and purify the blood supply, thus enabling the stomach to digest food naturally. Almost from the first the appetite revives; then food can be taken without pain, and the burden of indigestion disappears. The following case proves the truth of these statements. Mr. W. H. Silver, a well-known farmer living in the vicinity of Hemford, N. S., says: "For upwards of seven years I was tortured with indigestion; sometimes I was so bad that I would not taste a bit of hearty food, but would have to content myself with a bit of stale bread. At times I suffered excruciating pains in my stomach, and could hardly sleep at night. I tried various prescriptions, but got no benefit from them, and naturally I was in a very reduced state of health. I had come to believe that I was doomed for the balance of my life to this most constant torture, when I read of a case similar to my own cured through the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills. This gave me new courage, and I decided to try them. To make a long story short, the use of the Pills for a couple of months completely cured me. This is some two years ago, and I have had no return of the trouble, and am able to eat as hearty a meal as anyone."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through your medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MILITARY NEWS

(Lindsay Post.)

Lieut.-Col. Fee received word this morning from militia headquarters that he had been transferred to Divisional Headquarters, Kingston, to take charge of the base regiment. He leaves on Monday for the Limestone City to report for duty.

This appointment is a most important one, as Lieut.-Col. Fee's duties will be to look after all the details in connection with the preparation of the regiment for departure to the front.

Major Anderson, of Tory Hill, sen. major of the 45th Regt., has been ordered to report for duty at the armories in Col. Fee's place.

Major Brown, of Kingston, conducted the officers' and non-coms' examinations at the armories last night. The men acquitted themselves most creditably.

Eighteen more recruits enlisted today.

An idea of what the moving of the troops to Barriefield will mean to some Ottawa merchants is shown by the amount of provisions used by the 8th C. M. R. daily.

The total strength of this regiment is 554 men, who require 658 pounds of bread, 527 pounds of fresh meat, 66 pounds of bacon, 11 pounds of coffee, 32 pounds of cheese, 197 pounds fresh vegetables, 15 ounces pepper, 16 pounds salt, 8 pounds of tea, 527 pounds of potatoes, 17 pounds of split peas, 66 pounds jam, 66 pounds beans, 66 pounds of butter.

They also use 3,555 pounds of hay and 2,570 pounds of oats, and 2,056 pounds of straw.—Ottawa Citizen.

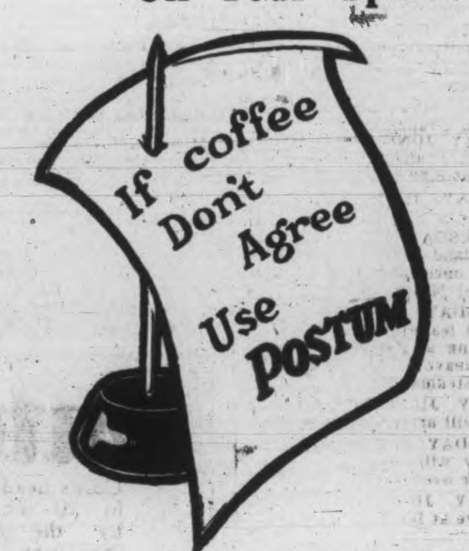
Stick This On Your Spindle



A Nurse says:

"I have been a trained nurse for fifteen years, and, like many nurses, drank strong coffee. About two years ago I had to call a halt. I missed my coffee until someone recommended Postum, which I have used ever since, recommending it to many of my patients."

A Teacher says:

"I have been a coffee drinker ever since I can remember. I have been teaching school for sixteen years, and became more and more nervous. I could not sleep. After reading some of your literature I decided to try Postum. I have been using it about thirty days; my nerves have improved; I have no headache; sleep peacefully, and am able to do my school work better."

A Doctor says:

"I often find it necessary to prohibit the use of coffee for my patients, and have advised the use of Postum with good results to the nervous system and digestion."

When the time comes that you want to get rid of tea and coffee troubles, change to

The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EMPIRE DAY

Fitting Observation Made at King Edward School

Empire Day was fittingly observed at King Edward school yesterday afternoon. The original intention was to hold the celebration on the lawn at the front entrance to the school, but the rain prevented this and the [illegible] was used instead. [illegible] addresses were given by [illegible] J. A. MacKenzie, B.A., B.D., of Knox Church and the Rev. [illegible], B.A., of St. James. Tennyson's "The Fleet" and his "Britons, Hold Your Own," were well recited by two of the pupils, Dorothy Mills and Lois Braund. The choruses under the leadership of Miss Adams were splendidly rendered. Representatives of the "Daughters of the Empire," in the person of Mrs. (Dr.) Amys and Mrs. Sharpe were present, as well as a number of visitors and all were delighted with the splendid work of the pupils and the order and attention maintained throughout. The following is the programme:—

Chorus—O Canada.

Recitation—The Fleet — Dorothy Mills.

Chorus—Our Flag.

Address—Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, B.A., B.D.

Chorus—Here's a Health.

Address—Rev. J. N. Clarry, B.A.

Chorus—Fling Out the Flag.

Recitation — Britons, Hold Your Own—Lois Braund.

Chorus—The Land for Me.

Chorus—Tipperary.

God Save the King (3 stanzas).

IN TIMES OF WAR PREPARE FOR PEACE and make certain that you will reap the full benefits of the improved business it will bring

Have your Books Audited! If your bookkeeper is honest, MISTAKES will be found, and mistakes mean loss; if dishonest his FRAUDS will be detected before too late. If your system is DEFECTIVE it may be improved.

If you keep no books—start now! A few hours weekly is all that is required, and an experienced man offers that service at moderate cost. Avail yourself of his services, and save WASTE time, and DEFECTIVE or OBSOLETE methods.

No matter what your business may be, I can help you, as I am helping others. Most failures in business are due to one of these causes, therefore, don't wait for disaster to come upon you, but DO IT NOW!

LOCAL MARKET

The market opened today with eggs going at 21c a dozen and butter at 30c, prices which reigned all morning, both commodities apparently having reached their level. The supply of both was ample. Fowl was a little more conspicuous than for some week past, but no noticeable demand existed save by buyers from restaurants. A nice chicken sold for 75c to $1.

Garden produce is commencing to make its debut, several farmers having some of the earlier varieties for sale. Rhubarb was abundant, also tomato plants and some lettuce and onions. Potatoes were plentiful, selling at 50c, 55c and 60c a bag. Meat offerings were scarce, save a good supply of live porkers.

Today's prices were:

PETE BEHAN IS LET OUT BY ERIE AND WANTS JOB IN THE CANADIAN LEAGUE

"Strong Arm" Pete Would Like to go to Hamilton—Third Canadian Leaguer to be Released — Ottawa Gets Fuller

HAMILTON, May 22.—Pete Behan, last year with Erie, and previous to that a member of the Guelph Leafs, is anxious to get a job with the Hamilton Club. The Herald sporting editor is in receipt of a letter from Behan, stating that he was released from the Erie Central league club early this week, and that he is a free agent. He wants to play in the Canadian league, and especially in Hamilton.

Behan started out in the Canadian league as a pitcher, then after a whack at the umpiring end, got back into the game as a short fielder. He has been quite successful in his new position, having one of the best throwing arms in the league.

Behan's release from Erie makes three Canadian leaguers who have been let out by that club—Kelly Harris, Eddie Linneborn and Behan.

He is now in Buffalo, but is on his way to his home in Bradford, Pa., for a short rest. He has four offers, two of them by Canadian league clubs, but is particularly anxious to locate here.

OTTAWA, May 22.—The Ottawa baseball club has announced that it has secured Frankie Fuller, a sensational young shortstop, from the Detroit American league club. Manager Hugh C. Jennings wired to the Ottawas to the effect that he would send Fuller to Ottawa for a month or two. Fuller played in seven or eight games for the Tigers this year, but has been warming the bench of late. He told Jennings that he would prefer playing in Ottawa regularly to warming a bench at Detroit, and will come here at once. He will replace Cole at short. The Ottawas have been after Fuller for some time.

MONDAY'S BIG LACROSSE ATTRACTION AT RIVERSIDE

The lacrosse game at Riverside Park will be the big attraction for the holiday, and the people of Peterborough are assured of a good afternoon's sport. The Riverdales have a fast aggregation, so that the local boys will have to go the limit to win, but they have been getting in some telling practice, and are in shape to give their opponents a fast game.

There has been some prejudice against lacrosse in the past because of the rough play, but the local executive are putting forth every effort to eliminate all the objectionable features of the game, so the public can look for a good, clean afternoon's sport.

The following men are asked to report on the field at 1:45 o'clock on Monday:

Hatton, Dillon, Gillman, Mein, Crough, Robertson, McCoy, Kelly, Brown, Cranfield, Burnham, Kenneally, Best, H. Dunsford, Hamilton, Fleming, P. Dunsford.

FIGHT FOR WILLARD.

NEW YORK, May 22. — Champion Jess Willard will meet Jim Coffey in a ten-round bout in New York on Labor Day. While articles have not been signed, it is probable all signatures will be affixed within the next week or ten days.

Willard has decided that the public does not favor a "stage champion," and has consented to a battle with Billy Gibson's Irish champion. Jack Curley, who promoted the Willard-Johnson championship struggle, and who is one of Jess' managers, today admitted that the match would materialize.

"Willard will surely fight on Labor Day," said Curley. "He wants to get back into the ring. He doesn't like stage work, but can hardly turn down the easy money and get back into harness before September. Coffey will surely be his first opponent unless Jim is beaten in the meantime."

Geneva, May 22—A despatch from Vienna reports that a strong Serbian [illegible] army is marching towards the frontier for a general attack.

Expert Hopeful

London, May 22—The London Times military expert writes: "If the German population is larger than that of the United Kingdom we must not forget that German casualties have been at least ten times more numerous than ours and that the strain of fighting on two fronts is immense. Every month of war causes Germany 300,000 casualties. The supply of good men is not exhausted but to a large extent the flower of German youth is stricken down at a moment when ours is about to blossom."

The Daily Chronicle to-day says: "If the sort of attack made yesterday upon the military head of the empire's forces were to become a regular feature of journalism the discipline, loyalty and comradeship of the service would disappear and the confidence of the public would go."

SHARPLY ATTACKS ON THE WAR MINISTER

London Mail Criticizes Kitchener — Progress of Allies at Various Points

London, May 22—A sensation has been created in England by an attack in the Daily Mail and other newspapers owned by Lord Northcliffe upon Lord Kitchener. Following is the text of the Daily Mail's attack on Lord Kitchener which has stirred all England: "Lord Kitchener has starved the army in France of high explosive shells. The admitted fact is that Kitchener ordered the wrong kind of shell—the same kind he used largely against the Boers. He persisted in sending shrapnel, a useless weapon in trench warfare. He was warned repeatedly that the kind of shell required was a violently explosive bomb which would dynamite its way through the German trenches and entanglements and enable our brave men to advance in safety. The kind of shell our poor soldiers have had has caused the deaths of hundreds of them. Incidentally it has brought about a Cabinet crisis and the formation of what we hope is going to be a national government."

Attack Resented

Public feeling has been outraged by the attacks on Lord Kitchener. This has been reflected in high circles and it is desired on both sides that Kitchener should accept an invitation which will be tendered him to continue in the office of secretary for war in the new ministry. The suggestion that he might take up other duties of equal importance but outside the cabinet has receded into the background. Little credence can be given to rumors of a dual control of the war office. Lloyd-George will remain at the treasury. The best opinion now is that there should be a minister responsible for the control of the reproduction and manufacture of munitions who would be outside the Cabinet. Since Lloyd-George cannot take the matter directly in hand it would be for the Cabinet to decide what was necessary on the ground of policy and give instructions to the minister in control. Representations from the highest quarters in the city including the Bank of England have been made to the government that it would gravely disturb public credit and stability if Lloyd-George were to leave the treasury.

French Advances

London, May 22—French forces, forced to suspend operations by the heavy mists which hung over the battleground in the Notre Dame de Lorette region sprang furiously to the attack as soon as the veil lifted and last night's report from Paris chronicled their capture of all the approaches to the table rock of Lorette, giving them control of the plateau, a position which the Germans have defended with great stubbornness for the past six months. Meanwhile the French and Algerian troops operating north of Ypres have pressed across the Yser canal and are carrying the fighting to the Germans with tremendous energy. Five hundred bodies of German dead were counted on the field and 150 prisoners were in French hands when the commander forwarded his report. The fresh successes of the allies on the western front took first place in the day's military events despite the importance attaching to the Austro-German efforts about Peremysl and along the San near the southern extremity of the eastern front. The operations in the west are mainly significant as indicating the inability of the Germans for the moment at least to impede the steady adbance of the allies on the only sectors where fighting is proceeding.

With the Russians

Petrograd, May 22—Although there are signs that the supreme Austro-German effort on this front is losing its momentum, it is premature to assume that the turning point of the great battle has been reached or that the enemy will not make even further progress before he is finally brought to a standstill.

The present battle, both in strength of forces engaged and the expenditure of ammunition exceeds all other features of this war. In authoritative military circles it is stated that the situation as a whole is quite satisfactory for the Russians. Though the enemy may gain further territorial advantage it is extremely improbable that any of the troops now engaged in Galicia ever will be in condition to return to the western front.

At the Dardanelles

London, May 22—British unofficial reports of the capture of Kilid Bahr and Krithia in the fighting on Gallipoli Peninsula in the Dardanelles as yet have been unconfirmed. Likewise there is lacking official confirmation of the silencing of all the forts on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles.

PROMISED TO ENLIST.

On his promise to enlist immediately a young South Monaghan man escaped punishment today in Magistrate Langley's Court, for assaulting his wife. The latter gave her evidence which showed conclusively that an assault had been committed in the township of South Monaghan.

An understanding was reached whereby the young man was allowed out on suspended sentence, after his wife had signed papers consenting to let him enlist. His name is withheld for obvious reasons.

GOOD SUM FOR THE RED CROSS

Numerous Fair Collectors Meet Considerable Success

When the Red Cross collectors who have been busy all day count the silver in their money boxes tonight they expect to realize a very handsome sum. The public generally have responded to the appeal in a most gratifying manner. Some folks were not inclined to loosen up however, but they were not numerous enough to discourage the collectors. Those collectors who visited the market square did rushing business for a while.

One canvasser related this experience she had on the market.

A woman was asked to buy a tag but she drew herself up haughtily and said she did not wish for one. She would rather keep her money and buy herself a new dress.

"Well," replied the collector, "if that's the way you look at it, I hope you get the dress and that it will last you a good long time."

Another collector was so delighted with her record of sales that she asked the reporter to feel how heavy her money box was.

"It's all silver too with the exception of three or four coppers," she said.

The income of the collectors in certain districts was exceedingly good while others were just mediocre.

Some parties however did not at first know why money was required but when it was properly explained, they dug down for a coin cheerfully. Others however gave the collector a stony stare and passed on. It was impossible to quench the ardor of the collectors for they knew they were acting in a deserving cause.

A PAIR OF SIXES

Like all things which succeed, the title, "A Pair of Sixes," seems to be just the exact name to fit the supremely funny farce which comes to the Grand Opera House on Thursday, May 27th.

It refers merely to the incident in the play which caused two partners to disagree and start a whirl of fun which is now being enjoyed the country over. Beyond that the title has [illegible] termed our great American indoor sport. There is, of course, a queen of hearts in the cast. She is a mighty big card and probably furnishes the only instance where a lone queen beat a pair of sixes.

"A Pair of Sixes," which is by Edward Peple, author of "The Prince Chap" and the "Littlest Rebel," was acknowledged by New York critics to be the funniest farce since the days of the lamented Chas. H. Hoyt, and all seemed to feel that it was necessary to go far back to find its equal. While there is fun galore, it is all legitimate. The fun is evolved through the comingling of keen satire and delightful humor, which, with the constantly complicated situations, produces one of the most pleasing plays of this half century.

The cast is satisfyingly complete and discloses such names as that of Harry O. Stubbs, of whom Amy Leslie said in the Chicago Daily News, "Harry O. Stubbs will always be the bright particular star of any organization with which he is connected"; Rita Carlyle, a noted English actress, celebrated for her tour of over two years in England and the Continent, when she was jointly starred with William Mollison, as "Pat," in "The Chorus Lady." Helen Dahl, recruited from the Henry W. Savage forces, who play the leading comedy roles and are capably assisted by a company, all of whom have appeared at one time or another at the Longacre Theatre, New York City, during the year's run of the comedy on Broadway.

CAUSES LEADING UP TO THE WAR

Patriotic Program Given by Normal School Literary Society

At an open meeting of the Normal School Literary Society, last evening, the Normalites gave a very enjoyable program which was of a patriotic character.

The opening number was a chorus, "The Call of the Northland," followed by a talk on National Anthems of various countries by Miss Ross. The Cause of the War was illustrated by Mr. L. Copp, assisted by other members of the society who represented the allies and gave the reasons for the nations entering the war. The parts were taken as follows:—

Belgium—Miss Gould — National Anthem—Miss Whytock.

England—Miss Pillsworth — God Save the King—All.

France—Miss Sweetnam—La Marsellaise.

Russia—Miss Parker — God Save our Gracious Czar.

Japan—Miss Laura Bateman—National Anthem—Form I.

Servia—Mr. Kernaghan.

Canada — Miss Johnson — The Maple Leaf.

Australia and New Zealand—Miss Rutlan.

Chorus—The Recessional.

God Save the King.

Mr. J. E. Rorke, president of the Society was chairman.
